In July, 1913, A. R. Gould claimed that he was entitled to a salary of $5,000 a year from the construction company. It was not shown that Mr. Gould had any office in this company, or that any order to provide him with a salary had been passed by the company. But Mr. Gould collected $10,000 for the two preceding years.

The amounts paid to Mr. Gould reached a total, up to March of this year, of $19,366.67.

Another matter which cropped up yesterday was the claim of J. D. Seeley for $16,000. The full amount was charged up to general expenses, although only $4,000 was actually paid. The entry was classified as "organization expenses."

WORM IN MIDDLESEX.

Damage Has Been Done By Pest at Several Points.

LONDON, Ont., July 24.—The army worm has invaded Middlesex and has been seen in large numbers in the Township of Delaware, on the first concession. In several other places in this district the pest has been observed and in certain districts fields of grain are being burned and trenches dug to stop the ravages of the invaders. In Delaware the insects are making great havoc. Appin, Avon and other places report the presence of worms.

Pest Appears at Ayr.

AYR, July 24. — The army worm has been discovered in small quantities in this vicinity. The pest occupies fields on three farms south of the town, and one section has been found in larger numbers on a farm to the west.

Leamington Suffers.

LEAMINGTON, Ont., July 24.—The army worms are doing a good deal of damage in this district and are believed to be moving toward Windsor. Several fields of oats have been destroyed near here.

Maniac Creates Terror.

OTTAWA, July 24.—Ubalde Desiel, who on April 18 was committed to the asylum at Longue Pointe, Quebec, as criminally insane, escaped on Monday or early Tuesday of this week, and returning to his former home in North Templeton, drove his wife and children from the house and took possession. The whole countryside is in terror, for it is known that he is armed and altogether irresponsible for his actions.

Coal-Laden Schooner Ashore.

DIGBY, N.S., July 24—The schooner Grace Darling, Captain Caines, with hard coal from New York for Freeport, went ashore at Dartmouth Point, the St. Mary's Bay entrance to Grand Passage.

The vessel lies in a dangerous position near Peter's Island light. She is now full of water and will probably prove a total loss.

Sir Wilfrid's Tour Arranged.

OTTAWA, July 24.—It is announced to-day that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will speak in Vancouver on Sept. 11, and touch at Calgary, Regina and Winnipeg on his way eastward, finishing his tour in Ontario points. He opens at St. John, N.B., Aug. 17 or 24. Later, visiting Charlottetown. There will also be meetings in Montreal and Quebec City.

Criminal Libel Charged.

MONTREAL, July 24.—Dr. J. E. Biron, assistant coroner of this city, is prosecuting Gaston Maillet, a well-known dentist, 162 St. Denis street, for criminal libel, and is also suing him for $5,000 damages.

It takes two to make a bargain—and a lawyer to get the best of it.

INFANTRY FOR ULSTER?

London Telegraph Says Government Is Mobilizing Men In Camp.

LONDON, July 24. — C. A. P. Cable.)—The Telegraph's Dublin correspondent is sending a startling message to the effect that infantry are being despatched to Ulster, and that those who are engaged in field operations in that province are being mobilized with a view of coping with any contingency which might arise. An order has been issued from the War Office, preventing them from associating or taking part in any way with the Ulster or Nationalist volunteers. The order has been read to the men on parade. The document orders that arrest and court-martial, with the usual punishment, will follow in case of its violation on the part of their giving aid or instruction to any or either of the volunteer forces now known to exist in Ireland, whose intentions or objects are partially or wholly known to interfere with the peace and good order of that portion of his Majesty's domains known as Ireland.

UNIVERSAL PENNY POSTAGE.

Many Governments Prepared to Support the Idea.

LONDON, July 24.—At a conference of Postmasters-General shortly to be held in Madrid, it is stated that all the overseas Governments have signified their intention of sending delegates who will support a proposal for universal penny postage rather than in favor of 1 1-2d. rate recently suggested here. Some of the dominions, Australia in particular, are prepared to enter into reciprocal arrangements with any country that would agree to establish penny postage.

A movement is also on foot to bring the whole of the English-speaking world into line in the matter of exchanging week-end cables at reduced rates, and already most of the countries concerned have agreed.

Didn't Perish With Empress.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., July 24.—Joseph Kinslow, formerly of Charlottetown, who was previously reported to have gone down in the Empress of Ireland, is safe at his home in Liverpool, England, with his wife and family. Kinslow was a fireman on the Empress, and was sleeping below when the disaster occurred. He secured a lifebelt and was picked up.

PROMINENT CURLER DEAD AT TORONTO

Toronto, July 24.—Percival James Edwards died yesterday at the residence of his father, C. H. Edwards, 103 St. Clair avenue west. For the past four or five weeks he had been in bed. and was ill before that time. His trouble was from brain fever, brought on by overwork.

He was born at Bobcaygeon thirty-nine years ago, but was educated in Toronto. He went into the lumber business in his earlier days and remained at it until some three years ago, when he took up the brokerage business, continuing it until the time of his death. He was a member of the Granite Club, and was a noted curler, belonging to several clubs in the city. He is survived by the widow, his father, one brother, and four sisters.

THE SPORTING WORLD

Centenary of the Native Home of Cricket Game

Every cricketer knows of the Marylebone Cricket Club, the famous London organization which makes the laws of the game, and has its home at the world renowned playing field of Lords.

The present ground, the third of the name was opened on May 9, 1814, just over a hundred years ago!

Mr. Ashley Cooper reminds us that Thomas Lord, the founder of the ground, was a man of gentle birth, a large landed proprietor, and a cricketer whose enthusiasm for the game undoubtedly saved the M.C.C. from extinction. Lord's was vastly different then from what it is now. In those far-distant days bookmakers attended the ground regularly and called the odds in front of the pavilion; roguery was indulged in to an alarming extent, and often professionals found it impossible to resist bribes to play their side false. Even Lord Frederick Beauclerk, the chief member at Lord's, openly acknowledged that he reckoned to make 600 guineas a year out of the games. Times, fortunately, have changed, and the last player to practise such trickery has long since gone to his rest.

Ground Has Resisted Builders.

In 1825, when Lord wished to retire, there was a possibility of the ground being lost to the game, for the old cricketer had obtained permission to erect fourteen villas on the site and might have carried his idea into effect without delay.

Happily William Ward, M.P., for London and the best batsman of the time, prevented such a catastrophe by giving Lord a cheque for $25,000 for his interest, but ten years later Ward himself, having experienced a very heavy financial loss, obtained a lease from the Eyre Estate and transferred it four days later to James Henry Dark, a professional, and one of the best friends the Club ever had, for $10,000 and an annuity of $2,125 during the unexpired term. More than once the latter was tempted by the builders, but he was loyal to the M.C.C. and deserves to be held in remembrance by all who frequent the ground.

For almost [illegible] was the proprietor of Lord's, the freehold of which was sold by the Eyre Estate at public auction to Mr. Isaac Moses for $35,000 in 1860. Four years later the M.C.C., at a cost of $62,500 (of which sum the late King Edward, as Prince of Wales, subscribed a hundred guineas), purchased Dark's lease of twenty-nine years, and on August 22, 1866, through the generosity of Mr. William Nicholson, who advanced the money, secured the freehold from Marsden (ne Moses) for $91,666, being 33 1-3 years' purchase of the ground rent secured under the extended lease of ninety-nine years.

In 1890 the present pavilion was erected at a cost of $105,000, Mr. Nicholson again advancing a large sum to the Club. That was the third building of the kind, the first having been destroyed by fire in 1825 and the second being pulled down for that which now adorns the ground.

Big Waiting List.

For many years membership of the M.C.C. has been much coveted, so that it is said that when an heir is born to a great house, the butler, on his way to register the birth, calls at Lord's to enter the name in the candidate's book.

For over half a century the M.C.C. was a comparatively small club. Even in 1835, after being established forty-eight years, the membership was only 213; by 1867 it had reached 1,000; by 1887 (the centenary year) 3,216, and last season 5,352. At the present time over 1,600 names are on the waiting list, and it is estimated that some of the non-cricketers included in the number will be obliged to wait forty years ere being elected.

The growth of the Club has naturally witnessed a corresponding increase in the match list, expenses, and ground staff. Sir Spencer Ponsonby-Fane, who was elected in May 1840, and whose recollections of the ground cover a period of over eighty years, can recall the time when only five bowlers and five boys were employed there; today there are fifty-five bowlers alone on the ground staff. Similarly with match expenses. In 1834 the season's programme cost £75, but ten years later the item had increased to £576 17s. 6d.; by 1871 it had reached £1,102 13s. 10d.; by 1881 £3,115; and by 1888 £4,290. During recent years various economies have been effected, but even so the match expenses of the last three seasons aggregated £9,944 19s. 11d.

LOCAL GOLFERS LOST TO OSHAWA

Were Eight Down in a Match Played During Drizzling Rain

Sixteen or seventeen golf enthusiasts braved the elements yesterday and journeyed to Oshawa to play a return match with the Oshawa Golf Club. The game was played in the rain and mist but despite these drawbacks the players enjoyed themselves as they always do when they go to Oshawa. The result was a defeat for Peterborough as the appended scores will show:—

COMMENT
As You Like It

The American League race looks practically settled now. The Athletics are playing better ball at the present, if wins are any indication, since the season opened. The team is hitting in a more timely manner and will unless several broken legs and arms interfere, carry the Johnson circuit banner into the world's series battle. The pricely infield is going at top speed both in the field and at bat as a glimpse at the box scores will show.

The National League race is more doubtful. The Giants are fancied by the experts but the form displayed by the Cubs is causing McGraw some worry. The Cubs' win of Wednesday made it eleven straight and those who figured Hank O'Day's team as a badly shot one are now watching eagerly the battle they are giving the champions.

Jupiter Pluv outguessed Old Sol yesterday and the Petes were unable to take a fall out of Hamilton. The rain was general and was welcomed by the farmers but not by the magnates who need every dime they can grab. The baseball club owners have no kick coming though, because the season has been exceptionally fine from their point of view, regarding weather.

Would Louie Schettler look good on the hurling corps of an International League Club? Schettler today is better than some of the men drawing down salaries in the Barrow circuit and there are many who believe he would prove a good addition to some of the International Clubs. He is admittedly the best in the Canadian League, not excluding the famous Bobby Heck. Schettler's record for a tail end club and a club which at the beginning of the season was scoring about one run a game is very good. Louie was up there once and came back and that seems to be one of the reasons he has not been sought again and then he is not a youngster, but he still has a few years of good hurling left in his whip.

Free Press.

Though it rained heavily this morning and during a portion of the night, the Ottawas will play the first game of the series against Toronto this afternoon providing the wet stuff "lays off" this afternoon. The Senators returned home this morning after taking two out of three from Peterboro. Manager Shaughnessy is limping around with a badly wrenched ankle received sliding into the plate on Monday. He will be on the bench but not in uniform this afternoon. Petie Powers is taking his place in centre.

Shag offered to buy a pitcher from Peterboro, and like other clubs of the Canadian League, they immediately thought the manager was trying to put one over. They agreed on a price for Lefty Creswell, although he would not be of much use to the champions, then when the deal was about to go through, they reneged. They offered Sterling for $1,000. It's a cinch the whole Peterboro club would be purchased at the end of the season for twice that amount.

THE MOVIES SHOW A FOUL

They Also Show That Smith Was not Out in Fourth

London, July 24.—A slow-moving movie film has settled the questions at issue in the recent Smith-Carpentier fight. Pictures of the fight show clearly that Gunboat was on his feet in the fourth round on the count of nine, and that in the [illegible] round Smith struck Carpentier on the side of the head twice while the latter was kneeling. The film shows Smith striking a light blow, which glanced off the Frenchman's shoulder while the latter was falling.

LAWN TENNIS

The Electrical News, has an article on Lawn Tennis at night, which is supplemented by a photograph showing the players in action. The News says:

An interesting application of electric light is found in the lighting of lawn tennis courts so that the game can be played almost as easily by night as by day. It is not to be understood that night play in the open is as satisfactory as under sunlight but nevertheless it has been found more satisfactorily than artificially lighted indoor play and can be quite enjoyable when the element of novelty is considered.

A large number of tennis clubs in the United States are now playing at night on artificially illuminated courts, the light coming entirely from the sides, from mazda lamps and large angle reflectors. The Lakewood Tennis Club of Cleveland was the first to adopt the system for their courts and the illustration herewith shows an entire absence of shadows a perfect screening of the light source from direct vision and a surprising uniformity of illumination.

Twenty-four Wheeler 45 deg. angle reflectors with 250 watt mazda lamps were evenly spaced twelve to a side, and suspended 16 feet above the ground from a messenger cable strung over three posts on each side of the court and well anchored. The high wire netting, stretched around the court to prevent the balls from being knocked out of bounds, also served to protect the lamps and reflectors from stray balls. In later installations as few as six units have ben used to a side, but eight are as few as should be used to give adequate illumination without shadows.

The general success of "night tennis" may be judged by the following comment of the American Lawn Tennis Magazine. "That this system, though apparently simple, is decidedly practical, no shadow of doubt should longer exist. The only phase which I would class as a disadvantage is an initial strangeness during a few games or possibly a set. Directly this has been dispelled, as it does become with but few exceptions the game may proceed at ever so fast a pace and still be free of more than the ordinary run of uncertainty.

Lobs of whatever height or depth are played without trouble. Services are also, after a time, readily followed. Low volleying both "across court" and at "short" range may be excuted with sufficient precision. We gave this matter a very good test (in this respect) when we had our night tournament. We had about fifteen players, representing all the different clubs of the city, played in this tournament, and none of these players had ever been on our courts before, or had ever tried playing at night. There was not a person who had any complaint against it, and, as you will know, if there are any faults in anything, it doesn't take a tennis player very long to state his opinions."

Duke of Connaught Left For West.

OTTAWA, July 24.— Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia left Ottawa yesterday in a special C.P.R. train for their farewell tour of the West. After visiting Port Arthur and Fort William they will proceed to Regina and Calgary and will spend a couple of weeks at Banff. After the coast visit Winnipeg and other Manitoba points will be touched en route home. They will reach Ottawa about Sept. 7.

AMERICA READY FOR SHIPMENT

New York, July 24.—After many delays because of changes necessary in the construction of the America, it now has practically been decided to ship the machine to St. John's, Nfld., according to a letter received from Glenn H. Curtiss at Hammondsport, by Henry Woodhouse, of the Aero Club of America.

Because of the gratifying tone of the letter and the statement in it that the America would be shipped by Aug. 1, members of the club are making arrangements for their passage to St. John's in order to be present when Lt. Porte makes ready to begin the flight across the Atlantic. Practically the entire accommodations of the steamer sailing on Aug. 1st have been engaged by the aviation enthusiasts.

"It beats all how many excuses one can find for throwing away last summer's gowns and buying a new outfit."

ITINERARY OF MENDELSSOHN CHOIR TRIP

Toronto, July 24.—Arrangements are practically complete in connectionwith the Mendelssohn Choir's itinerary of next year's trip. Although there is still some indecision as to the auspices in Berlin, Germany, that city will be included among the places visited.

Dr. Vogt is desirous that the choir should appear with the famous Philharmonic Orchestra of Berlin, in Philharmonic Hall, but as that orchestra anticipates a visit to Spain at about the same time that the Canadians will appear in the German capital, he is in doubt as to whether it can be managed as he wishes. The Berlin orchestra has promised its hall to a society during its absence so that the choir will not be able to appear in the leading home of music unless the orchestra remains for the Mendelssohn visit.

The whole trip is to occupy only a month. The choir will leave Toronto on April 18th, 1915, and will sail from Havre, France, on May 25 for home. During the trip the party will not have more than two days open at any time.

April 19th, Montreal.

April 22nd the choir sails from Boston, arriving in London on May 2nd.

May 4th—In Queen's Hall, with the Queen's Hall Orchestra.

May 5th—Liverpool.
May 6th—Manchester.
May 7th—Glasgow.
May 8th—Edinburgh.
May 10th—Leeds.
May 11th—Birmingham.
May 12th and 13th—London.
May 15th—Amsterdam.
May 17th—Hamburg.
May 18th and 19th—Berlin.
May 20th—Dresden.
May 21st—Frankfort.
May 22nd——Wiesbaden.
May 24th—Paris.

Requests were received from Heidelberg, Germany, and one or two other municipalities for appearances, but were necessarily refused.

The Queen's Hall Orchestra of London will accompany the choir on its trip through the British Isles.

Mr. Robert Newman of London is managing the concerts in that city. Ibbs and Tillett, of London, have charge of the provincial engagements in Britain.

G.T.P. MEN MAY STRIKE

Trouble May Occur at Any Moment

MONTREAL, July 24.—According to local leaders of the Machinists' Union a strike of boilermakers and machinists on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, from Fort William to Prince Rupert, may develop at any moment.

D. McCallum, organizer of the Machinists' Union, who is now in Montreal, says there are about 800 machinists and a large number of boilermakers in the affected territory, but that in case of trouble, affiliated unions will join the strikers.

The machinists are said to be satisfied with the wages paid following the recent award of the conciliation board, but are dissatisfied with the working conditions, no attempt to improve which they say has been made.

There are 15,000,000 cattle in France.

EMPIRE THEATRE OPENS IT'S DOORS

Splendid Pictures Provided for Patrons

The new Empire Theatre, situated a few doors east of the corner of Aylmer and Charlotte Streets, opened its doors to the public to-day at 2.30, and presented the first afternoon entertainment. Some two hundred people were on hand to attend the opening and enjoyed the program of high class moving pictures.

The general appearance of the new house of amusement is very picturesque. When Braund's new three-storey building is completed, this is bound to be one of the busiest and prettiest sections of the city. The interior of the theatre is thoroughly complete in every detail, the ventilation being perfect and the fire exits well placed. The lighting is done mainly by gas, which is far superior to the electric lights.

Mr. A. Sollitt has assumed the managerial duties, assisted by Messrs. J. W. Tetlock and J. Chambers. Mr. E. Baumer is operating the machine. Two machines have been installed, an Edison and a Simplex, thus in case one does not work properly the other will be always available and delays will be eliminated. The orchestra is composed of a pianist, Miss Coulter, and a violinist, Mrs. Foster.

This evening at seven-thirty the first evening programme will be given. Among the films shown are a Lubin, an Essanay, a Biograph and a Kalem.

THE BIBLE IN MOVING PICTURES

Much interest is being aroused by the photo-drama of Creation now on at the Grand Opera House, 3 and 8 p.m. daily, and the appreciation of the public is marked by increased attendance. At present, Part IV., the last of the series is being enacted, and, with a vividness only possible where moving pictures and talking machines are combined, one is carried from the life of Christ on into the Messianic reign.

The preparation of the films has involved great activities and expense. The cameras have been carried into the Holy Land, and then on the Mount of Olives and in Jerusalem have been found the backgrounds for re-enacted tragedies. The death of the first Christian martyr, Stephen, is thus forcibly portrayed; but the taming of the lions by Marcelius transcends all else in interest, and gives a glimpse of the early Christian Church.

The "movies" take us into Japan, China and India, and portrays street scenes and customs, the whole giving us a broad glimpse of world-wide conditions to-day, and showing us the need of the Kingdom for which we are taught to pray, "Thy Kingdom Come."

There is no question as to the popularity of moving picture shows. The present effort is how to make use of this great popularity by instruction in that which is profitable, educative and elevating. Undoubtedly the witnessing the representations of Biblical events will stimulate interest in the Book of Books, and deserves the support of all. Both sessions, 3 and 8 p.m. daily are entirely free to the public. Saturday evening Part IV. will be given for the last; but on Sunday at the usual hour, Pastor C. E. Heard of Vancouver will give two very interesting and instructive addresses. Pastor Heard is a speaker of rare ability, and some of the finest of the moving picture scenes will be given, in connection with the lectures.

TOLD GYPSIES TO KEEP RIGHT ON MOVING

Police Chief Extracts Two Bills From One of the Party

The party of gypsies named Mitchels who were apprehended yesterday afternoon for flim-flamming several local citizens were ordered out of the city after investigation by the Police Chief. The party obeyed the advice and were hustled to the boundary by the constables. At the Police Court, Lizzie Mitchel who was charged with theft, denied having ang money on her person but when searched by the Chief a $5 bill and a $2 bill were found. She had repeatedly said that they could kill her, or send her to jail but they would not find any money on her. When the money was found by the Chief she made a strenuous endeavor to secret the larger bill but the Chief grabbed her hand exposing the money which had been taken from the Oriental man.

Investigation also proved that they were the same party who passed through the city about three months ago and whom the immigration authorities were after. One man denied this while the other when met by Constable Hayward admitted being apprehended while here before. The beauty of the younger woman was the means of attracting considerable attention. After serious consideration and a few looks at the large party of children who were running wild, the Chief evidently decided that he had better give them a wide berth and told them to make haste and depart from this fair city.

BLACK KNIGHTS FOR LONDON

To Celebrate Relief of Londonderry on August 12

Rev. W. C. Riddiford Among the List of Speakers

London, July 25.—On August 12 Royal Black Knights of Ireland from every part of Ontario will meet in London to celebrate the relief of Londonderry. Already letters have been received from almost every city and town in the province, will be present, and it is expected that the gathering will be the greatest in the history of the Black Knights. Toronto alone is expected to send 1,000, with six bands.

Other contingents also will bring bands, and the local committee has arranged for the Seventh Fusiliers and the First Hussars' band to be in attendance.

At 1 o'clock all lodges will form up on the Market Square, each preceptory headed by its flag or band, and parade to Queen's Park, where a program of addresses, races, a baby show, etc., will be carried out. Cash prizes will be given for the races, and special prizes will be offered for the lodge coming the longest distance, and the oldest Black Knight present.

The speakers at Queen's Park will include Judge [illegible] of Walkerton; Mayor Hocken, of Toronto; Lieut.-Col. Belcher, of Toronto; E. T. Essery, of London; Mr. Morphy, of Listowel; Dr. [illegible] J. Williams, of Woodstock; and Rev. W. C. Riddiford, of London.

Regina Fears not Another Cyclone

Regina, July 25.—Now that the day of usefulness of the eight shacks erected on McIntyre Street after the cyclone has gone by, the Financial Committee agreed Friday afternoon to sell them. It will be remembered that immediately after the cyclone of 1912 the cyclone relief committee arranged for the erection of a number of shacks on city property for the accommodation of some of the citizens rendered homeless by that disaster, these shacks being erected on Block 116 on McIntyre Street, North, to the number of eight at a cost of $1,604.60, and have rented since that time at a rental of $10.00 per month, a total revenue from this source accruing up to date of $990.00. One of the shacks was sold to the street railway for $225.00. Considerable difficulty is experienced at present in the collection of rents, tenants moving out and others moving in without notifying the city, and so on. The construction of the sewer and water program will necessitate in the near future the removal of these shacks or the connection of same with the sewer and water, the expense of which would not be warranted. Having these facts in view and also that apparently the necessity which existed at the time these shacks were erected has now passed and that there is sufficient vacant house accommodation in the city, the commissioners recommended that they be authorised to advertise these shacks for sale and removal from the city property.

BRIGHT PUPILS WIN PRIZES

Gold Watches Presented for Highest Marks

There was a large gathering at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison, in Harvey Township, yesterday, the occasion being a social for the benefit of the Methodist Church. A ball game was played between the teams of the 16th line of Smith and Lakehurst and the Indian Band from Chemong was present.

Mr. Burnham presented the gold wrist watch to Edith Hiscott, who stood highest at the entrance examinations for the township of Harvey.

She was closely followed by the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Weir, who although under twelve years of age, insisted on taking the examinations, with the result that high marks were obtained.

Isabel Baird, another Harvey girl, aged twelve years and six months won the prize for the city of Peterboro where she is at present living and another girl of the same age has won a gold watch for highest marks in South Monaghan.

Brains and industry are no respector of ages. The competition has been very lively this year and has produced a fine crop of enthusiasts.

The same day Allan Robinson, son of Elliott Robinson of Young's Point was presented with his prize, the presentation being made informally at the roadside, as the program arranged for the previous day had to be called off on account of the heavy rain. The lad was greatly pleased and he flew down the road to his home to tell his mother.

Work for Drunks Live on Charity

Calgary, July 25.—"Fifty per cent. of the unskilled laborers work only long enough to get money to get drunk on, and then depend on charity for their food, clothing and shelter," commented Magistrate Sanders in police court just before giving a sentence of 15 days' imprisonment with hard labor to Thomas Boyle, found guilty on a charge of vagrancy. Boyle pleaded that he had got drunk for the first time for months, and that he had a good job coming to him if the magistrate let him off, but his story was apparently too much story and not enough fact for the magistrate passed it over and gave his sentence.

MME CAILLAUX IN COLLAPSE

When Reading of Mme Gueydon's Letters Commence

JUDGES CHALLENGE

Canadian Press Despatch.

Paris, July 25.—Madame Caillaux, under trial for the murder of Gaston Calmette, collapsed and was carried insensible from the court this morning, when reading of letters handed in by Madame Gueydon began. Judge Albanel, who is hearing the case, has sent Judge Dagoury, one of three other judges sitting on the bench with him, a challange to a duel. The quarrel arose out of an incident which occurred at the palace of justice last night, of which the nature could not be learned.

ONE MONTH IN JAIL FOR DOIG

Charged with alleged theft of iron bolts from the Peterborough Hydraulic Power Company, John Doig, a local junk dealer, was this morning given one month in the county jail.

EVIDENCE OF CRIME IN VACANT FIELD

A gum slot box, which had evidently been stolen from H. H. Kerneghan's Store in the north end of the city, was found in a vacant field by a young boy nmed Harrison, who reported the matter to the police, who are investigating the matter. The box contained only a few cents.

ASKS THAT CHARGE BE WITHDRAWN

With a smiling face and a plea that her husband had turned over a new leaf, Mrs. Chris. Bell appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning and requested that the charge of non-support be withdrawn. Magistrate Dumble complied with her request, remarking that she must do her share to make the home happy. The husband said he had secured work and would do better in the future.

HER MAJESTY, QUEEN MARY

A most interesting announcement was made recently to the effect that Queen Mary had been appointed Colonel-in-Chief of the 18th (Queen Mary's Own) Hussars. There are 12 regiments of Hussars.

THE NEW HAVEN MESS

William Rockefeller (next to the late J. P. Morgan) and Charles Mellen were the dominant forces in carrying out the New Haven's illegal policies. Hence, if the Grand Jury does find in favour of criminal proceeding,s it is likely to aim more particularly at Rockefeller and Mellen.

The Interstate Commerce Commission of the United States charges of "glaring maladministration" and "reckless and profligate" operations included the following:

The iniquity of the Westchester acquisition.

The recklessness in the purchase of Connecticut and Massachusetts trolleys at prices exorbitantly in excess of their market value.

The spending, without knowledge of the directors, of hundreds of thousands of dollars for influencing public sentiment.

The habitual payment of unitemized vouchers.

The practice of financial legerdemain in issuing large blocks of New Haven stocks for notes of the New England Navigation Company.

The unlawful diversion of corporate funds to political organizations.

The scattering of retainers to attorneys of five States, who rendered no itemized bills for service.

The investment of $400,000 in securities of a New England newspaper.

The retention by John L. Billard of more than $2,700,000 on a transaction in which he represented the New Haven and in which he invested not a dollar.

The inability of Oakleigh Thorne to account for $1,032,000 intrusted to him in carrying out the Westchester preposition.

The story of Mr. Mellen as to the distribution of $1,200,000 for corrupt purposes.

The uawaranted increase of the New Haven liabilities from $93,000,000 in 1903 to $417,000,000 in 1913; the increase in floating notes from nothing in 1903 to approximately $40,000,000 in 1913.

Escaped by Jumping From Window but Dwelling Was Destroyed

Awakening when almost choked with the effects of smoke Pat Kearney, a farmer residing in the north of Burleigh, had a narrow escape from suffocation early yesterday morning when his handsome new home was totally destroyed by fire. The damage will exceed $1000. The house was erected this year. Mr. Kearney had the misfortune to lose his barn last year by fire.

Mr. Kearney was the sole occupant at the time his family being away on a visit. Shortly after tenthirty he retired and on awakening in the early morning he found himself almost choked with smoke and his bed a mass of flames also the entire house and its contents. To make his escape he was forced to jump from the window to the ground, sustaining several minor injuries. A bucket brigade failed to check the flames.

MORPHEUS IS KING AT LINDSAY

Petty Thieving Continues Without any Arrests

Lindsay Warder.

Despite the fact that the police of Lindsay are on the qui vive for all suspects who look anything like burglars, this fact did not in the least deter robbers from entering the restaurant of Mr. A. Powers, William Street north last night.

It required considerable nerve to do the trick, from the fact that Mr. Powers and family were sleeping on the second floor, and immediately at the head of the stairs.

It appears that the burglars entered at the rear of the store, cutting out a screen window, which is located at the foot of the stairs. Thus gaining ingress, they unlocked the rear door and swung it open, and also the front door, which they also swung open, so as to be able to make a quick escape should any person come along and catch them at work. Both doors were found open this morning when Mr. Powers descended to the ground floor.

The main part of the store is separated from the rear department by a locked door, and as a rule, this door is locked, Mr. Powers being in the habit of carrying the key upstairs with him at night. However, it just so happened that last night he failed to lock this door, and the burglars had easy access to the main store. Had the door been locked the burglars would on doubt have awakened the sleeping family by the noise made in forcing the door open.

On going downstairs this morning the first thing Mr. Powers noticed was that the screen window was cut out, and on entering the front part of the store he found everything in a state of chaos. Packages and goods, with loose paper, were scattered about the floor, and the counter was covered with articles, chiefly packages of tobacco.

In fact, it is believed that very little was taken from the store and that the burglars were scared, as a large number of tobacco packages were left on the counter with the seals broken. The robbers broke open a number of packages of finecut tobacco on the counter, mixed it all together, and then with the use of a candy "scoop" proceeded to fill paper bags.

That they were evidently stopped in their plundering is gained from the fact that several of the packages were found on the counter this morning with the seals broken ready to empty. The glass case containing the candies was also somewhat mussed, and it is surmised that when a box of candies fell to the floor the boys became frightened and made a hasty exit. The box of candies was found on the floor behind the counter.

The cash register, which contained a small sum of money, was not molested, the midnight gang evidently fearing to make too much noise in breaking it open.

Chief Short has the case in hand, and believes that the bold attempt to rob the store was the work of boys.

IS IT WILSON?

A few days ago it was announced that James Wilson, the boy bandit who with his pal Smith (a former Lindsay boy), burglarized Britton's jewerly store, Morgan's drug store, and other places last spring, made his getaway from the prison farm at Whitby on July 2nd.

Chief Short received word from the authorities to this effect, as well as a description of the prisoner. Wilson, whose home was in Hamilton, received a six months' sentence from Police Magistrate Jackson.

The question is now asked, has Wilson, who was nervy young man, retraced his steps to Lindsay and vicinity. Chief Short states that the present epidemic in burglaries would lead one to believe that he had, although it is only supposition.

The finding of a flashlight in G. W. Shepherd's store this morning by the police would lend color to this story, as Wilson would no doubt carry a flashlight, as he did when formerly engaged in his nefarious operations in this town.

Chief Short, however, states that a flashlight was stolen some time ago from the Robinson Motor Works on Lindsay St., along with a large quantity of other goods, and the one found this morning may be the same one.

WRECKED EMPRESS IS TURNING OVER

Ottawa, July 25.—The wreck of the Empress of Ireland on the bed of the St. Lawrence is turning over. The ship has been lying on her side in the position in which she foundered after the Storstad had ripped her open amidships. The Marine Department has been notified that her position is changing. She appears to be slowly standing up, and the department is advised that the tops of her masts are within 35 feet of the surface of the river. The movement of the wreck thus creates a possible danger to navigation.

NOLAN TO STAY IN PRISON

Ottawa, July 25.—The Department of Justice does not confirm the Kingston report that Nolan, the last of the three Welland Canal dynamiters left in the penitentiary, may be soon released. Nolan's case is not before the department, and there is not any prospect at present of his release.

WAR CLOUDS

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, July 25.—A very grave view is taken in all European capitals of the Austria-Servian situation. Diplomatic circles see danger of an European war. The London Stock Exchange was demoralized and at the opening of business everything was offered for sale. There was some recovery before noon but the market remained nervous and excited. Part of the Russian press has already taken a defiant attitude, demanding that the Government undertake the protection of Servia but another section advise that no encouragement should be given Servia, as that is the only means of avoiding an European war. Opinion in Paris is that Austria's ultimatum has caused the gravest situation in Europe for a long time.

The Journal says Servia will not allow herself to be strangled without appealing to Europe but says this is a quarrel such as can only be regulated by the cannon. Other papers admit the gravity of the situation but think it not too desperate to be controlled. Italy is said to be making representations to Russia, Austria and Servia, counselling calm and conciliatory attitude. The Servian elections have been postponed and the old parliament will meet tomorrow. Some of the Servian press counsel refusal and others compliance with Austria's demands.

ULSTERMEN TOLD TO BE READY FOR MOBILIZATION

News of Failure of Conference Arouses No Excitement In Belfast and Prominent Men Endorse the Position Taken by Their Leaders.

ARMAGH, Ireland, July 25.—A warning was issued yesterday to the Ulster volunteers to be ready for instant mobilization. It is stated that of the 9,000 volunteers in Armagh County very few are without equipment, which includes maxim guns.

Ulstermen Endorse Stand.

BELFAST, July 25.—The failure of the Buckingham Palace conference on Home Rule was known definitely in Belfast last night through telegrams from the Ulster leaders, and the official announcement yesterday afternoon caused no excitement here.

The leading business men, clergymen, bankers and manufacturers who had declared for an anti-Home Rule movement were unanimous in endorsing the uncompromising attitude of Sir Edward Carson and Captain James Craig in demanding the total and permanent exclusion of Ulster from the workings of the Home Rule bill. The business community is suffering severely through stagnation in trade and tight money. There is unwillingness to order new stocks of goods with the fear of civil war hanging overhead. A large proportion of the commercial world would endorse a settlement of the controversy on a compromise basis, but, realising that popular sentiment is against it, they dare not insist on anything less than Sir Edward Carson's original demand.

The Ulster Provisional Government awaits orders from Sir Edward and Captain Craig, who are still in London. It is believed here the next step will be a general mobilization of the volunteer force as a kind of an "armed demonstration," which may impress the Government. If the Government is still unyielding, it appears certain, according to declarations by prominent Ulster men, that a Provisional Government will be set up before the Home Rule Bill is passed.

TITLED MILITANTS ARE ARRESTED

LONDON, July 25. — Two suffragettes, belonging to the nobility, Lady Barclay and the Hon. Miss Edith Fitzgerald, were arrested yesterday at Buckingham Palace, where they made insistent attempts to present to King George a letter written to his Majesty by Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst.

The letter demanded a personal interview with the King, and claimed that the suffragettes should be given the same right to an interview as certain militant men, namely, Sir Edward Carson, Captain Jas. Craig, John Dillon [illegible], who had, it was pointed out, been invited to Buckingham Palace by the King on his own initiative.

The two women arrived at the entrance to the palace yesterday morning, carrying a large scroll, prettily draped with purple streamers.

FIRST KILLING IN TORONTO'S HALF MILLION DOLLAR ABATTOIR

LAMBS LED TO THE SLAUGHTER

Peterboro aldermen have been discussing for same time the erection of a civic abattoir and the majority agree that one is desirable. The Board of Health are also of the opinion that the city should have an abattoir. But while the proposition has been confined to committee discussion plus more talk at council meetings, other cities have acted.

Toronto has just opened a civic abattoir and the Toronto Telegram has an article dealing with the first killing. The Telegram says:

Only a few moments elapse marked by a faint resistance, two deft knife thrusts, one violent short period of wild kicking, a rolling of the eyes and a slight quivering of the nostrils as the animal gasps vainly for breath, and then all is over.

Such in brief may be described as outward visible signs in the death struggle of a lamb as it is slaughtered in Toronto's new civic abattoir by a human hand for human consumption. Yesterday afternoon 150 little lambs, ranging in age from one to three months were killed, and all went through the above mentioned struggle with very little variation whatever. This killing was the first done in the new half million dollar plant erected by the city, with the object of reducing the cost of meat to the public, who are the general consumers.

Heartless Work.

Some of the spectators of yesterday's killing had never before seen such work done, and it was with mixed feelings that they left the building. However, the animals are put out of the way as cleanly and quickly as possible. The work seemed to be a heartless one, and yet, looking on it from the business point of view, it is necessary, for Toronto will have its roast lamb.

First, the lambs are led into a steel pen where, all unconscious of what is about to happen, they wait quietly. In a few moments the big steel door is shoved aside and a man catches the nearest animal, all the others getting away as far as possible from him. The animal is picked up like a bag of potatoes and handed over to the killer.

Ready for Business.

This "killer" is rather an interesting character. His dress consists of and a pair of heavy overalls, all of nd a pair of heavy overalls, all of which are plentifully spattered with the blood from the frequent killings. The most savage-looking part of his attire is, however, [illegible] with a little leather case [illegible] right hand side a little to the [illegible]. In this is a sharp knife, much resembling a stiletto. From the [illegible] hand side hanging by a chain is a knife sharpener, which is frequently put into use during the skinning of the animal.

The killer grasps the animal by the wool and perhaps the hind leg and hoists it upon a steel table, forcing its head between two pegs to keep it in position. Then holding it by the nose he thrusts his knife quickly twice through the neck, gives a little tug like a farmer does when ringing a chicken's neck, and out flows the blood, and the animal goes through the motions outlined in the first paragraph. For a couple of minutes there is a wild waving of limbs and then usually all is quiet and the men are able to proceed with the skinning and dressing of the animals three or four minutes after they are killed. Occasionally one dies very hard and kicks for a longer period of time, but it is laid aside until it is quite dead ere the carving up process is commenced. Five animals can be gotten upon this table, and the whole five are killed in about four minutes, and fifteen minutes later they are hanging up by hooks, ready for sale. The work is done marvellously fast.

After the killing the lambs are laid on the floor, while the skin on the back of the legs is deftly cut away and that around the throat and the rear regions is also slipped off. The partially skinned animal is then hung up and another man skins and cleans it in very short order.

A Dull Crunch.

The last thing to come off is the head. Three or four knife thrusts and this, too, comes off, and is thrown carelessly upon a heap of them in the corner. This pile is mute testimony of the amount of work done. The thought that that head was on a live lamb only about fifteen minutes before is rather unbelievable, but there it is, and over there is the skin, while hanging up is the meat.

Three men can within an hour kill, skin and dress about twenty lambs, and the work as done in the abattoir is done very cleanly indeed, there being a place for everything. Blood runs down to the sewer direct from the place where the animals are killed. Later the blood will be used as a fertiliser.

PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, JULY 25, 1914

PETERBOROUGH'S LITTLE CZAR.

ONE servant of the people of Peterborough seems to be acting the role of a small sized Czar. A few recent cases in the police court that have been handled by Magistrate Dumble, should not pass without objection from the citizens, in that justice appears to be the whim of the Little Father on the Magisterial throne.

A band of Gypsies were arrested yesterday and found guilty of working a disappearing act with a five dollar bill belonging to a clerk in the Oriental Hotel. The money was found on one of them, restored to the clerk, and, the sentence of Magistrate Dumble was that the Gypsy band were given their choice of going to jail or going out of town. It would not strain any ordinary man's mental capacity to decide which course they adopted. Moreover, this band had the name of being a disreputable aggregation in other ways. The reason, for this unwarranted leniency, was, we understand, that it was cheaper to let the gypsies go than to keep them in jail.

On the same day there appeared before the same Magistrate, a poor woman, whose greatest crime was being a victim of misfortune. She deserved pity more than censure, and certainly her case required quite different treatment, from that which this mighty magistrate meted out to her. Her case required medical and other treatment, not a six months' term in the Mercer, if the object of justice is to prevent a recurrence of her mistake. We do not condone her offence, shoplifting, and her previous conviction was doubtless due to the same causes, which again led her astray, nor will her sentence likely cure her of her mistake. When a strong plea for leniency was made to Magistrate Dumble, he coldly asked why did they bring people before him? As though there was but one duty for this little Czar to perform, that of sentencing every unfortunate to six months or thirty days.

The main question here is why did Magistrate Dumble withhold leniency in one case and grant it practically unconditionally in the other? We know the difficulties in these two cases were important. As for the latter, there has been a great deal of shop-lifting going on in the stores, but this woman should not be made an example for crimes she did not commit. If merchants will not appear, or press a known charge, they are obstructing justice by shielding a guilty person. That aspect of the case in question should have no bearing on it whatever. The facts directly related to this woman's case were the ones that should have weight, and, if a court was ever entitled to be lenient, this case called for it, especially in view of Magistrate Dumble's sentence on the Gypsies.

But that is not all. A man who stood before this very Magistrate about a year ago on a serious charge was before him again yesterday, when he was practically given a private hearing so that the public would not know of his offence. It may be called an early court, but it was really private. This same man requested the newspapers to keep his name out of the report. He felt he had some respectability to protect and doubtless the Magistrate thought so, too, but why did he not say to those who arrested this man and the Gypsies, "Why do you bring these people before me? It is my duty to protect the interests of the public, and I must not make fish of one and flesh of another."

This is the very thing, the facts would indicate, that Magistrate Dumble is doing. His actions in the Magistrate's chair certainly call for inquiry or explanation, for the people of this city should not permit any Russian tyrant riding rough shod through their local courts.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO TODAY.

THE TWENTY-FIFTH of July, the anniversary of the battle of Lundy's Lane, should not pass without notice. It was the most renowned battle of the War of 1812, and ranks high among the great battles of the world which are famous for the losses sustained and the stubbornness of the conflict. But it was not, as the Toronto Globe editorially states, the last fight between the United Kingdom and the United States, as the battle of New Orleans was fought after the treaty of peace was signed. The American army under General Winfield Scott, was numerically far superior to the Canadian force. General Drummond, the commander of the Canadian force, had 1,640 men to withstand the American general with fully 5,000 men.

On both sides of Lundy's Lane the ground was cleared for some distance, although woods were within three-quarters of a mile of the south side. The road ran over a slight eminence and continued west, while the small Presbyterian church lay to the southeastern corner of the field. Drummond, recognising the importance of the rising ground, at once occupied the eminence with his guns, and sent word for reinforcements to General Hercules Scott.

The battle was commenced by Winfield Scott about six o'clock in the afternoon, who endeavored to turn the British position before help could arrive. "The attack on the heights," says Kingsford, "where the guns were placed, was continued by Winfield Scott's brigade with great determination. It was understood on both sides that this spot was the key to the position, and the movement was met with perfect steadiness, and intrepid gallantry by the 89th, the Royal Scots, and the 8th. It was from time to time repeated, to be repelled with serious loss to the assailants, but at the same time the British regiments greatly suffered. Finally, the United States force was completely driven back, one of the regiments being broken and scattered. The ascent was covered with their dead."

Hercules Scott's division arrived from the Twelve Mile Creek about nine o'clock, having marched about twenty-one miles, and numbered 1,200 men. On his arrival the assault was continued with renewed vigor, but was resisted more stubbornly than ever and entirely failed. There was no moon, but the fight was not relaxed. The flash of muskets, the glint of bayonet, the glare of cannon, told where the opposing forces were, and, guided by these fitful signals, the attack was continued through the intense darkness. During the melee the forces exchanged a gun each, but one American cannon was captured by the British forces. General Winfield Scott was badly wounded and carried to the rear. General Brown and many other officers were either killed or wounded so badly as to be out of the action. Drummond, on the British side, though badly wounded in the neck, was everywhere in the field, urging his men to fight to the last, "to stick to them." Other losses were heavy. By midnight the contest was abandoned, and the United States troops retreated toward Chippewa.

The Canadian forces had a loss of 878 men, made up of 84 killed, 559 wounded, 193 missing and 47 prisoners. The American losses, given as 11 officers and 160 rank and file killed, wounded 573, missing 117, or a total of 861, are generally held to be much understated. Drummond estimated their losses at 1,500, and stated that he took several hundred prisoners, which are not accounted for in the above list.

Canadians should not forget this famous battle. It proved that the Canadian militia-man could fight as stubbornly as the regular of the British army. It also showed that the American soldiers had in them the persistency that wins battles. But in this contest he proved inferior to the Canadian and British men. The Americans failed to take, with a superior force, the Canadian position. They retreated after the battle, leaving their dead to be buried by the Canadians, and, although the Americans either claim it as a victory, or disparage its importance, this battle was a distinct victory over an army of the United States. Though we are about to celebrate the hundred years of peace that have reigned since we were at war with the United States, and trust that peace will continue to prevail between us, yet the spirit of battle days needs to be kept alive, so that if evil fortune should necessitate a resort to arms, the sons of Lundy's Lane heroes will be competent to emulate those who fought on that hot July day one hundred years ago.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE WHEAT YIELD of the United States and Canada, barring accident to the spring wheat crop in the next thirty days, may reasonably be estimated at 1,500,000,000 bushels, an unprecedented production. Of this great product of the soil, the United States is expected to furnish 930,000,000 bushels. Total supply of wheat of the two countries this crop year will be more than 1,200,000,000 bushels. Of course, it is always well not to place too much reliance on an estimate. The wheat in the bin is always the surest crop basis for actual business conditions.

The King's Appeal.

La Presse.

The King's speech is an appeal to conciliation; that is the outstanding feature of the analysis of a document which will live in the pages of British history as one of its best inspired pages, in the face of a crisis the result of which no man could see the consequences.

Bug Worries.

Stratford Beacon.

The potato bug came into Canada in the 70's to add to the trade depression which was a legacy the Mackenzie administration had to contend with. Now comes the army worm to worry the Borden Government. Could not our southern neighbors arrange to keep at home these disturbers of our fields?

The Best Physician.

Baltimore Sun.

Old Mother Nature is a splendid physician. Give her a chance and she will work the most remarkable cures. Every delicate child, every invalid, should bear this ever in mind and take courage. If all others were removed, the work of the world could be carried on satisfactorily to-day by those who at some time or other were scheduled to die and refuse to do it.

Chamberlain, The Tactician.

Illustrated London News.

Whatever may be Mr. Chamberlain's place in history, he will be remembered by the last generation as the keenest and ablest debater in Parliament, and as one of the most astute tacticians who ever fought in the battle at St. Stephen's. For more than ten years after Mr. Gladstone's retirement from the House of Commons he was its most interesting figure. He will be remembered, moreover, for the social reforms which he sowed and which others reaped, and for his predominant share in the policy which led to the re-inclusion of the Transvaal within the British Empire.

The Hindu Problem.

United Empire

The question has been shirked hitherto, because of its delicacy, but the next Imperial conference ought to see a full discussion of it, and, if possible, the establishment of a clearly defined policy, common to all the dominions, accepted and approved in principle by Great Britain, and framed in such a way as not to affect the dignity or "amour propre" of the King's Indian subjects. Why should not the Indian Government follow the example of Japan, and agree to restrict immigration, not (as she did with Natal coolies) in a spirit of retaliation, but as part of a bargain? In any case, it is of the greatest importance that incidents like those of the Komagata Maru should be rendered impossible in the future.

The Cry of the Dreamer.

I am tired of the planning and toiling,
In the crowding hives of men;
Heart-weary of building and spoiling,
And spoiling and building again.
And I long for the dear old river
Where I dreamed my youth away—
For a dreamer lives forever,
And a toiler dies in a day.

I am sick of the showing seeming
Of a life that is half a lie,
Of the faces lined and scheming
In the throng that hurries by.
No, no; from the streets' rude bustle,
From the trophies from mart and stage,
I would fly to the woods' low rustle
And the meadows' kindly page.

Let us dream as of yore by the river,
And be loved for the dream alway—
For a dreamer lives forever,
While a thinker dies in a day.

—John Boyle O'Reilly.

A LOST LAND MARK

By Walt Mason

The country editor is passed who used to deftly flay, and wither, with a wordy blast, his rival o'er the way. Gone are the adjectives he plied, they've long been out of print—the adjectives that seared the hide, and had a crimson tint. When I was young all printers felt that warfare helped their towns; year after year they used to pelt each other with their nouns. Then "lop-eared lepers" were so thick we couldn't call them freaks; and if you chanced to throw a brick, you'd hit six "mangy sneaks." Oh, how "ye printer" ripped and tore in happy days gone by! And oft the village Greeley wore a beefsteak on his eye. Then grocers got along in peace, and loved each other well, and smiling butchers dished the grease and things they had to sell; the tailor didn't waste away, 'cause other tailors sewed; the baker didn't long to slay the baker down the road. But how ye printer's heart would bleed because another sheet was run by swaybacked, swivel-kneed, cheap pirates up the street! But now the country editors are quiet, safe and sane; they do not seek for foolish wars or swing their clubs in vain. Upon Ye Tripods, day by day, Ye Trenchant Pens they wield; the calm politeness they display would jar Lord Chesterfield.

THE CANOE

A canoe is a long, slender, harmless-appearin' instrument of death, built supposedly for pleasure and usefulness. Manned by a youth with purple socks and a vacant smile and a spirit to do and dare it serves the purpose of keeping the obituary columns of the papers busy durin' vacation months and the world from bein' over-populated. After knockin' around lakes and streams all my life I would say thar is only one way of makin' a canoe absolutely safe and thet is by takin' a sledge hammer and knockin' the bottom outin' it so's nobody kin use it. It don't spile the looks of it and it adds to its dependability greatly.

A Gigantic Fur Preserve.

The great interior of Labrador might be made exceedingly valuable if turned into an enormous preserve for fur-bearing animals. Ever since the discovery of the country it has yielded some of the most valuable skins known to furriers. The very severity of the climate contributes to the superiority of the fur taken there, for the better and the warmer fur does nature provide for the fur-bearers.

Sealed Tenders addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Steel Gates for Regulating Dam, French River, Ont.," will be received at this office until 4.00 P.M., on Monday, August 10, 1914, for the construction of Steel Gates, Towers and Operating machinery for the Regulating Dam, Big Chaudiere Falls, French River, Ont.

Plans and form of contract can be seen and specifications and forms of tender obtained at this Department and at the offices of the District Engineers, Confederation Life Building, Toronto, and the Shaughnessy Building, Montreal.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Drill Hall, Ingersoll, Ont.," will be received at this office until 4 P.M. on Thursday, August 6, 1914, for the construction of the aforesaid building.

Plans, specifications and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at the office of Mr. Thos. Hastings, Clerk of Works, Postal Station "F," Toronto, Ont., on application to the Caretaker, of the Post Office, Ingersoll, Ont., and at this Department.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent. (10 per cent.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.
Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, July 14, 1914.

Newspapers will not be paid for this advertisement if they insert it without the authority from the Department.—64377.

SPECIAL CORNER FOR AFTER DINNER READERS

A Rescue Party

By EVERETT P. CLARKE

Three men in plains costume—furry trousers, woolen shirts and sombreros—sat about a campfire smoking when a horse was seen in the distance galloping toward them. It grew larger till its rider appeared, larger still till that rider was seen to be a girl, and at last they recognized little Inez, a "greaser" girl about seventeen years old, whose father and mother kept a place that might be called anything from a boarding house to a tavern by the roadside several miles away.

"What's the matter, Inez?" all asked at once.

"Jim"—

She tried to go on, but failed.

"What about Jim?"

"The vigilantes! They got him. He shoot Colorado Pete."

"When will he swing?"

"I don't know. He whisper to me before they take him away: 'Go tell the boys. I'll try to keep them from hanging me till tomorrow. I tell them I know where Dedrich is.'"

The listeners looked at one another. Then one of them said to the rest: "Wouldn't 'a' shot anybody unless he had a good reason. There's been so much gun play hereabouts lately that the committee has likely determined to make an example, and they've pounced on Jim. We've got to help him out—that is, if they don't do him before we get there or are too many for us."

"Are you Jim's girl?" Inez was asked.

"Yes."

"Well, you'd better go with us. We may need to use some stratagem, and you may help us. Show the way."

The men mounted, and the girl, leading, rode over a distance of several miles, when they came in sight of a bivouac ahead. To avert any suspicion that might arise of their being a rescue party they diverged. The sun had set, and dusk was coming on. They rode to a point between which and the vigilante camp rose a slight eminence, where they would not be seen, and, halting, the men dismounted. Inez remained on her horse.

"What you going to do?" one of them asked her.

"I'm going to see if Jim is alive."

"Better wait till after dark."

It was with difficulty that they persuaded her to wait. The twilight had barely faded when she got off in the direction of the camp. When she came near it she dismounted and, picketing her horse, crawled on her hands and knees till she came near enough to see by the light of the campfire four men. They were moving about, evidently preparing for a night bivouac. On the ground lay a figure, doubtless bound hand and foot, which she felt sure was their prisoner. Then she went back to her horse and, mounting him, rode to her friends.

"Jim is alive yet," she said. "We can do it. There are just as many as we."

"Three?"

"No; four."

"Oh, you count yourself as one."

"We can steal on their camp, make a big noise and stampede them. Then we cut Jim's cords, give him a gun, and we all mount and run away."

"See here, boys," said one of the party; "I don't like this interfering with vigilantes. It's all right for the time being, but all good citizens will turn out to hunt us down. We must find some other way of working it."

"I tell you what I'll do," said Inez. "You men go camp near by the vigilantes. I steal up close by Jim. You have gun play among yourselves. The vigilantes think they are attacked. I cut Jim's cords, give him a gun, and he shoot some at nobody, then run away. Nobody know you have anything to do with it."

"Good girl! That's a fine plan!"

In order to give the vigilantes time to get to sleep—that is, all but perhaps one of their number, who would be detailed to watch the prisoner—they did as Inez suggested. It was agreed that she was to crawl to within some fifty feet of her lover with a sharp knife and two guns—one for herself, the other for Jim—and when she heard a shot among the rescue party she was to push forward to Jim, cut his cords and hand him a gun. Having given her time to do this—about a minute—they would begin a fusillade among themselves without intent to injure one another.

Inez, crawling forward, was soon lost in the darkness. That she might have plenty of time they gave her half an hour. Then one of them fired the signal shot. After counting sixty slowly he fired again, and two other shots were fired in quick succession. Rapid firing followed, the men mounting their horses at the same time.

Presently several shots were heard in the direction of the vigilantes' camp, and a few minutes later Jim appeared among his rescuers carrying Inez. The others helped him to mount, put Inez in his arms, and, still firing to drown the sound of their horses' hoofs, all rode away.

"See here, Jim," said one of the rescuers when they had gone far enough to feel safe and found that Inez's injury was nothing more than a flesh wound that was not dangerous; "there's a parson down at the bridge. Reckon we'll go down there for a wedding."

"You bet!" said Jim.

Inez consented, and the wedding took place then. The bride and groom changed their residence to parts unknown.

McPhail's Body Recovered.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., July 25.—The body of Jack McPhail, one of the two London men drowned at Port Stanley last Sunday by the upsetting of their canoe on Lake Erie, came to the surface yesterday and was recovered. Search is still being made for the body of young Irving Penny, who was McPhail's companion.

Suffragette Identified.

AYR, Scotland, July 25.—"Janet Arthur," the militant suffragette, charged with attempting on July 8 to destroy Robert Burns' cottage here with a bomb, was identified yesterday by the police as Janet Parker, a relative of Field Marshal Kitchener, who took such a prominent part in the Boer war.

FOR HOUSEWIVES

BLACKBERRY PIE

Pick over, wash and drain one and one-half cupfuls of blackberries. Put in saucepan and stew until soft, adding just enough water to prevent berries from burning. Add one-eighth teaspoonful of salt, and sugar to taste. Line pie plate with paste, put on a rim three-fourths inch wide and fill with prepared berries which have been cooled. Arrange six strips of paste across top. Put on an upper rim and bake 3 minutes in a moderate oven. Rims should be slightly fulled, otherwise they will shrink from edge of plate.

REPAIRING OLD PANS.

It is easy to repair holes in pots and pans without the aid of a tinsmith, according to the Stockton Independent. Make the hole round by inserting the point of a knife and twisting it. Place the pot or pan upon any firm, flat piece of metal, such as an anvil, a bar of iron or an inverted flatiron, so that the hole is immediately over and touching the iron. In the middle of the hole place a shot about the size of the hole. Any piece of lead will serve if shot is not handy. A few sharp blows with a hammer will flatten the lead and spread it out, filling the hole tightly and overlapping enough to hold it in place. A few strokes with a file and a rub with sandpaper completes the operation. The repair is permanent.

EGG SALAD.

Take hard-boiled eggs and put them while warm into warm beet juice. Let stand until they are colored a dark pink. Cut in halves lengthwise and take out the yolks. Then cut the whites into shapes resembling daisy petals and spread these out radiating from a point over lettuce leaves. Grate the egg yolks and arrange in little piles as daisy centres. Serve with French dressing and with cheese sandwiches.

STERN MEASURES TAKEN.

More Troops Have Been Brought To St. Petersburg To Quell Strike.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 25.—Stern measures were taken by the authorities yesterday to suppress the strike riots which have been in progress for several days in the streets of the capital, during which a large number of casualties have occurred in the conflicts between the police and Cossacks on one side and the striking workmen on the other.

Considerable leniency was shown here during the presence of Raymond Poincare, President of the French Republic, but immediately after his departure for Stockholm Thursday night, four regiments of cavalry of the guard and two regiments of Cuirassiers, under the command of Gen. Kasnakoff, arrived from Krasnoye-Selo to assist in suppressing the disorder. They brought with them a number of quick-firing machine guns.

A squadron of the newly-arrived cavalry at once came into contact with the strikers, charging and dispersing a crowd of them.

POLITICAL LEADER SLAYS LAD.

Latter Had Come to Ask Forgiveness For Elopement With Daughter.

HAVERSTRAW, N.Y., July 25.—Witnesses who saw Wm. V. Cleary, town clerk and political leader, kill Eugene B. Newman, his young son-in-law, in Cleary's office, Thursday testified at the coroner's inquest yesterday that Cleary fired four shots at Newman before the youth had said a word. Josiah Felter, a county supervisor, declared that young Newman entered the county clerk's office and took a seat in front of Cleary's desk. The town clerk turned around, the witness said, and remarked: "You think you've put one over on me." Then, without warning, according to Felter, Cleary drew a pistol and opened fire.

Young Newman, who is a son of one of the owners of The Rockland County Messenger, secretly married Cleary's 18-year-old daughter, Anna, on last Saturday in Weehawken, N. J. Thursday the couple confided in their respective mothers and Newman was advised to tell Cleary and ask his forgiveness.

DON'T GROW BALD

It's Quite Needless. Nourish the Hair Roots—Remove the Dandruff—Use Parisian Sage—

If your hair is getting thin, losing color, or has that matted, lifeless and scraggy appearance, the reason is evident—dandruff and failure to keep the hair roots properly nourished. These are the main causes of baldness or dry, brittle and unsightly hair.

Parisian Sage applied daily for a week and then occasionally, is all that is needed. It is a scientific preparation that supplies hair needs. It gets to the hair roots, nourishes them, and furnishes the elements necessary to make it grow. It removes dandruff with one application; almost immediately stops falling hair and itching head; cleanses, cools and invigorates the scalp. Equally good for men, women or children—everyone needs it.

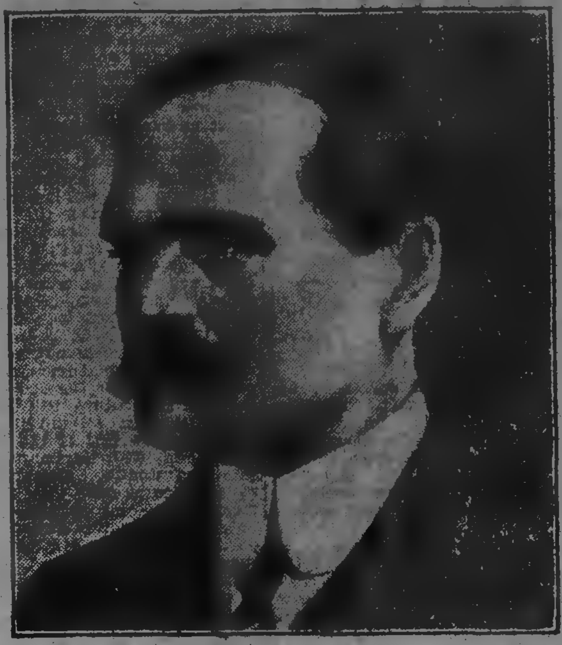
This delightful and refreshing hair tonic can be had at any drug or toilet counter in 50 cent bottles only. The Warne Drug Co. always sells Parisian Sage with agreement to refund the money if you are not satisfied.

Get a bottle at once—use it every day for a week and you will be surprised with the result. Delighted users say Parisian Sage is the best and most invigorating hair tonic made.

KIDNEY DISEASE CURED BY "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Father And Son Both Owe Their Good Health To The Healing Qualities Of The Only Medicine In The World Made Of Fruit Juices.



H. DORLAND, ESQ.

Bronte, Ont., Oct. 31st, 1913.

"For about 40 years, I was troubled with Lame Back brought on by Kidney and Bladder Trouble. I was never confined to my bed with the trouble, but it affected my spine and I had to rest for a time. I took advertised remedies that did not do me any good. I saw "Fruit-a-tives" advertised and decided to try them. They did me more good than any other remedy. I would advise anyone suffering from Kidney or Bladder Trouble, to use "Fruit-a-tives".

H. DORLAND.

"Fruit-a-tives" acts directly on the kidneys and bladder, relieving inflammation and stopping the pain. But it does more. It prevents the formation of an excess of uric acid, by restoring the Kidneys, Bowels and Skin to healthy action. When these three great eliminating organs of the body are working in harmony, there can be no uric acid to poison the blood and irritate the nerves. "Fruit-a-tives" sweetens the stomach, regulates the bowels, clears the skin and cures every trace of Backache, Kidney Trouble, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Neuralgia and Chronic Headache.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

BIG SUMMER IN THE NORTH

Work For Improvement of Hudson Bay Route.

OTTAWA, July 25. — The Marine and Naval Departments are engaged on a big program of work this summer trying to make Hudson Bay and Strait safe for navigation. Three wireless stations in the Strait and at the entrance to the bay are being located, so as to give a continuous line of communication from Port Nelson and Port Churchill to the Atlantic. The actual construction of the stations, however, will not be begun until next year.

The charting of Hudson Strait is being done by the steamer Acadia, while other Government vessels are taking soundings and mapping the harbors at Port Nelson, Fort Churchill and at the mouth of the Nottaway river. The Government steamer Minto, which left Halifax Thursday for Hudson Bay, carried materials for lighthouse construction. Two lighthouses are to be commenced this year, one on each side of the entrance to Port Nelson, while another one will be built on a newly-charted shoal some miles out in the bay.

The charting being done at the mouth of the Nottaway river is preparatory to the construction of the proposed railway from there southeast to the National Transcontinental, in connection with the alternative route from Port Nelson across the northern end of James Bay and thence by rail to Montreal.

The Government plans to build the southern half of this line from the National Transcontinental to Montreal, and an appropriation of $1,000,000 was passed last session for preliminary surveys. The Clergue syndicate had originally planned to build the whole line, but according to present plans the Government itself will shoulder the cost of the portion between Montreal and the National Transcontinental.

Toronto Man Charged.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 25.—Charges of violations of the Mann White Slave Act, placed against F. A. Henson of Toronto, Ont., on the ground that he brought to Ontario, Cal., Mrs. Marriet Willetts, whose friends thought she had been lost in the Empress of Ireland disaster, were dismissed yesterday.

Mrs. Willetts testified before the U. S. commissioner that she came here to become a nurse and that she borrowed money from Henson to pay her transportation.

Mexican Treasurer Wanted.

MEXICO CITY, July 25.—As the result of the investigation ordered by Provisional President Carbajal into the finances of the country during the administration of Gen. Victoriano Huerta, it is reported that a warrant was issued yesterday for the arrest of Eugenio Paredes, former general treasurer of the republic. Paredes is charged in the warrant with misappropriating more than 2,000,000 pesos of Government money. He is reported to be now at Puerto Mexico.

MARTYN RETURNED IN LAMBTON

TORONTO, July 25.—Dr. J. B. Martyn, Conservative, is member in the Provincial House for East Lambton. Chief Justice Sir William Meredith, one of the election judges sitting at Osgoode Hall, gave this decision yesterday. In the recount immediately after the elections 133 ballots cast at Thedford were ruled out because the counterfoils were not detached by the deputy returning officer, but yesterday's ruling accepts these and another ballot, beside thus giving the Conservative a majority of four over the Liberal, R. J. McCormick.

Mr. McCormick's lawyer, R. I. Towers, Sarnia, has intimated that a petition will be presented for an election trial.

AUSTRIA DEMANDS SATISFACTION

LONDON, July 25.—European diplomacy is faced with a situation of the extremest gravity in the controversy between Austria and Servia and unless it is handled with great delicacy it is not likely that others besides these two powers will become involved in war. An Austro-Hungary ultimatum to Servia, couched in a tone of almost unprecedented severity and fastening on the Servian Government and people responsibility for the assassinations of Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife at Sarayevo recently, has been presented to Belgrade. It demands satisfaction within 48 hours.

The almost universal opinion in the European capitals is that the Servian Government cannot comply with such humiliating terms as are set forth in the ultimatum, since compliance would be tantamount to an admission of Servia's guilt.

The efforts of European diplomacy, should the powers fail to avert the threatened war, will be devoted to localizing it. Montenegro has indicated her readiness to support Servia in the event of an Austrian attack. This certainly would plunge the whole of the Balkans into war. Austria counts on the neutrality of her allies, Germany and Italy, but with the possibility of Russian intervention on behalf of Servia, Austria would run great risks of risings among her own great Slav population.

A fact much commented upon by the European newspapers is that Austria has chosen a moment for the issuing of her ultimatum when President Poincare is absent from France and two of the Balkan Premiers are abroad.

The Servian Government is withholding publication of the text of the ultimatum to Belgrade. The Austrian Minister in Belgrade has been instructed to leave there by Saturday evening if Servia fails to yield to Austria's demand.

Belgrade against the forts and Austrian gunboats on the Danube could not hold out 24 hours against a hostile force, and it is rumored in diplomatic circles here that the Servian Government is preparing to retire from Belgrade into the interior, probably to Nisch or Uskub.

According to Berlin reports Germany will not permit interference by any third party in the event of Austria-Servian war. It is reported that President Poincare of France will abandon his proposed Scandinavian tour on account of the trouble.

Minister Will Leave.

VIENNA, July 25. — Baron Vangiesslingen, Austro-Hungary Minister at Belgrade, has been instructed to leave Servia with the entire legation staff at six o'clock to-night if the Servian Government has not notified him that it agrees without delay to comply with the demands of the Austrian note.

To Develop St. Regis River.

CORNWALL, July 25.—The conservation committee has directed the chief engineer to make a survey and profile of the St. Regis River from its headwaters to its mouth at the St. Lawrence river, including such lakes and streams as are tributary to the St. Regis. He is also ordered to make preliminary plans of dams and possible water storage basins with estimate of the cost thereof together with a description of existing power developments. The water powers of the St. Regis yet undeveloped, are extensive and important.

FREE ADVICE TO SICK WOMEN

Thousands Have Been Helped By Common Sense Suggestions.

Women suffering from any form of female ills are invited to communicate promptly with the woman's private correspondence department of the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established a confidential correspondence which has extended over many years and which has never been broken. Never have they published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the Company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

Out of the vast volume of experience which they have to draw from, it is more than possible that they possess the very knowledge needed in your case. Nothing is asked in return except your good will, and their advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. BRITAIN'S PLACE IN GREATER BRITAIN

There is nothing so glaring in the present conflict between imperialism and Canadian expansion as the cold, studied and deliberate effort of Canadian Liberal Decentralizantionists to misrepresent the real issue by asserting that "imperial" and "British national" spirit are identical, and that a return to the dictation of Downing Street is sought, when in reality true imperial spirit is as alien to British national ideas as it is to any existing Candian nationalistic tendencies.

The definition by anti-imperalists of imperialism as "English" or "British" national spirit operating in a larger world is unfair. It is a clever call to Scothmen, Welshmen or Irishmen, who indignantly and properly protest against the inference that the adjectives, "Scotch," Welsh," "Irish," have been Anglicized into the general term "English." It is a sectional appeal to Over-Sea Britons, who resent the implication that they must take a secondary position to Englishmen or Britishers, simply because their fathers migrated from the United Kingdom. It is a partizan cry to the citizens of the empire of French, Continental European, or American origin, who are sensitive of any suggestion that they must surrender the best in their ideals and customs. It is an unscrupulous insinuation that what imperialism was, and of which it still has traces, it must always remain, and is based in fact if not in name upon a desire to weaken the empire and construct a separate Canada. Liberal decentralisationists are ready to admit evolution of idea in what they term Canadian Nationlism, but not change in the conception of British Imperialism. Once more the laws of interpretation, variation, and natural selection as applied to historical or political growth are studiously ignored.

Kinds of Imperialism Possible

Four different classes of imperialism could be regarded as possible in the group of communities called the British Empire. English national imperialism, strictly speaking, would seek to subordinate the interests of the United Kingdom and the United Empire to that part of the mother country known as England, British national imperialism, likewise, would desire to use the Empire to benefit Great Britain; British racial imperialism would aim at the developement of the oversea territories for the British races; while British cosmopolitan imperialism would urge that the Anglo-Saxon was the trustee of these vast areas and the agent to guide and help mould immigrant peoples into a cosmopolitan whole not for the glorification of the Empire that was or is, but for the Empire that will be.

The progress, and possibilities of British imperialism can be cleft into four periods corresponding to these four classes. The British national period of imperial developement came first. The geographical proximity to Europe of England and Wales, their very weight of numbers, their greater industrial and social progress, their more complete national organization, coupled with the internal dissentions in Scotland and the subordination of Ireland to England, decreed that the desire for national expansion over-sea should seize the former first and that the pathfinders of the British Empire should be Englishmen. The Empire was in the making when the final union with Scotland was consummated, and the idea of a colonial empire as the transmarine estate of England had already gained headway.

/The force of precedent and the numerical supremacy of England in the British political union delayed the development of British national imperialism. Nevertheless in the days of the Stuarts the spirit of the wanderlust and of mercantilism began to seize the North British people. As the gates of the English Empire were closed the conception grew of Scotch dependencies for the Scotch people. The failure of the attempted colonization of Nova Scotia and of the Darien peninsula, the growing desire for commercial expansion, the fact that even then Scotchmen were dying in defence of the English Empire, led to Scotch agitation for participation in the Empire with the result that the Treaty of Union recognized commercial equality, if not more. The greater English representation in the united parliament and the absence in large part of practical grieviences still gave England partial precedence over Scotland in colonial affairs. Over-sea criminal and commercial law were based upon English rather than Scotch or joint precedent. However, when a real issue did arise, as in the case of the relative positions in the Empire, the sister established churches of the United Kingdom, the tendency was for the Scotch to win out in their claim that the Treaty of 1707, established ecclesiastical as well as commercial equality in the transmarine dependencies. Undoubtedly in a subconscious way Ireland was profitting by the Scotch victory and the principle was won that Irishmen, too, could die in defence of an empire as much theirs as English. The English Empire had become the British Empire, and in this signification the two adjectives were acknowledged as identical.

The old colonial system in the larger conception that the colonies were the mercantile adjuncts of the United Kingdom died a lingering death. The American Revolution marks the birth pains of British racial imperialism, of the conception that the Empire was the private property of the Anglo-Saxon. The over-sea Britons of the old Empire in America were the teachers, but they knew not what they taught; neither did Great Britain, the pupil, know what it was learning. She thought rigid British national supervision and centralization in population, institution, and constitution the solution. Once more the Over-sea Briton became the teacher, teaching a lesson he onlp partically knew to the home Briton who only partially realized its significance. Even if it did drive imperial statesmen in that day, as Liberal decentralizationists in this, into the notion that a group of independent British nations in alliance was the only outcome feasible, the Canadian rebellion drove home the maxim that compulsory centralization was inadvisable. The existence of an era of daughter lands, the growth of a wider British spirit, and the birth of a new conception of imperialism, is spreading today the idea that cooperative centralization is possible. evolved into British national imperialism has British racial imperialism.

Necessity for British Cosmopolitan Imperialism.

At the very time the old question seems solved a new factor has changed the situation, the problem, and the solution. A cosmopolitan immigration is entering parts of the over-sea Empire, probably destined eventually to make its presence felt throughout the whole of Greater Britain. How can it be possible declares the decentralizationist, in view of such disturbing element, to keep the Empire the estate of the Anglo-Saxon, a British Empire with the word British accented? Hence his ecstacy, and the despondency of the British racial imperialist.

The idea of preserving Anglo-Saxon pastures by dyking back the waters when the waves are so high is hopeless. Time is with the tide. British cosmopolitan imperialism is on the wing. The over-sea Briton, must again be the teacher. In the future the Empire is to be built by all people for all people. Only by manfully playing his part of starting the communities under his care in their fuller and nobler destiny, will the Anglo-Saxon retain the right to call the Empire in the future as now and in the past—the British Empire.

Liberal Decentralizationist Misrepresentation Detailed.

The skilful Liberal decentralizationistic debater freely quotes from British and over-sea thinkers to insinuate that the mother country will never resign reality of participation, and that "freedom and independence" are, as Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman once said, "the essence of the imperial connection." As late as September 24th, 1907, Mr. Borden asserted as fundamental that "Canada in all essential details must be accorded freedom of judgment as free and unfettered as that exercised by any portion of the Empire, even by Great Britain herself." "It is idle to discuss constitutional projects," the British imperial thinker, Sir Frederick Pollock once asserted, "which, under the name of federation or otherwise, would impair the authority of the autonomous legislatures within the Empire, or dispense the Ministers of any self-governing state from responsibility to their parliament. No such scheme would have any chance of being accepted. and there is no reason to suppose that the legislature of the United Kingdom would be more willing to derogate from its own domestic power than those of the Dominion of Canada or the Commonwealth of Australia.." Mr. Asquith in 1911, it is confidently reiterated, declares that Sir Joseph Ward's proposal "would impair, if not altogether destroy, the authority of the government of the United Kingdom in such grave matters as the conduct of foreign policy, the conclusion of treaties, the declaration or maintenance of peace, or the declaration of war, and, indeed, all those relations with foreign powers, necessarily of the most delicate character, which are now in the hands of the Imperial Government, subject to its responsibility to the Imperial Parliament. That responsibility cannot be shared." "The Committee of Imperial Defence is a purely advisory body," declared Colonial Secretary Harcourt in the following year, "and is not, and cannot under any circumstances become, a body to decide on policy, which is and must remain the sole prerogative of the Cabinet. subject to the support of the House of Commons."

Therefore, pursues the decentralizationistic argument, British imperialism is still British national spirit transmitted to oversea shores by British-born immigrants. The Canadian imperialist, "the man whose mind and heart are still in England," appeals to the "British Born" rather than to their sons and grandsons, or to the American or European born, because he realizes that the imperial spirit is "the English, Scottish, Irish, Welsh spirit transplanted to Canada," and hence pours into the Dominion the British immigrant flood to hold it to "the British national spirit," but in vain, as a few generations of life in the new land causes a departure from the old ideal and a consecration of service to the new home. In the face of the determination of British national statesmen to retain the reality of control in the British Imperial governmental machinery, the demand of Premier Borden for participation in the councils of the Empire as the price for participation in imperial defence, would in reality make Canadians so many children playing at being gods, their representatives in London sumptuously entertained, no doubt, but possessing advisory powers solely, the old function in a new guise offered by Sydenham and Metcalfe, only to be rejected."

Decentralizationist Argument Answered.

In spite of the finality with which the views of British premiers and British colonial secretaries have often been uttered, it is historical fact that colonial policy has never been long stationary, but has advanced from man to man, age to age, and changed as conditions changed. The statements of Campbell-Bannermn, Borden, Pollock, Asquith, Harcourt, must not be regarded as fencing in the future, hard indeed to fence in, but rather the judgments of sound statesmen and thinkers of existing difficulties caused by existing conditions, and of principles which must be taken into account in the intermediatory constitutional steps toward imperial self-government.

What are the temporary circumstances causing these declarations but the realization on the one hand by British statesmen that the white population and the wealth of the Empire is at present concentrated in the United Kingdom, and by colonial thinkers on the other hand that they must not suffer the existing difficulties to be eliminated at the expense of the rights of oversea Britons yet unborn? The facts that the mass of trade with the large dependencies — India, Egypt, and the like — is carried on by over three-fourths of the British people bottled in a tight little island, that the problem of defending the Empire in its days of immaturity is mainly the problem of protecting its heart, and that thus in this generation British national interests in the Empire vastly outweigh over-sea concerns, justifies Mr. Asquith's declaration that reality of control in matters of war and peace, foreign treaties and foreign relations cannot be shared at the present—for this is the time to which the British Premier had reference, since he was criticising a proposal for the immediate reconstruction of the Empire.

The difficulties and the dangers, however, the responsibilities, risk, and reward will not always belong to Lesser Britain. British imperial interests will increase as British national interests wane. Over-sea population will eventually outdistance the home population as it is now exceeded by it. The more even distribution and greater strength of the white inhabitants of Greater Britain will lessen the peril in the North Sea and enable the Empire at large to protect British nationl concerns as equally and adequately as Cnadian or Australian interests. The need for separate British national machinery for British national interests, intruding even into the domain of true imperial self-government, will consequently disappear.

From the view of justice, then, the principle must be recognized that for a generation to come plans for imperial reconstruction must recognize the right of British national interests to dominate. Equality of participation, which would give each oversea dominion equal voice with the United Kingdom in the affairs of the Empire is unworkable; the only equality of participation possible must be based upon the principle of representation by population, a practical law enabling each partner to readjust its rank continually according to its weight and importance. Let Canadians remember that the existence of British national governmental machinery in the field of imperial self-governance is bound to continue for much time to come unless the proper primacy is temporarily acquiesced in. Let them take to heart the fact that if they in their own days of immaturity do not compel too many concessions from an over-indulgent parent, that the self-same mother in the future will bear with equanimity its lessening influence. Let them see that if the Dominion of Canada, with its smaller population and wealth, should demand equal voice at once with the parent land in imperial affairs, it could hardly with justice demand greater participation when greater in weight than the United Kingdom. Let them realize that the majority should rule in matters of Empire, and that the minority should be satisfied with advisory or auxiliary functions. Above all, let them weigh the fact that if their own state loses in the bargain for years, that eventually it will gain for centuries.

British national spirit and British imperial spirit are not the same: the one seeks to protect matters of life and death to the United Kingdom; the other, to the Empire. Nor need they conflict at the present time, for the protection of the first is largely the protection of the second. The Conservative appeal to the British Born was not caused, as insinuated, by the feeling that they alone were naturally imperialistic, but by the conviction that the British settler should ally himself with the native Canadian in defence of their common traditions and interests, and by the realization that the reciprocity cry was tuned to appeal to the American with Americanizing tendencies and to the non-English-speaking voter naturally guided by the idea of private rather than imperial profit. The vote of the Conservative and the British Born in the prairie provinces was not strong enough to overcome the antagonistic Liberal decentralizationistic American and European opposition, with the result that it was Eastern Canada, with its overwhelming native Canadian majority which drove Sir Wilfrid Laurier from power. The injustice of the Liberal effort to create jealousy and antagonism between the native Canadian, the American, the European element of the population and the British Born is thus self-evident.

Future Place of Great Britain.

In conclusion, the question may be asked, how will the United Kingdom, accustomed to centuries of primacy, reconcile herself to the days in which she will be in numerical inferiority? The reconciliation will undoubtedly be as easy as to the only alternatives, absolute separation or alliance, which would also bring death to its individual supremacy. Moreover, the growth of over-sea population, destined to disturb the balance of power within the Empire, is so slow and steady an influence as to accustom the home Britons to the immense changes taking place. They will be proud of having played their part in consolidating the Empire, and the official seniority granted by precedent to their state and acknowledged gratefully by the daughter communities. For whether the population centre of the Empire or not, Great Britain must remain the seat of government, the sentimental and historical heart. Statements so often asserted that the capital will eventually be in Canada, made to tickle Canadian pride are malicious and calculated to rouse jealousy among the other over-sea states. The solution is to leave the capital where it ought to be — London.

PLENTY OF STOCK BUT LITTLE OIL

Frenzy Somewhat Abated at Calgary but There is Much Activity

Calgary, July 25. — Oil and the selling of stock in oil companies is still the all-absorbing topic of the citizens of Calgary. The number of companies is said to be now over 400. Five stock exchanges are doing business in the city. Certificates are being peddled through the city by every means known to the Calgary real estate dealer. Shops of all kinds have been converted into brokers' offices. In some central portions of the city nearly every small shop window displays signs, maps, photographs of oil derricks or newspaper clippings calling attention to the wonderful possibilities of the 400 companies. On the streets are drays carrying huge signs such as are sometimes used in advertising a ball game or circus. The newspapers, street cars and billboards are used to advertise stock in oil companies just as they are used to advertise so many different varieties of breakfast food.

While every one in Calgary is interested in the development of the oil field and hoping that it may come up to expectations they are beginning to show some signs of anxiety. And well they may. For while the companies are so numerous and the expectations so great, the occurrence of oil in profitable quantities on any one of the properties remains to be proven. In only one well has any important quantity of oil been found, and that well is by no means certain to be a large producer. From time to time reports have been sent out that oil had been found in another well, but these reports are unwarranted. A little oil was encountered, but none of any importance.

It will take considerable time for proper exploration of the field, and it is not unlikely that oil will be found in some of the wells. While it is doubtful whether a great percentage of the money subscribed will be actually used in careful and well-advised exploration, some at least will be so used. A large quantity of oil well supplies has been ordered and several carloads are now being hauled from the siding at Okotoke to the properties in the neighborhood of the "discovery" well. Some of the properties will be carefully tested and it is to be hoped that oil in large quantity will be found.

The citizens of Calgary have shown that they have every confidence in the development of the field. The two or three million dollars of real money that has been subscribed has come very largely from Calgarians. So far attempts to interest outsiders have not been evry successful.

Just now every one in the splendid city in Southwest Alberta is waiting and hoping for news of a strike. The trading in shares, while attracting much attention, is rather light. One good strike is wanted to keep things going. There will be many sorry citizens if oil is not found soon.

GUARD AGAINST CHOLERA INFANTUM

Cholera infantum is one of the most fatal ailments of childhood and during the hot summer months thousands of little lives are lost by its ravages. The best way to guard against it is to give the baby an occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets. The Tablets never fail to regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach, thus preventing cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentry and all other stomach and bowel complaints. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DISTRIBUTION OF THE WORLD'S WHEAT CROPS

One Fourth of World's Wheat Gathered in July

In all north temperature countries this is the big wheat harvest month

During July more than one-fourth of the world's entire wheat yield is gathered. It is figured that before the current month closes there will have been secured for this season's yield not less than 1,200,000,000 bushels. Of this, fully 300,000,000 bushels will be gathered in the United States, as large an amount in Russia, possibly 230,000,000 bushels in Austria-Hungary, and the remaining 370,000,000 bushels in the other countries of Continental Europe, including the north of France.

Last year's crop of 4,124,000,000 bushels for all leading countries was the largest total commercial crop the world had grown. It compared with 3,792,000,000 bushels in 1912, and 3,551,000,000 bushels in 1911; the three years make an average of 3,823,000,000 bushels.

The international year in the wheat trade begins with August 1st. Figures available up to the end of June show where the commercial wheat comes from and where it goes to. Below are exports by countries for 11 months:

U. S. and Can.	245,685,000	246,800,000
Russia	161,792,000	98,778,000
Balkan States	58,762,000	51,896,000
India	28,344,000	52,645,000
Argentine and Uruguay ..	42,272,000	116,624,000
Australasia ..	62,442,000	44,040,000
Sundry countries	6,664,000	4,998,000
Totals	600,976,000	614,776,000

How much the importing countries have taken in this time is shown for two successive seasons in the following returns from the Liverpool Corn Trade News:

	1913-14, bu.	1912-13, bu
United Kingdom	198,464,000	220,544,000
France .. .	47,960,000	42 760,000
Belgium	67,176,000	64,976,000
Holland	72,734,000	61,816,000
Germany	23,356,000	37,024,000
Italy	44,284,000	71,224,000
Spain	12,416,000	3,800,000
Portugal	5,636,000	3,696,000
Greece	2,065,000	1,656,000
Scandinavia	16,824,000	19,820,000
Aus.-Hun.	6,816,000	1,504,000
N. Africa, etc. ..	3,264,000	44,208,000
Turkey	1,272,000	1,264,000
Other countries	81,296,000	80,560,000
Total	600,976,000	614,776,000

Exports averaged about 55,000,000 bushels a month during last year. Those for July this year promise to be 60,000,000 bushels more than the above total. Over 16 per cent. of the world's production is exported, and the major proportion of 84 per cent., or about 3,500,000 bushels, enter only into the domestic trade of the countries where grown.

A Column For the Boy Scouts

A SHORT STORY

The regular weekly meeting of the Boy Scouts was held last night with a good attendance. The final arrangement for the lawn social were made and the date changed from August 28th to Tuesday, August 11th. An exhibition of scout work will be put on at the social as well as a good program of songs and recitations. It is expected that the scouts will leave here on Thursday, September 3rd, for Toronto, and return on either Saturday or Sunday evening. The Peterboro scouts are intending to put on an exhibition in Toronto. Starting this week, and continuing each Saturday a story relating to scout work and scout life will appear in The Review and will be interesting as wellf as instructive. Don't [illegible] to read it. boy scouts.

SAVING A LIFE.

While scouts were camping one year, they had hikes every morning. One morning they crossed the river and went into the woods. The first boat load landed and one boy went alone into the woods. Not long after one of the scouts noticed some cows grazing. The scout master bought the property owner might object to the hiking where his cows were grazing. The boys all returned to their own [illegible], but the one who had gone ahead. After strolling about for a long time, he thought he had better return. On returning to the shore the boat had vanished. While straining his eyes in an endeavour to locate the boats, he noticed the camp in the distance. On looking back into the woods he saw a cow making for him and he darted into the water, thinking he could swim to the other side. He had reached about two-thirds of the way when his strength gave out. He shouted for help, and the cook being the only one in the camp, noticed him. The boats being all out, the cook swam out towards the boy and told him to keep his courage. After swimming very hard the cook reached the boy and brought him to shore. On the return of the master the cook said nothing about the rescue. But the boy who was saved told the master all about it. Two weeks later the scouts returned from the camp and the hero received his life-saving badge.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

KING AND THE POPE.

Editor, Review:

Sir,—Will you be kind enough to publish the enclosed marked paragraph of The Casket, one of the chief Catholic papers of America? It is published in Canada.

READER.

A few weeks ago at the time of the "All Western Catholic Banquet," in Winnipeg, a fuss was made by some people over the supposed semi-treason of putting the Pope ahead of the King on the toast list. We pointed out at the time that the precedence of the Pope's representative was settled at the Congress of the Nations at Vienna, which met to arrange the affairs of Europe, after the downfall of Napoleon. "Les Cloches" of St. Boniface points out that it is the practice in the Empire and in several Protestant countries to toast the Pope before the King, and cites several precedents in England, Holland and Germany. The Lord Mayor of London has given several banquets at which the Cardinal Archbishop of Westminster occupied the place of honor over the Prince of Wales (the late King Edward), who was present as the representative of Her Majesty our good Queen Victoria. But Kings and Princes usually know the rules of precedure and of etiquette. No such blunder as that made in Winnipeg would be possible in London.

FARMER FEARS HORSE WAS STOLEN

A case of mysterious disappearance of a valuable horse from the farm of F. J. Staples, North Monaghan, Lot 3, Con. 12, was reported to the Police Department yesterday afternoon. Mr. Staples has searched the entire neighborhood and is of the opinion that the horse must have been stolen as it was impossible for the animal to disappear in such a short time.

GOSPEL SONG SERVICE.

At the Gospel Song Service in Central Park on Sunday night Mr. G. W. Mulligan will sing a new hymn, "Something More Than Gold," and the old favorite, "Face to Face."

YOUR SATISFACTION IS OUR PROFIT

If we did not satisfy YOU, YOU would not tell others to come to us.

If others did not come to us we would not be making good. We would not have been in business in this city for over 10 years.

We examine eyes so carefully, make your glasses so scientifically, and adjust them so accurately that the service we give you is worth more than you pay for it. The little bit more is what makes you send others to us.

Subscriptions for Children's Camp

It is hoped that this work will appeal to a much larger number of friends. The expense up to the present hour has been three times the amount of the receipts, and as there are no funds apart from the voluntary subscriptions, this enterprise which is so much appreciated by the needy, will have to be abandoned.

Surely there are scores who intend to subscribe but have been delayed by the pressure of other duties. He gives twice who gives promptly.

Previously acknowledged	$58.24
Dr. and Mrs. Burnham	5.00
Miss Tucker	1.00
Mrs. J. A. Aylmer	2.00
Mrs. H. Thompson	5.00
Mrs. W. R. Morris	5.00
Hon. J. R. Stratton	5.00
Mr. W. H. Dunsford	5.00
Mr. A. W. Cressman	5.00

Indian River Farmers Escape the Army Worm

There has been no trace of the army worm in the vicinity of Indian River as yet, and needless to state the farmers in that section are very jubilant over the fact. The fall wheat out that way has been a bumper crop, in fact better than it has been in years. The late oats will very likely prove average as to the grain, but the straw will be short. At present the roots and potatoes are looking fine and prospects for good crops seem bright. The corn has been a trifle backward, but a few more showers after the style of the session on Thursday and all will be well.

Meat should be removed from the paper as soon as it comes from the market, otherwise the paper will absorb some of the juices.

HERRING AND SARDINE

Cut cold boiled potatoes into thin slices. To two cupfuls add one small minced onion, one small pickled beet, cut into dice, a fresh cucumber sliced, the flake meat from a cold cooked herring or bloater, four sardines flaked and a spoonful of boiled ham. Mix all together and serve on lettuce leaves with French dressing.

LOCAL MARKET

Latest Quotations in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, etc.

The local produce market was exceedingly poor this morning. The supply was hardly equal to the demand and as a result prices remained firm with a going up tendency. The farmer is taking advantage of the chance to harvest his crops and that accounts for the very poor supply. Business was brisk in the butter and egg line as well as in some fresh vegetable lines. The old potatoes could not be found on the market at all and the new ones were demanding 60 cents per peck or about $2.40 per bag with a fair number of takers. Poultry was offered at about the same prices as last week but most of it went begging. Chickens sold from $1 per pair for the smaller ones to $1.35 for larger ones. New peas were selling for 18 cents per quart while new cabbage was bringing 10 cents per head which is considered reasonable. Market buyers look for a drop in prices as soon as the supply reaches its normal state. At present the demand seems to be greater than the supply and that condition always sends the prices up. Summed up it was a very quiet market day excepting in the dairy and poultry department where business was brisk considering the prices asked and the existing conditions. There was not a load of hay on the market at 10.30 and few if any transactions had taken place before then. Live stock was also weak as were the dressed lines. Two more weeks should see a firmer and stronger market with a good supply in all lines.

There was a slight variation in live stock and dressed meat prices the feeder 1000-1200 going up from around the $5 mark to near the $7 mark. The choice steers and heifers also took a slight jump but as stated before the poor supply was the cause and the jump is not a true indication as prices will if anything come down when the supply becomes normal.

CHICAGO, July 24.—Chances of war in Europe tended to sustain something of an advance in nearby deliveries of wheat today, but failed to offset heaviness, which affected the more deferred options. The market closed unsettled 1-2c off to 3-8c up, compared with last night. Corn suffered a net decline of 5-8c to 1 3-4c and oats of 1-4c to 5-8c. In provisions the outcome was a setback of 22½c to 72½c, except for July pork, which tightened up 15c.

Killed by Horse's Kick.

OTTAWA, July 25.—Moses Greenburg, a butcher, was almost instantly killed by a kick from a horse yesterday morning. The accident happened in a peculiar manner. Greenburg was in a field near the city trying to capture a cow. Two horses were standing under a tree, and in passing Greenburg brushed against one of them, the animal kicking him on the head.

FAILURE OF CONFERENCE

Gives Blow to Hope of Settlement.

LONDON, July 25.—Formal announcement that the Buckingham Palace conferences on Home Rule could not bridge the narrow differences which separate the Ulsterites and Nationalists on the Home Rule question was made to King George yesterday by the Speaker of the House of Commons, the Rt. Hon. Jas. Lowther, and the House itself by Premier Asquith.

While the failure of the King's attempt to bring about a compromise was well-known Wednesday, the fact that the party leaders continued to discuss the question at issue kindled the faint hopes throughout the country that the deadlock might yet be dissolved. The definite fall of the curtain on the monarch's successful plan to bring face to face across the table, the men who are most responsible for the present sensational crisis in British history leaves the country in a mental frame of deepest pessimism.

No one sees any possibility of a settlement of the dispute unless it be by the Government appealing to a verdict of the country through a general election and such a step would be considered generally not a compromise but a surrender by Premier Asquith's Cabinet.

The shortness of the conference indicates how firm the deadlock was. Notwithstanding the usual official secrecy, some of the participants felt bound to tell their nearest supporters what had occurred, and the secrets have been disseminated through a widening circle.

Apparently Sir Edward Carson and Captain Craig insisted on their constantly proclaimed "clean cut" of the whole of Ulster from the proposed Dublin Government. The Nationalists, represented by John Redmond and John Dillon, were willing, it is believed, to concede the exclusion of Ulster's counties by popular vote, provided any of the counties excluded were given the opportunity of voting for inclusion at a later date. Tyrone has been the bone of contention which neither side was willing to surrender.

The House of Lords' amending bill, which embodied the concessions the Government is prepared to offer, will come before the House of Commons on Tuesday. The members of the Cabinet have not yet disclosed their plans to the Liberal members, but the talk in the lobby of the House last night was that the Premier will say next Tuesday that the Government is prepared to proceed with the amending bill in its original form, if he believes the House of Lords is prepared to receive it as a peace measure. If not, he will withdraw it and the Home Rule bill unamended will become law and be presented to the King for his signature.

The passage of the Home Rule bill without amendments excluding any part of Ulster from its provisions would be the signal for Ulster to start its provisional government.

The Liberal newspapers continue to attack King George for the part he took in the conference. The Nation says:

"We do not quarrel with the King's idea of calling on both parties to find a remedy, but in his summoning of the chief rebels to the palace, and in his flattering speech about them is so much endorsement of a certain kind of treason which the higher powers seem to approve that we wonder where British sovereignty and British constitutionalism are being lead."

SIX IN LAST STAGE.

Canadians at Bisley Have Half a Dozen Candidates For King's Prize.

BISLEY CAMP, July 25.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Hendry of Dundas failed last night in the shooting off with 18 others for nine places in the final stage of the King's contest. Canada will therefore have six men in the final stage to-day. Martin, Calgary, after shooting off, enters the second stage of the St. George's competition.

In the second stage of the King's competition Hendry, Dundas Rifles; Elmslie, 48th, Toronto; Falconer, New Brunswick; Armstrong, Halifax; McInnes, Edmonton, each won 60 shillings. Boa, Montreal; Morrison, Toronto, and Lowry, Guelph, each won 40 shillings.

In the contest for Queen Mary's prize Sergt. Medland, 1st Devon, is silver medalist; Sergt. French, Hertfordshire, bronze medalist; Birmingham small arms, Sergt. Dewar, 40th Scots. In the first hundred Boa came 17th and McKae, 26th, each winning 30 shillings.

Vienna's new subways will cost $30,000,000.

Canada's canal system has cost $104,122,277.

THE SPORTING WORLD

THE COUNTESS OF SHAFTESBURY, SIR THOMAS LIPTON, MR. C. NICHOLSON, THE DESIGNER OF THE NEW "SHAMROCK," AND MR. MARCONI

Photographed at Gosport after "Shamrock IV." had been christened by the Countess of Shaftesbury and safely launched in Portsmouth Harbor. The new challenger is a big boat which will carry enormous sail, her mast being some 120 feet long and costing, so we are informed, £600. Sir Thomas is making yet another noble attempt to lift the cup, with all the disadvantages on his side as usual—the long trip over the Atlantic for one, not to mention the fact that the Americans are at liberty to build two or three yachts and select the best while Sir Thomas can only rely on one. Cup-lifting is a very expensive hobby, but it shows a sporting spirit, and for that reason the public will wish the latest "Shamrock" better luck than her predecessors.—The Tatler.

PETES FOUND STUMBLING BLOCK IN RAY CLEMENTS

Special to The Review.

Hamilton, July 24.—Ray Clements the former Saint was a Chinese puzzle to the Petes today and Curly Blount's sluggers could do nothing with his offerings. On the other hand Sterling was wild and that fact offset some good pitching by the big fellow who was continually called upon to pitch himself out of holes his wildness got him into. The final was 4-1. The Petes had chances to make the game close but failed to produce the necessary poke when damage would have resulted. They had one glorious chance in the seventh when they got two on with none gone. Sterling and Blount rolled easy ones to the infield and Welsh struck out ending the rally. It was a nice game of ball all the way and indications are that a bumper crowd will greet the teams when they clash in a double header Saturday afternoon. Score by innings:

TWO DAYS FOR BOOSTERS

Come all you boosters and get busy. The boosters' club will be out in force next Thursday afternoon when the clerk section of the anti-knockers' brigade will turn out to help the club along. Anyone can join the throng who so desires. It will be fifty cents straight to join the boosting throng, while next Saturday the boosters will have another day when the mechanics will turn out in force. It is up to every fan to turn out. The club is doing wonderfully well, considering the unfortunate luck it encountered at the start, while the owners have striven in the face of financial loss to keep on improving the club. Get out and boost. It will be a half a buck well spent.

COMMENT
As You Like It

The Canadian League race is conceded as about over by most of the fans but it is far from such and a race to the wire is to be looked for. London has a seven game margin over Ottawa while Erie and Toronto are not far in the rear and upsets are probable. Shaughnessy will not give up without a fight and as his team slumped badly a few weeks ago and now seems to have fully recovered another close finish may be staged in the dying moments of the season. Erie is coming along in good style and can be counted on to spoil a few of the beans. If London fails to cop the present Erie series it will bring the Cockneys back. The Petes should land up around third place with the pitching staff Manager Blount has to work with.

Clarence Kraft the much sought first sacker who almost caused the most serious outbreak in the ranks of organized baseball is back where he was when he raised his howl. Kraft was secured by Newark from the Nashville club and then sent back to Nashville. It was then that the fraternity claimed a rule had been broken as Kraft claimed a slice of the original purchase price but when Newark turned him back he received nothing. Newark then poured oil in the raging waters and Kraft was brought back under the original terms. He celebrated his debut by cracking out a homer the first time up. Next day he was purchased by the New York Yankees but he demanded so many stipulations in his contract that President Farrell shipped him back to Newark.

The chance that Canada had, and it was an outside one, to enter the final round for the Dwight F. Davis lawn tennis trophy emblematic of the world's championship, vanished rather rudely at the hands of the Australians. The matches were played at Chicago and Wilding, one of the greatest tennis players that ever lived played a wonderful game much to the amazement of the Yankee critics who stated he had gone back and his practice work was away off. Australia, United States and England will fight it out at Boston.

Freddie Welsh realizes that the boot is on the other foot and Willie Ritche will have to fight Welsh at his own terms if he wants a chance to win back the title. In the recent scrap at London Welsh got practically nothing but the glory of being returned victor. Now he demands the same of Ritchie and when they meet again the former champ's share will be about large enough to buy a bean sandwich. Before fighting Ritchie, Welsh will hook up with Jimmy Duffy the Buffalo lightweight who once claimed a win over the champion. Welsh is easily Duffy's master as Canadian fight followers know, but in a finish fight Welsh would have to be mighty strong and have his same old cleverness to defend his title against Ritchie. Therefore a twenty round fight will be the order with Ritchie as Welsh is no fool.

Shortstop Mitchell has proved a good investment for the Shagmen. He is playing great ball and looks to be worth the $1,000 paid for him. In his first four games he has handled 20 chances without an error, batted for .470 and stole three bases. He is only 22 years of age and lives in Detroit. He was a member of the Berlin club a couple of years ago, but Deneau released him because of his inexperience.

Governor Tener of the National League handed the magnates a slam in a statement he issued concerning the threatened strike, when he said: "I am glad the strike is settled. However, I do not believe the settlement arrived at will be permanent, owing to the belligerency of some of the magnates. A strike such as was threatened is something new to me and you know I have played baseball and have been interested in baseball affairs all my life. I am preparing for war, and after I am through inspecting and reviewing the soldiers here, I believe I will be in a position to control the turbulent factions."

Judging by the president's tone, the magnates will have to toe the mark as well as the players. Such a condition will improve matters all around.

LenDobson, the fellow who takes in the sheckles on behalf of the Petes wired last night to the effect that in his opinion the Hamilton Club has improved wonderfully since the last time the Petes invaded the Ambitious City. "Dobby" states in his message that inability to hit in the pinches lost yesterday's game. Sterling had one of his wildcat days and the plate looked like a faraway ship at sea to him. Tracey and Belting will work in the double bill to-day.

Christy Mathewson is the king of National League pitchers, and Honus Wagner is the king of National League swatters. For 14 years these marvels have battled away, and the verdict is in favor of the husky Pirate.

When a batter swats to a .300 average, he is regarded as having owned the advantage over the pitcher. That's the comparison between Wagner and Matty. In fourteen years Wagner has bumped the "fadeaway" to the tune of .335.

In the thirteen years Hans has dropped below .300 but four times. In 1905 he hit for .321, in 1909 it was but .111, the next year it was .231, and this season in four attempts Honus has failed to get a wallop off "Big Six."

The big year for Wagner was in 1908. Wagner compiled a .470 average, getting eight hits in seventeen times up.

Although Wagner is a regular fence-buster, and yearly gathers in his share of the long drives, he has not been able to bump Matty's curves to the walls. Just one home run in thirteen seasons is Honus' record, while the triples count but seven and the doubles thirteen.

Baseball fans in Ottawa have aired their opinions as to who is the best pitcher in the Canadian League this season. Records are side-tracked when doping out good twirlers. There are a raft of good moundmen around the Fitzgerald wheel, viz:—Schettler of Peterboro; Heck of London; Dorbeck and Brown, of Erie; Dougherty of Hamilton; Wilkinson of St. Thomas; Auld and Kirley, of Toronto; and Shockcor and Kubat or Ottawa. There is no doubt Louie Schettler of Peterboro is the class of the lot. Heck of London has been pitching good ball this season, but he is dependent wholly on a spitter and most ball hurlers are not as popular as they formerly were. Brown of Erie, impressed Ottawa fans as being a twirler of real class. Shockcor of Ottawa has been a consistent winner, but he has pitched some bad games in the bargain. Schettler always pitches well. He has smoke and lots of it, perfect control and a magnificent change of pace. Although he has seen big league service, he is good enough to go up there again. He pitched a game in Ottawa ten days ago that would stand the Giants or Athletics on their heads.—Ottawa Free Press.

LACROSSE—IT RAINED.

The threatening rain caused the Lacrosse Club to postpone their Moonlight last evening. The date will be made known later. It seems strange that every time that club undertakes to make a move it rains. President E. Dillon was seen talking very confidentially to farmers on the market this morning, and it may be that he's planning to arrange for games whenever the grounds become too dry.

Jimmy Direct Fourth

Frank Montgomery's Jimmy Direct was fourth in the 2.10 class race run at Delorimer Park, Montreal, yesterday. The local steed was third in the first three heats and fourth in the last. The best time was 2.14, made by The Amazer, which won the race after having been tenth in the first heat.

How to Study

Examine the Rebus picture and see how it will apply to a name, for example the picture of a man lying on a couch can be interpreted as COUCHMAN, while a stone-worker on a building could be evolved as MASON.

Remember

Answer Forms may be filled in with ink, pencil, or typewriter. Poor handwriting or trifling errors will not count against a participant. No sets of Answer Forms are to be submitted until called for at the end of the Pastime. It makes no difference where a person lives; provided he or she can return the Answer Forms in time after the contest has closed.

N. C. CAMERON AT KINGSTON

Merchants May Introduce Picnic as Held Here

Kingston Standard.

Mr. N. C. Cameron, Peterborough, district secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, is in the city consulting with the officers of the local branch. He is making some valuable suggestions to the men in this city, and they are meeting with approval. In the neighboring towns the associations have an annual picnic, which is easily the largest of the year. On August 5th there will be a large one in Belleville, and Mr. Cameron is endeavoring to interest the local merchants in holding one here.

The holding of these affairs brings the merchants and their customers in close proximity and considerable mutual benefit is derived. In speaking to a number of the local merchants he stated that they were in favor of holding a picnic which would later become an annual event. It is likely that the affair will be taken up shortly at a meeting of the association, and the plans will be drawn up.

It is the intention of Mr. Cameron to pay more visits to this city. He spoke of the way in which a large number of the transient merchants or traders were being driven out of Peterborough and other towns, and it is not unlikely that the efforts of the association will be directed towards Kingston. In the event of a picnic being held in this city by the merchants, it is not probable that it will occur until the latter part of next month.

St. Luke's annual Congregational excursion will be held this year on the afternoon of Thursday, July 30th, to Gore's Landing and Harwood, per steamer Stoney Lake. Keep this date in mind and take in a good outing.

When ironing, have a number of coat hangers upon which to put waists, children's dresses, etc.

ATLANTIS FILM A DRAWING CARD

The film Atlantis, presented as this week's offering at the Princess Theatre, is the production of a Danish Company. It is also the adaptation of a novel by Gerhart Hauptmann, who is a Teuton. Therefore, if the action did not include a spectacular steamer wreck, and some of the most remarkable sea and harbour scenes than ever the "movie" camera has been able to secure, it is to be feared the plot would bore a normal Canadian audience.

The audiences at the Princess are healthy in size, at least, and the doors and the lobby were flooded over with disappointed theatregoers who could not get in by the time the first reel began to spin out on the screen.

Dr. Kummacher, the principal character, lives in Berlin, but he does not love his wife. This is the excuse for a shift of scene to Southampton, and thence across the ocean to New York. On the return voyage the steamer strikes a derelict, and the passengers are saved very expediently by a passing steamer.

Dr. Kummacher finally learns that his wife, who has been ill at a sanatorium, has passed away, and being a very blase doctor, he promptly turns about and marries the nearest woman in the picture. The plot is wholly unsatisfactory, but the scenic production is worth being jammed in the lobby and the aisles to see.

Nothing Lazy About It

On the outside square at the market this morning an elderly man, who by his appearance looked to be a retired farmer, was having a weekly chat with a few of his old neighbours. After the weather was commented on, the former battler of the soil turned to one of his friends and asked what about the hook worm he was reading so much about. "Man alive," the one addressed replied, "Don't call the army worm the hook worm, there's nothing lazy about it."

TICKETS WERE MISSING.

The charge of a breach of the market by-law against two farmer wives were dismissed by Magistrate Dumble this morning. The women were charged with selling produce without a ticket on their produce. Owing to this being the first charge laid under the new by-law the case would be dismissed with a warning his worship said.

MANY CHANGES AFTER FOURTEEN LONG YEARS

Luke Dillon Finds Difficulty in Catching up With Times

Atlantic City, N. J., July 25.—Here is a man—a Philadelphia man at that—who was so long shut up in a virtual tomb that when he emerged into daylight, ten days ago, he was an utter stranger in a strange world, that blazed with wonders, to his unaccustomed eyes, like Bagdad of the magicians. This man is Luke Dilon, who was paroled from the Kingston penitentiary in Canada on July 12, after fourteen years of dungeon life for complicity in the dynamiting of the Welland canal, in Ontario, in 1900. Such was the degree of his isolation since his sentence to life imprisonment that the first thing he did after being liberated was to send a friendly telegram to a man who had been dead for nine years.

Search for His Wife.

In fourteen years Dillon was allowed to address only two persons, the prison chaplain and the guard at his cell. He had never heard of the wireless or of flying machines. The loneliest hour in all the fourteen years, Dillon said today, was when he was lost on the Atlantic City boardwalk, searching for his wife, whom he hadn't seen since the day of his sentence.

"I was to meet my wife at a hotel here," said Dillon. "I sent her a telegram, When I got here, I found that the hotel had been torn down, so I had nothing to do but walk about and look for her in the crowds, for I knew she'd come. I found her at last, though we both had changed, and we had to do the finding between us.

First Auto Ride.

"I had my first ride in an automobile that day, and they are queer things. The man just kicked something under his foot and the thing went wherever he wanted it to. I'd heard of the moving pictures. Do you mind the old Punch ond Judy shows? Well, I thought they'd be like that. I was sitting in the place, waiting for the lights to be turned on. Think of that! And then, all at once, I saw the thing flash up at the end of the room, and, it looked like a lot of grey ghosts. It wasn't what I epected to see at all.

A Subway Experience.

"I'd never seen a subway till the policeman at Brod steeet station told me to go in it to get to the ferry. 'Down the steps,' said he. 'A railroad under the ground?' says I. 'Sure,' says he, 'where are you from that you don't know of it?' I didn't say uaght to that, but went in, and along comes the train. I held my hnds to my ears. It was a painful uproar after all the stillness that I'd been through.

"Here in Atlantic City I saw man flying up in a mchine—right in the face of the sun. It is a wonderful age, but why don't they train their reason, and why can't they be wise in other things as well? Tell me that.

Prison a Tiny Hell.

"For a time, after my imprisonment," Dillon said, "I thought of suicide. They have real penitentiaries in Canada—they make them as near like tiny hells as they can, so that men who have once been there won't want to go back.

"I didn't see a newspaper in all the fourteen years, nor did I see a knife or fork. I ate all my meals in my own cell, and I was compelled to eat them with a spoon. Speech among the prisoners is forbidden.

"They first put me to work piling bricks," said Dillon, "but later when they found I was trained in a bank, they put me to clerking. I begged for a change from that, because it gave me too much time to think. I had seven years of it. Five years ago they put me in the shoe shop, cutting leather, and I learned that trade pretty thoroughly."

Sympathizers in Canada really secured Dillon's parole, he said.

"The Canadians are intensely sensitive about any interference from this side of the border," said Dillon, "and any suggestion of aid from this side would probably have done me more harm than good. That doesn't lessen the gratitude I feel towards a few friends of mine in this country, who tried to do what they could in my behalf. All I wish now is a little peace, and a chance to get acquainted with the changed conditions. I shall try to take my place openly in society, and to forget bygones."

TROOPS FIRE ON THE MOB IN DUBLIN STREETS

WAR WILL LIKELY BREAK OUT IN SOUTHEASTERN EUROPE

WILL DEMAND REPARATION

Canadian Press Despatch.

Dublin, July 26.—Day dawned before the police succeeded in dispersing crowds roaming the streets, singing patriotic songs and looking for soldiers of the Borderers Regiment, on whom to inflict vengeance for the fatal events of yesterday. The entire city and a great part of Catholic Ireland is in a state of greatest excitement over yesterday's conflict. The Nationalist leaders take a most serious view of the affair and will demand reparation from the Government.

TRYING TO FIND WAY OUT

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, Eng.—Italian and German ambassadors saw Sir Edward Grey and the former had a long talk with him. A most serious view is taken here of the Austro-Servian situation, and every effort is being made by English diplomats to find a way out of the crisis. The stock market was comparatively calm at the opening, the opinion prevailing that war would be averted, but it soon became agitated.

FIRST ENCOUNTER RUMORED

Canadian Press Despatch.

Vienna, July 27.—A rumor current yesterday, said the first encounter between the Austrians and Servians had occurred near Semendria, twenty-four miles south east of Belgrade, where some vessels carrying Austrian troops had been fired on from the Servian side of the river and returned the fire.

KING'S OWN SCOTTISH BORDERERS ARE ATTACKED BY NATIONALIST SYMPATHIZERS

Four Are Dead and Sixty Are Wounded by Soldiers—Trouble Over Consignment of Rifles.

DUBLIN, July 27. — Three men and one woman are dead and more than sixty persons are in the hospital wounded as the result of a battalion of the King's Own Scottish Borderers firing into a mob in the streets of Dublin yesterday afternoon. Seven of the wounded are expected to succumb to their injuries.

The affray was the result of a gun-running exploit of the Nationalist Volunteers, who were being aided by a mob composed largely of women and youths.

The wounded in the hospital include three women and a boy of ten.

A consignment of rifles, said to number ten thousand, was landed at noon yesterday at Howth, nine miles from Dublin. The vessel on which the arms were brought was a private yacht. The Nationalist Volunteers cut the telegraph wires and stopped travel on the Dublin roads, and, according to reports, sent away most of the rifles, together with 70,000 rounds of ammunition in motor cars.

A battalion of the King's Own Scottish Borderers was ordered to capture the arms yesterday afternoon, when the authorities heard that the volunteers were bringing them into the city.

The soldiers encountered a detachment of volunteers at Clonmell Bridge, and an outbreak resulted. There was no shooting then, however. A great crowd soon collected and followed the troops, jeering them and cheering for John Redmond, the Nationalist leader, and Home Rule. Finally the mob began throwing bottles and stones and several of the soldiers were injured.

The battalion then replied to the attack of the mob with a scattered fusillade. In an instant the street was covered with wounded, while terrified men, women and children ran in all direction.

Jervis Street Hospital is situated only 200 yards from the scene of the affray, and the wounded were quickly taken there. Four of them died within two hours.

The soldiers and police seized a hundred rifles from the volunteers.

An excited crowd filled the streets of Dublin last night, some of the men carrying rifles. The Borderers are confined to barracks to prevent the people from attacking them. A street car in which a soldier was riding was wrecked last night, but the soldier escaped the mob. Further rioting is feared.

Among those seriously wounded in the affray is M. J. Judge, a prominent officer of the Nationalist Volunteers.

The arms were landed at noon yesterday. The yacht from which they were taken was a sailing vessel, the name of which had been painted over.

A thousand volunteers marched openly from Dublin to receive the arms. They said, however, that they were merely making a practice march. The local police and the coast guard tried to prevent the landing of the arms, but were driven off.

When the Dublin authorities learned of the landing they sent sixty police to seize the arms. These police later were reinforced by 200 others under an assistant commander.

The police were drawn up on both sides of the road along which the volunteers were returning, with the militia in the centre of the road.

When the volunteers saw the mobilization, most of them got away with their arms, scattering through the fields. The police and soldiers tried to disarm the remainder.

In the resulting affray, several revolver shots were fired by volunteers, and a corporal and a private were wounded. The volunteers also used their rifles as clubs.

The soldiers fixed and used their bayonets freely, inflicting many cuts. Then they had a running fight with the volunteers and the rapidly growing mob through the streets to their barracks.

A number of policemen have been

BANCROFT'S BUSINESS AREA WIPED OUT BY FLAMES WHICH BROKE OUT NEAR BAKER'S OVEN

BANCROFT, Ont., July 27. — The whole business area of the town of Bancroft was practically wiped out by fire last night. The destructive blaze, fanned by a strong wind, played serious havoc. Nine buildings, including the hotel and postoffice, were totally destroyed, and a loss approximating $75,000 was entailed.

The buildings and stores affected by the fire are as follows: Bancroft Hotel, Benjamine's dry goods store, Reid & Thompson's general store, and the postoffice. All the structures, with the exception of the hotel, which was built of brick, consisted entirely of wood.

Shortly after six o'clock the village baker, Mr. Willing, was preparing his first batch of bread, when fire broke out somewhere near the oven and immediately began to spread. Before the volunteer fire brigade could be brought to the scene the bakery was demolished, and the flames were reaching down Bridge street. Soon the whole of the inhabitants of the district were fighting the flames, but with little success. Salvage operations were then commenced, and much property was saved.

As usual, there were a number of exciting experiences; guests at the hotel had narrow escapes; a number were at dinner when the fire occurred and are said to have taken many chances when endeavoring to wrest their belongings from the flames.

The fire was finally controlled by the fire-fighters some two hours after its commencement. No injuries were sustained. Insurance to the extent of $50,000 is said to be held by the owners of the properties destroyed.

ASKS DAMAGES FOR BREACH OF CONTRACT

Wedding it is Said Had Been Arranged for This Fall

Miss Nellie Northcote of Reid St. is the plaintiff in a breach of promise action launched Saturday afternoon in which she asks the court to award her unstated damages, from Mr. Percy Simpson who has been interested in the Salvation Army work in this city. The action will be tried in the high court. Although Simpson is not what may be termed a diligent army worker, he has interested himself to a good degree of late. He attended the congress in London, arriving there one week after the local band.

While in London he met "his old girl." The smouldering fire of love once fanned again, burned out warmly and when he arrived back in Peterboro he informed Miss Northcote that "it was all off" and he had decided to marry the girl of his wooing days at home.

Miss Northcote was not going to give up without receiving some remuneration for the time she wasted and the money she spent, for it had been practically arranged between her and Simpson that the marriage would take place early this fall. Arrangements had practically been made with a local clergyman and Miss Simpson was arranging her trouseau.

Bennet and Goodwill are acting for Miss Simpson.

Was Overcome When He Saw His Mother Dead

While viewing the remains of his mother who passed away yesterday morning, Harold Marshall a young man residing at the corner of Brock and Stewart Streets, collapsed this afternoon in a faint. It was some time before the young man could be restored. Mrs. Marshall who resided at the corner of Brock and Stewart Streets, after ailing for some months, took a turn for the better last week. On Saturday evening, however, her condition became serious again and death came early Sunday morning. She was well known and highly respected throughout the city. The late Mrs. Marshall leaves to mourn her demise a son Harold at home, and three daughters, Mrs. Jas. Belleghem of Toronto, and Misses Ethel and Sarah at home.

The funeral will take place from the family residence tomorrow afternoon to the Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. Jas. Rollins will conduct the funeral services.

CITY CLERK DEAD

The Late C. J. Pim Was Well Known

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., July 27.—Following an attack of appendicitis, City Clerk C. J. Pim passed away. Mr. Pim was an old resident of the Soo, having been born here in 1854, and was highly respected. He was at one time in the employ of the Hudson Bay Co. in the early days of the Soo, and later was keeper of the Caribou lighthouse.

Over twelve years ago he was appointed city clerk, and his knowledge of English, French and Indian languages made him an efficient civil servant. He leaves a widow, three sons and one daughter. Flags are at half-mast throughout the city in respect for him. The funeral takes place to-day.

Struck Sharpe Stone

Alex. Primeau Injured While Diving

Striking a sharp stone while diving at Chemong Park yesterday afternoon Alex. Primeau of East City, one of the week-end guests at the Park, received a serious injury about the head. He was removed from the water and medical aid summoned. Dr. Carmichael attended the young man who was found to be suffering from a long cut just over the ear. He was removed to a cottage and made as comfortable as possible.

PRINTER IS DROWNED

Port Dover, July 27.—A. M. Todd, a printer, employed until recently by The Maple Leaf Newspaper, Port Dover, was found drowned in two feet of water off Orchard Beach Park yesterday. Some boys who were bathing stumbled over the body and notified Robert McLean, who recovered it and informed Coroner Dr. Albert Cook, who, after an examination, deemed an inquest unnecessary. Deceased came here from Goderich a year ago, and leaves a wife and family.

ULSTERMEN ON PARADE

Volunteers Under Full Arms March in Belfast

BELFAST, July 27.—A parade of two full regiments of Ulster volunteers, numbering several thousand men, was held here last night. All the men carried rifles and their equipment included several machine guns, which were strongly guarded. The marchers traversed the principal streets of the city, and their demonstration, the boldest exhibition of Orange strength attempted to date in the Home Rule struggle, aroused great enthusiasm.

Referring to Ireland, and the failure of the recent conference of party leaders held at Buckingham Palace, in a speech at Steyning last night, Francis Dyke Acland, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, said: "There is much cause for regret but much for hope. The conference has broken up, but something has been gained in their being heard as the representatives of the great parties. At that table the members of the conference learned to respect each other's point of view.

"We Liberals will not betray the trust which the Irish people have placed in us. Our motto must be 'trust the Liberal leaders'."

AXLE SNAPPED

Mishap to Engine of Train From Belleville

The axle on the pony truck of the G.T.R. engine hauling the 8.50 p.m. passenger train from Belleville, broke about three miles east of Hastings Saturday evening and the cab jumped the track. Had it not been for the quick work of Engineer McMahon in bringing the train to a stop the accident might have been far more serious. The Lakefield train was sent from this city to the scene of the wreck and the passengers were transferred. The Lindsay auxiliary was called out and had the track cleared by Sunday morning.

POSTPONE TRIP TILL OCTOBER

Hammondsport, N. Y., July 27.—Lieut. John C. Porte will not attempt to fly across the Atlantic until October 1. This decision was reached as the result of a conference between Glenn H. Curtiss, Lieut. Porte and Will Gash, the personal representative of Mr. Rodman Wanamaker.

SAFETY FIRST

Do not endanger your own life and that of others by carelessness in the canoe.

Even if you think you are an expert swimmer, keep away from weed beds.

Any thoughtful person will be on the alert to aid others, also bathing in the water.

You may own a motor boat but you don't own the earth. Your thoughtlessness may send a party of canoeists to a watery grave.

And even though you may be able to paddle your own canoe, you are taking a fool's chance, if you neglect to manoeuvre, so as to cut the waves from a passing launch or steamer.

Col. Hughes Writes

A letter from the Minister of Militia, stated that he will be only too pleased to give his assistance on behalf of the celebration in Peterboro to observe the opening of the lower lake of the Trent Valley Canal.

MONUMENT WAS UNVEILED BY WOODMEN

Marks the Grave of the Late Herbert Miller

On Sunday, the Woodmen of the World of Sherwood Forest Camp, held an unveiling in the Little Lake Cemetery, of the monument erected over the grave of the late Herbert J. Miller, a son of Mr. Finch Miller, of this city. There were over one hundred members in line in the parade, and Dr. Harrison, Head Consul Commander, was present, assisting in the ceremonies.

The officers taking part were as follows:

Dr. W. S. Harrison, Head Consul Commander, Toronto; A. Graham, Con. Commander; C. J. Hicks, Adv. Lieutenant; J. Edgar, Banker; R. Carr, Clerk; G. Richardson, Escort; S. Whatley, Watchman; W. H. Hancock, Sentry; G. A. Gillespie, Poem Reader; G. N. Gordon, Orator; E. J. Waterman, Master of Ceremonies.

FUNERAL OF PERCY HILL

Many Friends Attend Service at House and Cemetery

The funeral of the late Percy Hill, who met such an untimely death by drowning in the Otonabee River, on Wednesday evening, took place on Saturday afternoon from the family residence, on Jackson Avenue, to the Little Lake Cemetery. The remains were placed in the vault to await the return of the young victim's mother and sister, who are at present in England. It is expected that they will be back in the course of two weeks.

The large number present at the house service and at the cemetery was a clear reminder of the high esteem in which the young man was held. The opening hymn at the house service, "Shall we gather at the River?" was led by Mr. R. J. Devey. Adjutant McElhiney read from the scriptures and Rev. J. R. Webb offered up prayer and also spoke a few words of condolence to the bereaved family. Rev. F. A. Conners, pastor of the Park Street Baptist Church, of which the late Percy Hill was an ardent member, had charge of the services, and gave a very appropriate address, choosing his text from the Corinthians. "I show you a mystery, we shall not all sleep but we shall all be changed."

"We are here together to-day," Rev. Mr. Conners began, "to sympathise with these dear sorrowing friends who are bereaved and broken

Servia Accedes to Most of Austria's Demands in Ultimatum — Minister is Given Passports.

LONDON, July 27. — Sunday's developments appear to furnish new proofs that Austria is fully determined to make war on Servia, and the possibilities of a general European war seem greater than even confronted the present generation.

The Servian reply to the Austro-Hungarian ultimatum was an acceptance of almost all the imperious demands except that Austrian officials shall not participate in the investigation and fix the responsibility for the anti-Austrian propaganda. Servia proposed an appeal to the powers at The Hague for the settlement of that feature.

Notwithstanding this humiliating surrender, which was more than Europe expected of the proud little nation, the Austrian Government yesterday gave the Servian Minister his passports, which may be construed as a virtual declaration of war.

Austria committed an act of war by arresting the chief of the Servian general staff, Gen. Putnik, near Buda-Pest, but he was soon released by the Emperor's direct command.

EMPEROR FRANZ JOSEF.

A formal declaration of war is not expected because Servia is not a party to The Hague convention which requires this. The suspension of all Parliamentary and judicial institutions has been decreed in Austria and an iron clad censorship has drawn a cordon of secrecy around the country, so that the outside world is in complete ignorance of everything happening there except what the Government wants the world to know.

Even now the Austrian armies may be closing in upon Servia and launching a sudden blow, as Japan did when she sent her fleet against the Russian ships without warning.

While Austria announces a "partial mobilization" the Austrian ambassador at London has issued a significant notice to all Austrians liable for military service to return home. The only possibility of averting a war at the eleventh hour which Austria recognises is that Servia shall reconsider her reply to the Austrian note and bow to all her demands. Even then Austria proposes to exact payment for all her expenses in connection with her military measure.

The question as to whether Russia will take up arms to save her Slav protege from a crushing blow is the crucial feature of the situation on which the peace of all Europe hinges. The same degree of secrecy which Austria has imposed has been established in Russia also, and, therefore, it cannot be known what military preparations are in progress there. The Russian Government has permitted messages to go forth, quoting the St. Petersburg papers, as considering intervention inevitable, and demanded by the popular sentiment.

Germany has informed the other powers that she considers that the Austro-Servian quarrel concerns these two nations alone. If any

RURAL TEACHERS' CONFERENCE.

A RURAL TEACHERS' Conference is to be held at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, from August 3rd to the 7th, the purpose of which is to bring before the teaching body of the Province at large a view of the new educational needs of rural communities and of the means of meeting these needs. In the second place, its object is to present to all others interested in the educational problems of the country a view of the rural school's place and possibilities.

Through the attendance of two representative teachers from every Teachers' Association, and their reports to the Autumn conventions, it is hoped to bring Ontario's plans for agricultural teaching and the improvement of rural education in general before the whole teaching body in the Province.

The meetings are open to any one interested in rural problems, although the teachers are, of course, the persons most concerned, and special railway rates have been arranged for those attending. Numerous addresses of a high order will be delivered, and inspections and practical demonstrations will be made, such well-known men as Dr. Jas. W. Robertson, Prof. H. L. Hutt, and C. A. Zavitz taking part.

The object is a worthy one and should be taken advantage of by every teacher if possible. The condition of many school grounds and the attitude of the pupils to landscape improvement is only one point emphasizing the need of educational work along this line. Ontario's Agricultural College is doing good work in educating the public to rural needs, and these free conferences being part of this propaganda, should be well attended.

BRANCH BANKS ABROAD.

ONE OF THE FIRST fruits of the new reserve act of the Congress of the United States ripened promptly. The leadership of the Naitonal City Bank, Boston, was never better exemplified than in its recent decision to establish branches in the two leading commercial cities of South America, Rio de Janiero and Beunos Ayres.

There is, however, no question of either the necessity or the advantages of the project. Business is getting more and more into world terms; and trade most truly follows, not so much the flag as the loan, the credit, and the expert and intimate information. The banker must be coadjutor to the exporting manufacturer. Quality and price of goods are in themselves insufficient without this teamwork.

The services that European branch banks have wrought to European exporters have become almost notorious. It has even been insinuated that they have served as spies of commerce, as well as accelerators of new market relations. As things stand, all the financing of what trade is won in this unequal competition has to be expressed in terms of European exchange; but there is now no longer any valid reason why our share should be computed in pounds instead of dollars.

The establishment of a banking instiution in the United States possessing the facilities of large banks like those of Canada and Europe together with greater foreign exchange facilities, may mean serious rivalry to European banks. Canadian banks, too, have established many foreign agencies, so that the trade of the American continents may not in time have to go largely through European clearing houses.

THE SEARCH FOR RADIUM IN CANADA.

SOME TIME AGO, it will be remembered, that the Ontario Government offered a reward of $25,000 for the discovery of radium in this Province, under certain conditions.

A bulletin designed to assist in the discovery in Canada of radium, the modern philosopher's stone, has been issued by the Geological Survey. According to information, the precious mineral has not as yet been found in commercial quantities in Canada, though several districts are named where radium-bearing minerals have been found in small quantities. It is notable that most of these are in Quebec Province, and the list even includes Maisonneuve, but only traces of it have been discovered, and these take the form of samarskite, which a miner described as having a "sub-metallic shining lustre, being opaque, and of a brownish-black color."

Other places where radium-bearing minerals are found are: Wakefield, Villeneuve and Murray Bay, Que., as well as Mamine, Madoc, and Snowden, Ont. The bulletin says that the great variety of mineral associations of uranium, one of the principal minerals with which radium is found associated," makes it advisable that the prospector should not neglect a careful search for its presence in all known mineral deposits. The difficulty of recovering the radium from the ore, and the superior technical skill required in the operation, make the cost of separation extremely high, and necessitate the fabulous prices paid.

The bulletin prescribes several methods of testing for radium. Instruments such as the electroscope, which detects the metal through electrical action, and the scitilloscope, which registers the action of the radium on zinc sulphide, are mentioned, while radium also can be detected by its action on a photographic plate.

The issuing of such data is to be commended, for when search is being made with a knowledge of the thing sought and hunted by those knowing how to look, there is more likelihood that it will be found.

A NEW KIND OF TOWEL.

IN HOTEL, factory, and public lavatories where roller towels should not be used because of the danger of spreading skin diseases, and where the expense of furnishing individual paper or cloth towels is considerable, the electric hand drier may be used economically and satisfactorily. A sanitary hand drier, described in the "Electrical World," consists of a sheet-metal case with an opening in its top in which the hands can be inserted and dried by a current of hot air. A foot pedal operates a quick-acting switch which starts a blower, forcing the air through the electric heater. The hand drier is, of course, absolutely sanitary, as it is unnecessary to touch any part of the apparatus when using it. The hands can be thoroughly dried, it is declared, in from thirty to forty seconds, which is less time than is required to perform the same operation with a linen or paper towel.

FOR SAFETY AT SEA.

IT OUGHT not to be beyond the capacity of seafaring men to devise a far more complete and specific set of signals that can be uttered by a steam whistle than there are now. The importance of this has been impressed by the many recent collisions in fog. If all steamers were equipped with wireless outfits it would not be necessary to depend upon the steam whistle, but it will probably be long before all the colliers and tankers and other freighters are so equipped, and it is of no use to a passenger steamer to talk wireless to a steamer that can't understand anything that is said. It must be possible to develop signalling by whistles.

EDUCATION AND ENDOWMENTS.

ARE GREAT ENDOWMENTS injurious to education? An unexpected resolution of protest against the gifts of Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Rockefeller was drawn up at the convention of the National Education Association now in session in St. Paul. It is said to have been shaped mainly by representatives of the smaller schools, and the principal contention is that such endowments may impair efficiency by removing the incentive to effort which is found in competition. The teacher once well established may relax completely, knowing that a pension is waiting for him, and education generally is in danger of becoming somewhat otiose. That is the view of the protestants, and of course it is far from new. It is but returning, in some measure, to the old laissez faire idea that everybody should pay for what education he thinks worth paying for.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

ANOTHER INSTANCE of the peculiar brand of justice handed out in the local police court occurred this morning. A young man who was arrested Saturday night by the police after a great deal of difficulty, and after he had struck his mother and step-father, was "punished" by a two-dollar fine. A two-dollar fine will do a lot of good preventing a recurrence of this affair, won't it?

A Discovery.

St. Thomas Journal.

A New York woman was able to deposit $20,000 that her husband didn't know anything about. Now we begin to suspect where our money's going!

Neither Did We.

Syracuse Post-Standard.

We never knew of a girl whose soul was killed by algebra, but we never knew one who showed improvement in cooking or sewing or housework because of it.

Tragedy of Life.

New York Sun.

In all the flash and play of tragedy so relentlessly about the house of Hapsburg, sympathy goes out to those who suffer quickly and are then removed from all possibility of further pain. But there is haunting pathos in the figure of the solitary old man, bereft like a stricken tree of every branch, bare to a fate that pursues his nearest but mercilessly leaves him to the desolation of life without them.

Slaughter-Day.

Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

There were eight deaths from drowning in Ontario on Sunday. The summer Sunday is becoming a regular slaughter-day for victims of drowning and motor-killing. Most of the fatalities are traceable to the same cause, recklessness. Many of the victims of the drowning accidents are swimmers. No doubt a good many people are drowned every year simply because they can swim just well enough to have confidence in themselves. Clearly it is not enough to know how to swim; the swimmer must learn to guard against danger on the water, just as the pedestrian must learn to guard against danger on land.

Dusk.

The twilight dusk sinks on the earth
To shroud the last faint flush of light
Which blushes o'er the hills, at birth
Of dark, and the lips of day, bright
To the last, grow pale with the kiss of night.

Breath of the Maid o' the Dusk blows
With the scent of the roses; leaves
Whisper of love while flowers close,
Nodding their heads in sleep, which weaves
The web of rest and dreams to all bequeathes.

A Disconcerting Comparison.

Grain Growers' Guide.

How much reliance can be placed upon the statements of partisan newspaper organs is illustrated by the appended clippings from the two Winnipeg morning papers of the same date:

> "The splendid ovation to the Premier as he rose to speak, the marked interest with which his every word was listened to, was not only a worthy and deserved tribute to a great man, but a well-earned endorsement of the progressive policies that have marked the fourteen years of his administration."
>
> —The Telegram.
>
> "Sir Rodmond Roblin, in starting to speak, had a difficult time in getting a favorable hearing. When he mentioned the name of T. C. Norris, the Liberal leader, the demonstration at the sound of the word 'Norris' was most remarkable. The cheering and applause was of the most energetic kind and was maintained for minutes, during which the Premier had to stand glum and silent."

CONSIDER THE ANT

I'M not what ye'd call much of a naturalist. I like birds, animals and insects all right but when it comes to studyin' them I'm a leetle bit off color. Maybe I lack patience. Thar was a time when I thought I'd specialize on the study of ants but arter watchin' an ant carry a dead grasshopper over a fence and back again six times without any apparent reason, I got ter thinkin' the study of thet particular insect would prove too intricate for me. Maybe I've larned though thet the reason an ant works so dinged hard is that he doesn't know any better. One thing I know is, when I've carried a side of pork from the smoke-house to the kitchen, I'm satisfied to let it go at that. I'm not repeatin' the stunt jest to keep on workin', I should say not.

MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

By Walt Mason

There used to be a foolish rumor that women have no sense of humor, and can't inspire a smile; but Mrs. Rinehart's joyous stories, among their other charms and glories, have wit that's worth the while. Her "sense of humor" fairly bubbles, and makes a guy forget his troubles, his worries and his debts; of all the cheerful books I treasure, of all which give me endless pleasure, her novels are my pets. The fiction fans, in countless legions, throughout all sane, enlightened regions, entranced, enraptured look; when busy publishers are hinting that they are now engaged in printing another Rinehart book. That means another round of laughter, without distress or colic after, a tonic for the mind, a solace for the soul that's weary, a book to cheer the day that's dreary, and ease the beastly grind. They say that Mary's coining money; I hope it's true—a dame so funny should have a big reward; she came, this great and graceful writer, she came to make the gray world brighter, anointed by the Lord.

SPECIAL CORNER FOR AFTER DINNER READERS

THE SHOP OPPOSITE

By F. A. MITCHEL

"The shop opposite," said Mrs. Smith to her husband one morning while they were dressing, "has been at last taken. The sign 'To Let' has disappeared."

"Um!" grunted Mr. Smith, who was tying his cravat before the mirror.

"The shop opposite has been opened as a meat and vegetable market," said Mrs. Smith to her husband a few mornings later while he was brushing his hair.

"Um!" said Mr. Smith again.

"Do you know, dear," said Mrs. Smith on a third occasion, "that the shop opposite is kept by a very pretty, ladylike woman? She has such a sad face."

"Why do you take so much interest in the shop opposite?" asked Mr. Smith.

"I admit that at first it was through curiosity, but now it is from a different motive. This sad faced woman is doing a very good business. She is selling much cheaper than the other stores, but delivers no goods. Every purchaser must carry home what he has bought."

"I don't yet see the motive you spoke of."

"I haven't got to it yet. What puzzles me is that, though there are many purchases, there are few buyers. I have been able to count only seven persons going into the store today, but some of them have gone in eight or ten times."

"You don't call that curiosity, do you?"

"No."

"What is it?"

"Interest."

"Um!" said Mr. Smith, and he went downstairs to breakfast.

That was the beginning of what became, to Mrs. Smith, a mystery, but in which Mr. Smith took no interest whatever. If his wife told him that one little pale faced boy took out twenty packages during the day he simply remarked that the shopwoman had probably hired him to make deliveries. Probably she would set up a wagon after awhile.

"I tell you, dear," said Mrs. Smith one morning, when the shop opposite had been running several weeks, "there's something peculiar about that business. I never see any of the neighbors trading there. I've watched the persons who go in there and they are nearly all under twenty years of age. I know every one of them. There's a young fellow about eighteen, a girl about sixteen, a"—

"Surely, my dear, you were right when you said your motive was interest, not curiosity," said Mr. Smith ironically.

"I shall not say anything more to you about that shop, but you'll find out."

"I am quite content to await developments."

Two days after this announcement Mrs. Smith said to her husband:

"I was looking out the window yesterday and saw that pale faced boy coming out with so many bundles he couldn't carry them. He dropped one of them on the sidewalk, the paper broke, and what do you suppose came out on the flags?"

"What?"

"Oh, I forgot. I wasn't to say anything more about the shop opposite, was I?"

"I suppose it was flour."

"No, it wasn't."

"Sugar?"

"No. You needn't ask any more. I shall not gratify your curiosity."

One morning Mrs. Smith got out of bed and, going to the window, uttered an exclamation of surprise.

"What is it, dear?" asked her husband.

"Well?"

"I do hope that poor woman hasn't got into trouble."

There was a brief silence, after which Mr. Smith asked his wife to tell him what had come out of the bundle that had dropped on the sidewalk.

"Dirt," she said.

"Dirt?"

"Yes, nothing but dirt."

Mr. Smith arose, dressed and went down to breakfast. His wife begged him to go across the street and ask the policeman what had happened, but he declined to go till after he had breakfasted. Then he sallied forth, talked awhile with the officer and returned.

"Well?" asked his wife.

"Your interest in the shop opposite had a foundation after all. You know the jail is on the other street, and it backs up against the shop. Last night a prisoner escaped through a tunnel leading from the shop to his cell. His wife kept the shop, his oldest son dug the tunnel, and his children carried away the earth in paper bags."

"Perhaps," replied Mrs. Smith, "when I tell you hereafter that something is going on in the neighborhood you'll believe me.

"I don't see why they keep these stupid men on the police force when they can get women. One woman for such a service is worth a hundred men."

"My dear," said Mrs. Smith a year later, "the man who escaped through the tunnel is innocent. The real criminal has confessed."

IS HUERTA COMING?

Rumor Says He Will Engineer New Revolution From Toronto.

TORONTO, July 27.—Gen. Victoriano Huerta, ex-President of Mexico, left Kingston, Jamaica, early yesterday morning for Montreal, from whence he will come directly to Toronto, where plans for a counter revolution in Mexico against Generals Carranza and Villa are under way, according to a code cable message received here yesterday afternoon. The person responsible for the statement also declared that Pascual Orosco and Carcelo Caraveo, former Mexican Federal officers, are to leave the western coast of Mexico for Canada early this week. Santos Ochaona, a prominent Huertista, also is expected to arrive in Toronto Monday or Tuesday.

Gen. Felix Diaz, nephew of Porfirio Diaz, the former dictator of Mexico, according to a reliable source, is to be the leader of the new revolution. The plans of the plotters, it was said, comprise two simultaneous movements in western and northern Mexico. Gen. Diaz is to direct the northern campaign, which now is recruiting troops from Federal refugees, Spaniards and Cientificos along the New Mexico-Coahuila border of the United States.

ARM WAS CRUSHED.

Brakeman Succumbs to Terrible Accident at Brockville.

CORNWALL, Ont., July 27. — Edward Surprise of Santa Clara, N.Y., a brakeman on the O. & N. Y. R., met death from an accident in the yards on Saturday afternoon, dying in the General Hospital shortly afterwards. During some shunting the young man was caught between two freight cars, and his right arm, shoulder and chest were so badly lacerated and bruised that the arm had to be amputated at the shoulder. Coroner C. J. Hamilton opened an inquiry at the hospital on Saturday night, and after viewing the remains an adjournment was made until July 31. The remains will be sent to Santa Clara for interment on Monday.

Town Nearly Burned Out.

JASONVILLE, Indiana, July 27.—After a night of total darkness caused by the destruction of 65 business houses and residences by fire Friday, Jasonville turned Saturday toward the work of reconstruction. The fire started in a moving picture place, resulting in the death of John Hughes, a teamster, crushed under falling walls, and caused losses roughly estimated yesterday at $300,000.

A Home For Aged Teachers.

COLUMBUS, O., July 27.—Nearly a half million dollars will be expended soon for a home in this city for aged Ohio school teachers, under the provisions of the will of Mrs. Virginia Gay, just probated. It gives about $400,000 for the teachers' home and $50,000 for a hospital at Vinton, Ia., where Mrs. Gay spent most of her life.

THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations In Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, etc.

CHICAGO, July 25.—Frantic buying of wheat today resulted from the war scare. The excitement, however, was chiefly confined to a few minutes at the start when reports that Servia would yield had not had sufficient time to take effect. After an advance that on some sales almost touched three cents a bushel, the market closed unsettled at a rise of 1 1-8.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, July 25.—Rumors of war, which may involve Russia, caused a sweeping advance on the Winnipeg wheat market this morning. Opening prices were ⅞ to 1⅜ higher for wheat, December leading. Oats were higher for both months, and flax 2 to 5c higher. Following the opening trading was active and prices around the high points. Crop conditions locally were barely taken into consideration, the European situation overshadowing all else. Closing figures were 1¼ to 1¾c higher for wheat, flax being 4½ to 7c higher. The cash and export department was demoralised owing to the advance. Flax offerings were absorbed eagerly. Cash grains closed: Wheat, 1¼c higher; oats unquoted; barley unquoted, and flax 4½c higher.

DULUTH GRAIN MARKET.

DULUTH, Minn., July 25.—Close:—Wheat—No. 1 hard, 96⅜c; No. 1 northern, 95⅜c; No. 2 northern, 93⅛c to 93⅞c; July, 93⅞c.

CHEESE MARKETS.

PICTON, July 25.—One thousand three hundred and forty boxes of cheese, all colored, were boarded. All sold at 12 7-16c.

PERTH, July 25.—There were 600 boxes of colored and 400 boxes of white cheese boarded here. All were sold, ruling prices being 12½c to 12 5-8c.

KINGSTON, July 25.—At the cheese board yesterday here 445 colored and 165 white were boarded. The colored sold at 12 7-16c, and 12 5-16c was offered for the white. No sales.

BROCKVILLE, July 25.—At yesterday's cheese board meeting the offerings were 2187 colored and 1285 white. The highest offer, 12½c was refused. On the street 12⅝c to - ¾c was paid.

CORNWALL, July 25.—On the Cornwall Cheese Board 1785 cheese were boarded; 1727 colored and 58 white. All sold at 12 3-8c except for factory cured, which brought 12 7-16c. Same week last year, 1515 sold at 13 1-16c.

LONDON, Ont., July 25.—The offerings on the cheese market today were as follows: W. Nissouri, 40c; Dorchester Union, 100c; Avonbank, 550c; Kintore, 175c; Pond Mills, 90c; Mapleton, 115c; Blanchard and Nissouri, 130c; 1036 boxes offered, 115 sold as above. Bidding from 12c to 12½c.

VANKLEEK HILL, July 25.—There were 1042 white and 134 boxes colored cheese boarded on the Vankleek Hill Cheese Board yesterday. All sold on board at 12 7-16c except 225, which were not sold on the board. There were six buyers present.

IROQUOIS, July 25.—At the regular meeting of Iroquois Cheese Board, 425 colored cheese were boarded, and all sold at 12 3-8c. The corresponding date last year 1225 cheese were boarded and the price was 13c. The following firms were represented in the business done: Hodgson Bros., Anner & Co., Lovell & Christmas and James Alexander.

To Meet In Winnipeg.

BOSTON, July 27. — The golden jubilee year convention of the Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias, to be opened in Winnipeg, on Aug. 4, will mark the second time in the history of the order that a supreme lodge session has been held outside the United States.

MAY RAISE EMPRESS

MONTREAL, July 27. — Marine men are discussing the possibility of raising the sunken Empress of Ireland from her bed off Father Point. Interest has been revived by the ship righting herself until her masts are pointing upward. All along it has been said the vessel could be raised if she stood on her keel, as that would permit divers to patch the holes in her hull and seal her up ready for raising and towing in shore. While on her side these operations were impossible.

A Strike That Failed.

KINGSTON, July 27. — Believing that they would tie up work which is being rushed on the new Princess street pavement, thirty men, employed by Foley & Gleason, Ottawa, went on strike, asking for an increase of 20c. to 22 1-2c. per hour. The request was refused, and in ten minutes a new gang was on the job.

DR. ROCHE DOING WELL.

ROCHESTER, Minn., July 27.—Hon. Dr. Roche, Minister of Interior of Canada, has submitted to a serious operation at St. Mary's Hospital in this city, which involved the removal of the left kidney. Dr. Roche is resting nicely, and the surgeons declare the operation successful, although it will be a number of days before the patient is out of danger. Miss May Roche, his daughter, is at his bedside.

Man Killed In Quarrel.

QUEBEC, July 27. — Following a quarrel that took place in the helper's quarters of the Hotel Chateau Frontenac a week ago, James Farrell, a boiler hand at the hotel, died early Saturday at the Jaffery Hale's Hospital, after swearing in an ante-mortem deposition that he was struck on the head by a companion named Jones, with whom he was arguing.

The police are searching for Jones, who has disappeared.

Hibernians End Convention.

NORFOLK, Va., July 27. — The last session of the biennial convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians was held here Saturday, with election of officers as the principal business. As a compliment the convention adopted an amendment to the constitution making the past president a member of the national board of directors. Instead of paying the president a salary of $3,600 a year and expenses, in future he will receive no salary and will be allowed $3,700 annually for expenses. The secretary will be paid a salary of $1,500 and is allowed $2,000 a year for expenses.

EGG AND TOMATO SALAD.

With a very sharp knife, slice cold hard boiled eggs into thin slices. Select round tomatoes as large as an egg in diameter. Cut these into thin slices. On a nest of lettuce leaves or a bed of cress arrange the egg and tomato slices, alternately, each one over-lapping the other, so that about a quarter of an inch of the edge shows. These may be arranged in straight lines or in a circle. Pour over them French dressing and serve very cold.

TOMATO AND CHICKEN SALAD.

Choose round, medium-sized tomatoes, one for each person to be served. Prepare in advance by plugging them into boiling water, then holding under cold water and slipping the skin off. Cut a small piece out from the stem end, remove the seeds (saving them to make strained tomato dressing.) Thoroughly chill the tomato cups and when ready for serving, fill them with chicken salad. This last may be made as follows: One measure of diced chicken, to one of cold peas and one of asparagus, with one tablespoonful of capers. Mix with mayonnaise before filling into the cups and put a small mound of mayonnaise on top. Set the finished tomato cups into lettuce leaves.

VEGETABLE SALAD.

A good combination for vegetable salad is as follows: One carrot, boiled; one cold boiled potato, one beet, two or three hard-boiled eggs, depending upon the size of the vegetable, a scant teacup of olives, pitted and sliced fine, four well rounded tablespoonfuls of capers. Cut the vegetables and the eggs into half-inch cubes, and the slices of olives and capers and serve with mayonnaise.

POINTERS ON SWIMMING

Also on How to Act in Case of Accident in the Water

Under no Circumstances Enter the Water Following a Meal

Contributed by Geo. A. Carson, Physical Director, Y.M.C.A.

Every summer the lakes and rivers throughout our land claim hundreds of our young people through drowning. We have read about these accidents, heave a sigh, say how sorry we are for their friends, etc., and then proceed with our business at hand, and forget about it until it strikes nearer home and some of our own relatives or friends meet the same fate. Then we wake up to the fact and ask ourselves the following questions:

1. Can I swim?
2. Can my children swim (If a married man?)

In this article I do not intend to go into the different swimming strokes or try to give instructions in life saving. My purpose is simply to throw out a few suggestions that may prove helpful to people who some day may find themselves in danger, and to those who want to learn or teach others how to swim.

Let us first consider a few of the causes of drowning. The first is because of the fact that many persons who cannot swim take unnecessary chances in canoes as well as going into dangerous water when there is no one around who is competent to save them in case anything happens. Another is because many go in too soon after a heavy meal. Again many people who are good swimmers seem to lose their head when they get out in deep water, and simply fail to do the thing they know how to do. Cramps are the cause of many fatalities, there are many more but these are some of the most common. Now, you naturally ask the question, what is the cure, or now are these to be avoided? I have no "Cure All" to offer, but simply a few suggestions which if followed may save many lives. First; if you are accidently tipped out of a canoe and you are sinking, try and remember to close your mouth and hold your breath, this will bring you to the surface and when your mouth is well above water, call for aid. If you have been dumped from a canoe, get a hold of the end of the canoe, it will hold you up till aid comes. In case there is no object to which you can hold, turn on your back and keeping your head well back, kick with your feet or use your hands as you would in fethering the oars of a boat, this will keep you up indefinitely and besides being very easy to do it takes very little energy. The next suggestion is such common knowledge that it seems almost unnecessary to repeat and yet we find good sensible people violating it right along. It is this, no matter how good a swimmer one should never go into the water for at least one and a half and better two hours after eating. In case of a cramp, don't get excited and give up, in most cases where cramps are given as the cause of drowning the cramps are not really the cause, but rather fear, caused by the cramps. Because a person takes a cramp in one leg is no reason why he or she should drown. A good swimmer can swim a long way with either the arms or legs independent of each other.

Now to go on to the teaching, there is a great deal of controversy over which is the better stroke to teach beginners, but as I said at the beginning it is not my intention to discuss the merits of the different strokes. I will endeavor to explain one stroke which has been used a great deal the last few years and has met with great success, because of its simplicity and lack of complicacted co-ordinations and also because it is composed only of natural movements. The method of instruction is to have the class line up on the side of the tank, or bank of the river, if it is out doors and take the following land drills. Place one foot forward and keeping the knees straight, bend the body forward from the waist as if leaning over the level of the water about waist deep. The arms are swinging alternately forward and below the supposed level of the water pressing backward as far as possible and with enough violence to give them an impetus to swing out over the water and repeat the forward motion at the same time the body turns from side to side (the left when the right arm reaches forward and vice-versa) while the head also swings with the body and faces towards the rear arm, thus in a way protecting the mouth and giving a better chance to breathe.

The movements are somewhat like alternate scoops in which the large shoulder muscles do most of the work for the fingers and hands are kept straight while the wrist and elbow are locked, the elbow being kept elevated. After about five minutes of going through the arm movements on land place the water wings around the waist and enter the water. The main thing is to gain confidence and owing to the fact that any one can move along on the arm stroke alone, especially with the aid of the water wings the pupil soon becomes confident. After about ten minutes with the wings the pupil tries to swim without any support and usually proceeds for, at least, a short distance.

By making the pupil swing their body from side to side (or as it results in the waters roll from side to side) they will find it very easy to develop the leg action, which is a leg drive keeping the leg straight from the hip to the knee. the knee is slightly bent, the toes pointed and the kick is directly down in the water.

An important rule for swimmers to learn is to relax when they find there is nothing to be afraid of in the water and try to swim with all your muscles relaxed.

There are two methods of breathing that can be used with this stroke. The first and probably the best one is to inhale through the mouth when the face is turned to the side and exhale through the nose when the face turns down into the water. Second method; exhale while body is swinging to the side and inhale during the backward pressure of arm and shoulder, in this method the breathing is all done through the mouth.

Travels of Death Dealing Derelicts

Governments have realised the necessity of taking precautions to protect shipping from derelicts and icebergs, and some time ago, following suggestions made in the Family Herald and Weekly Star, an agreement was arrived at between Canada, the United States and Britain, so that a ship would patrol the Atlantic Ocean and warn vessels of the locality of anything which constituted danger to those "who go down to the sea in ships."

Of all the perils which beset ocean navigation perhaps the most insidious, because the most elusive and difficult to guard against, is the derelict—the abandoned and almost submerged, but still floating wreck.

When a vessel of stout construction, particularly if she be built of timber, is loaded with a cargo that is lighter than the water, she may sink until she is in the awash condition, and, by virtue of the strength of her hull, may hold together for many years, floating hither and thither at the caprice of wind and tide, and so constitute a perpetual menace to navigation.

The ever-shifting wreck is naturally uncharted, and although a vigilant watch by day may suffice to detect the danger, in the night time the obstacle is quite invisible, and should it lie in the direct track of a ship a collision is unavoidable.

Great Danger to Navigation.

Unquestionably the floating derelict has been answerable for not a few of the unexplained losses of staunch and well-found ships, instances of which are too many and well known to need recapitulation here.

The endurance of the derelict and the extent of its ocean wanderings are almost unbelievable. Take the case of the Norwegian barque Crown, lumber-laden, which was abandoned in a supposedly sinking condition in mid-Atlantic on December 26, 1909. In the following May it was reported as on the edge of the Saragossa Sea, and at a later date it was sighted upon the other edge of the sea, having traversed in the interval 1,100 miles. In the summer of 1910 it was sighted between Charleston, South Carolina, and Bermuda.

Afloat for Three Years.

The Fannie E. Woolston was wrecked on the Jersey (U.S.A.) coast on October 15, 1891. During the following three years the wreck was frequently sighted, once off the coast of Africa, and later on the opposite side of the Atlantic, off the coast of Florida. Finally it dropped entirely out of sight.

There is also the case of the P. and O. liner India, which reached Port Adelaide on October 28, 1911. On that occasion Captain Gordon reported that his vessel received a severe shock on the morning of October 26, while proceeding in the usual track of steamers from Fremantle to Port Adelaide. The captain was under the impression that the obstruction was wreckage, and his supposition was confirmed a few days later when the captain of the Monaro reported passing some wreckage on November 4, at 6 p.m., in practically the same locality.

There are many other cases of sunken or partly submerged wrecks which could be mentioned. We have just recently had brought home to us the danger vessels of the size of the ill-fated Empress of Ireland constitute when lying in a river or narrow stretch of water, for there is, even in deep water, a possibility of portions of a wreck rising to the surface, drifting into the line of shipping, and bringing a ship to her doom.

PARENTS ARE SUSPECTED OF KILLING BABIES

Bodies of Twin Infants Found Under Rocks

Sudbury, July 22.—Anton Hawryluk, and his young wife, who live at the Old Smelter at Copper Cliff, are faced with the serious offence of having destroyed their twin babies after birth. The father is in custody at Copper Cliff while the mother is being cared for in the Copper Cliff hospital.

When Dr. Bennett, of Copper Cliff, was called to the Hawryluk home Mrs. Hawryluk was alone and unattended and her husband at his work in the usual manner. Neighbors had called the physician, knowing conditions, but Mrs. Hawryluk denied that she had given birth to a child. Dr. Bennett, however, was not satisfied with the woman's explanations and conditions in the home aroused his suspicions with the result that he reported the affair to Chief Clark of Copper Cliff.

When Chief Clark visited the home he was met with the same denials from Mrs. Hawryluk, but under close questioning the woman admitted the fact, who first said she had thrown the babies into the nearby creek, but a search revealed nothing. She next said she had burned the bodies, but finally admitted having buried them them and led the police to the spot about two miles from the house, near Kelly Lake. On removing some small rocks, and about an inch of soil, the bodies of two newly-born infants—boy and girl—were found. Chief Clark immediately placed husband and wife under arrest, placing the woman in the hospital for medical attention.

Coroner Doan conducted an inquest into the circumstances, the evidence substantiating the above story. The father denied any knowledge of the birth of the children or their destruction, although he was in his home from returning from work Tuesday night until returning to work Wednesday morning. He said his wife performed the housework and prepared his meal as usual Wednesday morning. The first he knew of the affair was when Chief Clark told him the circumstances. Dr. Bennett gave evidence that both babies were fully developed and had both been born alive and that death was due to asphyxiation. After hearing the evidence the jury returned a verdict in half an hour "that these two infants met their death at the hands of some person or persons unknown."

The husband gave his age as 24 and the mother as 18. They were married on June 28th, 1914.

THE OATH OF OFFICE.

It may be of interest to the general public to know that the oath of office taken by clerks in the Government service contains the following clause: "I will not ask or receive any sum of money, services, recompense or matter or thing whatsoever, directly or indirectly, in return for what I have done or may do in the discharge of any of the duties of my said office except my salary or what may be allowed me by law or by the Government in Council. So help me God."

Mind a Blank Once a Year.

CINCINNATI, O., July 27.—A young man found at Fifth and Vine streets two weeks ago, suffering from amnesia, has recovered his memory at the city hospital, and said his name was Miller. Miller said that he loses his memory for a day or two every year, and attributes it to a blow on the head which he sustained about six years ago. His mother, the young man said, resides in Huntington, W. Va.

PARENTS ABUSED BY DRUNKEN SON

Police Had Some Trouble in Making the Arrest

After abusing his parents and escaping from the Constables and running over a mile, William Godfrey, an East City youth, appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning on the charge of being drunk and disorderly. He pleaded guilty and was assessed $5.75. His parents did not lay a charge of assault against him. On Saturday night Godfrey obtained a keg of lager and in company with a pal went to the lake to enjoy the cool breezes, along with the cool drafts of lager. The keg went dry and Godfrey returned to his home to secure a rig to get more booze. The rig was refused him by his parents and being more or less excited from the effects of the liquor, he assaulted them. The police were sent for by the neighbors and although Godfrey attempted to escape he was nabbed after a chase.

ELDER JOHNSTON SPEAKS AT TENT

A large and appreciative audience assembled at the tent on the corner of Harvey and Dublin Streets last evening to hear Elder Johnston of Kingston present the great prophetic period of the 2300 days of Daniel 8:14. With a good command of language and a liberal fund of Scripture very readily quoted by him the Evangelist traced out in very clear way what was meant in that text when it says "Unto two thousand and three hundred days then shall the sanctuary be cleansed." The Sanctuary, he said, was in the heavens where Christ our High Priest is ministering for us. The cleansing he declared was the cleaning up of the records, a work of investigation which was to begin at the close of this great prophetic period. This work so he said, was going on now, and that as soon as it was finished, which would be in the near future, the Evangelist said that then the end would come. The mandate would then go forth. "He that is filthy let him be filthy still, and he that is holy let him be holy still." Then, so he said, the Lord would appear, not to give a chance to people to become converted, for that chance was being given now, but when the Lord would come he would bring His rewards as stated in Revelation 22:12.

The Evangelist was very fair and liberal minded in his exposition of the prophecy and the amount of facts presented showed clearly the result of scholarly research and investigation. The tent is well lighted with electricity, seated very comfortably and everything is of a character to make it pleasant for the people. Mr. Johnston so we are informed is receiving great crowds every night and many are extremely interested in this new line of study.

DAMAGE BY WORMS.

Mr. John Carey of Drummond's Station is one of the heavy losers as a result of the extended visit the army worm is making in these sections. Four acres of millet have been destroyed on Mr. Carey's farm as well as a quantity of corn.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE BOY SCOUTS.

Editor Review:

Dear Sir — Beautiful pictures of the Boy Scout movement adorn the wooden walls of our fair city. Pleasant pictures of Boy Scouts doing good and blushing "to find it fame" bring to mind the nobility of this new and most necessary association. It is rescuing Christian civilization from failure and decay.

The churches are so intent on denominational pride that even the ministers can do nothing with them. They do not discuss "good and bad" or even "poverty and riches," but chiefly doctrinal differences. Oh! What would we do without something to fight about! Over all this mockery of the good and the great—through the mist of tears and stupidity looms like a veritable angel the Boy Scout, who is rescuing from its curse of unmanliness and excuse-making our poor paltry substitute for civilization in Canada. The S. A. is the Boy Scout movement amongst the grown-ups. "He went about doing good," is their motto. "What must I do to do right? What must I be to be strong?" These are the real inspirations of the Boy Scout. Silly shifting and wishy-washy substitutes for crookedness have no place with him. It is open to every boy and every girl to be heroic in the true sense and our civilization needs some such fillip badly. "I want"—is the motto of another association—but I will not knock. Knocking is very necessary sometimes, and not to knock is the motto of the no-good. It is his only hope and protection. Let us cut our baby teeth and get away from the silly simpering of, "He's such a nice man," or "She's such a dear girl," when all the time it is only because they are no good that we love them. Three cheers for the Scouts! They will make men and women of us yet!

Yours truly,

DRUNKS AND BEGGARS.

Editor Review,

Sir,—Don't you think it about time that some new plan should be adopted regarding drunks and drunken beggars, who go around and prey upon the people they meet? These men are handled by the police to the best of their ability. They are continually being caught and dragged into court and fined or sent to jail. Here is a great work for some of the churches. It is true the Army does what it can but this sort is ten times worse for our people here than anything else and I feel ashamed when contributing to foreign missions. We ought to have some large farm or some place like that here where we can put these miserable wrecks and make them be sober and clean and earn a living. Going about the way they do is awful and is a sad burden to many people. These poor creatures are like the sawdust pile on the river. They are always in the way and always have to be dealt with. If some of the good young men near the Central Park who take great pride in being better than other people would show that they are by doing something for the poor waifs and strays instead of for themselves it would be a grand idea. A few people have to do all the real work and are frequently made to pay as well for the enjoyment of other people. We want a little more real unselfishness in this world and a little less sitting down and thinking how we are to bleed the people for our own enjoyment.

Yours truly,
READER.

VIEWS TAKEN BY PASTOR RUSSELL

I.B.S.A. Speaker Claims One Fair Chance for Everybody

C. E. Heard of the Lecture Bureau of the I.B.S.A. addressed the audience at the Grand Theatre yesterday afternoon.

First :—Pastor's Russell's conception of God. While many were said to be drifting into the worship of a "Nature God" or some abstract principle, such as the "All Good," Pastor Russell was said to earnestly contend for the God of the Bible, the personal God, who created all things and who loves His creatures and plans for their highest welfare. Pastor Russell's views concerning the Bible were next considered. He was said to be most positive in his convictions concerning the inspirations of the Scriptures, thus bringing upon himself the hatred and persecution of many opposing ministers and higher critics. "Noah and the Flood" continued the speaker, is considered by many to be a myth, while the account of "Jonah and the Whale" is generally conceded to be the biggest fish story ever told. Pastor Russell, however, points to the Lord's own word regarding Noah and Jonah as proof that those who deny the veracity of the original accounts are in fact denying the Lord's own statement of the same and repudiating Him as a false preacher. It is for the public to decide whether or not Pastor Russell takes the correct view.

In examining Pastor Russell's views on future punishment the speaker said that many accused the Brooklyn Pastor of not being "Orthodox" in that he does not preach the red hot hell of the dark ages. "Pastor Russell," continued the speaker, "does not go to the creeds of the dark ages but to the Bible to get his orthodox views. He believes in the Bible hell, which according to every concordance and lexicon means the tomb, the grave, the condition of death, oblivion. He teaches that the future punishment, described in the Bible, is not eternal life in torment but eternal death; the "Second Death." "All the wicked will God destroy" (Psalm 145-20) "They shall be as though they had not been" (Obadiah 16).

After a brief discussion of Pastor Russell's teaching respecting the Church, his views concerning the world were examined. Without advocating a second chance for any, he was said to set forth from the Scriptures, the hope of one full, fair chance for every individual of the human race. If Jesus is "that true light that lighteth every man that cometh into the world" then sooner or later, according to Pastor Russell, every man will receive that true light with full privilege to accept or reject. While heaven is promised to the Church, Pastor Russell's thought was shown to be that earth will be the everlasting habitation of the human race in general. Many Scriptures were quoted in support of this proposition showing that Paradise Lost will be Paradise restored and that whoever will, may have full perfection and eternal happiness in the "new earth" wherein dwelleth righteousness."

SERIOUS MISHAP TO YOUNGSTER

Wiltrid Levasseur Suffers From Concussion of the Brain

As a result of failing from a tree Saturday afternoon, Wilfred Levasseur, the seven year old son of Mr. Dan Levasseur, Romaine Street, is lying in St. Joseph's Hospital with concussion of the brain and is in a decidedly critical condition. The little fellow with two or three other youths went for a ride with an express man. They jumped off the rig at the corner of Aylmer and Charlotte Streets and started home but espied a bird's nest in the branches of a tree on the corner of King and Aylmer Streets and overcome by the youthful desire to get the eggs, Levasseur started to climb. When he reached a limb about fifteen feet from the ground he went out too far on it and when it broke, he fell headlong to the ground below. He missed the pavement by inches but the hard ground proved almost as disastrous as the boy remained where he fell. One of Innis' expressmen was passing and seeing that the boy was seriously injured he put him in his rig and took him to Dr. Amys' office.

Dr. Ayms ordered that he be sent to St. Joseph's Hospital and every effort was put forth to revive him. Early yesterday morning he regained consciousness and has since been lying in a semi-delirious condition. On inquiring at St. Joseph's this afternoon The Review learned that last night hopes were held out for the young lad's recovery but to-day they are not so bright.

Young Levasseur has been exceedingly unfortunate as when a mere tot he fell and had his collar bone fractured. He was seven years old last Thursday.

HE ESCAPED SOMETHING.

On his last appearance in court, Magistrate Dumble promised something for Wilfrid Ireland, in the event of another visit. Wilfrid came back but this morning he missed the something, by paying his fine and costs of $5.75, before the Magistrate came to court. Ireland was drunk and disorderly.

"I guess I was drunk, and slightly noisy," sheepishly admitted George Gooderich, a stranger, charged with being drunk and disorderly. The Cadi confirmed his guess by administering a fine and costs of $5.75.

hearted because of the loss of a loved one, to pay last respects to a departed one as we are commanded 'to weep with those who weep and rejoice with those who rejoice.' It seems almost impossible that this young man in the best of health, the prime of manhood, has been called from our midst. This is a mystery; we are constantly enveloped in mysteries. Life itself is a mystery, death is a mystery, but the greatest mystery of all is the restoration from death to life by the resurrection of Jesus Christ. 'He that believeth in me though he were dead, yet shall he live.' Jesus had removed the sting of death by sacrifice of himself and now he wishes to remove fear of death from the minds of his disciples by telling them that as he has overcome death for them, they shall overcome death in him.

"These things that come to us in life which are dark and mysterious and cause us much sorrow and sad disappointment are permitted for a wise and holy purpose. 'Now we see through a glass darkly but then face to face, now we know even as also we are known.' This teaches us our dependence upon Him who hath promised that all things shall work together for good to them that love God. This is the process by which our lives are purified and the dross consummated. Hence sorrow is not only a reality with us but a necessity of our lives, and so Paul tells us 'These light afflictions which are but for a season work out for us a far more exceeding and abundant weight of glory.

The sorrows and afflictions that came into Jobe's life did not come without God's notice but by his permission and with patience to wait and faith to believe Jobe was in God's own time restored and made to rejoice and praise Him for ever. Let us therefore remember that whatever sorrow comes into our lives that Jesus knows all about it. He himself has passed through them before us and has promised to be with us even to the end. We are told that every cloud has a silver lining but sometimes our eyes are sometimes so blinded by sorrow's tears that we cannot see the silver lining.

"These afflictions do not from the ground arise, celestial benedictions sometimes assume that dark disguise." Sometimes they come for correction and sometimes for mercy. "For whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth and scourge every son who he receiveth, etc." God does not always design to explain to us his way but one day all these mysteries will vanish "and we shall know as we are known." Jesus said, "What I do thou knowest not now but thou shalt know hereafter." "Oh the depth of the riches both of wisdom and knowledge of God, how unsearchable his judgments and his ways past finding out. We art not now able to understand and to solve these mysteries of life, pain, sorrow, and death. We are not expected to understand all about them but we are expected to believe and trust His promises concerning them to all such He has said, "All things work together for good."

Concluding Rev. Mr. Conners quoted the following :—

A word to those who mourn the loss, of him who's gone before,
Look up dear souls you yet may meet him, on the other shore,
A word to all, our time is short we should be friends together,
Than when we're called from earth away with all on earth to sever,
It may be ours thy joys to share and meet our loved ones over there.

After the address, Adjutant McElhiney offered prayer and the closing hymn "Nearer my God to Thee" was sung by the Choral Society. At the cemetery Rev. Mr. Conners and Rev. Mr. Webb officiated and another hymn was rendered by the Choral Society.

The floral tributes were very numerous, some of them being from the Drafting Department of the C.G.E., Park St. Church, Park St. Sunday School, B.Y.P.U., the Ladies' Aid of Park Street Church and the Choral Society.

ANNIVERSARY IS HONORED

Hundred Years of Peace Celebrated at Lundy's Lane

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., July 27.—Picturesque, patriotic and with the note of pathos intruding itself at intervals, was the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the battle of Lundy's Lane.

The people of Niagara Falls, Ont., did full justice to the occasion, decorating their streets and festooning their tree-curtained lanes with bright bunting and pennants and flags. Emblematic of the dove of peace which reigned supreme over the occasion were the Union Jack and Stars and Stripes, which stretched and floated side by side on every hand. A triumphal arch fronted the entrance to the old, historic lane.

The procession, which formed at the armory, was under the command of Lieut.-Col. W. Hill. It was a brilliant sight, military contingents representing all branches of the service taking part. The 19th Regiment Band and the veterans associations of Ontario, chiefs of Six Nations and other Indians, Ontario Historical Society, the U. E. Loyalists, and the peace committee from both sides of the line were among those who took part. His Worship Mayor O. E. Dores and board of aldermen of Niagara Falls, Ont.; His Honor Mayor William Laughlin and the common council of Niagara Falls, N.Y.; His Honor Sir John M. Gibson, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario; Col. Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, were present. Alexander Fraser, provincial archivist, Ontario; Hon. Peter A. Porter, Tonawanda, N.Y.; Mr. Clarence Warner, president Ontario Historical Society, and others, delivered patriotic addresses. About 10,000 in all were present.

KING'S OWN SCOTTISH BORDERERS ATTACKED

suspended for refusing to try to disarm the volunteers.

After the troops had fired into the crowd, the angry populace, in a spirit of revenge, attacked individual soldiers and beat them brutally. Members of the Scottish Borderers, who were riding bicycles along the quays, were pulled from their machines and beaten, and the bicycles were thrown into the river.

The Lord Mayor has issued a strong letter of protest, in which he declares that the troops were ordered out without permission having been asked of the Lord Mayor of the city, and he demands that the responsibility shall be fixed for the calling out of the soldiers and for supplying them with ball cartridges. He adds:

"Dublin and Ireland look with confidence to John Redmond and his colleagues to bring to justice those responsible for this shocking outrage. There will no longer be one law for a section of the Ulster people and another law for the remainder of the Irish people."

The Nationalists are indignant over the affair, because, they say, the troops are against the Nationalist Volunteers and never interfere with the Orangemen. Five thousand Ulster Volunteers, carrying arms, paraded the Belfast streets yesterday under the eyes of Gen. Macready and other officers of the regular army, and passed the Dorset Regiment, which was on parade.

COMMISSION TO SPLIT UP?

Novel Device Is Probable To Make Up For Lost Time.

OTTAWA, July 27.—A suggestion which may be adopted in order to prevent the upsetting of the whole prearranged program for the Dominion Royal Commission owing to their being delayed several days on the steamer Alsatian which was fog-bound is that the commission would divide into two sections for the first few days of the week. In this way they could cover all the important appointments for the first part of the trip and then they could unite again and carry out the remainder of the program as arranged. Otherwise a great deal of work would be involved in changing the dates for meetings and for special trains and boats and the men whose evidence on trade and other matters is desired would all have to be advised of the change.

Short Tales From The Diamonds Under the Big Tents

Because George Ruth "played hookey" from school one day he now is a major league pitcher with a prospect of getting his name in the hall of fame. As a penalty for not going to school, Ruth, a homeless lad of ten years, was sent to St. Mary's Industrial school in Baltimore, a stern judge finding him guilty of the high crime of truancy. Now St. Mary's may be next thing to a prison, but it is conducted on modern lines and it gives as much attention to recreation for its boy inmates as it does to training their moral and mental faculty, and St. Mary's boasts of 43 uniformed ball teams within its walls.

From the time he entered the institution Ruth became a good boy. He no longer had the chance nor the desire to escape the lessons, but his whole heart was put into base ball at every opportunity.

At St. Mary's a boy is not allowed to play one position too long. He is shifted around so that he becomes accustomed to each job, and Ruth can catch, play the outfield or hold down first base almost as well as he can pitch.

And he can hit. He just steps into the ball as confident as Tris Speaker and takes a free swing. And when he connects safely he runs like a deer. This youngster is not one of those base ball beauties who has to be guarded for fear he might catch cold. He is a husky boy of outdoors, standing more than 6 feet and weighing 180 pounds in his present splendid condition. He simply loves baseball and will play all day if permitted.

Ruth has none of that feeling that St. Mary's was a prison. In fact he loves the institution from which Jack Dunn secured his release by becoming his guardian. On the morning of July 4, for instance, he pitched for the Orioles and then asked Dunn for the afternoon off.

"Certainly you can go," said Dunn, who is very fond of the youngster, "but where do you intend spending the afternoon?"

Well, Ruth went to St. Mary's that afternoon and among other things gave the boys—his former school mates—a talk. He told them how important it is for an athlete to keep in good condition.

"When I left here I promised Brother Paul I would not smoke much—just a few cigarets," said Ruth. "At first I smoked, but soon I cut it out entirely."

All the little fellows at the school worship Ruth. He is our hero. When Dunn went to St. Mary's to sign the pitcher last winter he knew very little of Ruth's ability save what he had heard.

Dunn gave Ruth $100 a month as a starter, but since then has raised him until the twirler was drawing $250 when he was sold to the Boston Red Sox. Dunn saw to it that George did not throw his money away, for he took him to a bank and opened an account which Ruth is not to touch until he is of age.

"There are too many soubrettes in the Coast league," says J. Cal. Ewing, part owner of the San Francisco club. "They cost the management anywhere from $200 to $1,000 a month and what god are they?

"If I had my way I'd cut out this temperament stuff from baseball. I don't want temperament; I want ability. Yes, I'm carrying too many men now. Not that I believe in it, but that I have to. All the other clubs are, and if I should begin to cut down I'd never hear the last of it from the public.

"Yet show me a club that is gaining anything by carrying from eight to ten pitchers when only four of them, or possibly five, do all the work. Ten or twelve years ago four pitchers was enough for any club, in spite of which we have people who complain that the twenty-man limit is a hardship."

Ed. Walsh had numerous things to rejoice about when he beat the Yankees recently and showed that he really had come back. In addition to winning his first full game of the year, he held a batter hitless that he has always feared above all others.

When Walsh was at the height of his pitching fame a baseball writer in Chicago went to him and inquired how he pitched to various batters. Big Ed. had at the tip of his tongue methods to circumvent Speaker, Cobb and Crawford, but when the reporter mentioned Birdie Cree, Walsh had nothing to say.

"I don't know what to give that fellow," Walsh confessed. "He hits most everything I've got."

Cree came up in the eighth inning in Walsh's come-back game with a chance to drive home a run, but Walsh fanned him. And now the pitcher wil have to look for another hoodoo batsman.

The success of Dave Robertson, who reported to McGraw as a pitcher and was turned into an outfielder, recalls the experience of Steve Evans, as told by himself.

"New York bought me as a first baseman," says Steve. "I reported to the team and was coming up the field carrying my big mitt when I saw a fellow practising at first. It was Fred Tenney. He was scooping them out of the dirt back-handed, upside down and backwards and working so rapidly it made me dizzy to watch him. I sneaked across the field, threw my mitt under the grand stand and swiped a fielder's glove off the bench. Pretty soon McGraw said: 'Here, you first baseman, get out there and show me something.' 'Who, Me?' I said. 'I'm an outfielder.' "

Claud Rossman, who has not been hitting them with anything like his former vigor this year, does plant an occasional one that drives the iron into the heat of the natives. A Cleveland writer tells the following yarn of how the once famous citizen of Philmont, N.Y., put it across in Cleveland the other day:

Claud Rossman, once a Nap, once a Tiger and now a Miller in the American Association, won a game for Minneapolis in the American Association Wednesday.

Claud won it in the third inning of a contest with Cleveland and the winning was sweet because—

"When'ja see Elmer Flick last?"

"You 'as a good hitter back in 1906," were only part—a very small part— of the remarks flung at him when he went to the plate to hit against Pitcher Brenton.

One run had been scored and two men were out and Burns and Altizer were on the bases. Claud clutched his bat a trifle tighter when he heard "old friends" riding him, and he smashed the second pitch to deep left.

Burns and Altizer crossed the plate, while Claud heavy-footed it to third. From that station he watched Wilbur Smith strike out.

Cleveland could not score enough runs to offset this lead.

Roger Bresnahan and Christy Mathewson, battery mates for McGraw's Giants in the days when talking to a Cub player was considered a sacrilege, met during the recent Giant-Cub series in Chicago.

"You're getting younger every day, Roger, and you never worked better. How do you like being a Cub, now?" Matty asked.

"We got the best ball club in the league, Matty," Bresnahan replied, "and if you was on our pitching staff we would be so far ahead that the race would be a joke."

They talked over olden times for nearly 20 minutes and then proceeded to dig up their hatchets, for when the Cub backstop came to bat in the fifth he yelled for Matty to duck as soon as he threw the ball if he wanted to keep on pitching.

"You could not bat .100 in the Kitty league," Mathewson shot back, and proceeded to get his ex-mate on a foul fly to the catcher.

SCOTSMAN WINS

King's Prize Goes to Territorial Marksman

BISLEY, July 27. — The King's Prize, the most coveted trophy of the annual prize meeting of the National Rifle Association, was won Saturday by Sergt. J. L. Dewar, of the Royal Scots Territorial Regiment, after a tie with Private A. G. Fulton of the London Territorials.

Each made 309 out of a possible 355.

Servian partisans abroad advance the theory that Austria has made up her mind to dispose of her neighbor, which has long been a thorn in her side, and has chosen a moment when the nations of the Triple Entente are handicapped by home troubles—Great Britain with a threatened civil war in Ulster, Russia with a great strike, and France with a political upheaval—to strike a decisive blok.

Great Britain shows no enthusiasm over becoming embroiled in a war which might prove a great calamity to her interests. As far as opinion can be gathered amid the paralysis which overcomes all British political activities over Sunday, sentiment here tends toward Austria. This is based on the belief that Servian intrigues for undermining Austria by a Pan-Slav movement have been so open that no nation could tolerate them and in the present exuberant state of Servian national pride only the sharpest and most peremptory measures could have any effect.

Rumored King Has Abdicated.

LONDON, July 27.—Servia has accepted the greater part of Austria-Hungary's ultimatum, according to a special cablegram received here Saturday evening from Belgrade, by way of Vienna.

Another despatch received through the same source says it is rumored that King Peter of Servia has abdicated.

PETES TOOK DOUBLE BILL WITH ATHLETICS

Schettler Had a Close Shave in Initial Encounter But the Second Game Was Clear Sailing

(Special to The Review.)

Hamilton, July 27.—Peterboro grabbed both ends of the double bill Saturday afternoon and shoved the Athletics further into the cellar. The first game was a see saw contest all the way and if anything the Petes had all the luck. There are no excuses to offer for the loss of the second at the Petes fell on Shears for seventeen hits and his team mates had six boots. Schettler and Dougherty faced each other in the opening game and both were hit freely in the pinches. The Petes grabbed a pair in the first on three singles and the Hams came back in the fourth and landed on Schettler for three runs. Each team scored a run in the seventh. In the Petes' half of the ninth Miller singled and was sacrificed along by Schettler. Blount singled and scored Miller and a moment later stole second. Welsh singled and Blount scored. Welsh going to second on the throw in. Dolan's single added another. In the Hams' half of the ninth Rooney's error, a sacrifice and Haeffner's single scored a run. Fisher was sent in to hit for Dougherty and drove one to the fence in left center. Haeffner stuck to second thinking that Welsh would make the catch. Fisher kept right on going and when he saw that Haeffner had not left second he tried to get back to first but was caught. The hit should have gone for three bags if Haeffner had not pulled a bone. A sensational high dive and one hand catch by Rooney in the eighth retired the side and robbed Hamilton of two runs.

In the second game the Athletics went to pieces and the Petes had little trouble piling up an early lead grabbing one in the first, another in the second, five in the third and four in the fourth. The Hams fell on Tracey in the fifth and grabbed four runs but the early lead was too great to overcome.

WINDY CITY HAS CHANCE TO WIN THREE BALL FLAGS THIS SEASON

By Hugh S. Fullerton.

Baseball fans in Chicago have a chance this year to see something really strange to the game — one town winning three major league pennants simultaneously.

Of course that chance is one in a thousand but it exists nevertheless. Every one of Chicago's three so-called major league clubs are "on the top or near it," as C. W. Murphy used to advertise about his Clubs. If every team the Cubs, Sox and Federals can keep up the gait they have been going then Chicago will have the unusual distinction of owning three pennants for the first time in the history of the game.

And the funny part about it is that a month ago the three teams in the Windy City were the jokes of their respective leagues. All of them were kept down in the second division by repeated losses and few of the fans had any hopes of seeing a real hot fight for a flag. The Clubs couldn't get a look-in it seemed and the Sox at the top early in the season slumped so badly that even the famous loyalty of the Comiskey fans appeared to be on the wane. Joe Tinker couldn't get his Federals started.

But now it is all different.

Tinker lashed his Feds in a streak of conquering enthusiasm and rapidly forged ahead to the top of the league. Hank O'Day seemed to get his pitchers going and his hitters began to do their part too with the result that the Cubs climbed so fast that John McGraw felt his hold on first place slipping. Whether or not the Cubs get farther along remains to be seen, but the leader of the Giants admits that they are the one bunch he must beat to win his fourth pennant in the National League.

The White Sox pitchers recovered their stride and in a phenomenal two weeks, in which the team won 13 out of 15 games, put the South Siders right up in the fight.

Back of the success of the Cubs is the smashing power of young Vic Saier's bat. The kid who only a few years ago stepped into Frank Chance's shoes at first base has shown himself to be a regular whale of a distance batter. More than once this season he has slashed out two homers in the same afternoon and the four base clouts are becoming so common that he is expected to produce a lengthy wallop every time he comes up.

When Hugh Jennings let Ray Demmitt, the young outfielder, go to the White Sox at the waiver price, he certainly never expected him to become the walloper that he developed into. Whenever there is a man on base young Demmitt can be relied upon to hit the ball and he usually hits it safe. Ray Schalk, the little catcher, while not up among the sluggers in the batting averages is one of the dangerous pinch hitters of the league.

Claude Hendrix is doing a whole lot of the heavy work for the Chicago Federals. Besides winning most of the games he pitches, the former Pirate hits and his bat has helped wonderfully. Walter Johnson is probably the only other pitcher who can do his share with the bat as can Hendrix.

SHOOTING AT NEW RANGES

Members of 57th Regiment Had Practice

On Saturday afternoon about 25 members of the 57th Regiment journeyed to the Connaught Ranges and spent the afternoon in practice. Some fairly good scores were made, but owing to the fact that ammunition run out several of the men were unable to shoot at 500, while the 600 yard range had to be abandoned altogether. However, this will not likely occur again. Now that the new rifles are here no doubt when the men get used to them some good shooting will be done. There is no better place to spend Saturday afternoons than at the ranges, and all members of the regiment who can make it convenient to attend should do so. The following scores were made:

COMMENT

As You Like It

The Toronto Beavers blew in this morning for a three game series with the Petes, which will mark the Toronto crew's last appearance here this season. The Beavers were badly pummelled at Ottawa yesterday the final being 11-0. Belting will probably work for the locals while Graham may serve them up for the visitors. Thursday the Hamilton Club will open its farewell series and on that afternoon the boosters will have their innings. Another booster's day will be staged on Saturday.

Welsh, the local left fielder turned his ankle in the Hamilton series and while the injury did not keep him out of the game he is playing under a handicap.

Hamilton and Brantford may be tied for seventh place in the Canadian league race, or, as some would put it, may be even in the struggle for last place, but yesterday's ball game at Britannia Park was enough to satisfy the local fans that the Hams are better than their position in the race at present shows. This assertion is not made on the strength of the victory over Peterboro, but rather on the self-evident fact that the Hams shape up as a more formidable aggregation than the Petes. Given a choice of two teams, as between Hams and Petes, there is no doubt but that the call would favor Hamilton. It is the belief that the Hams also have a wide margin on Brantford, and that they should be up there in the swim with St. Thomas, Toronto and Erie.—Hamilton Spectator.

Judging by the above opinion by the Spec's dopester, the papers in Hamilton have suffered a change of heart and the good old words of boost which have been breathed into the article are a striking contrast to the tone of writings a month back. The Review does not see eye to eye with the Spec., however, and can hardly figure where the Hams have the edge on the Blountmen. Probably the cellar does not place the Hams in a clear light, just as it did not truly represent the Petes' form a month ago, but Peterboro has it on Hamilton like a tent, and so far as Rube Deneau's crew is concerned the least said the better. The Spec evidently based its comparison on Friday's game during which Clements stood the Petes on their heads and Hamilton won. In Saturday's frays the Petes easily outslugged the Hams, but judging by the scores and hits, none of the pitchers worked in what could be called good form.

Ban Johnson and President Barrow of the International League differ on the question of strikes. Johnson stated at Toronto that a strike would have proved disastrous to the game, while Barrow held to the opinion that if the players had gone on strike the magnates would have won and the players' fraternity would have been broken up for keeps. Judging by Barrow's attitude, he is all for the bosses and thinks that the men should not be organized. His stand will hardly create a better feeling between players and magnates. President Tener a few days ago said that some of the magnates were to blame, and he was going to squelch the trouble makers. So it's Johnson and Tener vs. Barrow.

TWO DAYS TO BOOST

Fans Have Opportunity to Help on Thursday and Saturday

It is hoped that booster's day on Thursday and Friday of this week will go a long way towards helping Canadian League baseball in Peterboro. Money talks.

This season, with Class B baseball, the expenses have been higher, and while the attendance at the games has been very complimentary to local fans, the difference between receipts and expenditures is very noticeable.

Every one can help on Thursday and Saturday. One ticket at 50 cents will admit to the grounds and grandstands and two thousand people for each day will help a whole lot.

DE LAVAL AND RED CAPS WON IN MERCANTILE

Red Caps 17, Hamiltons 2.

There were no surprises in the double bill of the Mercantile League at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon, but the De Laval were almost scared to death, by the Printers, who took advantage of the flight by the Separator boys in the ninth, and scored a quartette of runs.

The Typos started off in good style and gather two runs, and then they stopped, while the other fellows came along and breezed ahead by hitting O'Connell and stretching singles into doubles and runs, through the poor fielding of the Newsies. And when Mahoney got steam up, he had his opponents whiffing all along the way. He had a high ball with plenty of speed, and the Typos went after it for further orders. When the ninth came around, the situation changed somewhat. The De Lavalers went high in the air and were a bit fortunate to get through with the win. Batteries:—De Laval, Mahoney and Taylor. O'Connell and Taylor.

The second fracas was a runaway for the Red Caps, as Rahmel had too much on the ball and his team mates gave him good support.

Art Hall umpired both games and had a good afternoon.

Home Run Baker has slugged himself to the lead in the American League, and with Ty Cobb shares the honors of being in front with .342.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM CLANCY.

William Clancy, aged 61 years, passed away at the home of his son, Mr. Joseph Clancy, 218 Carlisle Avenue early this morning. Deceased was a resident of Hastings, but came to this city some eight weeks ago to undergo treatment for heart trouble.

Besides his widow at home, there are four daughters, Mrs. John Devlin of Indian River, Mrs. P. O'Reilly, of Hastings; Miss Teresa at home, and Mrs. Joseph Collins of this city, also four sons, Joseph and John of this city, and Edward and Robert of Hastings. This afternoon the body was sent to Hastings where interment will take place on Wednesday morning.

DIED AT HOSPITAL.

George Clapper, aged 43 years, a resident of Dummer passed away on Saturday at the Nicholls Hospital. The remains will be forwarded to Norwood this evening where interment will take place tomorrow.

A little vinegar added to water in which vegetables are washed will prove effectual in removing the dirt and insects. Salt will do the same thing.

Birmingham, Ala., has a twenty-five storey structure.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. J. F. Crowley, Water St., has returned from a Pleasant visit to Ottawa friends.

Mr. Norman Sherwood of Windsor is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Quartermaine, Hunter Street.

HAS MANY FINE OIL PAINTINGS

Mr. C. S. Levy, New York Artist Visiting Here

Among his many costly and handsome paintings, Mr. C. S. Levy, a well known artist of New York, who in company with his wife, is registered at the Oriental for a few weeks, has in his possession a beautiful genuine painting by the celebrated Sir Joshua Reynolds, famed the world over for his magnificent oil paintings. Recently before leaving New York, Mr. Levy was offered $30,000 for his painting which gives one a slight inkling of its beauty and value. Mr. Levy also has numerous other beautiful paintings. One interesting feature about Mr. Levy's visit here is that this is the first visit of his wife to Peterboro after an absence of over ten years. Before her marriage Mrs. Levy was Miss Walton, daughter of Mr. John Walton, a well known and highly respected resident of Peterboro some years ago.

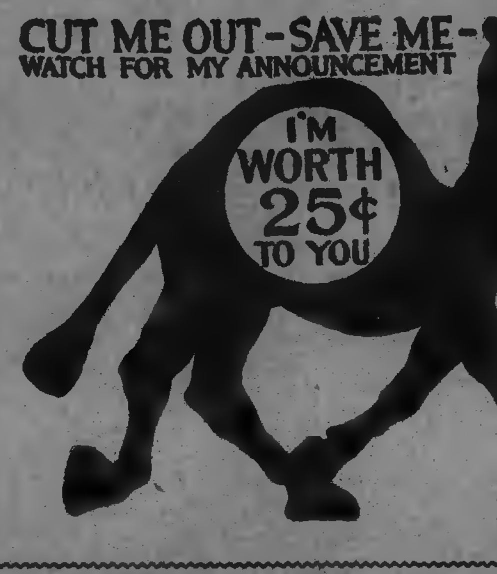
WILL BE GOOD MAN FOR THE POSITION

The News is informed on good authority that Mr. O. A. Langley, barrister, of this place, has been appointed County Police Magistrate in succession to Mr. George Edmison, K.C., of Peterboro, who has resigned. Mr. O. A. Langley is well known, having resided and practised law in Lakefield for nearly fourteen years, during which time he has appeared on one side or the other in most of the litigation from this vicinity and has earned a high reputation for skill and ability in the conduct of cases. While still possessed of much of the energy of youth, he will bring to his new task a full knowledge of the law and a ripe experience in the weighing and consideration of facts and their bearing upon the real issues involved. A man of integrity and uprightness, who exercises the greatest care in getting at the true merits in all matters, he should fill the office with credit to himself and the county.—Lakefield News.

ST. JOHN'S SERVICES.

Exceptionally bright were the musical services in St. John's Church yesterday. At this season when holidays are the rule, choirs of about normal strength are an exception, but the choir lived up to their responsibilities. Although the motor failed for the first part of the service, it served to bring out an effective reserve force, as the hymn "Pleasant are thy courts" was sung without accompaniment. Two standard anthems were rendered, "Novello's Lord of all power and might, and Goss' O Taste and see How Gracious." It being the last Sunday in the month the service was fully choral, the Rev. Jas. Price, officiating in the evening. The choristers are engaged in rehearsing new selections for the coming season. Special prayers were offered for relatives and friends of members of the choir and congregation on the ocean, bound for Peterborough.



SENSATIONS AT PARIS TRIAL

Letters Are Produced and Prisoner Swoons

Paris, July 27.—There were two sensations Saturday during the sixth day of the trial of Mme. Caillaux for the murder of Gaston Calmette, of the Figaro, on March 16 last. One was the reading of letters from M. Caillaux to his present wife while he was the husband of Mme. Gueydan, and the other a challenge to a duel issued by Judge Louis Albanel, the presiding judge of the Assize Court, to Judge Louis Dagoury, one of the three other judges sitting in the case.

The letters from M. Caillaux to his present wife are the ones which were handed over by Mme. Gueydan to M. Labori, chief counsel for the prisoner. They were not, as has been generally supposed, the letters which Mme. Caillaux says she feared M. Calmette was about to print, and which prompted her to commit the murder. Mme. Caillaux swooned during the reading of the second letter, and the court had to be suspended while the prisoner was carried by two Republican Guards to an anteroom, where she was surrounded by doctors, who were very much worried about her. She remained unconscious for quite a while, and the physicians were on the point of administering a hypodermic injection when she came to and the trial proceeded.

The Letters.

At the opening of the session of the court M. Labori began reading the letters. When he started to read the second letter, he remarked: "In this you will find burning love, but nothing else, as has been reported." As he began the reading of the first letter Mme. Caillaux bent her head and began to sob bitterly, and as the lawyer proceeded she completely disappeared behind the side of the prisoner's enclosure and her crouched body was shaken with nervous tremors. The letters were all written in the second person singular and the affectionate diminutive "Riri" for "Henrietta," Mme. Caillaux's Christian name, was used. The first letter began:

My Dear Little Riri:—When I met thee I felt the impulsion of all my being toward thee. I was unhappy. I was humiliated and wounded. I threw myself towards thee with a furious passion. With splendid courage thou has reconquered thy liberty, asking of me but one promise—to give thee my love. There was between another person and myself such a difference of character—we have everything to fear from a woman's fury."

The letter then entered into details of the local political situation and closed with a statement by M. Caillaux that he might not enter the contests at the general election for the Chamber of Deputies in 1910.

The second letter was written before M. Caillaux obtained his divorce from Mme. Gueydon, and referred to the happiness he would feel when he could "press a million kisses over your dear body." It was 16 pages in length, and was begun on October 18, 1909, and finished the next day. It begins:

The letter, which was written on met theel felt the impulsion of all the official notepaper of the prefecture of the Department of the Sarthe, went on to give a lengthy account of a cattle show at Le Mans and of an official visit by M. Caillaux to Paris, after which it said:

"Thou must be very reasonable and stay at Dinard for the present. I fear only one thing—blackmail. Perhaps some one will make a scandal. Some times I am very discouraged. What a life—but I have but one consolation—thee." The letter concludes: "A thousand million kisses over all your adorable little body."

Prisoner Collapses.

It was at this point that Mme. Caillaux collapsed completely and fell prostrate on the floor. When she recovered she told her husband, who had rushed to her side, that she felt strong enough to go on with the hearing and she was taken into the courtroom. A chair was brought for her to sit on instead of the prisoner's bench.

On the return of Mme. Caillaux to the courtroom she seemed to be in an almost comatose condition. She was unable to sit upright and was absolutely without color. Her eyes were closed and through this latter fact she avoided the sight of the clothes which M. Calmette wore when she shot him. These were produced by the next witness, a medical expert, who showed them to the jury, to whom he explained the bullet holes.

Dr. Emile Reymond, a Senator and noted aviator, who was the next witness, gave M. Calmette's last words as he was dying. They were: "What I have done let it be clearly know I have done without hate; you understand, without hate."

M. Labori then began the delicate task of examining three of the most eminent surgeons in Paris, who attended M. Caillaux in his dying hours, with the view of proving that they had made a mistake in postponing the operation on M. Calmette from 6.30 p.m., shortly after the shooting, until 11.40 p.m., when he died as the incision was made.

The challenge to a duel was the result of an incident which occurred during Friday's session. While this discussion as to what should be done with the letters was going on and when it appeared that the outcome would be unfavorable to the defence, Judge Albanel announced that there would be a recess. Judge Dagoury, according to some stories, then said in low tones to the presiding magistrate: "You dishonor us, sir."

"You Disgrace Us, Sir."

Another story is to the effect that while the debate in regard to the letters was at its height, Judge Albanel suggested that the time for a recess had arrived. Judge Dagoury, who was sitting beside him, bent over and said, "You disgrace us, sir." The two judges met in their private room afterwards and a heated discussion ensued. Judge Dagoury is reported as having made an apology and the incident was supposed to be closed. But the matter was printed in the Figaro yesterday and Judge Albanel issued his challenge. The seconds appointed by Judge Albanel are General Jules Dalstein, formerly Military Governor of Paris and Emile Bruneau de Labori. It is unlikely that the duel will be fought until after the close of the trial.

It would not be surprising if other duels would arise from the trial.

NIGHT MADE BEAUTIFUL

By the Electrical Decorations at the Canadian National Exhibition

Electricity as an ornament will be a striking feature of this year's Exhibition. You'll remember a year ago those little electric bulbs flickering like fireflies among the leaves of the trees. That was only a starter for a series of electric novelties that will this year make the grounds a vision of loveliness by night.

Above the entrance will be the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes entwined, with the dove of peace floating over them, while at the sides of the entrance will be two electric panels, one emblematic of Canada and the other of the United States.

The Grand Plaza has been strung with a network of wires and will be canopied with twinkling electric stars.

These with other decorations will make it Electric Year as well as Peace Year at the Canadian National.

AUSTRIA FORMERLY DECLARES WAR AGAINST SERVIA

Vienna, July 28.—Official notification of the declaration of war was sent to Servia to-day by the Austrian Government.

TRENT CANAL CONSTRUCTION CAMP SCENE OF SHOOTING

Two of Three Victims Are Seriously Injured and Assailant is at Large

Midland, July 28.—Three men are wounded, two of them seriously, and a fourth, who did the shooting, is at large in the bush about 12 miles from here, as the result of a drunken brawl early on Sunday morning. The wounded men are:

John Hunt, shot in the arm.
John Pyrell, shot in the leg.
D. McLeod, shot in the body.

Hunt and Pyrell were taken to the Orillia Hospital, and are lying there in a serious condition. Both are badly wounded and are suffering from shock. McLeod's condition is not so critical, as the bullet just grazed his adbomen without injuring a vital part. The shooting was done by W. J. Campbell, foreman of a construction gang, who is said to hail from Thorold.

Al the men were employed on the construction work of the Trent Canal at Port Severn, and it appears that Pyrell and Campbell went across the lake to Wanbaushene for liquor. While there they both had a number of drinks, and were in an intoxicated condition when they started back. According to the story told by the injured men, Campbell stepped out on the dock and without provocation pulled a 32-calibre revolver from his pocket and fired three shots, each of which took effect.

He then walked up to the camp and endeavored to gain admittance to one of the foremen's tents. He was not allowed to enter, but no one attempted to capture him, and he took to the woods. About 9 o'clock on Sunday morning he came out and made enquiries as to what he had done, apparently having forgotten the occurrence of the night. When informed that he had shot three men he immediately took to the bush again, and is still at large. Though several men were standing about when he came out, no attempt was made to arrest him, and he was allowed to get away unmolested.

Chief of Police Collins, of Midland, went over to Port Severn, but as it is outside his jurisdiction he did not continue his search. Apparently the authorities are doing nothing. There is not even a warrant out for Campbell. The point over which the police are at sea is evidently the fact that the spot on which the shooting occurred is directly on the line between two townships, and neither one will take any action towards arresting the man.

PRESENTATION OF WATCH AND TEN DOLLAR GOLD PIECE

Sunday morning at St. Martin's Church, Ennismore, Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, made the presentation of a gold watch and $10 gold piece to Bernic Scollard, who obtained highest marks in the entrance examinations, for Ennismore pupils.

The watch was donated by Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., and the gold piece by Mr. Jas. Lynch.

Rev. Father Fitzpatrick referred in appreciative terms of the kindness of the doners and congratulated the recipient on her success in her studies.

WILL TAKE CASE TO MINISTER OF JUSTICE

The Minister of Justice will be asked to pass upon a sentence meted out to George Herron of Cobourg by Magistrate Dumble this morning. Herron appeared before the Magistrate to receive sentence on a charge of theft, and although it was his first offence, his worship handed out a sentence of six months. Herron, it was alleged, robbed a drunken man, and was assisted by John White, a hostler at the American Hotel, whom the magistrate allowed to go on suspended sentence. G. N. Gordon is acting for the prisoner, and intends laying the facts before the Minister of Justice at once, with references to some prominent people whom the prisoner knows. The facts of the case showed that the theft was committed when Herron was under the influence of liquor. In fact the trio were very much loaded, but the magistrate deemed it wise to send an otherwise "clean record" man down for six months.

Condition is Critical.

The condition of Wilfred Levasseur, who is suffering from concussion of the brain as a result of falling from a tree, is still very critical, although the doctors in attendance claim that there is a slight hope of recovery.

CITY USES ON AVERAGE OF NEARLY 3,000,000 GALLONS WATER PER DAY

According to the figures obtained at the water works' department, today, the city of Peterboro uses on an average of 2,969,822 gallons of water per day. The average pumpage per month is 89,094,666. This quantity of water would be sufficient to float the steamers of the Trent waterway.

The figures for twelve months from July, 1913, to June, 1914, both months inclusive are as follows:

Year.	Month.	Imp. Galls.
1913	July	106,459,000
1913	August	97,876,000

$300 DIAMOND AT BOTTOM OF LAKE

Guest at Burleigh Falls the Loser

Mine host Darcy, when notified by his guest, of the loss, communicated with the Trent Canal department, and permission was given the diver to make an attempt to recover the lost ring.

CAUGHT BIG FISH.

Picton, July 28.—While trolling near Thompson's Point, Hay Bay, about five miles from Picton, Mr. Reuben Way, of this town, caught a thirty-four pound maskinonge. Mr. Way managed to land the fish, although alone in the boat. He brought it to Picton and had it photographed. This is the largest fish caught in the bay this season.

PLAGUE IS NEARING END

Army Worm Will Have Disappeared by Next Week

TORONTO, July 28.—Before the first days of next week the army worm plague will have practically ended, according to a statement made yesterday by the Deputy Minister of Agriculture, based on reports from district representatives of the Department. These officials state that already the worm is entering the papal state and that before many days its activity as a caterpillar will have ceased.

In discussing the inroads of the army worm this month, the Deputy Minister said that it had done more or less harm in nearly all parts of agricultral Ontario. Huntsville is the last place to report discovery of the army worm. Word from there came to the Department yesterday.

The digging ditches and scattering poison were the usual methods used to kill the worm. Northumberland County devised a novel plan. The army had to cross over a railway track and the farmers put coal tar on one of the rails. The worms stuck fast to it and the train did the rest.

DUBLIN TRAGEDY PREVENTS STEPS TOWARDS COMPROMISE

Deputy Police Commissioner Who Called Out Troops is Suspended and His Chief Has Resigned in Protest—An Inquiry Will be Held—Troops Are Now Prisoners in Their Barracks.

LONDON, July 28.—The first effect of the Dublin tragedy has been to smash Premier Asquith's plans for taking up the amending bill to-day. The Premier announced yesterday that the matter had been indefinitely postponed. The Irish members are so exasperated over the killing of four persons and the wounding of many others in the clash Sunday between the regular troops and the Nationalist Volunteers, that they are in no frame of mind to grant any concessions to Ulster. The Laborites and many Liberals support them.

The Government announced in the House of Commons yesterday that Deputy Police Commissioner Harrell, who ordered out the troops, had been suspended and that his superior, Commissioner Sir John Ross, who expressed a desire to share the responsibility, had resigned his office.

A special inquiry will be held, probably by judicial commission. In the meantime, the demand for the removal of the Scottish Borderers from Dublin has not been granted, largely because an attempt to march them out would be the signal for attacks by the mobs. They will remain prisoners in their barracks until the anger of the people has cooled.

The Nationalist members of Parliament held a meeting yesterday afternoon and showed more animus against the castle than the Government. They consider Viceroy Aberdeen's official family prejudiced against the Nationalists.

A heated discussion was started in the House of Commons by John Redmond, the Nationalist leader, who demanded an impartial inquiry into the conduct of the troops, and their punishment, if the shooting was not justified. He demanded also that the regiment should be removed from Ireland, that the proclamation against the importation of arms into Ireland should be withdrawn because it constituted a serious danger and that the law be administered impartially.

He called for the suspension of Sir John Ross, the police commissioner of Dublin, and said: "We had an experience of him in the Larkin riots. He is unfit to hold his office. He is a well-known political partisan."

Mr. Redmond compared "this monstrous business" with the parades of armed volunteers in Belfast. "To such a state of impotence has the British Government been reduced in Ireland," he said, "that a subordinate official is able to call in soldiers without consulting the executive of the country."

He expressed the hope that the Irish people would not blame the troops too much, and concluded amid great cheers: "Four-fifths of the Irish people will not submit any longer to be bullied and punished for conduct which is allowed to go scot free in Ulster by another section of their follow-countrymen."

PAPERS ARE GONE

Documents in Montreal Probe Disappear

MONTREAL, July 28. — A sensation was created in the City Hall yesterday morning by the announcement that official plans and documents which figure prominently in the Notre Dame de Grace sewer scandal have been stolen.

The Board of Control recently conducted an investigation which led to the arrest of Etienne Pelland, a former city engineer.

The mayor called in Chief of Police Campeau, and an effort will be made to recover the documents, which are of great value to the city, in view of the investigation now being carried on, and the charges made against former Engineer Pelland.

A clerk in the engineer's office was suspended yesterday morning. He was the last person to handle the plans, and it is thought that he was the only official who knew where they were placed by Engineer Pelland, the head of the department.

THE TEXT OF SERVIA'S REPLY TO AUSTRIA

London, July 28.—Servia's reply to the Austrian ultimatum is summarised as follows:

First—Servia agree to the publication in its official journal, on the front page, of the formal declaration submitted by the Austrian Government, condemning the subversive propaganda and deploring its fatal consequences, regretting the participation of Servian officers in this propaganda, repudiating any further interests, and warning all Servians that rigorous proceedings will be taken in the future against any persons guilty of such machinations.

Second—Servia agrees to communicate this declaration to the army in the form of an order of the day.

Third—It promises to dissolve those societies which may be considered capable of conducting intrigues against Austria.

Fourth—Revision of the laws governing the press.

Fifth—Dismissal from the army and navy of officers and the romoval also of civilian officials whose participation in an anti-Austrian propaganda may be proved. The Servian Government, however, protests against Austrian officials taking any part in the enquiry.

Sixth—The Servian Government asks for an explanation as to just what part the Austrian officials are to be called upon to take into the enquiry into the Sarajevo plot, and it is announced that Servia can only admit such participation as would be in accordance with international laws and goodly neighborly relations.

Seventh—To sum up, Servia accepts all the conditions and all the demands of Austria, and makes reservations only regarding the participation of Austrian officials in the enquiry. It does not give its formal refusal to this point, but confines itself to asking explanations.

Finally, if the Austrian Government finds this reply inadequate, Servia appeals to The Hague Tribunal and to the powers which signed the declaration of 199 relative to Bosnia and Herzegovina.

JUDGE CLEARS COURT ROOM

Evidence Causes Uproar at Caillaux Trail

PARIS, July 28.—All the testimony in the trial of Mme. Henriette Caillaux, for the wilful murder of Gaston Calmette, editor of The Figaro, has been heard and the speeches of counsel for the prosecution and defence are to be delivered to-day.

While Henri Bernstein, the playwright, was giving his disposition yesterday, the applause and hooting caused such an uproar that Judge Albanel had the court cleared and suspended the sittings. The playwright abandoned all semblance of courtesy in addressing the former Premier and husband of the prisoner as "Caillaux" without prefix. He said: "We have just witnessed the French Treasury committing a felony by appropriating a will and turning it over to Caillaux. Then we have seen Ministers of state come here and declare, in order to cover up their former colleague, that diplomatic documents accepted with thanks by the President of the Republic, are forgeries. Either President Poincare is feebleminded or his Ministers have lied."

Appointed Delegate.

At a meeting last night, George Campbell, secretary of the Barbers' Union, was appointed as a local delegate for the Barbers' annual convention to be held in Milwaukee some time next month.

HOW RIVAL ARMIES COMPARE

Austria-Hungary — The war establishment of the mobilized field army is 895,000 all ranks, with about 1,000,000 from the other formations. The peace establishment of the active army, all ranks, about 328,000.

Servia—The war strength of the Servian army is placed at 250,000 to 300,000 of all ranks. The peace effective is only 40,000 of all arms; but the army has been kept at war strength for the past five years.

ARMIES OF WATCHING POWERS.

Russia—In time of war Russia is able to place 5,500,000 trained men in the field. The peace strength is 1,210,000, all ranks.

Germany—The war effective of the mobilized field army is 1,850,000. Behind this there are about 1,500,000 men wholly or partially trained, to supply the waste of war. The peace establishment is 790,778 of all ranks.

Italy—Estimated war effective: Active army and active reserve, 1,000,000; mobile militia, 320,000; territorial militia, 2,300,000.

UNFAVORABLE REPLY RETURNED BY GERMANY TO BRITISH PROPOSAL

Is Not Feasible in Practice and Impossible to Carry Out

Canadian Press Despatch.

Berlin, July 28.—The German Government today returned an unfavorable reply to the British proposal for a conference of Ambassadors in London to bring about a settlement of the Austro-Servian difficulty, which it declares well meant and was good in principle but not feasible in practice and impossible to carry out. Germany thinks a great power having a dispute with a smaller neighbor, cannot be expected to submit the matter for decision by an European Council and far less will two great powers submit to be summoned in the role of an accused before such a tribunal.

Germany makes a counter proposal that negotiations for peace be conducted between the two cabinets.

Vienna, July 28.—The Foreign Office declared today that even should Servia now comply with the demands contained in the Austrian note, the Austrian Government would not be satisfied. Compliance by Servia would no longer suffice.

Paris, July 28.—The Austrian ambassador to France today said it was probable, hostilities between Austria and Servia began this morning, but up to eleven o'clock he had not been notified.

IMPOSED $100 FINE

Belleville, July 28.—License Inspector Stoke, of East Hastings, on Saturday night, at Point Anne, made a seizure of liquor, consisting of 40 gallons of lager beer, one gallon of port wine, three gallons of whiskey and 25 bottles of beer. The liquor was found in a house belonging to a Servian named Joseph Minclik. Magistrate Masson, of this city, fined Minclik $100 and costs for having the liquor on his premises without a license.

CONFINE TROUBLE TO SERVIA AND AUSTRIA

Russian Emperor Postpones Trip to Remain in Capital During Crisis.

LONDON, July 28. — An engagement between Austrians and Servians is reported to have occurred on the Danube, but no details are available, and it is not considered to have been of importance. As far as the censorship permits, it is known that Austria has not yet opened her military operations.

Meanwhile, diplomacy is proceeding with energy along two separate lines to avert, if possible, and, if impossible, to localise the war.

First, Sir Edward Grey, the British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, has proposed to the powers a scheme for joint mediation, which, it is stated, France and Italy have already accepted. Germany has not yet replied, and her acceptance is regarded as doubtful.

Sir Edward Grey explained in the House of Commons his idea, which was that four powers—Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy—should co-operate in an endeavor to arrange the dispute between Austria and Servia on the basis of Servia's reply to the Austrian ultimatum. This reply he regarded as the foundation on which friendly and impartial powers should be able to arrange an acceptable settlement.

SIR EDWARD GREY.

Should the British Foreign Secretary's efforts fail to avert war, it is expected that he will endeavor by some means to prevent complications by confining the hostilities to Austria and Servia.

The second line of diplomatic endeavor, from which even more is hoped to-day, is taking place at St. Petersburg between the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, Sergius Sazonoff, and the Austrian ambassador. It is understood that M. Sazonoff is making a strenuous effort to bring about a direct understanding, and that a solution on these lines would be more agreeable to Germany than Great Britain's conference proposal.

The Russian Emperor has postponed his intended visit to Finland

AUSTRIANS SEIZE TWO STEAMERS

Servian Colors Hauled Down and Passengers Are Detained

Canadian Press Despatch.

Nish, Servia, July 28. — Servia steamers Deligrad and Morava were seized today at Orsova on the Danube by the Austrians. The Servian colors were hauled down and the Austrian flag hoisted. The passengers were detained.

SUICIDED IN THE PRESENCE OF FRIENDS

Owen Sound, July 27.—Last night about nine o'clock, Alexander McComb, a well-known Owen Sound young man, stepped aside from his two companions, William Swanson and William Raney, took a phial from his pocket, swallowed half an ounce of carbolic acid, fell strangling to the ground, and in ten minutes was dead.

TIGHTWAD.

Polly — When they came back from their wedding trip he had just $2.60 in his pocket.

PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, JULY 28, 1914

..ONTARIO DOESN'T WANT A WARWICK.

THE KINGSTON STANDARD has become apologist for incompetence. Had it read, as we presume it has not, all that we had to say recently on the present political situation in Ontario and not confined its data to what the Toronto Globe quoted and commented upon, that yellow, billious editorial might have been of another color. We appreciate the Toryism of the Standard which stands by its party through thick and thin. Time has not yet thickened our hide to the same degree of toughness, but we think it more in the interests of the Conservative party in Ontario, to point out weakness before it has demoralized the party than to explain that weakness after the people have voted it out of power. In the first place, we stated our position as opposed to the reinstatement of the Hon. Dr. Reaume in the Whitney Cabinet. The ex-minister of Public Works in Ontario has, we think, no claim to such consideration. His disposition of the new Ontario Government House certainly merits censure. Those who are charitable to this chef d'oeuvre of the Hon. Dr. Reaume, say in a mild, extenuating way, that its location was unfortunate. Besides, he has succeeded in causing a split in the Conservative party in Windsor. His defeat in a new riding carved out, it is said, at his own direction, and where we know there is a large French vote, was sufficient condemnation to leave him in retirement. If the Conservative party is to remain in power in Ontario weak men should be left out of the Cabinet. We stated that the people of Ontario gave Premier Whitney's policy a splendid endorsation, and if he respects the voice of the people that so generously supported him, he will also respect it when it condemned Dr. Reaume. For the same reason Dr. Reaume is not entitled to the Senatorship that is vacant in Western Ontario.

Then followed the article in the Toronto World which was an intimation that the Hon. Frank Cochrane has too much to say in Ontario politics. This we did not swallow as the Kingston Standard has thoughtlessly averred, but, we did say we were emphatically opposed to a Dominion Cabinet minister playing the role of Warwick the King-maker in Ontario politics. We recognize the great ability of the Hon. Frank Cochrane, and, if Premier Whitney wants his advice and it is given we see no objection provided the Ontario Cabinet favors that procedure. With what Premier Whitney does unofficially in his private capacity we have little concern. What we object to is making Ontario an adjunct of the Dominion Parliament, and dictating to it what shall be its policy and who shall be its ministers.

The Toronto Globe referring to our article stated that we did not understand the intimate relation existing between Premier Whitney and his late colleague, the Hon. Frank Cochrane, and that the Dominion Minister of Railways and Canals desires to strengthen his position in the French ridings of New Ontario by reinstating Dr. Reaume in the Ontario Cabinet. What authority the Globe had for this statement we do not know. Possibly out of all the discussion the true facts may come to light. We are aware that there doubtless is an intimate unofficial or personal relationship existing between Premier Whitney and the Hon. Frank Cochrane, but these facts do not alter the principle on which we have expressed a decided opinion, that Ontario should solve its own political problems free from any dictation from the Dominion Capital. If Ontario ministers desire advice from Ottawa, very well, but when they are obliged to answer the problems before them at the beck and call of another government, their day of usefulness is over. We are opposed to such inter-locking machine methods, because the principles of Conservatism make such methods unnecessary and because they are not in the best interests of the people of both Ontario and the Dominion. There is our position and the Kingston Standard may call it yellow or billious as it pleases.

But the Kingston paper objects to our position because it says the Hon. Frank Cochrane carried Ontario in the general elections of 1911. It says:

> "To him more than to any other man, not even excepting Sir James Whitney, was the credit due of the sweeping Conservative victory in Ontario in the last Dominion Election."

Well, we like to give credit where it is due and we have an idea that there were other forces in Ontario in 1911 working for the Conservative victory besides the Hon. Frank Cochrane. But this matter is beside the main question we have raised in that it concerns Dominion affairs. We were quite satisfied with Sir Robert Borden's splendid victory and his excellent policy as well as with the administration of the Hon. Mr. Cochrane's Department since he was elected. We are content to leave the conduct of Dominion affairs to the hands of Sir Robert Borden and his Cabinet, which may request the aid of Provincial politicians if it thinks well. But what we object to, again let us say, is for any Federal Cabinet minister saying to the Ontario House thus shall ye do and this man shall ye follow and that man shall ye place. Our Kingston friend may stand pat on the matter, but we don't.

THE WHEAT CROP.

THE CONDITION of the wheat crop in Canada and the United States affords plenty of ground for reflection, and, in view of the fact that Sir Wilfrid Laurier is planning an extensive tour, the facts concerning the wheat crops should occasion him considerable worry.

This year only a fair crop is looked for in Western Canada. The yield last year was about 200,000,000 bushels, and there is no indication that the yield this year will be larger. Up to the present time a poor crop in the West did not cause much apprehension, due to the large yearly increase in the number of acres under cultivation. In Saskatchewan, for instance, the number of farms increased from 13,612 to 95,808 between 1901 and 1911. The area under grain has until the last year or two enlarged extensively, and its slower growth at present is due to the vigor with which diversified farming is being taken up. The development of mixed farming is making the Western agricultural community much more independent of a crop yield. The United States this year, it is reasonably estimated, will have the enormous yield of 930,000,000 bushels. In 1913 the yield was 763,000,000 bushels and in 1912 it was 730,000,000 bushels. The difference between the yield this year and that of the other years is about equivalent to the entire wheat yield of Canada. Last year the United States exported about $150,000,000 worth of wheat and wheat flour, and with an increase in the yield of nearly 200,000,000 bushels this year, its exportable surplus will be increased by about that much.

The Toronto Mail and Empire says regarding these facts:

> "But though the expectations of a record-breaking crop such as the United States has are not likely to be fulfilled, the price for Canadian grain is likely to be higher, especially if the threatened European war breaks out, and the returns to the farmers will be correspondingly bettered. The crop money will substantially improve commercial conditions, and permit a distinct brightening of the business outlook.
>
> "With such an extraordinary crop in the United States—amounting to ten bushels a head of the population—and with only an average yield in their own territory, are not the Western farmers much better off without reciprocal free trading in wheat between the United States and Canada? At present Winnipeg prices for wheat are higher than the Minneapolis prices. The harvesting of a crop from 200,000,000 to 300,000,000 bushels in excess of the usual yield is likely to depress United States prices. The United States markets will be heavily loaded with domestic wheat, and their bids for Canadian wheat are not likely to be as favorable as in years of an ordinary crop. The United States grain shippers must rather regret that in the reversal of the usual wheat production conditions of the two countries they have not a duty-free Canadian market. Our millers would be glad of opportunities to get at the enormous surplus of the United States crop, and thus bring down the higher prices that will be quoted for Canadian grain.
>
> "But the farmers of the West will this year be able to market their wheat at the higher prices the Canadian and world shortage will induce, protected against an overflowing rush of part of the American surplus into their markets."

The passage of time is thus showing the wisdom of the Canadian people in turning down Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Reciprocity deal in 1911. The odds in favor of the United States were too great. Canada would have been at a great disadvantage, competing on an equal footing with the American Republic, possessing a population of one hundred millions and a wheat production about four times as great. Canada still needs a protective tariff, and the crop conditions this year will prove undoubtedly to the Canadian farmer in the higher prices he gets for his wheat, the need of maintaining Protection in this country. Sir Wilfrid may expound a high sounding theory about prosperity and bigger business, but the hard fact confronting him is that had Reciprocity carried, the farmers would this year be recieving less for their products than they otherwise will.

The Bond Guarantee Business.
Edmonton Journal.

The Monetary Times publishes a chart showing the extent to which the various provinces have guaranteed railway bonds. Alberta stands second to British Columbia with the enormous total of $45,489,000, Saskatchewan next with $33,735,000, Manitoba and Ontario following with respectively $24,000,000 and $7,860,000. If Alberta had the railways to correspond with these bond guarantees, few would complain. But we have tied up our credit for this amount and the companies have been allowed to carry out their part of the contracts when they were good and ready.

THE CAN OPENER
By Walt Mason

This handy tool, the household pet, we ply with skill and speed; and in the modern kitchenette it's really all we need. The shining tool that opens cans makes household work a joke; it supersedes the pots and pans, the stoves that used to smoke. In olden times the toiling wives were always on their feet; they wore away their weary lives preparing things to eat. They fried the meat, they baked the beans, they cooked the spuds, I wist; they had no time for magazines, for euchre or bridge whist. How fortunate the modern wife, with many a leisure hour! For she can fill with glee her life, and languish in her bower. And when at evening comes her man, impatient for the eats, she says, "I'll open up a can of beans or deviled beets." It takes three minutes by the clock to get his meal in shape; he's so well trained he doesn't balk, or try to make escape. It may be, as hand over hand, he throws the victuals in, he sighs for grub that isn't canned, that doesn't taste of tin. It may be that his vagrant mind recalls the old-time steak, the dishes of the good old kind his mother used to make. But idle are the man's regrets, and vain his hopes and plans; this is the age of kitchenettes, and things put up in cans.

HAY FEVER

I reckon any of us who have corns, seed warts, gum-biles and sech troubles, have one reason to be grateful. We all might have a dinged sight wuss. I had allars thort my rheumatism about as nice a pet as could be wished on human till I met Sam Jinks and larned thet he had an affliction, which, compared with mine, looked like a hummin'-bird 'longside a common razor-back flea. Sam had what is knowed as hay fever. His head and face looked as though

SPECIAL CORNER FOR AFTER DINNER READERS

REUNITED BY CHANCE

By F. A. MITCHEL

We peddlers—I mean we who drive about the country selling our wares—meet with some very strange experiences.

On one of my excursions that I made with a double team and a high red wagon loaded with everything a farmer's wife could need I was looking about me for a place in which to put up for the night when I came to a house standing beside the road that looked inviting except for a certain loneliness there was about it. We know instinctively when a place is occupied and when it is deserted, and the moment I looked at this one I knew that no one lived there. Nevertheless I determined that if I could get into it I would stay there all night. The lock on the gateway leading to the barn had fallen, and I had no trouble in driving in my team. The barn was as easy of access as the gate, and I drove both horses and wagon in under cover. I had feed for the animals with me and, having fed them, went to the house.

Looking in through a window, I saw furniture which seemed to be new—that is, it had evidently never been used. Something like mold had settled upon it, indicating that it had been there for a long time. A screwdriver from my wagon acted in place of a jimmy to raise a sash, and I effected an entrance through a window.

I explored the house, all of which had been evidently newly furnished. Indeed, some articles had not been unpacked. In an upper story I found the plastering had in part given way from water let through a roof that needed repair, the water having run down a wall against which stood a mantel. The mantel had been displaced and leaned forward. Beside it on the floor I picked up a letter which, though it had been drenched, I could see had never been opened, and with difficulty I made out the address. The postmark had been too far damaged by water to be legible.

I made myself as comfortable as I could during the night and the next day drove on to the nearest postoffice, where I turned over the letter to the postmaster. He read the address and, looking up at me, asked where I had found it. I told him, and, taking up a hand magnifying glass, he studied the postmark for awhile, then said to himself rather than to me:

"That must have been the day before the intended wedding. Now I remember Sam asked me to send any letter that might come for him to his new house. Andy!"

A young fellow about eighteen came from the rear part of the office, where he had been stamping letters, and the postmaster asked him:

"Can you go back far enough in memory to recall delivering a letter to Sam Joslin a day or two before the day he was to have been married?"

The young man ransacked his memory for awhile, then replied: "Yes, I can, because I didn't find Mr. Joslin there, and I didn't find any one in the house either. I went all over it and finally concluded that the front sleeping room upstairs on the mantel was the best place to leave it. So I set it up against the wall and left it."

"Did the mantel stand flush up against the wall?" I asked.

"No. It was a wooden mantel and had warped, leaving a crack. I set it up so that it wouldn't slip down the crack."

"But it did, all the same," I said.

"I remember that I got caught in a terrific windstorm on my way back. Maybe it shook the house and the letter fell into the crack," suggested Andy.

"Maybe that letter or Sam's not getting it explains the split," suggested the postmaster.

"What split?" I asked.

"Why, Sam Joslin was to have married Annie Springer and had built and furnished a new house. The day of the wedding Annie didn't appear. Sam had taken her away from Bill Edwards, a good for nothing fellow, who had been courting her, and Sam, who was an impulsive man, made up his mind that at the last minute she had thrown him over and had concluded to marry Bill. Sam got a fit on him and, shutting up the house, went away and has never been back here since."

He opened the letter, but the ink had been so blurred that it would have required a long time to decipher had it not been very short. It read:

Oh, dearest, our wedding must be put off! I have just heard that mother is dying, and I must go to her at once.

I went on peddling tin pans, washboards and the like, leaving the postmaster to work out the romance. Six months later I drove by the house in which I had found the letter, and I saw at once as I approached it that it was no longer deserted. I drove my team into the barn, and a young man and woman came out to learn what I meant.

"Reckon I'll make myself at home here," I said.

"By what right?" asked the man angrily.

"I'm the man that found a letter here some time ago."

The two looked at each other; then the man grabbed one of my hands and the woman the other, and the man said:

WAS NEAR DESTINATION.

After Crossing Atlantic Woman Is Killed by Train.

KINGSTON, July 28.—After crossing the ocean and within ten miles of Kingston, where she was to pay a visit to her sister, Mrs. Hughes, wife of Sergt.-Major Hughes, Miss Catherine Crowley, aged 21, met death by being run over by a train on the Grand Trunk Railway, near Ballantyne, east of the city. The young woman's body, badly mangled, was found in a ditch at the side of the track early yesterday. She was a passenger on the midnight train from Montreal and got off at Ballantyne in mistake for Kingston. While walking the track she was hit by a fast train going east.

Heavy Sentence For Suffragette.

NOTTINGHAM, Eng., July 28.—Irene Casey, a militant suffragette, was yesterday sentenced to fifteen months' imprisonment on a charge of being in possession of explosives with the intention of committing a felony.

Miss Casey, who is the daughter of a London physician, was arrested during the King's recent visit to Nottingham. She was carrying a dressing bag containing four boxes full of a high explosive besides detonators, fuse, benzine, a chisel, pliers and glass cutters.

One on the Reporter.

A Toronto newspaper man tells a story about the dour humor of Sir Donald Mann. The reporter went to interview Sir Donald at his home. The railway knight made him welcome, and as preliminary asked him if he would have a drink. The reporter, anxious to create a good impression, said he didn't drink.

"Have a cigar?" said Sir Donald.

"No thanks, sir, I don't smoke," came the answer.

Then, "Say, young man," said the somewhat surprised railway knight, "do you mind if I smoke a cigar myself?"—Canadian Courier.

A VETERAN WHO WAS WITH LORD ROBERTS

CHATHAM, ONT., APRIL 3rd, 1913.

"I am a veteran of the Crimean War and the Indian Mutiny, volunteering from the Royal Artillery into the Royal Engineers, and served under Lord Roberts during the Indian Mutiny, and am a pensioner of the British Government. Fierce hand-to-hand fighting and continual exposure left me a great sufferer from Rheumatism, so much so that my legs swelled up, making it impossible for me to walk.

"Fruit-a-tives". They cured me of both the Rheumatism and Constipation. In my regular employment, I walk thirty miles a day and enjoy perfect health".

THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, etc.

CHICAGO, July 27.—Hope that war might yet be averted made the wheat market react sharply today after a decided advance. The close was nervous. In corn the outcome was unchanged to ⅛c up, and for oats unchanged to ⅛c off. Provisions scored a net gain of 10c to 25c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, July 27.—Excessively hot weather over the week-end and the Liverpool cables being unusually strong on the political situation, caused a sharp rise in wheat prices this morning. Opening figures were 1⅝c to 2c higher for wheat, ½c to 1c for oats, and flax was 7½c to 8¼c higher. There was heavy trading during the first few hours, but profit-taking developed, and a setback occurred on wheat and flax, while oats held fairly steady.

The weather map all over the west shows around 90 to 95 maximum temperatures, excepting in Alberta, and this was considered unfavorable. There was no rain recorded. Later news came in that the situation was clearer in Europe, and prices dropped to around normal. Wheat closed ⅛c lower to ⅜c higher, oats ⅛c lower to 1c higher, and flax 1⅝c to 3⅝c higher.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, July 27.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 91 cars, comprising 1806 cattle, 157 hogs, 922 sheep and lambs and 183 calves.

Butchers' Cattle.

Choice steers sold at $8.50 to $8.75; good butchers' steers and heifers, $8.25 to $8.45; medium butchers' at $7.85 to $8.10; common to medium at $7.25 to $7.50; inferior lightweight, grass-fed steers and heifers at $6 to $7; choice cows at $6.75 to $7; good cows at $6.25 to $6.50; medium cows at $5.50 to $6; common at $4.75 to $5.25; canners at $3 to $3.75; bulls at $5 to $7.25.

Stockers and Feeders.

Steers, 800 to 950 lbs., are worth $7 to $7.25; steers, 700 to 800 lbs., $6.50 to $7; stockers, $5.50 to $6.25.

Milkers and Springers.

Milkers and springers sold at firm prices, ranging from $45 to $100 each, the bulk selling from $65 to $80 each.

Veal Calves.

Calves were scarce and prices very firm. Choice calves sold at $10 to $11; good at $9 to $9.50; medium at $8 to $8.50; common at $7 to $8; inferior at $5.50 to $6.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts of sheep and lambs were liberal. Sheep, light ewes, $5 to $6; heavy ewes and rams, $3.50 to $4.50; spring lambs, $9 to $10.25; yearlings, $7 to $8.

Hogs.

Receipts light, 157 all told. One deck sold at $9.10 fed and watered, and 80 hogs were sold at $8.75 f.o.b. cars.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, July 27.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ending July 25 were 1200 cattle, 1500 sheep and lambs, 2000 hogs and 1400 calves. The offerings on the market this morning for sale amounted to 850 cattle, 750 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 1000 calves. The strength which developed in the market for cattle a week ago has continued to be the main feature of the trade, and, altho the supply was fully two hundred head larger than this day week, prices scored a further advance of 25c per hundred pounds, which is attributed to the renewed demand here for supplies from American buyers for shipment to Buffalo and the increased scarcity of good to choice steers.

At the higher range of prices there was a good demand from packers, and sales were made at $8.65 to $8.75, while others changed hands at $8 to $8.50 per hundred pounds. There was considerable enquiry from butchers for small lots of good to choice steers. A few small lots of good steers sold at $9 to $9.25 per 100 pounds. The demand for all grades of cattle was generally good, and an active trade was done.

In sympathy with advance in prices for live hogs of 20 cents per hundred pounds in the Toronto market, the undertone to the market has continued very strong, and prices have scored a further advance of 25c to 35c per hundred pounds. The trade was active, with sales of selected lots at $9.50 to $9.65, and some long-run lots brought as high as $9.75, but prices for heavy hogs were firm and unchanged at $8.50. Sows sold at $7.50 to $7.65; stags at $4.75 to $4.85 per hundred pounds.

The tone of the market for lambs has continued strong, and prices for Ontario stock since this day week have scored an advance of 25c to 75c per head.

Keeps Pace With Rabbits.

A curious story is told by the Ungava Indians of the wild cat or Canada lynx, which inhabits the wooden parts of the country, and especially the valley of the Hamilton River. Every hunter and every dealer in furs knows that the number of lynx skins taken varies with that of the rabbits, which are the natural food of the lynx; and the Indians all say that when the rabbits are dying off after seasons of plenty, the lynx does not breed at all, and that it only again produces young when the rabbits are once more becoming plentiful.

NEWS NOTES FROM OMEMEE

Omemee, July 27.—Mr. Charlie McCaffery of Toronto spent the week end in his old home town.

Mr. D. Mitchell was a business visitor to Peterboro on Saturday.

Mr. Noel Clark of Peterboro visited his parents on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Boyd were the guests of friends at Peterboro on Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Albert Feir of Peterboro visited, on Saturday, his mother, Mrs. A. Feir of Sturgeon St.

Mrs. Dornau is improving her residence on Sturgeon St., occupied by Dr. Thompson. She is erecting an addition. Mr. Jos. Morden is contractor.

Mr. Robert Touchburn of Bridgenorth was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bent, the latter part of the week.

Mr. Garnet Shield of Mount Pleasant was in town on Saturday evening.

Mrs. John Weir was in Peterboro on Saturday.

Rev. R. H. Wordsworth of Aurora preached in the Presbyterian Church at Mount Pleasant on Sunday afternoon and at Omemee, morning and evening.

Reeve and Mrs. Mulligan attended on Tuesday, Warden Varcoe's excursion to Coboconk. The weather was ideal and the trip enjoyed immensely.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Henderson of Sandy Hill were in Omemee on Friday.

Messrs. F. W. Jamieson and Harry Bland of Mount Pleasant made a business trip to Omemee on Thursday evening.

Miss Bertha Nichols, who has been teaching at Burnt River is holidaying in town with her parents.

The G.T.R. has cleared up the wreck at the south of the town. The gasoline was pumped from the tank and the last vestige of the financial disaster has disappeared.

Mr. Running of Gananoque is the relieving manager for the Bank of Toronto, while Mr. A. C. Hodgetts is off for his vacation.

Mr. Robertson was the guest of Rev. and Mrs. Down at the parsonage, last week.

Mr. Charles Ivory returned on Friday morning from a business trip to Montreal.

Messrs. J. D. Thexton, W. F. Best, W. Fee, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Fee, of Mount Pleasant, were visitors to Omemee on Friday.

The Board of Education met on Friday evening and amongst other business it was decided to change the public school department from three to two teachers.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Patterson of Newbery, Oregon, are in town calling on friends. They arrived on Wednesday evening after a pleasant trip in which they tried to take in all the sights. Mr. and Mrs. Patterson have a large relationship in this section of Ontario. They were born at Mount Pleasant. In 1880 they removed to North Dakota where farming proved quite successful and later they moved to Oregon for a more equable climate. Although Mrs. Patterson has re-visited the scenes of her girlhood once or twice in the interim of 34 years, yet Mr. Patterson did not and now he is able to make companions of a unique type. Their many friends are delighted to see them again and renew pleasant associations. Mr. and Mrs. Patterson will visit friends at Mount Pleasant, Peterboro, Norwood and Toronto before returning home by the C.P.R. to British Columbia and boat to Oregon.

Mr. J. J. Lamb and Miss Lamb left the first of the week for an extended trip through the prairie provinces.

On the lawn adjacent to the Church, the Methodists held a garden party on the evening of July 22nd. The place was beautifully illuminated, the Maple Leaf Band of Peterboro discoursed sweet music and with a multi-colored assemblage moving about through the grounds, partaking of refreshments at the pretty booths, the scene was one that would delight an artist. The tea was served in the basement of the church and the attendants had a strenuous and lengthy occupation serving up the delicious viands to an almost neverceasing stream of people. The proceeds amounted to about $140.

We understand that Mrs H. Shield of Peterboro and her sister Miss Annie Graham of Mount Pleasant have gone for a trip to visit friends in North Dakota and Manitoba.

On Wednesday afternoon, the baseball team of Reaboro played our team a return game in Mr. R. Boyd's field. As the game was started so late it was agreed to play only five innings, at the end of which Omemee was leading by a score of 12-6 and an inning to spare. The rubber game may be looked forward to with a great deal of interest and excitement.

The Lindsay Library Institute will hold its annual meeting at Beaverton on Thursday and Friday of this week. This Institute represents 40 libraries as follows: Peterboro County 4, Durham County 5, Ontario 11, Victoria 13, Haliburton 2, Muskoka 5. The officers are :—President, O. A. Langefy, Lakefield; Vice-Pres., T. W. McLean, Omemee; Sec.-Miss S. M. Reazin, Lindsay ; Executive Committee, R. A. Hutchinson, Uxbridge ; Mrs. Calder, Fenelon Falls ; Miss Fraser, Whitby ; G. Bemister, Haliburton ; Miss Gale, Bowmanville ; S. Farmer, Port Perry.

Mr. H. Currie spent the week with friends at Lindsay.

Mr. Isaac Richardson of Millbrook is in town this week buying hogs. His commercial dealings adds greatly to our civic enterprise and publicity as well as contributing to the bustling traffic of our busy little town.

Mr. MacLean, clothier of Peterboro, and company of friends, came to town by motorcycle the first of the week and called on friends.

Miss Jennie Hall of Peterboro with friends autoed through town on Monday en route to Lindsay.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Morden and child of Mount Pleasant were visitors the last of the week of his father, Mr. Joseph Morden of town.

Mrs. T. W. McLean was in Lindsay on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Patterson have gone to Mount Pleasant to call on old friends.

Mr. Wm. Lamb of Peterboro was in town Monday in his car.

Some of our citizens who were passengers on the excursion to Ste. Anne de Beaupre, Que., last week, have returned.

Now Total $7,000,000.

Sir William Macdonald's donations to the Macdonald College of Agriculture now total $7,000,000, according to figures given out the other day by Dr. Harrison, the principal. This total was reached during the past year, when the founder of the college, which is named after him, set aside a million dollars for an endowment fund.

CLEAN UP DAY AT PORCUPINE

Thirty Seven Convictions and $3000 in Fines

South Porcupine, July 27.—Fifty-one culprits, several of them well-to-do and heretofore held in esteem by the community were gathered in with startling suddenness Saturday. They were charged with various infractions of the liquor license laws, from "blind-pigging" to connivance with the illicit sale or importation of liquor into this prohibited district.

The whole of the defendants were haled before Magistrate T. H. Torrance. There were 37 convictions ; fines aggregating over $3,000—in almost every case the limit—were imposed ; two of the offenders who had been previously convicted were sent to jail for twelve and three months respectively, and the remaining ten were remanded for a week to enable the Crown to secure further evidence against them.

Coupled with the heavy fines for first offenders and the jail terms for second offenders was a vigorous intimation from the Magistrate that the cleaning-up was to be permanent, that liquor law breakers would henceforth find the atmosphere of Porcupine unhealthy, and that jail terms would accompany every second conviction and the full severity of the law be exercised at all times.

The round-up came unexpectedly and covered the whole surrounding district. It was most thorough in its character. It was conducted by Inspector George Morrison of the Provincial License Department and License Inspector Blackwall from the neighboring district of Timiskaming, assisted by the Provincial Police under the direction of Superintendent J. E. Rogers. Apparently the local men were not taken into confidence and the coup was a wholesale one. Superintendent Rogers was here himself some days ago, and it is believed that the License Department has had operatives in the district since Monday last.

The round-up has caused consternation among the blind-piggers of the district, many of whom now more or less openly allege that they had an "understanding" with the local authorities under which they plied their illicit trade under periodic assessment. It is rumored that some temperance citizens made representations direct to Sir James Whitney in Toronto under which the Premier himself gave instructions for a most searching investigation. It is believed here that the round-up will be followed by some startling disclosures.

Enthusiasm.

Enthusiasm is faith in action. "Faith believeth all things." Enthusiasm puts that belief to the test. The enthusiast believes that the thing can be done; he has faith to believe that it ought to be done; he has enthusiasm to do it. To the unthinking enthusiasm is but the foam on the deeply stirred waters. In truth it is the striving of the waters themselves. It is the very life of effort. —From "The Power of Mental Demand," by Herbert Edward Law.

NATIONALISTS IN FERMENT

Local Council Denounce the "Massacre"

DUBLIN, July 28.—Rioting broke out again last night, but subsided without serious results. The rumor went about that the Scottish Borderers would entrain at the Amiens Street Station. A great crowd, for the most part from the slums, surrounded the station and amused themselves by stoning the street cars.

Six hundred volunteers paraded through the streets, a crowd of 4,000 following them, marching in step and singing.

Feeling runs high throughout Nationalist Ireland. Town councils are adopting resolutions denouncing "the massacre." The soldiers of the Limerick and Kilkenny garrisons are confined to barracks, and concerts by military bands in several towns have been cancelled.

The Lord Mayor of Dublin has called a meeting of the magistrates to consider the action of the Castle authorities in calling out the police and soldiers without consulting the city officials. The police threaten to strike unless those members of the department who were dismissed for disobedience of orders are reinstated.

It is announced here that Sir John Ross, the police commissioner, resigned as a protest against the suspension of Deputy Commissioner Harrell. The Nationalists are delighted, as Commissioner Ross was unpopular.

Fallen Fruit Should Nct Remain on Ground

When fruit falls from the tree before it is ripe it is usually an indication that it has been attacked either by insects or fungus diseases, and to permit it to lie is to allow the insects and diseases to spread more easily the following year. In cases where there is a very heavy crop of fruit on the trees a large proportion will not be able to ripen and will gradually fall off. Whatever the cause for the dropping of the fruit it should not be allowed to remain on the ground. It will sometimes be a very tedious job to gather all the small fruits up and destroy them, but the time will be well spent and too much importance cannot be placed on the practice.

When fruit has been attacked by insects the tendency is for it to ripen early before it is mature, which will cause the fruit to drop. If this fruit is examined the larva of the insect will very often be found in the fruit. In the case of the codling moth and other insects of a like nature the larva or worm comes out of the fruit when it lies on the ground and goes into the earth to pulpate. If the drops are collected and burned these worms will be destroyed. One of the most important factors in the keeping in control of the insects is the systematic gathering of the fallen fruit at frequent intervals.

SOME COMPLAINTS FROM THE HOME

At the Charity Board meeting held last evening, City Relief Officer Miller was instructed to report on the complaint of the Protestant Home that Lily Meyers an epileptic inmate was not a fit person to be confined to the home and they asked for immediate attention in the matter.

The Protestant Home also protested against the practice of sending patients or cases that needed nursing to the Home as has been done in the past. This matter was also left with the Relief Officer to deal with.

A verbal report was also received from the City Relief Officer in connection with several of the complaints.

Accounts for the month amounting to $270 were passed by the Board and ordered to be paid.

PAY HONOR TO MEMORY OF CHAMPLAIN

When Completion of Trent Canal is Celebrated

Editor Review,

Dear Sir,—In 1911, when I had the honor of the Presidency of the Canadian Club, I brought before that body a matter which, to some of us, appeared of particular historical importance to this section of Ontario. I refer to the trip which the great explorer Champlain made from Lake Simcoe, through the waters of the Kawartha Lakes, through what is now the city of Peterborough and on down the Trent waters to Lake Ontario.

The visit of Champlain was the advent of the white man into this portion of Canada and was made in the month of September, 1615. Next year, 1915, will mark the 300th anniversary.

The thought has occurred to me that we are going to consider the celebration of the completion of the Trent Canal System we might consider this historical fact and while we mark the consummation of a great commercial enterprise can we not at the same time pay honor to the memory of the original pathfinder.

Our suggestion three years ago was that some suitable tablet be put up in some public place.

Yours faithfully,

G. STEWART CAMERON.

Peterboro, July 27, 1914.

OBITUARY

DAVID DRAIN.

David Drain, aged 61 years, one of the most widely known farmers in this vicinity, was taken ill on Wednesday, July 8th. Doctors Munroe and Sutton were called to his attendance but he passed away Friday morning, heart failure being the cause of his death.

Mr. Drain being one of the first settlers at Stoney Lake has lived there all his life, and his kind and generous ways will never be forgotten by his many friends.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his widow and eight children, Mrs. Wm. Purdy of East Emily, and Emily, Pearl, Olive, Alvin, Percy, Goldie and Milton at home. Also two sisters, Mrs. Wm. Wilson of Norwood, and Mrs. Wm. Miles of Dummer.

The funeral took place on Sunday, July 12th, at two p.m. to Warsaw Cemetery. The service which was a most impressive one was conducted by Rev. Mr. Hinton of Warsaw. A very large number of friends were in attendance, including a representative from the Canadian Order of Foresters of which the late Mr. Drain was a member.

CHARLES ROBBITT.

Charles Robbitt, aged about fifty years, passed away at St. Joseph's Hospital today. Deceased has been a resident of the city for a year, boarding at 120 Aylmer Street. He took ill with pneumonia about a week ago and was removed to the hospital yesterday.

While in the hospital he spoke to his attendants about having a brother in New York and an aged mother in Ireland but outside of this nothing is known. Efforts are being made to locate his brother.

HERRON GETS SIX MONTHS

Partner in Robbing of John Byne, Gets Suspended Sentence

"It's our duty to stamp out this work of robbing poor unfortunate drunken men who come to the city after working hard all winter to fall a victim to drink and such men as these," said Magistrate Dumble at Police Court this morning, when he sentenced George Herron, a middle aged man, claiming his home to be in Cobourg, to six months in the Central Prison, for robbery.

John White, a hostler at the American Hotel, who was found guilty of abbetting the robbery was allowed out on suspended sentence..

G. N. Gordon appeared for the prisoners who were charged with robbing John Byne, a lumberman, who was under the influence of liquor at the time. The men were caught in the act of the robbery by Detectives Newhall and Meagher, who only after a hard battle, in which teeth displayed a prominent part in the resistance by the prisoners, placed the men in custody.

The defence of the two prisoners was contradictory and both denied any share in the robebry. Evidence was to the effect that Herron had been the real factor in the robbery.

Magistrate Dumble contended that both had proved themselves equally guilty with more than sufficient evidence to show th eguilt of Herron.

In the evidence, it was shown that Pyne had gone to the stable with the two men. When the detectives arrived, While was on the stable floor and Herron was found in the loft with Pyne.

Pyne claimed he had lost $50, but money recovered totalled about $36. This was returned to him.

THIEVING BAND STILL ENJOYING THEIR LIBERTY

When local detectives succeeded in apprehending two youthful criminals named Smith and Wilson, who were wanted in Lindsay to answer the charge of burglarizing several stores, it was thought that the complete band, who had for months previously lived in the vicinity of Orillia, were ousted. The recent terrorizing of places in Victoria and Peterboro Counties has led many to believe that the old gang is once more united and have their headquarters somewhere near Peterboro or Manvers.

When the Washburn Shows were here a number of thieves made a clean up one night and as yet the police officials have been unable to bring them to book. Since then there have been daring robberies in Smith Falls, where houses were entered, Campbellford, where two safes were carried away, and Lindsay where the safe in the C.P.R. depot was carried away, one house entered and $75 and a ladies' gold watch stolen, and two stores have been visited by midnight guests. Young Wilson, who escaped from Whitby Prison Farm, was seen in Lindsay last Friday, it is said, yet he made his getaway, so the belief that the old gang are at it again was strengthened.

Members of the gang have been traced to Rexboro and Bethany, and in other sections of Manvers township, and the wonder is that when the detectives traced them so far they did not keep on their trail, strengthen their numbers if necessary, and round the bunch up. At least the people look for some results, and the arresting of suspicious characters might at least lead to a clue. The thieves or desperadoes, appear to be nervy enough, and are probably desperate. At the same time the wheels of justice do not work fast enough to suit those who have suffered by the depredations of these robbers, says the Lindsay Warder.

The story goes that previous to the wholesale robbery of stores in Lindsay several months ago that a maimed man selling some kind of wares went from place to place, and from store to store. He, it is believed, was the forerunner of the robbers, and he, it is said, drew out miniature maps of the town and surroundings, and how various stores could be entered. One of these maps was found lying on the floor of one of the stores robbed in Lindsay.

Now, it is claimed, previous to the robbery of the C.P.R. station and two stores in Lindsay last week, that a man with one hand used up and apparently in distressed circumstances, visited these places and other houses and stores soliciting aid. He, it may be, furnished the robbers with the information necessary to burglarize these places.

If there is such a gang in existence it is time that the provincial police got busy and rounded up the entire outfit.

BLANCHE YORK IN THE CITY?

A man thought to be a detective and a young woman said to be Miss Blanche York, who has been missing from her home in Tamworth, since the first of this month, were in the city this morning, having arrived here on the train from Lindsay.

Confirmation of the report is lacking. Perhaps they were bride and groom.

HYDRO POWER

Another step towards the expropriation of the Peterboro Light and Power Company by the local Hydro-Electric commission was taken this morning when City Solicitor G. N. Gordon registered the notice of expropriation. The registration is merely a matter of form and the matter will have to be arbitrated. City Clerk Armstrong states that he understands the company will not sell for the sum of $100,000 which was set by the valuators and that the sum involved will have to be settled by arbitration. The arbitrators will be appointed in the near future.

STRAY SHOTS

New Ross Rifles Distributed Among Regiment

Commanding Officer Lt.-Col. Clegg of the 57th Regiment has called an important meeting to be held this evening at the Armouries at 8.30. This meeting is of special interest and all officers are urgently requested to attend.

Fifty Ross rifles equipped with the latest devices and the last word in fire arms for regiments arrived this week and were distributed to a number of the crack shots who are acquainted with the mechanism of the new rifle. The men having tried the rifles are highly pleased with the excellent results. More rifles are expected shortly.

The officers in charge of the various companies are urging their men to get out and shoot. The ranges are open every Thursday and Saturday afternoon with conveyances taking the members there..

The annual shooting will come off sometime this fall when some keen contests are expected. Every officer is busy trying to turn out a winning company.

BIG INCREASE IN ACREAGE UNDER CULTIVATION IN SASKATCHEWAN

Department of Agriculture Issues Interesting Report Showing the Various Increases

The preliminary estimate of the Saskatchewan department of agriculture of the acreage under cultivation and sown with the four principal grain crops shows an increase of 2.59 per cent. over last year. Wheat, with 6,003,522 acres under cultivation shows an increase of 245,275 acres, or 4.22 per cent. Oats have increased by 154,049 acres, or 5.49 per cent. There has not been as much barley sown as expected, the report showing only 6,360 acres, or 2.07 per cent., while there is a decrease of over 15 per cent. in flax. The acreage this year is placed at 814,720, which is 152,417 less than last year. The totals for the other grains for the entire province are: Oats, 2,792,611; barley, 313,537, and flax, 814,720 acres.

The report goes on to state that seeding operations for 1914 began about April 15th and were completed by May 18th. The crops, although patchy and uneven in some districts of the western section of the province, are now looking healthy and making good progress. Less grain was sown on stubble this year and more land is being summer-fallowed each year. The soil in most parts of the province, according to the report was tilled much better this year than ever before, the farmers seeming to realise that well-tilled soil would more than repay the work put on it.

Stock Raising Increases.

A special paragraph is given to the gradual tendency of the farmers to turn toward stock raising and mixed farming. "The process of change towards mixed farming," says the report of the statistics branch, "is gradually taking place and will undoubtedly result in a more permanent and stable form of farming. All of Saskatchewan is not suited to the same type of mixed farming, but the grain areas are bound to be advantageously affected either by the increased raising of stock in some parts of the province or the increasing feeding of them in others. Abandoned farms are being retaken and a greater feeling of security prevails amongst the agricultural community."

The report goes on to show that there has been an increase of 25 per cent. in the number of sheep, hogs and milch cows bred or imported during the year. There have been less horses imported, but the breeding has considerably improved and the tendency seems to be toward stock raising.

Land Prices Decrease.

The price of land per acre shows a decided decrease as as compared with last year, while the difference is even more marked in comparison with the values in 1912. The average price per acre for the province in 1912 was from $23.95 to $35 for improved lands and from $15.90 to $21.72 for unimproved. In 1913 the prices were $22.98 to $29.84 for improved and $16.75 to $22.40 for unimproved. For this year the figures are: $19.10 to $25.65 for improved and $14.25 to $19.85 for unimproved lands.

With regard to wages for farm hands the preliminary report shows a decrease of 10 per cent., and states that there is little demand for farm hands. The average wage paid in the province is $25 per month, with board, as compared with a monthly wage of from $31 to $40 per month last year. There continues to be a good demand for domestic help on the farm and consequently there is a slight increase in the scale of wages offered.

ARCHIBALD BLUE DEAD.

OTTAWA, July 28. — Archibald Blue, chief officer of census and statistics for Canada, died rather suddenly at his residence here yesterday morning, aged 74. He had been ill for about two years, and his condition has been serious for the last three weeks, though death was not expected. He was a native of Oxford, Ont.

Originally a school teacher, he entered journalism. He was on the staff of The St. Thomas Journal from 1867 to 1879, when he became an editorial writer on The Toronto Globe, and in 1880 he went over to The Toronto World. In 1882 he organized and became secretary of the Ontario Bureau of Industries, and was appointed Provincial Deputy Minister of Agriculture in 1884. He afterwards acted as secretary of the commission of enquiry into the mineral resources of the province, and organised the bureau of mines, remaining at its head for nine years, until he came to Ottawa in 1900 as chief census commissioner for Canada.

Steamer Wrecks Lock Gates.

ST. CATHARINES, July 28.—The steamer Sarnor carried away two head gates of the lock about 11 o'clock yesterday morning. The steamer is owned by the Canada Cement Co. of Montreal. No damage was done to the steamer, and it is expected that locking will be resumed to-day.

The cause of the accident is said to be that the engine centred when entering the lock, and they were unable to check speed before hitting the upper gates.

Babe Got Morphine Tablets.

BURK'S FALLS, July 28. — The little three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Snider, while playing about the house got possession of some morphine tablets yesterday morning and ate them. When it was discovered that the child was ill medical aid was quickly summoned and everything done to try and save his life, but he died in a very short time.

Foreign Office Gloomy.

PARIS, July 28.—The impression at the French Foreign Office is that the semi-official note issued in Vienna explaining why Austria-Hungary could not accept the Servian reply, indicates that there has been no improvement in the situation.

Jimmy Direct Second

Jimmy Direct, Frank Montgomery's speedy stallion was second in the 2.15 pace at Montreal yesterday. Rouse's Point Boy won the race. The heats were ran in very fast time the best of which was 2.11. The local horse will be shipped home to rest up preparatory for a spin around the northern circuit.

Football at Bridgenorth.

The return football game between Selwyn and Bridgenorth will be played at Bridgenorth on Saturday evening. Last Friday, Selwyn won a 1-0 victory over the northern village.

WILL NOT INTERFERE.

Germany Says She Will Not Hamper Austria's Movements.

BERLIN, July 28.—Important conferences were held at Potsdam yesterday afternoon between the German Emperor, the Imperial Chancellor, Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, and the strategic heads of the army and navy, to determine definitely the German policy in the crisis.

The British and French ambassadors, Sir Edward Goschen and Jules Cambon, called on the Minister of Foreign Affairs, Herr Von Jagow, with communications from their Governments.

Authentic information has been received in Berlin that Russia, though not mobilizing her army, is taking certain precautionary military measures.

The British Ambassador made no concrete proposals. It is understood he told the German Foreign Minister that Great Britain's object was not to intervene in the Austro-Servian controversy which, he declared, was not Great Britain's affair, but to endeavor to find a basis on which Great Britain, France and Germany, by action at Vienna and St. Petersburg, could prevent the spread of the conflict.

The French Ambassador proposed that Germany use her influence at Vienna in favor of moderation. He was informed that Germany was perfectly willing to let the other powers try, but as Austria's ally, could not interfere with Austria's freedom of action.

The official announcement of Russia that no mobilization of her army had been ordered was supplemented by trustworthy information from Warsaw, that among the precautionary military means taken were the withdrawal of troops in Poland from the immediate frontiers of Germany and Austria for concentration in the interior, the recall of the Russian troops from their summer camps and the cancelling of leave of absence of all officers.

MUCH LUMBER IS DESTROYED

All Night Fire at Hull Causes Heavy Loss

OTTAWA, July 28.—A fire broke out in Gilmour and Hughson's lumber yards just east of Brewery Creek, Hull, shortly before 10 o'clck last night, and burned fiercely all night. Three million feet of valuable lumber have been destroyed, as well as a quantity of mill wood belonging to Simon Dupuis.

Fanned by the wind, the flames spread through the lumber with great rapidity in the direction of the residential section of the city.

The fire is supposed to have originated in the rear of the Simon Dupuis residence. It had made considerable headway before it was discovered and spread rapidly. The Hull fire brigade were utterly unable to check the advance of the flames and a call for aid was sent to the Ottawa fire department.

There were only two houses in the immediately vicinity of the lumber yards and both were badly scorched.

It is impossible at the present time to determine exactly the amount of the loss. In one block of lumber alone, which was completely destroyed, there was nearly three million feet of lumber, which would be worth about $300,000. The latest estimate of the loss is in the neighborhood of $500,000, seven million feet of lumber being destroyed.

Hamilton Boathouses Burn.

HAMILTON, July 28.—Fire broke out in a row of eight boathouses at the foot of Simcoe street, owned by Charles Freeman and Gus Matthews, at an early hour yesterday morning and the buildings were almost completely destroyed with a loss of between six and seven thousand dollars. Fifty rowboats, several canoes and seven launches were burned.

in order to remain in the capital during the crisis. It is said that Russia is urging Servia to give Austria the fullest possible satisfaction.

An extremely warlike spirit prevails in Vienna, where the evening papers declare that the Servians are only seeking evasions, and that therefore it is impossible for the Austrian Government to retreat. Further, they hint that even should Servia accept the Austrian ultimatum unconditionally and offer to pay the cost of Austria's mobilization, Austria now would be compelled to ask for quite new guarantees.

Big Bridge Blown Up.

VIENNA, July 28.—The Militarische Rundschau repeats the report that the Servians have blown up the great bridge across the Danube between Belgrade and Semlin. It is stated that the explosives in the bridge were discharged by pressing an electric button in Belgrade. It is also said that Servia has withdrawn her troops on the Albanian frontier.

Montenegro is reported to have mobilized her army. Great activity is being displayed in Loucen, a Montenegrin fortress overlooking the Austrian town of Cattaro. King Nicholas and his Government have gone to Podgoritza.

British Fleet Coaling.

PORTLAND, Eng., July 28. — The first fleet of the British navy has been recalled here by wireless telegraph and is now coaling. The fleet, which comprises 28 first-class battleships and a large number of cruisers and torpedo boat destroyers, had left here on the annual exercises and before the receipt of the Admiralty's order not to disperse. All leave has been stopped and it is understood that the fleet will proceed to the North Sea.

Russian Strike Over.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 28.—The workmen in the Russian capital who had been on strike, yesterday decided to resume work in order to emphasize the approval of the Russian Government's support of Servia. They made patriotic demonstrations in the streets and sang the Russian National Anthem.

Greece Will Help Servia.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 28.—The Greek Minister here yesterday declare that in the event of war between Austria-Hungary and Servia, Greece would be compelled to despatch 100,000 troops to the assistance of Servia.

SUMMER PASTIME

Installment No. 37.

Baseball Was Not the Cause of This Athlete Hurting His Foot.

Yet the whole picture certainly represents one of Canada's foremost baseball fielders and batting masters.

No, you don't have to be a baseball fan and it's not a special trick to make out the name represented by the picture. In fact it's as easy as adding two and two and getting four.

If You Are Ambitious to Win One of the 11 Prizes in Our $150.00 List of Cash Prizes.

You must rouse yourself and take advantage of some such aid as our Summer Pastime Handbook, containing over 2,500 names of players of baseball, football, lacrosse and hockey, so arranged as to make it as easy as possible for you to find the correct answers to the seventy-five rebus pictures which will appear in our Summer Pastime Competition. Price of the Handbook is 25c. (30c by mail.) The Handbook tells how to win.

THE SPORTING WORLD

HOSTILITIES OPEN WITH BEAVERS WINNING FIRST

Germany Schaeffer Does Great Execution on the Firing Line, But Blountmen Draw off in Good Order and Are Back at it Today

War clouds have hovered over the world for some time and yesterday morning Mr. G. Ort the "peaches" leader of the Beavers read in the headlines that Germany might become entangled in international strife. Mr. G. Ort gathered from that a hunch. He sent to the mound a Mr. Shaeffer, of limberger and lager fame, and this eminent sharp shooter was so effective that the Petes were beaten in a ten inning game by 3-2. It was close but the cheese hurler deserved his win as he was steadier than Belting. Rain threatened to break up the pastime on several occasions but the best J. Pluv could do was to shed a few scattered tears of dampness and Umpire Miller, the deep voiced gent, who by the way is the best assortment of an indicator handler that has worked here had the pleasure of seeing the battle fought to the last ditch. It was in the last trench that Peterboro failed and Toronto triumphed as one was pushed over in the tenth and that lonely tally proved sufficient to carry off the ham.

Tacks is tacks. Schaeffer outpitched Belting although the Swedish one did very well and was not disgraced. Schaeffer had a smile on him like a spring Mayflower while at times when Belting got himself into a hole the multitude bore grins which would have made the last rose of summer look like a piece of Johnny cake in a real cake factory. On one occasion the photographer could have grabbed a study in mugs. The Beavers had three on and none out. Every one looked two ways for rain. When the side was retired by some nice box work and a smart throw to the plate by Welsh the smile of the contented swept across the maps of the multitude there assembled.

Belting Worked Overtime.

In all but three of the ten innings Belting was in trouble. The first man up was either passed, connected with the sphere or found himself perched on the pillow either through a boot or some other kindness of fortune. As a result the Swede was forced to hurl his head off and his work in getting out of the hole in the sixth when three were on the cushions and none out showed that the resident from the far off land had nerve. The Swede was not encouraged to any great extent by his team mates who, not all of them, nagged him while on the bench. Some said it was the only way to make him pitch, but—when King threw one away in the first which paved the way for the first run, the Swede was silent. At the time Belting was being panned, the Petes had not scored while Toronto had two, so why not apply the old stuff. How can a team win a game if it fails to score? In our opinion Belting was doing his best. It was not the best he has shown but the best of them often find it difficult to get going.

Schaeffer on the other hand was a stingy stiff. He was only in danger in the sixth and in that frame the Petes scored two runs. Outside of that innings the Petes failed to do anything with him and his curve which broke just right for him and wrong for the Petes never worked better for the big Emperor.

Smart Fielding.

The fielding on the part of both clubs was smart. King had a bad throw in the first, which by the way is a rarelty with the middle sacker while he also had a boot in the tenth. Killilea committed Toronto's error when he threw wide to first in the tenth, the peg drawing Shultz off the bag. Burrill's grab of Kelley's line fly in the fifth. Isaac's knock down of Byrne's smash in the fourth, Frank Fox's one hand stab of Ort's grounder in the fifth, Dolan's grab of Hunt's sizzler and his slide to first to beat the runner and Welsh's perfect peg to the plate in the sixth were some of the features. Snell formerly with the Toronto Internationals shaped up pretty well and the fellow who told the writer his arm was bad should have said it was not too bad for "B" class company.

The Petes scored their only runs sixth when after Blount had skied out Welsh singled to center and Dolan drew a pass. Rooney then came through with a double to left which scored Dolan and Welsh. That was the only innings which the Petes had a chance. In the other innings they got men on when one or two were down and if the first man happened to get on he was either forced at second or the necessary was lacking.

Visitors Scored First.

Toronto broke into the score column in the first. Hunt was hit by a pitched ball, Ort forced him at second and Trout was safe on an error. Killilea then poked one through second and Ort scored. In the fifth Hunt doubled, swiped third and Ort and Trout were easy outs but Killilea walked and worked a double steal with Hunt, the latter scoring. In the tenth Trout was safe on King's error and Killilea drew a walk. Isaac singled and when he and Killilea tried a double theft the latter was out. Toronto threatened on other occasions but Belting heaved himself out of the hole in good style.

PEACHES ORT IS MANAGER

Replaces Lee Who is Busy Scouting

George Ort has been appointed manager of the Toronto Canadian League Club. He replaces Knotty Lee who is being retained as scout for the International League team. Ort has had charge for the past three weeks as Knotty has been looking over the talent in the various minor leagues for three weeks. Ort led the St. Thomas Club last year with fair success.

MERCANTILE LEAGUE.

At six-thirty this evening the De Laval and Red Caps will clash in the replay of their protested game. Both teams will be out for a win and with Flaherty and Carson the opposing slabmen the combat will undoubtedly be keen.

BOOSTERS ATTENTION!

Tickets for booster's day are now on sale at the offices of the Examiner and Review, Oriental Hotel, White House, Lynch's drug store and Trebilcock's bookstore. These tickets retail at 50 cents and admit the holder to both the grounds and either of the two grandstands.

BOOSTER'S DAY NOT A CASE OF GIVING SOMETHING AND GETTING NOTHING IN RETURN

UNUSUAL interest is being shown in the two Booster's Days, on Thursday and Saturday. On these days the coffers of the baseball club should be fattened to a considerable degree [illegible] crowds will no doubt be on band. Thursday's game will be called at 3 o'clock as will the Saturday encounter and Hamilton will be the attraction. Every fan in the city should be on hand to boost the team along and to lend financial assistance to the club owners. The Peterboro management has struggled hard and successfully to give the fans good baseball and although the club ran into a slump and some hard luck at the commencement of the season the class of ball being dished up is only an evidence of the efforts the directors have set forth with a view to giving the city a good brand of the great summer pastime. From last position the club has climbed to sixth and will undoubtedly do better than that before the season is over.

The elevation of the league rating from Class "C" to "B" class meant higher salaries and in the face of deficits of former years under the old rating the directors went ahead and provided the fans with a team which in its present shape is a credit to the city. The season has proven a financial set back from the start and the club is thousands of dollars behind, so why not get out Mr. Fan and do your share by passing a fifty cent piece into the box office on Thursday and Saturday, as it cannot be denied that you, Mr. Fan should do your share. The fan either makes or breaks the game and here is the opportunity to rush to the assistance of the men who have continually lost money for the sake of the sport. The ball club is not asking any one to give something for nothing as the games are well worth the price and it is up to every fan, male and female, to do his and her share to show the Canadian League that Peterboro possesses sports and "sportesses" of the real, genuine, dyed in the wool variety. Thursday and Saturday at 3 o'clock. Stick the date in your mind and act accordingly.

COMMENT

As You Like It

Belting was given an unusual panning by several of his team mates during yesterday's game, for winding up with men on the paths. No doubt the Swede showed a flash of bad baseball by so doing but it is hardly reasonable to believe that a calling down on the bench by several players during which personalities entered into the conversation could do any good. And then it was not Belting's fault altogether. At that time Toronto had scored two runs and the Petes none and one of the runs was helped across by an error. Had the Petes got out there and bingled a little more consistently they would have won because a hurler cannot win ball games if his team fails to hit behind him.

W. C. McMullen one of the contributors to the Canadian Sporting Life pays the following well deserved boost to Umpire Miller.

"One of the indicator handlers in James Patrick Fitzgerald's circuit who is more than making good is George Miller, a former ball player, who has had no trouble in any game he officiated at this season. Mr. Miller is a man who is a credit to baseball. He makes the players display more than the usual amount of ginger and there is not a dull moment during the time he is behind the catcher. Miller played the game for a number of years, having had big league experience and he furnishes another illustration of the fact that a man who played the game himself is capable of judging what is right and what is wrong in the great game. Miller is one man in the league who is liable to go to higher company before the Canadian League season closes."

There is just one mistake. Umpire Miller was almost mobbed in the first game at Erie by the home crowd but he stuck to his guns and since then the players seem to realize that he rules with an iron arm. Miller belongs to the International League and was farmed out to the Canadian. He will most likely go up.

A striking contrast between the work of umpires is shown in the work of McPartlin who was here last week. Mac was very bad and did not seem to make any effort to get down on a play at all when he was working alone and then when he was working in the double system he was little better. President Fitzgerald canned him Sunday night in Ottawa.

The Petes almost pulled a triple yesterday viewing the play in the tenth in a hurry but it was just almost. Killilea was on third, Isaac on first and Shultz up. Shultz drove one at Belting who threw to Dolan who threw to Fox in an effort to catch Isaac. Fox saw he had not time to touch Isaac or the bag and whipped the pill home in time to catch Killilea by inches. Had Fox chose to retire Isaac, Killilea would have been safe. It was quick thinking on Frank's part.

"Well, Bess, did you land him?"

"She did," called back a deep masculine voice.

WEDDING FEAST PREPARED AND GROOM CAME NOT

But Feasting Went on Just the Same

Belleville, July 28.—A Jewish wedding which was to have been celebrated in the Academy at four o'clock on Sunday afternoon, did not take place as the prospective bridegroom did not appear.

A Jewish nuptial ceremony consists of a very interesting ritual. Mr. David Phillips, the father of the disappointed girl, Miss Sarah Phillips, had arranged to have a grand wedding feast to which he had invited about two hundred and fifty guests, a large number of whom were Christians, who are always desirous of being present at such ceremonies.

A large number were present at four o'clock. A message had arrived that the bridegoom-to-be, Mr. Fred Demees, of Toronto, had left that city by automobile in the morning, so that it was expected that he would be in Belleville at three o'clock. Four o'clock came but he did not. Mr. Phillips then announced to the guests that they would wait until six o'clock. The hours wore anxiously away. And then Mr. Phillips told the guests that the wedding feast would go on.

The spread that was put before the guests was most elaborate. The choicest fowls and dishes were enjoyed by the large company

After the dinner the floor was cleared and dancing was indulged in until nearly eleven o'clock.

The parents, the girl and the guests, Jew and Christian, were sorely disappointed at the non-appearance of the young man. The guests expressed their feelings to Mr. and Mrs. Phillips and their daughter, who left nothing undone to make their friends feel at home.

The reason for the young man's actions is unknown. He is in business in Toronto. The family have known him for some years.

Not a Case of Cash

Mr. Guy Popham, who is spending the summer at his cottage at Chemong was in the city today and informed a Review scribe that the usually popular summer resort is very quiet this season. The cottagers are all taken up but the general flow of week end visitors is very small. The loss of the hotel by fire leaves no accommodation and this is keeping many away.

Asked if he thought the money stringency was keeping numerous Americans away, Mr. Popham stated that there would be no absentees whatever if suitable accommodation were at hand.

WITCHES OF SALEM IN EARLY DAYS

Many Were Accused of Black Art and Tortured

Salem is famous in early colonial history for its witches. The delusion which led to the execution of twenty persons and the torture of fifty originated through the hysteria of the children of Rev. Samuel Parris. In the winter of 1691-2 his daughter, Elizabeth, aged nine, his niece, Abigail Williams, aged eleven, and several friends used to meet to practice tricks. A half-negro slave, Tituba, began to teach them what she called the "black art," and soon they were barking like dogs or screaming at some object they said they could see although invisible to every one else.

Witchcraft was a very real thing to the people of the seventeenth century, and Cotton Mather and his teachings encouraged the belief in it. Some one had to be blamed for the folly of the girls, and Parris beat Tituba until she admitted that she had bewitched the children.

John Indian, her husband, through fear, accused others, and the young people of Salem, notably Ann Putham, spread the stories. At length a regular reign of terror prevailed in the village. Any one who had a grudge against another could accuse him, and strangely enough, some of those thus caluminated admitted that they really were obsessed. A special court was formed to try those who had sold themselves to the devil, and it was unsafe to express doubt of any one's guilt.

Parris got Rev. George Burroughs, pastor of Salem, hanged as friend of the witches, and one colonist, Giles Corey, a man of 80, in connection with the craze, achieved the distinction to be the only man ever slain in America by the old punishment of peinforte dure. Accused by Ann Putnam, he was determined to do all he could to save his property for the family. If he was brought to trial and convicted it would be confiscated, and the only way he could avoid this was to refuse to plead. So he stood mute as the charge was read to him, and, according to custom, his obduracy was punished by the peine forte et dure. Iron ewights were piled upon him, but not quite enough to crush him. Then he was left to linger in agony and fed with only enough bread and water to keep him alive.

Tradition has it that the brave old man stood this torture with such courage that he taunted his prosecutors and asked them to pile on heavier weights. He died in this way, and four days later his wife also was tried for witchcraft and hanged.

QUAKE IN NOVA SCOTIA

Two Violent Shocks in South Western District

HALIFAX, N.S., July 28.—Earth tremors, which violently shook the buildings and so alarmed the inhabitants that in one place they fled from their houses, fearing immediate collapse, were felt at noon yesterday in the southwestern shore of Nova Scotia, from Mahone Bay to Shelburne.

The disturbances occurred a few minutes before noon, and were in most places felt in two distinct shocks.

The earthquakes came from an easterly direction, and evidently spent their force at Shelburne, where only one shock was felt, and that of less duration than elsewhere.

At Bridgewater the shock was very severe, but no damage was reported. The distance between Mahone Bay and Shelburne is about 100 miles. At Sable River, which is half way between these two places, the shock was so severe that pictures were disarranged on the walls, and houses shook so violently that people rushed into the open in terror, fearing their buildings would collapse. It was in this vicinity, a radius of twenty miles; that the seismic disturbances were greatest.

At Liverpool, which is the next important station east of Sable River, on the Halifax & Southwestern Railway, there were two distinct shocks, one of twelve seconds' and another following immediately of six seconds' duration. All buildings in this town were more or less shaken, but no damage was reported.

German Government's Official Organ Makes Encouraging Comment on International Situation--- Germany Shares Views of Russia for Maintenance of Peaceful Relations

Canadian Press Despatch.

Berlin, July 29.—The North German Gazette, the official organ of the German Government, publishes the following comment on the international situation: "The peaceful trend to an official Russian communication issued yesterday, finds a lively echo here. The Imperial German Government shares the views of Russia for a maintenance of peaceful relations, and it hopes the German people will support it by maintaining a moderate and quiet attitude.

GERMANY AND ITALY CONTINUE EFFORTS.

Vienna, July 29.—Germany and Italy continued to-day their efforts to localize the war and efforts of all European diplomats are being directed towards the highest object.

PARTIAL MOBILIZATION IN RUSSIA.

London, July 29.—Despatches received here state that the partial mobilization of troops in Southern and Southwestern districts was ordered by the Russian War Office last night. It is argued in official circles that this action although it dangerously diminishes chances of maintaining European peace, does not necessarily imply a rupture of the relations between Austria and Russia, and hope is still expressed that some European power may yet succeed in bringing about an understanding.

CONTINUE PARLEY AND AVERT WAR.

London, July 29.—The Belgian Cabinet has decided to call out three classes of army reserves. European nations, generally, while hoping that the war may be localized, are making preparations for a greater war which must ensue in case Russia intervenes. Diplomats in London consider there is hope of averting a conflict so long as the parleying between Austrian and Russian ministers continues. Stock exchanges at Liverpool, St. Petersburg and Amsterdam are closed for to-day or longer.

DEMONSTRATIONS IN ST. PETERSBURG.

St. Petersburg, July 29.—Great patriotic demonstrations took place here and in Moscow to-day. In parts of Southern Russia, something approaching martial law has been established by the Government.

BRITISH FLEET UNDER STEAM.

Portland, Eng., July 29.—A British fleet sailed from here to-day for an unknown destination. No information could be obtained as to the movements of the warships.

FIVE SMALL FAILURES IN LONDON.

London, July 29.—British consols dropped to-day to sixty-nine and a half, the lowest point since the early years of the last century. Five small failures occurred, and it was feared there would be more later in the day. There was nothing doing on the exchange, the market being in a condition of agitated suspension.

New York, July 29.—After a wild and excited opening this morning, the stock market had a sharp recovery to the level of last night's closing. In Chicago, wheat, which was expected to show another sharp rise, was, instead, two cents a bushel lower at the opening. A better feeling in Berlin was supposed to be responsible for this improvement.

STRANGE CASE AT LOCAL HOTEL; A MISSING GIRL

Another mysterious disappearance was cleared up in Peterboro today when Miss Pearce the blue eyed maiden who disappeared from her home in the vicinity of Hastings was identified at a local hotel today in company with an elderly man who said he was taking her home. The man who registered as from Stratford and the girl, arrived yesterday morning at the hotel and registered as father and daughter. Most of the wise acres figured them as man and wife. The man was about fifty years of age and the girl less than eighteen. Last evening the man left the hotel and instructed the manager not to let "that girl" leave the house. The manager suspected that a father would not refer to his daughter as "that girl" and would not ask that she be detained. After some questioning today the man said the girl was Miss Pearce who ran away from home and he was taking her back. Shortly afterwards, the couple left the hotel and have not been seen since.

VERDICT IS NOT GUILTY

Mme Caillaux is Acquitted by Jury

WILD SCENES FOLLOW

Woman Falls Upon Neck of Her Counsel

PARIS, July 29.—Mme. Henriette Caillaux was last night acquitted by the jury in the Court of Assise of the wilful murder, on March 16 last, of Gaston Calmette, editor of The Figaro. The jury brought in its verdict after 50 minutes' deliberation, and the announcements was followed by the wildest tumult.

Mme. Caillaux tottered and fell upon the neck of her counsel, Fernand Labori, and embraced him. Her hair was undone and fell over her shoulders, her hat dropped to the floor. The spectators stood upon desks and chairs. "Caillaux, Labori," and cries of "Caillaux, assassin," merged into one.

The din was deafening. Several groups of barristers came to blows and the Republican Guards, in an endeavor to separate them, joined in the melee. The spectacle of Labori and Chenu, the latter counsel for the Calmette family, embracing each other, calmed the tumult for a moment, but it was redoubled when they left with Mme. Caillaux.

Failing to make himself heard, the presiding judge, followed by the other judges, marched out of the room. The advocates took complete possession of the court, some of them mounted the judge's desks and harangued the crowd. The guards then cleared a portion of the court, and comparative quiet being re-established, Judge Albanel returned and read the judgment, ordering the release of Mme. Caillaux.

This ended the most sensational trial that a Parisian court has had to deal with in years. Each day provided its dramatic thrill, and, although the verdict has been pronounced, the outcome cannot be foretold.

LAND MORE ARMS

Five Thousand Rifles Imported in Wicklow

DUBLIN, Ireland, July 29. — A consignment of 4,000 rifles for the Irish Nationalist Volunteers was landed during the night at Newcastle on the coast of County Wicklow. The gun-runners evaded the coast guards and police and conveyed the weapons to Dublin in motor cars. Two gunboats were in the bay at the time flashing their lights about.

Another 1,000 rifles was landed near Kilcool, also in Wicklow.

The coroner's inquest on the victims of Sunday's fighting between the King's Own Scottish Borderers and the mob was adjourned till Thursday at the request of the lawyers representing the soldiers, who asked for time to prepare their evidence.

SITUATION OF GREAT GRAVITY SAYS ASQUITH

Lloyd George Has More Reassuring Statement

Baron Rothschild Says the Situation Looks Brighter

London, July 29.—Mr. Asquith told the House of Commons today that the situation was one of great gravity. He could only say that the British Government is not relaxing its efforts to do everything in its power to limit the area of conflict. Lloyd George made the reassuring statement that the Bank of England saw nothing in the present situation to necessitate the calling of a meeting of bankers to deal with it. Baron Rothschild in an interview says: "It looks as if there were more chance of war being localized. Yesterday was a blacker day than today. I think things look a little brighter. I do not quite know why but I have a feeling that they are."

From Paris comes word that Russia has been officially informed that Austria would respect the territorial integrity of Servia and even wished to abstain from occupying the Capital.

Shaves at Fifteen Cents to Remain

Contrary to a published report, the Review is informed that shaves at fifteen cents will continue. The bosses made the innovation, and it is understood the journeymen have taken up the matter, with the result that all union shops will eventually charge fifteen cents.

Not all the bosses made the extra charge, when the change went into effect at the first of the month. It was not compulsory—just an experiment. But some of the shops which charged the extra five cents have lost trade, because the other fellow across the street, saw a chance to boost his receipts.

At the meeting of the local Union, it was agreed that the bosses of union shops would be given one month to introduce the charge of fifteen cents for shaves.

SINCLAIR FOR SOUTH OXFORD

Recount Shows His Majority to be Five

Liberal Resigns and Conservative is Elected for La Pas

Canadian Press Despatch.

Woodstock, July 29.—V. A. Sinclair of Tillsonburg, Conservative, was declared today elected for South Oxford as a result of the recount, concluded last week, before deputy Judge Wallace. The official majority as previously was four, but the recount makes it five. Colmayberry, the Liberal candidate who applied for the recount is ordered to pay the accounts.

Le Pas, Man., July 29.—William Carriere, Liberal candidate has resigned and Dr. Orcok, Conservative, is declared elected by acclamation.

BODIES TAKEN TO CATHEDPAL

Removal of Dublin Victims is Solemn Ceremony

DUBLIN, July 29.—The bodies of the four victims of Sunday's riots were taken from the morgue to the Marlborough Street Cathedral last night. Thousands of persons in procession followed the hearses and great crowds lined the streets along the route of the funeral. Not a single policeman nor soldier was to be seen, all having been ordered to remain away from the vicinity of the funeral cortege in order not to excite the emotional populace. Absolute silence marked the progress of the solemn procession.

At the cathedral the clergy received the coffins, which will lie before the altar until this morning when a high requiem mass will be celebrated. After mass the funeral procession will proceed to Glasneven Cemetery, where the bodies will be buried.

TWO WANDERERS GATHERED IN

Youngsters Are Rescued from Perilous Situation

After running the gauntlet of several narrow escapes such as escaping from being run down by automobiles and rolling under horses' feet, two youngsters named Weir, residing in the south end of the city wandered about the down town section of the city this morning with the result that Fire Chief Howard rescued them from under the feet of a team of horses. The two who were taken over to make the acquaintance of Chief Thompson, displayed nerve that was astonishing and when asked if they woud go home they replied that they would ride home. The youngsters are about five and four years of age. On several occasions, lately, they have met with serious accidents, due to wandering away from home.

The eldest youngster was the means of affording considerable excitement last winter at the Market Hall when he tried the art of stickink his tongue to a frosted iron pole, with the result that it was some time before his tongue was released.

The two were sent home with the advice that they would be punished unless they remained at home.

TAMWORTH MYSTERY SOLVED IN CELLAR OF DOCTOR'S RESIDENCE

Bailiffs Seize Furniture, Finds Bloodstains, and Body of Miss Yorke is Discovered

Canadian Press Despatch.

Tamworth, July 29.—The remains of Blanche Yorke found in the cellar of Dr. C. K. Robinson's house, here last night, were in a gruesome condition. Both legs had been amputated at the knees and the trunk was in an advanced stage of decomposition. The leg bones were discovered in a furnace and the body showed evidence of an illegal operation having been performed.

MISS BLANCHE YORK

TAMWORTH, Ont., July 29. — A revolting crime has been unearthed in the discovery of the body of Miss Blanche Yorke, the dressmaker who had been missing from her home since July 8, in the cellar of the house recently occupied by Dr. C. K. Robinson, who has been missing for some days, late yesterday afternoon.

That the girl met a violent death is practically certain, but whether it was the result of actual foul play or the sad sequence of an operation is yet to be proved, but the position in which the body was found demonstrates that a deliberate attempt was made to dispose of the body after death, or hide it sufficiently to ward off suspicion until the guilty party of parties could show a clean pair of heels.

Yesterday's ghastly discovery was the culmination of a series of searches, and consequent wild-goose chases in pursuit of questionable clues all over the country. The girl had been in the habit of attending Dr. Robinson for treatment, and he was the last person she was known to have visited previous to her disappearance, but he blandly pushed aside any inquisitive questions, although a search of his house was made by Messrs. A. B. Carscallen and Henry Richardson and Provincial Inspector Miller, and the suspicions were temporarily removed.

The levying of a distress warrant was the initial means of the discovery. Messrs. Taylor & Co. and W. B. Richardson, with W. P. Carscallen, the bailiff, were making a seizure of furniture at the vacated Robinson home for non-payment of debt. When proceeding to the bedrooms to remove the mattresses, etc., Mr. Taylor noticed blood stains on the bedrail, and pulling up the blind, saw large blood stains on the floor.

Messrs. Edward and Samuel Yorke, brothers of the deceased, were immediately informed of the suspicions, and a thorough search of the whole house was made by the party. Reaching the cellar they found charred portions of a mattress, while unburnt sections were seen covered with blood.

Turning over some boxes, Edward Yorke noticed a peculiar odor, and immediately exclaimed: "I have found something'" The investigators then threw aside a low pile of wood and rags, and commenced digging out the earth, and the body was found three inches below the surface. The news of the discovery soon spread, and a large crowd assembled around the house.

Crown Attorney C. H. Preston and Coroner Cowan, both residents of Napanee, were notified and left for the scene. In the meantime Dr. Wilson of this town was requested by Coroner Cowan to take charge of the remains and see that they were left intact until he arrived.

It was later declared that an inquest will be opened to-day.

Suspicion has now settled on the shoulders of the occupant of the house, Dr. C. K. Robinson, who was last heard of in Kingston after his disappearance from this place two weeks ago. Mrs. Robinson was said to be lying seriously ill in that city. It is understood that their apprehension will be sought, although no

RELATIVE OF MISS YORK DISCUSSES THE MURDER

Thinks Blow Will be Fatal to Aged Mother of Murdered Young Woman—Had Always Felt That Dr. Robinson Had Something to do With the Mystery

"It will kill her mother," said Nathan Wagar, as he sat in the gospel tent on Harvey Street, this afternoon, and discussed the murder of Blanche Yorke, who is his wife's cousin on her father's side and a third cousin of Mr. Wagar. Mr. Wagar is conducting evangelistic meetings in the tent, and when a reporter broke the news to him, he expressed himself as above and added, "The dirty cur, I knew Dr. Robinson had something to do with Blanche's disappearance from the day she disappeared."

Mrs. Wagar was not present when the reporter called and her husband thought it better that he should break the news.

"The last time my wife and myself were with Blanche or "Happy" as they called her was on Xmas Day when we all had dinner together. She was the life of the gathering and a better liked girl never lived in Tamworth. I remember, I jollied her about being an old maid, as you know she was 33 years of age, and her reply was that she was not too old and there was still a chance. James McGregor was her fiance and a fine fellow and I think they were to be married soon. Blanche and her brother, who resides at Eldorado were like big children. Her mother worshipped her and it will be an awful blow to her. Yes it will kill her."

Discussing the fact that the house was not searched before,, Mr. Wagar stated that the authorities had done good work and wild goose chases which they were sent on by people imagining they met Miss Yorke in Kingston and other places put the police off the scent. Various theories had been advanced, including the suicide one and no one ever suspected for a moment that Dr. Robinson would be so brazen as to leave a body in the house of crime and remain with it, and no one ever thought of the murder having been committed there as it was the general opinion that Blanche had gone away.

"I cannot realize it and it will kill her mother," repeated Mr. Wagar.

"They will get him though," he added.

"Yes, it took them more than a year to get Beattie Nesbitt and a long time to get Crippen, but they surely will get him," replied the reporter.

"The case is somewhat similar to the Crippen one in view of the burial in the cellar. Dr. Crippen also cut his wife to pieces," added Mr. Wagar.

It will be remembered that Scotland Yard unearthed the mysterious disappearance of Mrs. (Dr.) Crippen by a search of the cellar and the finding of a portion of her night attire which was identified positively as hers. It was the first big victory of wireless in the capture of criminals when Capt. Kendall turned the doctor over to Inspector Dew at Father Point.

PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, JULY 29, 1914

THE CRISIS IN EUROPE.

THE SITUATION in Europe has suddenly taken on its most critical aspect since the Franco-German War. Perhaps it is the most critical since the great Napoleon marched his armies, regardless of boundary lines, alliances and treaties. What makes the situation so grave is the fact that nearly all Europe is involved. Russia is supposed to stand behind Servia with a racial sympathy as the leader of the Slav people. Germany and Italy are allies of Austria, while Britain and France have their entente. Russia is at present well prepared for war, while Servia is practically bankrupt, and, alone, can offer little effective resistance to the Austrian power. Moreover, there is in nearly all Continental European countries, especially Germany, Austria and Russia, a distinctly military class with military traditions and military ambitions that can be satisfied only in war. Relict of the Middle Ages it may be, but it is there, so strong that in Germany, at least, it constitutes one of the principal political parties. The long peace that Europe has enjoyed seems to be departing as though the powers were spoiling for a fight. Latest reports say war is declared between Austria and Servia. Could it stop there, the world would be easier, but even if no other nations actually engage in fighting, a very improbable condition, the effect of the struggle must be felt all over the world in high prices, hard times, financial stringency, reduced trade, and a general set-back to all those beneficent things which constitute peaceful progress. In the impending turmoil, England will do well to let the military dogs fight off their surplus energy, so that she will feel less the weight of the struggle, and be better prepared for fighting herself, if such a necessity should arise. At present, the world is hoping that the situation will not prove as bad as it looks.

PRESERVING PETERBOROUGH'S PARKS.

A LADY in Peterborough, who is interested in the care of this city's beautiful parks, has been kind enough to present for our consideration some data on the subject. We have examined it with interest and pleasure, and are glad to know that some people would like to see our parks handled intelligently, even though the method might not agree with everybody's ideas on the subject.

This lady would like to see Jackson Park, particularly, preserved in its natural state, so that wild flowers that abound there would not be destroyed and would thus afford a splendid place for the study of botany, a subject in collegiates and normal schools. Burning the grass and dead plants is condemned, as it is said to destroy seeds and young plants, as well as the roots or base of some fine trees.

Many cities have many parks, but there is a distinct sameness about most city parks. They are largely the same orderly arrangement of straight or winding walks, rectangular or circular flower beds, green grass nicely cropped, with signs to keep off it. They are aglow with tulips and hyacinthes in spring and showy with geraniums in summer, all arranged in regular rows, borders, circles, squares, as the case may be. All these parks are beautiful and pleasure-giving, but, after going the round of them, it is a delight to find a natural park, where things grow with more freedom, if with less arrangement and culture. Not every city possesses the essentials for a beautiful natural park, and it would only violate good taste to try to create one, but Peterborough has in Jackson Park every requisite essential for such a park. This city has plenty of other parks where art can be utilized to sufficient advantage. For these reasons, the preservation of Jackson Park in a natural state is to be commended, but we would observe that it is incompatible with modern ideas on growth and utility to preserve a natural state beside a cultured state. The tendency is to fuse and evolve something different from both. For that reason Jackson Park can hardly escape either the improvements or defacements of progress, but nevertheless a great deal can be done towards keeping this park in a state resembling nature.

The first requisite is the appointment of a proper Parks Commissioner who understands landscape gardening, or, shall we say, architecture. It would make a mess of the whole business if a man were appointed just because he was a good alderman. When this city appoints a Parks Commissioner, it wants a man who knows something about parks and the care and preservation of trees and flowers, and who can outline an efficient policy for their upkeep. The office should not be elective at all, but an appointive one. Such a policy might involve the necessity for the services of a landscape gardener, but at any rate this city's parks cannot be as well cared for as their importance demands until they are properly supervised. Under the present system of supervising the upkeep of this city's parks, they are cared for about as well as can be expected, and much better than in many places of similar size. But that it not good enough. If this city is to go ahead, it must do things better than other cities do them.

BASEBALL IN PETERBOROUGH.

THE CONDITION of the baseball club in this city is such as to merit the serious consideration of the citizens. No game is cleaner or more scientific or more adapted for the pleasure of both ladies and gentlemen than baseball. Other interesting games have a greater margin for roughness and other disagreeable features, from which organized baseball is fairly free. A number of men who are behind the Peterborough Baseball Club have undertaken financial responsibilities, not with the object of making money out of the game, but for the pure love of the sport, and for the interests of the city.

Some people may, perhaps, think that baseball, such as has been presented here, is of no concern to this city. A little reflection will doubtless dispell that illusion. As one city in the league, the name of Peterborough is daily in the press of most fair-sized cities in Ontario and in several other cities in other provinces and the United States. As an advertising feature of this city, baseball is of considerable importance. Take places like Kingston, Belleville, Chatham, for example, you never hear of them during the baseball season except in the ordinary course of news. Kingston comes to the fore in the hockey season, but then Peterborough is in that game, too. Of the smaller Ontario cities, therefore, Peterborough occupies a prominent position in sport, and derives what advantages there are from it. Again, baseball is an advantage to a manufacturing city. Employers say that it is difficult to get men in small places where there are few attractions. This statement is quite true, for there were many men working one or two days a week in Toronto last winter for the simple reason that they did not want to go to a small place where they would get constant employment but have little to attract them when off duty.

This season the local baseball club has not been supported as well as it should. The backers of the club have actually lost money in an effort to keep this city in a respectable organization, and it is hoped that from now on the citizens will give the local club better support, for if they leave the club in a financial hole it is almost certain that Peterborough will be in the woods next season so far as being in the public eye during the summer season is concerned.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

IT IS SAID that when a hydroaeroplane fell into Swedish waters a submarine boat dived beneath it and brought it to the shore uninjured. Thus does the brotherly affection of these warlike organisms commend itself to men.

Detroit News.

Had Mr. Mellen and the directors who truckled to him, as he claims he truckled to a bigger man higher up, committed an ordinary larceny by conversion, they might have been convicted and imprisoned, but the presumption is that they have accumulated enough capital by their public betrayal to place them above the law and make them inaccessible to its penalties.

Things Worth While.

New York Sun.

Life is what we make it, and personal success has little to do with material conditions. With keen eyes and a good memory, warm heart and a sense of humor, the elevator man has no reason to envy the trade magnate bloated with his dollars, the student soaked with his learning, or the Kaiser on his throne. To be oneself and to realize and love one's fellows are the only things really worth while, and anyone may lift himself to these heights even without an elevator.

The Energy of Walking.

Popular Mechanics.

The mechanics of the muscular effort used in walking, in golfing or in playing other games may be recorded with exactness by means of a new device to which the inventor has given the name "kinograph." It consists of a system of levers connected with a recording pencil in such a way that a step upon a moveable platform is registered on a strip of paper, which is propelled by clock work. The difference of the step in walking and in running is marked, and the swing of a golf player makes distinctive impressions.

Up Against It.

Montreal Gazette.

Austria's demands upon Servia, as reported in the cable despatches, include a demand that the Government at Sofia shall give formal assurance that it condemns the Servian propaganda, whose aim is to detach from Austria a portion of its territory, stop the work of those engaged therein, and express regret that Servian officers have shared in the condemned business. The Servian Govrnment is also called upon to suppress anti-Austrian societies, and publications and to advertise the fact, and to eliminate from its educational system influences hostile to its big neighbor. The dose is a big and bitter one. If Servia accepts it its independence will have been reduced. If it does not its independence may be gone.

"Melon Cutting" a "Crime."

The Toronto World.

What newspapers have a word to say about the intimated intention of the Canadian Pacific Railway to cut another melon in the interests of its shareholders? Every addition to capitalization which does not mean dollar for dollar of actual benefit to the road is a crime not only against the straight shareholders, but against the people of Canada. It is these prospective melons which are eagerly awaited by the speculators and make the shares of a road that cuts them the gamble of the stock exchanges. Will the Government never get down to recognize that the rights and interests of the people and of the shareholders will never be properly conserved until the processes which result in over-capitalization are curbed and controlled?

SUPERANNUATED

By Walt Mason

So live that when the gray is showing on your brow, the boss won't come and say, "We do not need you now; we have a younger man to take the work you do, and so we tie the can, reluctantly, to you." This tragedy occurs a hundred times a day, and it may hit you, sirs, when you are growing gray. Conserve your strength and health, don't paint the village red, and you'll be earning wealth when snowy is your head. The gray-haired man is fired because he's all worn out; he got his spirit tired at wassail and at rout. He burned the midnight gin, and seldom hit the pump; and so a youth steps in, and he steps to the dump. Don't swear by ancient things, but innovations praise; a fossil he who clings to prehistoric ways. The good old world moves on, and you, if you would last, must always face the dawn, nor turn back to the past. The gray-haired man whose eyes are ever forward turned is seasoned, sane and wise, and he will not be spurned. It is the played-out wrecks who can't get down to tacks, who get it in the neck, as chickens get the axe.

Maria, three-year-old daughter of Edward Saari, near Fort William, was burned to death on Sunday, when, upon climbing to the top of a pile of sawdust, it suddenly gave way, letting her fall into a furnace of flame in the middle of the pile below.

To Find Your Umbrella.

A simple innovation to assist forgetful folks to recover articles left by them in public vehicles is announced from Berlin. In future every taxi and horse cab in the German capital will be provided with a little box filled with cards bearing the identification number of the vehicle. The traveler is requested to help himself from the box.

That the introduction in London of the same method for tracing lost property more quickly would not be out of place is shown by the fact that last year no fewer than 84,276 objects were found and deposited at Scotland Yard by drivers and conductors of public vehicles. The British climate is responsible for the fact that the largest number of these objects were umbrellas, of which 32,250 were lost and found. Next comes grips and satchels, 10,164.

A teaspoonful of grated horse-radish will keep a can of milk fresh for a day or two even in the hottest weather.

SWEARING OFF

IT takes only a leetle thing sumtimes to show a man whar he's makin' a big mistake. Take Wess Davis. Wess has been transformed from a regular sulphur-breathin' atom of profanity to a meek and soft-spoken citizen all through a leetle misunderstandin' he had with Doc Billings. Wess was sufferin' from toothache and he went over to get Doc to yank the offendin' molar out. Doc told him he'd have ter take gas and Wess flared up and said when he wanted ter polish himself off that way he'd turn on his own gas and not pay a saw-bones fer doin' it, and he left the Doc's office in a huff. Wess went home, took down his rifle, tied one end of a piece of twine to the tooth and tother end to a bullet, rammed the bullet home and fired outin' the upstairs winder. He got rid of the tooth all hunky and a part of his jaw as well and fer nigh two months he had to keep his face bandaged so tight he couldn't even mumble a cuss word. Arter he was able to speak again, he had clear forgot how to swear and nobody has heered Wess say as much as one cuss word since.

If the house seems damp, hang bags of charcoal about, especially in the cellar and hallways. The charcoal collects the dampness.

LURED BY BEAUTY

Women to Whose Rare Loveliness Mobs Paid Homage

"They can't walk in the park," wrote Horace Walpole of the beautiful Gunnings in 1751, "or go to Vauxhall, but such mobs follow them that they are generally driven away." Elizabeth, Maria and Kitty Gunning were three beautiful sisters who, coming over from Ireland in 1750, took London by storm. Nor was the furore that their beauty created of brief duration, for nine years later we read in the London Chronicle of Maria Gunning, by that time Countess of Coventry, and Lady Waldegrave, "that two ladies of distinction (who had, it seems, been incommoded by the mob, as the phrase is, the Sunday before) walked up and down the walks of St. James' park, preceded by soldiers from the guard—a precaution which gave no small offense to the rest of the company, who were frequently obliged to go out of their path to make way for the procession."

Equally potent was the beauty of the Countess de Castiglione, who, at her first appearance at a ball given by Napoleon III. at the Tuileries, created such a sensation on her entrance that the dancers stopped motionless and the strains of the band ceased, guests and musicians all pressing forward in their eagerness to catch a glimpse of the newcomer. Wherever she went afterward her peerless loveliness produced a like effect, people climbing on to chairs and benches to see her pass, while when, in 1862, she visited the London opera the audience stood upon the seats and struggled for every place of vantage from which to gaze upon the lovely Florentine.

Fanny Murray about the middle of the eighteenth century was one of the toasts of the town. Her beauty was beyond question and created such a stir at Tunbridge Wells, whither she went to drink the waters, as to necessitate the formation of a special guard of her admirers, who kept off the crowds that flocked and pressed around her when she walked on the Pantiles and other public resorts. Indeed, such was the fame of her beauty that from miles around the country folk came in wagons, carts or any vehicle that could be procured—and when one was not available they hesitated not to walk—that they might feast their eyes on the celebrity from town.

The good looks of Julie Durrier always drew after her a crowd when she walked through the streets of Marseilles—a fact that the proprietor of an eating house was not slow to avail himself of when he engaged the girl to serve in his establishment. For a few days all went well, and Boniface was beginning to rejoice over his fortune when he suddenly realized that one can have more than enough of a good thing when the crowd, of which the dimensions grew larger every day, swarmed into his establishment in their eagerness to view the beautiful Hebe and, on his attempting to eject some of the most persistent, broke into open tumult, destroying the tables and chairs, breaking the glasses and, in short, wrecking the restaurant, whence the cause of the uproar was lucky in escaping by a back exit. The next day the place was closed, and soon afterward Mlle. Durrier left the town.

More extraordinary still was the sensation created at Toulouse toward the close of the sixteenth century by a paragon of beauty known only to fame as La Belle Paule. Whenever she appeared in public she was at once surrounded by a crowd of men and women belonging to all classes, whose admiration grew to be a positive danger to its object, who ran more than a chance of being crushed to death in the press, as, indeed, was more than one of her worshipers. In these circumstances appeal was made to the civic authorities, who, after due consideration, agreed to supply her with protection against her too ardent admirers on condition that she should at certain hours walk abroad so that the public might look upon her face. This, after some demur, she agreed to do, so twice a week the populace of Toulouse were permitted to collect in orderly throngs to view her, whom they regarded as little less than a goddess.—London Tit-Bits.

Firing Big Guns.

Commander Reginault of the French navy in an address to an association of civil engineers calculated that the force developed in the heart of a large cannon firing a 500 kilogram projectile with a muzzle velocity of 900 inches a second is equivalent to 25,000,000 horse power. That of a field gun firing a projectile weighing about seven kilograms with a muzzle velocity of 530 inches is 115,000 horsepower.

Red Tape.

Red tape is the bulwark of inferior minds. Language is said to conceal thought; red tape paralyzes action. Politicians use red tape to create offices. Without it government would be so simple that everybody would understand it. If you would accomplish big results, look not upon the tape when it is red.—Life.

MORE DOCUMENTS GONE.

MONTREAL, July 29. — The discovery of the stealing of the official documents connected with the Notre Dame de Grace sewer scandal, at the City Hall, was followed yesterday morning by the announcement that other documents, which related to the Domenville street land deal, have disappeared. In connection with both the Notre Dame de Grace and the Domenville street affairs serious charges are now being investigated by the courts.

As a result of the latest developments, the charges against former Engineer Etienne Pelland, who was arrested some time ago and is now out on bail in connection with the Notre Dame de Grace scandal, may be interfered with, and another case in which an alderman respecting the Domenville street deal is affected.

Halifax Has Hindu Scare.

HALIFAX, N.S., July 29—"If Hindus have $200 in cash each and are physically and mentally fit, they would, we believe, be admissible under the existing laws and regulations."

This extract, taken from the letter of S. J. Robins, acting Minister of the Interior during the absence of Hon. Dr. Roche, received by City Clerk Monahan in regard to the Hindu question, has caused quite a sensation in civic circles.

Farmers Report New Pest.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., July 29.—Though the army worm scourge is on the wane throughout the country, another pest has made its appearance within its borders. Several farmers in the vicinity of Brooksdale, fifteen miles northwest, report to G. D. Freen, district agricultural representative, that the dreaded aphis, a small bug, is ravaging their pea crops. The damage already done is serious.

CHATHAM, Ont., July 29.—Judge Bell has rendered his decision on the recount in West Kent, and the returns now show that G. W. Sulman, the Conservative candidate, is elected by a majority of thirteen.

DAWN AT RANGOON.

Slow boats slipped softly up the stream and others still slept with quiet gurgling at their anchors. A craning, swan-like craft, with high carved beak and outstretched wings, swept swiftly out to sea with rows of naked brown men bending sharply at the oars. Sampans rocked on the rising tide and a gentle stir and stretching from sleep ran up and down the crimson running river.

A bird gushed suddenly a wondrous liquid song from the low, mist covered shores. Following came a gentle breeze that rent the fine silver tissues, rippled the stream and showed, very naked and ugly, a low, flat lying town. With the breath came a faint, fine echo of bells—languorous, pausing tones of silver. Then, emerging from the mists and standing high above the level of the brown earth, gleamed a bell shaped, divinely pointed thing of gold that quivered dizzily for a moment, then dimmed behind a bank of mist.

Next the sun leaped into the day and struck upon the sense like the sudden clash of metal cymbals. The mists curled instantly and vanished, the shadows withered under foot and a bare white light trimmed like a knife the ugly outlines of Rangoon.

Mind and body cry aloud for shelter in the town. The sun hangs so low—perches in the very branches of the dust streaked trees. It is appalling, and the soul whimpers at the nearness, the bold intrusion.—From "The Color of the East," by Elizabeth Washburn.

Brockville Resident Dead.

BROCKVILLE, July 29. — Edwin Abbott, 69, a retired manufacturer, who had been in failing health for many years, died yesterday at his home here. He was a life-long resident of the town and up to the time of his retirement was the senior member of the firm of Abbott, Grant & Co., which still bears his name. He was actively connected with local institutions, financial and otherwise, and was held in the highest regard by all classes of citizens. Mrs. Abbott survives, but has no family. Prof. A. H. Abbott of the University of Toronto is a nephew.

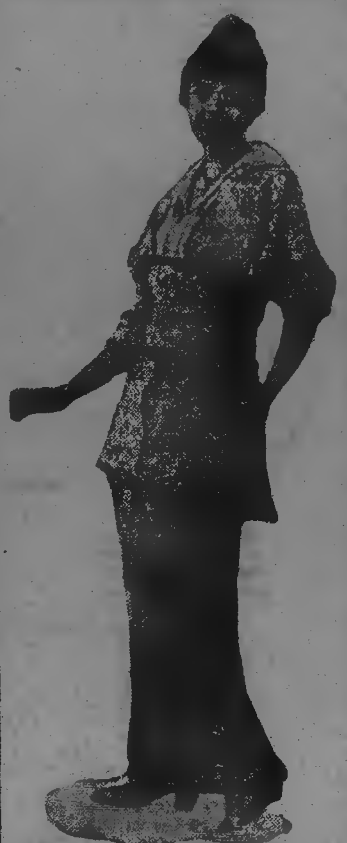
SWEET PEA SHADES.

Popular This Summer For Semi-dress Costumes.



CRAPE AFTERNOON GOWN.

Very wide girdles of materials matching the gown are seen on some imported models. Illustrated here is a gown of figured crape in sweet pea shades of pink and lavender. The wide girdle is edged with a ruching of pink taffeta ribbon, an embellishment which is seen also on the short sloped tunic and on the turned back cuffs. The vest and collar are of white organdie.

CAMPING OUTFITS.

What Is Needed For the Use of the Outdoor Girl.

With summer the careful mother begins to think of camps for her growing girls. Where to send them is no more a matter of weight than how to outfit them inexpensively but comfortably. One sporting goods house has just opened a department for girls wherein everything from cap to sneaker may be obtained.

The first item, if the girl is to go to a regular camp, is, of course, bloomers. They range from black, navy blue or tan drill to those of black or navy blue serge, finished in the best manner.

Middy blouses to wear with them come in white without trimming, except for the blue or red collar and cuffs. There are stars on the collar, cuffs and pocket. The collar is a sailor one, cut open at the neck, and the sleeves are three-quarter ones.

For the smaller girl there are two piece suits of one material. They come in good quality drill, in tan, with a navy blue or red sailor collar and trimming or in solid navy blue without trimming. For girls up to twelve years only the same suit comes in smaller sizes.

One piece swimming suits come in cotton serge in black or navy blue, in poplin in black or brown or in galatea in black or navy blue. They have the bloomers and blouse attached under a belt, but are made loose enough to allow free use of the limbs.

White canvas sneakers, high cut, with rubber soles, are about $2 a pair. They are not the only sneaker or outing shoe carried, however. The shop is stocked with every conceivable camping accessory, from woolen outing stockings to angora tam-o'-shanters.

Black and White Wicker.

There is something quite attractive in the black and white wicker furniture. The pieces are so woven that the alternate colors are formed into broad bands or squares to decorate the chairs, tables, couches, etc. The creators of the black and white wicker also make the unusual pieces of furniture that give harmony to piazza and porch furnishings. These include the pretty wicker trays with folding legs (similar to those imported from Japan) and the porch pole vases and various flower holders. Of course these can be had in new designs in smoked bamboo, but the latter would not harmonize well with the black and white wicker.

The Vogue of Braid.

Colored braid is a popular trimming for suits. Usually braid of the color of the suit is used, but sometimes braid in dark blue or black or green is used. Braid sashes are one of the notes for the season. They are generally formed of two strips of braid stitched together lengthwise to form a girdle or sash five or six inches long. They are made of braid woven in various combinations of deep red, dark blue and green and black.

Coloring Matting.

To dye matting, thoroughly clean it and then apply the dye with a broad, flat paint brush. A ten cent package of dye makes a gallon of coloring. When dry the matting can be made into rugs if desired. Each piece of the matting should be thoroughly cleaned before another part is done.

TREES FULL OF FAT.

Some of Them Yield a Pretty Fair Substitute For Butter.

There are several trees that yield an oily substance much resembling butter and making a good substitute for it. Some of these grow in Europe, but the best known species are natives of Africa and South America.

The Bassia butyracea, or the "shea butter," as it is commonly called, grows wild on the west coast of Africa. The butter obtained from this tree is derived by pounding and pressing the seeds, which are three inches long. When extracted the oil assumes the consistency of butter and smells like chocolate. Not only is it an excellent article of food, but it is used extensively for the making of soap and candles.

The seeds of the crab tree of Brazil and Guiana are 70 per cent fat, and the "crab wood tallow" derived from them is excellent for the manufacture of candles and soap. When boiled the tallow turns out yellow butter which contains a small quantity of strychnine. The latter, however, is easily removed by prolonged boiling.

From the nutmeg a useful fat is obtained. The nutmegs which have been broken or damaged by insects are roasted, ground and pressed for the fat, which is used for cosmetic and medicinal purposes.

A tree abounding in the forests of Africa and called by Kaffirs "chignite" yields (from the fruit or bark, the exact source being unknown) a white butter like substance which constitutes an important article of commerce on that continent.—New York World.

Participating versus Non-Participating Life Policies Again

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO a Publisher of this City at age 43 took out a Ten Pay 15 year Endowment Policy of $2,000, No. 81226 in The Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada paying therefore an annual premium of $187.20.

The Non-Participating Premium would have been $170.40.

The extra paid for profits per year (for 10 years only) was $16.80.

Had this man taken a Non-Participating Policy he would have saved $168.00 extra in premiums paid for profits during the ten years, but he would have lost $620.25 at maturity of Policy as he would have received only $2,000.00 instead of $2,620.25, as he did.

Where is there a man that would not like to invest money at such a rate and that too in the Largest and Strongest Life Insurance Company in the British Empire?

EYES OF ALL EUROPE TURNED TOWARDS ST. PETERSBURG

After Germany's Refusal to Consent to Intervention Hope of Powers is Placed Upon M. Sazonoff's Effort to Localize Conflict.

LONDON, July 29. — The Austro-Hungarian Government declared war against Servia yesterday by a manifesto which is one of the briefest of momentous documents in history.

Germany paved the way for this declaration by announcing her rejection of the British scheme to bring four powers together in conference for mediation. Germany explained to the public that her ally could not be expected to submit her acts to an European council as though she were one of the Balkan states.

This announcement preceded the declaration of war by only two hours, and gave an exhibition of the perfectly harmonious working of the partnership between the two nations which stood firmly together through the Bosnian crisis of 1909.

The centre of interest has shifted sharply to St. Petersburg, which holds the decision whether an European war which probably would shift the balance of power,- if not rearrange the entire map of Europe, is to break out. Negotiations are on foot there between the Russian Foreign Minister, Sergius Sazonoff, and the Austrian ambassador, which are designed to "localize" the conflict.

The nature and progress of these conventions are wrapped in the thickest mystery but they are the last plank the neutral powers are clinging to in face of a war which may wash all under.

There is no doubt in British minds that Austria had fully resolved to utilize the provocation afforded by the Sarayevo murders to wipe the slate clean of all accounts against Servia, and served an ultimatum on her which was designed to have no result save war.

The next news expected is the occupation of Belgrade, and that even now may be an accomplished fact. Reports of small encounters along the front have been permitted to pass the censor, but military experts here believe that mobilization has already been effected and that a thoroughly planned campaign is well under way.

There is absolutely no enthusiasm in England for war—no desire for this particular war which confronts Great Britain—yet there is general belief that her obligations to her partners, in the triple entente, as well as her interests as a great European power, will force her to support Russia and France in any steps they may take.

The dark developments of the day were received without excitement but with the deepest gloom. The immediate effect of the war cloud is likely to lead to the settlement of Home Rule since all parties feel that domestic dissensions must be settled at all costs in the face of peril from without. The fierce demands of the Conservative papers for a general election have been wholly hushed. The Foreign Office has become the most important branch of the Government, and no one wants to risk the possibility of losing Sir Edward Grey, with his exceptional influence in the councils of Europe.

The Government is confronting the situation with perfect calmness. There is no sign of unusual events at the Foreign Office, except that the Prime Minister, Mr. Asquith, who seldom visits that office, called there last evening and conferred with Sir Arthur Nicolson, Permanent Under-Secretary, and the Austrian Ambassador, came to make formal announcement of the declaration of war.

The ships of the British fleet are taking on supplies. Soon after it became definitely known that Austria and Servia were at war all the officers ashore at Portland and Weymouth were summoned back to their ships.

EUROPEAN WAR WOULD SEE MILLIONS OF MEN IN FIELD

Nearly Twenty Million of Men in the Triple Alliance, Germany, Austria and Italy—Russia Has the Biggest Army

Greater than all the armies ever before assembled will be those called on in case the countries which are parties to the Triple Alliance and the Triple Entente are finally brought into the war between Austria and Servia, says the New York Herald. If the entire strength of the nations involved were placed in the field—or if a fair proportion of them were called out—they would make the armies of past conflicts seem small by comparison.

Servia—one of the little nations of the world—has not much of an army. Latest figures, prepared this year, show that her army in time of peace numbers 32,000 men. Her war strength is 240,000, and in addition to this force she has had an unorganized body of men, who, in case of dire necessity, could be called on for service, numbering 60,000 more. This body of men would be but a speck compared with the tremendous armies which would be called upon to shoulder arms if Russia, France and Great Britain, composing the Triple Entente, took up the cause of Servia.

Russia's Strength.

Russia leads all the big countries mentioned both in peace strength and war footing, although her war footing is but 300,000 in excess of that of Germany. She has 1,290,00 men in times of peace and 5,000,000 as a war footing.

France has 720,000 for a peace guard and 4,000,000 as a war footing. Great Britain has a peace footing of 254,000 and a war footing of 730,000. The total armies of the Triple Entente number 2,264,500 in times of peace, and the gigantic number of 10,230,000 in times of war. The same three countries have a combined force of 8,200,000 unorganized men of military age who could be drawn on in case of emergency. This would make the stupendous number of men available for actual service in the Triple Entente, exclusive of those of Servia, nearly 20,000,000.

34,000,000 Men Available.

The totals of the three countries composing the Triple Alliance—Austria, Germany and Italy, are almost as staggering. The total war footing of the combination is 8,400,000; the peace strength, 1,510,000. The same countries have an unorganised force of men of military strength which numbers 5,200,000, or about 14,000,000 men who could in a pinch be called on for service.

Three of the Balkan States which might possibly become involved in the imbroglio are Roumania, Bulgaria and Greece. The combined peace footing of these countries is 180,500; the war footing, 1,030,000. In war footing Roumania leads the three with 500,000. Bulgaria comes next and Greece last.

Naval Strength.

In naval strength the Triple Entente would be nearly twice as strong in numbers of ships and men as the Triple Alliance. Of the Triple Entente Great Britain leads with 569 ships of all kinds—battleships, cruisers, torpedoes, destroyers, monitors and submarines. To man these she has 137,000 men.

France comes second, with 419 ships and 60,621 men. Russia has 220 ships, with 52,463 men. The total number of ships of the Triple Entente is 1,208, with a force of men numbering 250,584.

Oposed to the Triple Entente are the German navy, with 325 ships of all classes and 66,783 men; Italian, with 169 ships and 33,095 men, and Austria, with 114 ships and 17,581 men, a grand total of 608 ships and 117,459 men.

Aerial Craft.

For the first time in any conflict of great proportions the aerial war craft would be brought into use, and so swift has been the progress in aerial development that the aeroplanes, dirigibles and other air craft would without doubt receive a genuine test.

Latest figures show that France easily leads all other nations in her air fighting force. She has 750 air and sea planes, with 300 first-class and 250 second-class pilots. Next to her comes Russia with 380 aeroplanes and seaplanes, and "many excellent pilots," according to Hazel's classification, but the service is only partially organized. Great Britain has 130 aeroplanes and seaplanes, with sixty first-class and 170 second-class pilots, but the organization is limited.

Of the countries allied in the Triple Alliance. Germany has 350 aeroplanes and seaplanes and an excellent organization. Austria has 150 machines of both kinds, and Italy has 200. The organization and transport of Austria and Italy are classified as "fairly good."

Hungary Not Enthused.

Hungary has taken strong measures to suppress Pan-Germanism in Warsaw. Pan-German editors have been arrested, fined and imprisoned. Hungary has no desire to follow the Austrian Germans under a Hohenzollern rule.

And in view of possible war in which Germany and Austria will act together as members of the Triple Alliance, it is interesting to know that Hungary is far from enthusiastic over this alliance.

Germany has her eyes upon the Austrian port of Trieste as the objective point of all her watching, waiting, and working for Austria. Trieste would be Germany's open door to the East and the Mediterranean Sea. The mouth of the Danube is the main artery of Austria.

German statesmen consider that it lies in alien hands. There are German interests in Turkey in Asia Minor to care for—the Turkey which Germany is so desirous to befriend, to strengthen, to fortify as a buffer against Russian intrusion. There is Asia Minor, where, with tact and energy, capital and determination, Germany thinks she can establish the long-sought Eldorado.

Austria Suspicions.

Austria blocks Germany from this dream of conquest and expansion. Austria knows it. She may accept to a certain extent Germany's help against the Servians with Russia at her back. But out of the suspicions of Austria of her ally, little Servia may yet hope for respite, perhaps for deliverance.

Kaiser as Acting British Admiral

While engaged in the ceremonies attending the opening of the great new German canal, the Kaiser, as an admiral of the fleet of the British Navy, boarded the Dreadnought King George V. and enjoyed the experience of being for one hour in command of the British squadron that is visiting Kiel. A special correspondent at Kiel, who was on board the King George V., telegraphed as follows:—

Just before arriving in the King George V. at noon we had word from the imperial yacht Hohenzollern that the Kaiser intended coming on board the British flagship. Sir George Warrender thereupon hauled down his own flag and hoisted the Emperor's admiral of the fleet flag in its place. the British admiral's own flag being runup in H. M. S. Centurion.

The Kaiser was now senior British officer at Kiel. For the time being he was the supreme commander of our squadron.

The Kaiser was greeted on his arrival by Sir George Warrender, who was supported by his seven captains, while the ship's band played the opening bars of the British National Anthem.

The various divisions of the crew were drawn up on deck and the Kaiser inspected each one, shaking hands with the officers. Then he accompanied Sir George Warrender through the different parts of the ship near the quarterdeck. The Kaiser did not go below, and he inspected no gun turrets or any other departments ordinarily regarded as secret. He chatted gaily with Sir George Warrender throughout his promenade.

The Kaiser is also by royal appointment a high officer in the British military service, and King George holds corresponding positions in the German services.

SERVIANS FIRED ON THEIR OWN TRANSPORTS BY MISTAKE

Attempts of Volunteers to Cross River Are Resolutely Opposed

VIENNA, July 29.—The Militaerische Rundshau reports sharp fighting along the River Drina, Servian volunteers attempting to cross the river being resolutely opposed by Austrian frontier troops. It also reports that the Servians fired on their own river transports by mistake, killing and wounding a number of Servian soldiers.

It is with a feeling of intense relief that the people in the dual monarchy look forward to the war with Servia, which for several days has seemed inevitable, and which was yesterday announced by formal declaration.

Whether the war will be confined to the two countries cannot yet be said, but the feeling on this point in high official circles is optimistic. Even the certain knowledge, however, that Russia would intervene, would not cause Austria to hesitate a moment or alter her course in the slightest.

The news of the formal declaration of war ran through the city before the extra editions of the papers could reach the vendors' hands and was everywhere greeted with a spirit which might be described as close to religious exaltation.

Vienna is absolutely without news of the movements of the troops which the papers are naturally forbidden to print. A sharp censorship has been established over the press, and all means of communication. A great, quiet crowd, which constantly increased in numbers, assembled before the War Ministry, and cheers greeted the appearance of military officers and the Ministry officials. The evening papers published the following inspired statement:

"In well-informed circles the view is held that so far as Sir Edward Grey's proposal is to localize the conflict between Austria-Hungary and Servia, the former can declare herself entirely agreed with Sir Edward Grey's remarks, but regarding what he has said concerning the suppression of military operations, things have proceeded much too far to allow anything to be done in this direction."

Advices from Belgrade say that the Servian capital is now located at Nish, where the Skupshtina (national assembly) met yesterday. All Servians between 18 and 60 years of age, able to bear arms, have been called out, and mobilization is proceeding rapidly, although the peasants who will have to leave their harvesting are reported to be much discontented.

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs has addressed a verbal note to the foreign representatives informing them of the declaration of war and declaring that Austria will, on the assumption of similar observances on the part of Servia, adhere to the provisions of The Hague Conference of Oct. 15, 1908, and the declaration of London, of Feb. 26, 1909.

Servian Troops Active.

VIENNA, July 29. — The Militaerische-Rundschau reports active operations of both Servian and Montenegrin troops, which are in close touch at Prizoj, near the frontier of Bosnia.

Demonstration In Diet.

BUDAPEST, July 29.—A great patriotic demonstration took place in the Hungarian Diet yesterday when the royal rescript was read, proroguing Parliament. The Deputies cheered for the king, the country and the army. Speeches were made by prominent deputies during which every patriotic word was loudly applauded.

Italian Warships Recalled.

GLASGOW, July 29.—Three Italian warships visiting the Clyde were ordered yesterday to return immediately to Italian waters.

French Ministers To Confer.

PARIS, July 29. — Rene Viviani, the French Premier, is on board, the battleship La France, in the North Sea to-day, kept in frequent wireless communication with the Foreign Office here. He is returning to France as rapidly as possible.

Abel Ferry, Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, left Paris immediately after the Cabinet meeting to meet President Poincare and Premier Viviani at Dunkirk.

SHAMROCK IV BEHAVES WELL ON OCEAN TRIP

Porta, Fayal, Azores, July 29.—Shamrock IV., Sir Thomas Lipton's new challenger for the America's Cup, arrived here, having taken seven days and three hours for the voyage from Falmouth, England.

During her trip, according to those on board, the would-be lifter of the international trophy proved herself an excellent sea boat. In hard blows she took the big seas like a duck, and slipped through the water with great ease.

Pressed Her Hard.

Before Shamrock bade farewell to the English coast, Col. Neill, who is making the voyage on board the steam yacht Erin, which is acting as convoy on the trans-Atlantic voyage, pressed the challenger hard in order to test her gear and her ocean rig. Everything was found to be in good order, and the little racer made good weather out of the hard blow and the drenching rainstorm she encountered on the run from Torquay to Plymouth, where she anchored for the night.

Capt. Turner, who is acting as skipper on the trans-Atlantic voyage, is well satisfied with the yacht's behavior. The half of the crew which has managed the yacht since her departure from England, is to be replaced here by the other half, who have been luxuriating on board the Erin.

Progress of Journey.

The next day at dawn Shamrock weighed anchor and left for Falmouth, which she reached at eight o'clock in the morning in very stormy weather.

The yacht left Falmouth at five o'clock on the morning of July 21 for her run by way of the Azores to New York. At noon she was ten miles west of the Lizard, and then Col. Neill decided to take her in tow, as a dead calm had fallen and the tide was setting her back. The same evening the challenger picked up a breeze and the line was slipped. The blow soon increased to a hard northwesterly wind which churned up a heavy sea, in which the Shamrock made a fine picture as she rose easily to each wave. On that day she averaged ten knots an hour for the 24 hours.

On the following day conditions were similar, but the weather was finer, and for the rest of the voyage the wind gradually slackened down, until at times there was a dead calm. Then Col. Neill took the challenger in tow until the breeze strengthened sufficiently for her to run under her own sail.

High Runs.

The best day's runs were 240, 222, 189, 142 and 162 knots.

It is possible that Shamrock's boom will be taken off while she is here, as it bangs about so much when she is becalmed. Otherwise the yacht is regarded as having done well, and her performance thus far on her ocean voyage has increased the hopes of those on board that she will be successful in carrying out the purpose for which she was built.

Hoped for Lunge But 'Twas an eel

Mr. W. A. Haslam, who with his family, camps at the end of the Boundary Road on the north side of the Otonabee River, landed an exceptionally large eel last evening. He was out with two ladies in a skiff when he felt the heavy tug at his line and thinking that he had landed a large lunge he pulled in. Once he had his catch in the boat, he knew it was no lunge. He struck it with an oar and in doing so punctured a hole in the bottom of the boat but he finally "took the last kick" out of the eel and got to shore with the boat half filled with water. The eel measured 36½ inches from tip to tip and 9 inches in circumference. Its weight was 11 pounds.

HELD ON CHARGE OF VAGRANCY

Geo. Ballmer Claims Police Have Made Mistake

HE MAY BE WRONG

Apprehended yesterday afternoon, George Ballmer a stranger, appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning, on the alleged charge of vagrancy. He was remanded to jail for one week pending an investigation into certain claims made by the accused.

It is alleged that Ballmer obtained board under false pretences, claiming that he was expecting a large sum of money and that he would pay his account when his ship came in. His actions and general suspicious appearance led to his arrest. Ballmer is a young man of about twenty-eight.

In court this morning he claimed that he was not a vagrant and that he had work and was able to make good.

"Me shake hancs and forget," grinned a son of Sunny Italy, Don Gratcho at Magistrate Dumble this morning, when he asked permission to withdraw the charge of assault against a fellow pal, D. Thomas. Both men had words which ended in a fight.

His request was granted upon the payment of eighty-five cents, the costs of the proceedings.

Stole Ride and Took Thirty Days in Jail

Martin Carey and a friend bumped their way from Peterboro on the 10 o'clock train this morning, taking a reserved seat on top of the baggabe car. Carey was taken in charge by the conductor but the other bumper escaped. Carey came up before Police Magistrate White and was fined $5.00 and costs or thirty days in jail. He took the days.—Port Hope Guide.

NOT A SIGHT FOR SORE EYES

Rear of City Buildings Disgraces City, Says Magistrate Dumble

"The front is bad enough, but such a dilapidated rear is a disgrace to the city," said Magistrate Dumble to a Review reported this morning pointing out the general "never do well" aspect of the rear of the city buildings. Magistrate Dumble who is a lover of clean yards and civic improvements, commented quite strongly on the condition of affairs at the rear of the buildings. "It was a fine view for the guests at the new Empress Hotel to have," he stated. It would be the best hotel in the city and one where many welcome visitors might be entertained. The front of the hotel faced right on the civic pile of rubbish, of varied colored buildings and general down and out appearance. The result in a nutshell would be that they would leave the city, amazed to think that a city with the reputation enjoyed by Peterboro, could afford to allow such conditions to exist.

Magistrate Dumble remarked at the conclusion of his few remarks that a good coat of paint on the rear of the buildings would greatly alter their appearance and would not be such an eye sore to guests at the Empress It would benefit the entire city at large.

CROPS ARE SUFFERING

General Deterioration in Prospects is Reported

REGINA, July 29. — The official crop report of the Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture, based on conditions on July 25, as reported from all parts of the province by telegraph, states that crops that were good at the date of the last report are now not so good, while those that previously were poor are now worse. Very hot and dry weather is the universal report, and rain and cooler weather are needed.

A few districts report conditions as still being very good, while most state that crops are maturing too fast and in consequence are not filling well. Flax, on the whole, is standing the weather conditions best and in some dryer districts will be almost the only crop.

Harvesting will commence in some districts by Aug 5, and will be general by Aug. 10 to 15.

Hail damage has been comparatively light, storms being reported from Vibank, Canora, Dubuc, Manor and Sheho. There is practically no damage from any causes other than drought and hail.

Reports from the southeastern crop district indicate an average yield of 18 bushels of wheat per acre, the east central district reports 17 bushels, the central district 15 bushels and the northern district 20 bushels.

These districts include most of the best crops.

Rub squeaking windows, blinds and drawers with soap. If drawers have warped, and the soapy rubbing does not make them run smoothly again, drive a nail into the case of the drawer so that they cannot be shut, is almost impossible to get open again.

New C.P.R. Liners for Canadian Route

The new liner just launched on the Clyde, the "Missanable," built to the order of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has every improvement in the way of life-saving apparatus.

The boat deck is entirely set apart for the storage and working of boats, of which there will be sufficient for all on board; one of them will be a motor life-boat. In the launching arrangements every contingency is provided for that human ingenuity can anticipate. All the boats, thirty-two in number, are rigid, open lifeboats.

The sister ship of the "Missanable," which will be named the "Metagama," will also be on passenger and cargo service between Liverpool and Canada. The principal dimensions of the vessels are:—Length 520 feet; breadth, 64 feet; depth, 41 feet; gross tonnage, 13,000 tons; displacement, 18,000 tons; and cargo capacity, 400,000 cubic feet. On six separate decks from the main deck upwards the entire space is devoted to passengers.

Only two classes are carried—cabin 520, and third class 1200, a total of 1720. In addition there will be a crew of 300.

Below the level of the main deck the space will be given over to cargo, and three of the lower 'tween decks are fitted for the carriage of refrigerated merchandise. In the principal public apartments the general scheme of decoration is of the Georgian period.

Ships Strengthened Forward.

The dining saloons are on the deck immediately above the main deck, the cabin being forward and the third class aft, the entire space amidships being occupied by the kitchen and its auxiliary departments. On the other decks, along with the cabin accommodation, are the drawingroom and lounges, smoking rooms, card room, and ladies' rooms. All the cabins are large and airy. On the boat deck there are a gymnasium and the Marconi installation, and also a house containing an emergency dynamo independent of the main propelling machinery.

The vessels are built with the cruiser stern, which is stated to give increased speed, as well as capacity and deck area. The hulls also are extra strengthened forward to withstand the rigours of the ice season in the North Atlantic, and the vessels are so divided by watertight decks and bulkheads that they are capable of floating with any three compartments open to the sea.

The propelling machinery, which will also be fitted by the builders, will consist of twin sets of quadruple expansion engines, balanced on the Yarrow, Schlick, and Tweedy system; and steam is supplied in each vessel by eight single-ended boilers, at a working pressure of 215 lbs., which is expected to give a speed of 16 knots on service.

When making a steamed pudding put a piece of well-greased paper over the top before tying on the cloth. This will prevent the cloths from becoming greasy, and they are no trouble to wash.

Suggestion is An Excellent One

Mr. Burnham, M.P., says regarding the suggestion made by Dr. Cameron in last night's Review that a tablet should be put up to Champlain in connection with the approaching celebration of the opening of the Trent Canal to Lake Ontario, that it is a most excellent suggestion, and one that no doubt will be incorporated in the city's programme. Suggestions are what the committee wants.

CHICAGO, July 28.—War excitement today resulted in wheat transactions far up in the millions and in a swift rise of values. The market closed feverish at the topmost point reached, 3¼c to 3 c above last night. Other net gains for the day were: Corn, 1⅛c to 2¼c; oats, 1⅜c to 1⅝c, and provisions generally 5c to 27½c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, July 28.—The wheat market was again in a wild and excited condition, following the announcement that war had actually broken out between Austria and Servia. Another factor, which added to the bullish feeling was the continued high temperatures over the Canadian west and northwest states. The weather map shows extremely high temperatures everywhere prevailing over the west, excepting Northern Alberta.

At Winnipeg 98 was registered and at other points they were all higher, reaching 101 at Brandon and Moose Jaw. The average was around 95 degrees.

Opening prices were ⅜c to ⅝c higher for wheat, and gradually advanced until prices were 2½c to 3⅝c higher, easing off about 1c later. About 1 o'clock shorts had covered and excitement abated, prices declining in part all round. On the close there was another wild jump in prices over the previous high points. Closing figures for wheat were 4⅝c to 6⅝c higher.

The cash demand for contract grades of wheat was good, and all offerings were eagerly picked up. Oats of No. 3 and No. 2 feed grade were also in urgent demand. Flax was also wanted, but few offerings. Cash grain closed: Wheat, 4½c higher; flax, 2c to 3c higher.

Cash prices: Wheat—No. 1 northern, 96½c; No. 2 northern, 94c; No. 3 northern, 91c.

Barley—No. 4, 51c; rejected, 47½c.

Flax—No. 1 N.W.C., $1.67; No. 2 C.W., $1.64; No. 3 C.W., $1.52.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, July 28.—The wheat markets were again very excited today on war being declared and exporters here withdrew from the market and made no offers over the cable. Last night business in this respect was very quiet.

The strong feeling which developed in the market for oats yesterday was more pronounced today, and prices scored a further advance of ½c to ¾c per bushel with a good demand for car lots. The improved demand from foreign buyers for spring wheat flour was renewed again today, and as prices were fully 3d to 6d per sack higher, a fair amount of business was done for both prompt and future shipment.

There was also a better demand from local and country buyers and business on the whole was more active. The trade in mill feed continues fairly active. There was no further change in the butter situation, the feeling being strong with a good enquiry from Vancouver at bids of 24⅝c for finest creamery, which were refused in some cases. The trade in cheese over the cable was quiet. Demand for eggs is good.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN MARKET.

Labouchere's Complaint.

If people banished from their tables all the commodities which, like salt, have been condemned in print their diet would be decidedly monotonous. "Food faddists are most aggressive persons," Henry Labouchere once complained. "In my time I have known them to preach that we should give up meat, tobacco, soup, starch (including bread and potatoes), salt, tomatoes, bananas, strawberries and bath buns. I have also witnessed movements for giving up boots, waistcoats, hats, overcoats, carpets, feather beds, spring mattresses, cold baths, linen clothes, woolen clothes, sleeping more than six hours, sleeping less than nine hours and lighting fires at the bottom."

Softening Water.

If your skin is delicate and gets rough in the spring keep a fine muslin bag full of oatmeal on your washstand, and whenever you wash dip the bag into the water and squeeze it hard several times.

This is excellent for softening the water and keeps the hands and face smooth.

MARKETS IN PANIC

But Price of Wheat Soars at News of Conflict

LONDON, July 29. — Expectation of war between Austria-Hungary and Servia, and its subsequent declaration yesterday, demoralized the markets of the world.

War was not declared until after the bourses of Europe had closed, but in London, Berlin and Paris, panicky conditions and severe declines in securities anticipated the announcement. At all three capitals bonds of the Governments of Europe, which have been steadily dropping, registered further losses.

In Vienna the bourse had been closed since Saturday, but there was a heavy run on the Austrian savings bank, the most important in the dual monarchy.

In Paris the commerciale exchange suspended all dealings in grains, sugar and other commodities and exchange on London and discount rates for the first time in years were not quoted.

In Berlin runs on savings banks begun Monday grew heavier.

In London, after the close of the stock market, stocks tumbled on the curb

News of the declaration reached this country while markets were in session. With it came an avalanche of selling of the New York Stock Exchange. Leading stocks slumped from 5 to 20 points and conditions paralleled in their intensity the domestic panic of 1907.

On the Chicago Board of Trade there was a tremendous rise in wheat and the wildest trading in many years. This was predicted on the expectation that war in Europe would create a huge market for American grain. Other foodstuffs also advanced. These conditions were reflected in all the produce markets in the country.

On the other hand, smart declines were recorded in cotton futures at New York and New Orleans. Coffee also slumped, due, it was reported, to fears that contemplated financing in Europe of the Brazilian crop would fail.

TAMWORTH MYSTERY SOLVED IN CELLAR

The whole countryside is amazed at the trend of recent events in connection with the tragedy. Dr. Robinson was comparatively unknown in the district, having moved here from Kingston only six months ago. He had been on friendly terms with the residents and his actions, previous to the disappearance of the girl, had never been of a nature to give rise to gossip or scandal. The girl, on the other hand, was well connected and respected, and the nature of her death has cast a gloomy shadow over the whole of the community.

On the 16th Dr. Robinson left town for the purpose, he said, of visiting his wife, who was ill in the Hotel Dieu in Kingston. When he boarded the train he stated that he would return the same night. His continued absence led to enquiries being made in Kingston, with the result that he is not known to have been there at all. Nothing was seen of him at the hospital several days previous to the disappearance of Miss Yorke.

Since then nothing has been seen of him, and it has been established that he did not go to Kingston at all. Robinson is a young man of about 25 years of age, and has just started in private practice, having graduated from Queen's University two years ago. For a time he was house surgeon in St. Luke's Hospital in Ottawa, but left there to take a position in a North Ontario lumber camp, coming from there to Tamworth.

Inspector Miller to Investigate.

TORONTO, July 29.—Immediately on the receipt of the news by the Attorney-General's Department, the case was placed in the hands of Supt. J. E. Rogers of the provincial police. Mr. Rogers despatched Inspector John Miller to Tamworth last night, and he will start a thorough investigation to-day. "Further steps to be taken will be determined on Inspector Miller's report," observed Supt. Rogers in response to inquiries last night.

THE SPORTING WORLD

BIFFED IN THE PINCH

Beavers and Petes Stage Classy Exhibition of Ball and Homesters got the Verdict by 2 to 1

1847. That stands for good silver. Yesterday it was 2-1 Sterling, and although 1847 looks good around Xmas time, 2-1 looked good yesterday. George Ort, on his debut as a regular manager, and his gang of Beavers, admitted that Bob was silver mounted yesterday after th Petes had polished off a 2-1 win. The ladies were there in goodly numbers, and after a few "Whee has, he has, and oh mys," they all went home to prepare the hash for hubby and tell him all about it, in order to divert his attention from the hash.

It was a good game and worthy of any class of ball. It is hard to figure which was the better team, but mention should be made of Kelly's pegging. The home ruler behind the pan shot them to second in great style, and he also got them down to first like a veteran. His flinging was one of the features.

There is no doubt that Sterling was the better of the hurling pair. Outside of the first innings Bob had everything. His curve broke just right for him and wrong for the other fellow, and therein lies his victory. On the other hand, Roberts hursed good ball, ball good enough to win any game other than yesterday's encounter.

Umps Made 'Em Hop.

Both pitchers were backed by good fielding. The play was snappy all the way, and Umpire Miller had the boys hopping around like spring chickens. The error Toronto made did not figure in the scoring at all. Some sizzling pokes were directed at the outer garden and likewise to the infield. The outer garden men had twelve chances which were perfect and one which went amuck. Dolan at first for the locals had a good big day with fourteen putouts. Every man in the infield was kept busy and no one could be singled out as a star performer.

With the stick, Dolan had a good day, considering the stinginess of Roberts. The big fellow had a triple and a single, while Rooney also leaned on them with telling effect. Killilea for Toronto poked one through on a hit and run in the first which proved to be a nice timely poke. The snappy little fellow had a good day at short, and showed he was not afraid to go fter them, no matter where they were or how hard they were hit.

The crowd as usual got after the umps, but although he had three close decisions to call, he called them right on each occasion. One at second was close and two at first were also close, but His Royal Ump called them all against the home club, which leads us to believe that Mr. Miller is not a homer. It may be said the umps was correct, and if they were all as good as Mr. Miller there would be little chance for argument.

The Beavers started off as if they were going to make it a wide-open, one-sided fight. Hunt singled to commence the battle, and Ort promptly sacrificed him along. Trout scratched one into right which Ken Tracey terms "a snubber." On the hit and run Killilea punched one through between second and first and Hunt scored. Sterling tightened up and the next two were easy outs. That ended Toronto's attack.

The Petes went out in order until the third, when Fox dumped one into right for two sacks. He was sacrificed along by Kelly, and then Sterling hoisted one to Burrill, near the race track. Burrill dropped it after a hard run against a treacherous wind, and Fox scored. Fox would have scored anyway, so the error did not figure. In the fourth, Dolan poled one into right for three sacks and Rooney singled, scoring Dolan. The others went out easily. That is about all the trouble either the Petes or Beavers made, so you can bring in a good verdict on the game.

LOUIE SCHETTLER TO HURL ON FIRST BOOSTER'S DAY

Visiting Athletics Have New Men and Are in Thick of the Fight

The Hamilton Club will have the honor of inaugurating along with the Petes, the first Booster's Day of the season, tomorrow. Sentiment indicates that the affair will be a big success as will also the Saturday encounter. The fans all over the city seem to realize that the club directors have given them a good class of ball and a team which was rebuilt from a cart horse brigade to one of caliber, sufficient to make it a strong contender had the same material been available at the commencement of the season. It costs money to rebuild a ball club but the directors in the face of financial loss have dug down into their dips and paid out their cash for the sole purpose of placing Peterboro on the baseball map and giving the fans their money's worth. Every fan should be out tomorrow.

Some new faces and some men prominent in the baseball world will be noticed on the Hamilton line-up and Peterboro fans will also see Jack White a former Pete at the helm. Among the newcomers on the Hamilton club are Pendry and Cunningham. The former is the new third sacker who was south with the Philadelphia Athletics and was later turned over to one of the clubs in the Central League only to be loaned to Hamilton a few weeks ago. Cunningham is the new middle station man. Cunningham figured on the line-up of Clark Griffith's Washington Club a few years ago and last year played the entire season with the Montreal Club of the International League. The new addition to the hurling staff is Shears who was purchased by the Hamilton Club from Jersey City. Gabby Ivers is also with the Hams.

Opposed to that array of talent will be Louie Schettler who Manager Blount thinks can shoot 'em over in form good enough to win. Dolan, Shears and Dougherty will be on the firing line for Hamilton.

Remember. It's Booster's Day tomorrow and the game will start at 3 o'clock with Umpire Miller as master of ceremonies. Don't fail to be a Booster. Turn out tomorrow.

RED CAPS ALWAYS IN THE FRONT

Won Six Innings League Game Against De Laval by 9-5

A second chance for the De Laval, against the Red Caps, availed them nothing as the Pillingites pummelled Carson's offerings in a six inning's bill at Riverside Park, last evening, and when the atmosphere had cleared the C.G.E. gang were on top with a score of 9 to 5.

The Red Caps showed the better form. They were handier with the club and snappier in the field. Their firing artist, Yeb. Flaherty, came back with good wares, and although the opposition war cry of "five years ago" rent the air, the old boy showed he had enough and something to spare.

The usual comedy was contributed at the end of the fifth, when the Red Caps, claiming that it was too dark to play, proceeded to pack their grips. The De Laval took advantage of the umpire's call of play ball and called loudly for more. They got it after a struggle, but the extra spasm only served to permit the Red Caps to add another tally, while the Separator nine were chased to cover.

Bill Shaw who played the game as far back as 1812 or thereabouts, with that celebrated collection of Woodpile Wonders, was arbiter and accepted the usual shower of vocal bouquets.

Scoring in First.

The Red Caps collected a quintet of hits and three runs in the first. Swanston drew a single and took second on Fallon's bad peg. Primeau was thrown out at first but Rahmel singled, scoring Swanston. Rahmel was out attempting the steal and MacDougall walked and later tallied when the pitcher uncorked a bad throw to third. Pilling singled, stole second and was hit home by Kendrey's biff down third. Wing singled and Kendrey was caught off the bag.

De Laval got two of them back in their half, which Flaherty started by hitting Callahan. The latter was forced by Kenneally, who stole second. Spratt fanned. Kenneally after taking third on a wild pitch, scored on Fallon's bingle. Carson doubled scoring Fallon and Taylor grounded out.

In the third, the Red Caps collected a trio. Hits by Primeau and Rahmel, a passed ball and a walk put three men on the bags and the first two went home on Pilling's single. Kendrey missed three and Pilling was hit home by Wing. A quick throw by Carson got Wing off the bag and Heenan whiffed.

The De Laval came back with a brace, English getting the first bag on a wild pitch on the third strike. Then he was forced by Bob Pilling. A wild heave by the catcher allowed Pilling to make the third bag and after Greeves had fanned, Pilling was hit home by Callahan. Kenneally died on a foul fly to Swantson.

The Red Caps added another to the spoils in the sixth, Swantson hit but was out stealing second. Primeau flied to Kenneally and Rahmel walked. He stole second and scored on MacDougall's single. Pilling popped to the pitcher.

COMMENT

As You Like It

Such baseball as that played yesterday is worthy of prominence in any "B" class league. One might go further and assert that you would not see better ball in the International League. The teams were snappy all the time, the pitching good and the throwing of the two catchers, Kelly and Snell was of the deadly sort. Neither team had many chances to score outside of the innings in which the runs came and it was a case of a hit in a pinch which scored all the runs. Killilea's deliverance through the infield on the hit and run accounted for Toronto's score while Roney's timely poke after Dolan had doubled and Sterling's mamomth hoist to right center with Fox on third gave the Petes their two runs. There were no fluxes but some snappy work on the part of both teams.

Eddie Graham got out of the maiden class yesterday so far as fandom is concerned. It was the first time Eddie had attended a game and saw the Petes win. He has been over on numerous occasions and the Petes either lost or he was forced to leave the park before the game was over. Come again Eddie, your luck has changed.

W. H. Rhodes, a sporting editor of the London Free Press watched the Hamilton Club work at St. Thomas Monday and states that Jack White's crew are good enough right now to win 90 per cent. of their games. This greatly improved team will be the guests of the Petes on Booster's Day. It's tomorrow.

Chicago is giving New York a merry battle in the National League and the New York crew should not commence figuring out the spoils of a world's series until the flag falls as Hank O'Day is likely to upset the pot and jump in there and win. It will be a hard drive down the stretch and unlike last year when the Giants could afford to come home under restraint owing to their commanding lead, they will this year have to be ridden out in order to shake off the fast coming Cubs.

The most noticeable feature of the American League has been the "come back" of the Boston Club. Hoblitzel's appearance with the Red Sox has improved the club wonderfully. The gap at first base which has never been properly filled since 1912 when Jake Stahl played great ball, is well choked up now and Bill Carrigan's men can be counted on to make Connie Mack's great machine step along to beat them.

STEPS ASIDE AFTER SERVICE OF 27 YEARS

Magistrate Edmison has Occupied Important Positions

After a service of twenty-seven years as magistrate of the County of Peterboro, during which period only three appeals were entered against his judgments and only one appeal was successful, Magistrate George Edmison steps down to-morrow at his own request. Magistrate Edmison's record is one which he should feel justly proud of, and in his retirement the county will lose one of its fairest and most able administrators of justice. Throughout his career Magistrate Edmison was always fair and broad minded, never at any time displaying the least sign of a prejudiced spirit. For those reasons he was held in high respect by the members of his profession and the public and Peterboro will always remember with pride the work of the retiring magistrate.

A Review reporter called on Magistrate Edmison at his home on Rubidge Street this morning, and chatted for some time, during which some interesting tales of the past were told.

To look back 50 years and be able to say that the same house has provided a home during all that time, is a remarkable thing, and few people in the world can boast of such a record. The residence of the magistrate was erected 50 years ago at his own supervision, and is still in a fine state of repair, which is a credit to the workmanship and the care which the contractors of olden days used to employ and adopt, and a striking contrast to the slipshod manner in which houses are thrown together to-day.

"Fifty years ago when my wife and myself moved into this house, there was hardly a house in the neighborhood. Across the road was the Presbyterian Church, a little stone structure which was known as the Scotch Church. Afterwards when there was what could be called a split in the church, St. Andrew's Church was erected on the site, and St. Paul's was erected by the other faction of the Presbytrians in the city," said the magistrate.

His worship looks with pride on the development of the city, because when he came here first, there were only a few board sidewalks, and they were in the heart of the town, while those living a few blocks from the business section waded through mud to their homes.

Magistrate Edmison was called to the bar in either 1863 or 1864. He is not clear on the date. The ceremony took place in Osgoode Hall. "And it is the same old place," mused the magistrate. His first clerk was Alexander Haggart, a Petrboro boy, who received his schooling or his early insight into the "intricate law" with Magistrate Edmison. Alexander Haggart is to-day Justice Haggart of the Court of Appeals for the Province of Manitoba. Previous to his appointment to the bench he was a partner with Hugh John McDonald, son of Sir John A. McDonald, the grand old man of Confederation.

Magistrate Edmison practised alone for a number of years and afterwards went into partnership with R. E. Wood, and later A. E. Dixon was his partner. He served the city as a council member for a number of years, and was also a member of the board of education. During his career he conducted most of his own cases when acting as counsel, and only on a few occasions did he retain counsel to handle his brief.

Magistrate Edmison acted as judge of the county court for a number of years. It was during the time Judge Weller was ill, and at the request of the judge, the authorities at Ottawa appointed Magistrate Edmison to the position of deputy judge of the county court. He acted in that capacity until Judge Weller died. Judge Weller was succeeded by Judge Huycke. Magistrate Edmison also acted as local master of the supreme court, that appointment being made by the provincial parliament.

Magistrate Edmison and Mr. Bradburn, father of William Bradburn, cleaned up about $100,000 between them on Winnipeg authorities, mainly because the magistrate was the advisory member of the patnership. "I went to the West and realising it would be a great country, I bought property in Winnipeg and other points. I paid $2,550 for 100 feet in Winnipeg, and after I returned I let Mr. Bradburn take a share in it. We held it for a number of years, and one day Mr. Bradburn decided he should sell, and offered the land for $400 per foot. I objected as the market was on the rise, and I filed a caveat in the registry office to prevent any sale being made. Some years afterwards we received $1,000 per foot, and naturally Mr. Bradburn was delighted. We received $99,550 for the land I had paid $2,550 for. The $450 short of the $100,000 is accounted for in the fact that the purchaser had the land surveyed and it was 5 inches short of the 100 feet," said the Magistrate.

Magistrate Edmison has no intention of leaving the city and smilingly he said he would spend the rest of his days in the house he erected 50 years ago. He stated that Magistrate Dumble had authority to try county cases and he would probably act until the Government appointed a successor.

The magistrate is still hale and hardy, and enjoys his walks every day. He possesses a wonderful memory, and it is safe to say that the memory of his excellent work as an administrator of justice will always be pleasant recollections to the people of Peterboro and the county.

THE ROYAL PALACE AT BELGRADE, SERVIA'S CAPITAL; AND THE TOWER OF THE CITADEL THAT GUARDS THE CITY.

GENERAL WAR THE OUTLOOK

Greater Activity Among the Nations — Mobilization Continues But the German Foreign Office Maintains Peace Efforts Are Still in Progress

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, July 30. — A newspaper despatch from Rome says sharp resistance is being offered to the Austrian advance from the north-west by a small detachment of Servian troops left to impede their progress. The Austrians followed the valley of the River Morava and first encountered a body of Servians at Semendria, on the Servian side of the Danube. The Servians held their ground until night fall and then retired. Both sides sustained heavy losses. On the western side of the river, another Austrian column came into contact with a Servian force at Loanitza, which put up a stubborn defence till dark, inflicting heavy losses on the Austrians. An old fortress at Belgrade was reduced by the Austrian artillery with only slight damage to other parts of the city. The British legation was struck by a shell.

INVADERS ADVANCE.

Nish, Servia, July 30.—The invading Austrian army advanced to-day some twenty miles south-west of Belgrade and an artillery battle was in progress near Semendria.

RESERVES NOTIFIED.

Berlin, July 30. — Preliminary instructions were sent today by the German War Department to all officers and soldiers of the reserves to hold themselves in readiness to join the colors.

UP TO GERMANY.

Rome, July 30.—Official circles here to-day appeared to abandon all hope of mediation, averting war. It was stated the moment had now come for Germany to show whether she wants war, and it was argued that she alone can influence Austria for peace.

INCREASES RATE.

London, July 30.—The Bank of England to-day raised its minimum discount rate one point, making it four per cent. Absolute gloom prevailed on the stock exchange. Failure of the Derenburg Co. was announced.

BRITISH ACTIVE.

Valetta, Malta, July 30.—Incessant preparations proceeded here among the large British garrison, and among vessels of the British fleet throughout the night. All leave has been stopped.

CHICAGO FLURRIED.

Chicago, July 30.—There was a flurry in the wheat pit at the opening of the Grain Exchange and in the first minutes, December option sold at ninety-eight cents, compared with last night's closing price of ninety-one cents. In different parts of the pit, prices showed a difference of two cents.

Paris, July 30.—Every preparation short of mobilization has now been made in France. A wild rumor was in circulation that President Poincare after an all night council of war, had decided to call upon eight hundred thousand men or the army reserves. A strong official denial was issued with the assurance of drastic action against those spreading such reports. The French public seems to regard war as a certainty.

Berlin, July 30. — The German foreign office states that efforts towards maintenance of peace are still in progress and that Germany has not yet ordered mobilization. It was said, however, that the situation had grown worse, and in view of known preparations by Russia and France, it is questionable whether Germany could remain inactive much longer.

Berlin, July 30.—The reserve officers of the Guards Army corps, whose headquarters are in Berlin, received orders today to mobilize.

Col. Sam. Hughes Hurries to Ottawa

Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes paid a flying visit to this city last evening. Code despatches were received late last night bearing on the war situation in Europe. The Minister of Militia contemplated taking part in the celebration in Lindsay today but as the Canadian Department will have to take prompt action in the event of Great Britain being drawn into the conflict Col. Hughes had to leave for the capital.

The Honorable Minister arrived in this city via G.T.R. from Lindsay at nine-thirty and his special car was immediately transferred to the C.P.R. on which he departed via the 1.28 a.m. for Ottawa.

WARRING FORCES UNITE IN READINESS FOR WAR

Only a Political Miracle Can Avert Great War, According to Despatch Which Has Been Passed by St. Petersburg Censor---Imperial Manifesto is Awaited by Russian People---Nicholas May Lead Army.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 30.—In Russian eyes the die is cast. Only a political miracle can avert war.

Russia does not swerve from her determination to support Servia and partial mobilization has already been ordered. There is every indication that the whole vast military machinery of Russia will soon be set in motion.

An imperial manifesto is awaited.

Should, as it is understood, Emperor Nicholas before Generalissimo of the forces, an immense wave of enthusiasm will sweep over Russia.

The political parties have sunk their differences.

The general attitude is not "jingoistic" but one of resolute confidence in the justice of the country's cause and readiness to make preparation.

The proposal attributed to Austria to discuss terms when Belgrade had been occupied is regarded as impossible. It is pointed out that before the opening of hostilities, Russia proposed to Austrian direct exchange of views, which Austria rejected.

[The foregoing despatch has been passed by the censor without revision —a fact which is considered highly significant.]

Demonstrations Held.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 30. — A patriotic demonstration took place on the Nevsky Prospect yesterday afternoon. A procession was formed and with banners flying, marched to the Servian legation, where there were speeches, singing and cheering. Thence the procession moved to the French and British embassies where similar scenes of enthusiasm were indulged in, the crowds still growing.

Another striking demonstration occurred at the Kazan Cathedral, where a special service was held and prayers were offered for victory to the Slav arms.

The cathedral was thronged and the officiating priest, after the ceremony, presented to the Servian Minister a fac-simile of the Ikon of the Holy Virgin of Kazan for the Servian army. The Minister handed the Ikon to officers who are starting for the front to-day.

The German and Austrian embassies are guarded on all sides by strong detachments of police and nobody is allowed to stop on the adjacent footpath for fear of hostile attempts.

A confident feeling prevails here of Great Britain's support. Germany's attitude is regarded as incomprehensible, except on the assumption that she is anxious for a trial of strength at the present moment.

An Odessa patriotic processions marched through the streets yesterday bearing the portraits of Emperor Nicholas and the Kings of Servia and Montenegro and cheering for Servia, France and Great Britain.

Reserves Called Out.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 30.—An imperial ukase issued by the Emperor last night calls to the colors an immense number of reservists.

The men called out are: First, all the reservists of 23 whole governments, and of 71 districts in 14 other governments; second, part of the reservists of nine districts of four governments; third, the naval reservists in 64 districts of 12 Russian governments and one Finnish government; fourth, the time-expired Cossacks of the territories of Don Kuban, Terek, Astrakhan, Orenburg and Ural; fifth, a corresponding number of reservist officers of the medical and veterinary services, in addition to needful horses, wagons, and transport services in the governments and districts thus mobilized.

Peace Association Cuts Vienna.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, July 30.—The International Peace Association, at the request of the American delegates now here, has called a meeting for next Friday. As a protest against the warlike action of Austria, the association has decided to change the meeting place of the universal peace congress in September from Vienna to Berne.

Belgium Calls Out Reserves.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, July 30.—The Belgian Cabinet decided yesterday to call out immediately three classes of the army reserves.

Aviators Offer Services.

PARIS, July 30.—A large number of noted French aviators, led by Roland Garros, in a letter to the Minister of War, have offered their services.

Maurice Barres, a member of the Chamber of Deputies, and President of the League of Patriots, has issued a call for a big demonstration on the arrival at Paris of President Poincare to signify affirmation of the triple entente and readiness for the service of France.

Socialist Riot.

STUTTAGART, Wuerttemberg, Germany, July 30. — Socialist and anti-war demonstrations in this city yesterday led to such serious collisions between the manifestants and the police that the authorities called out the troops to cope with the disturbances. Police guards were attacked with volleys of stones by the people.

CHILD STOOD IN PATH OF A RUNAWAY TEAM

When Fatality Looked Imminent, Horses Dashed Across Lot

An unseen power played a prominent part in the escape from injury of a three-year-old child, who had wandered to the street, shortly before eight o'clock this morning.

At the Hunter Street bridge, a Douro farmer lost control of his horses and the animals bolted. The owner made his escape from the rear of the wagon, just as the outfit was about to collide with a pole at the entrance to the ball park.

The frightened animals dashed along Hunter Street. At the Mark Street corner, the child was about to cross the road. The little one fascinated by the spectacle of the onrushing horses, stood directly in their path.

Three men approaching the corner, rushed toward the child and yelled at the top of their voices. But the youngster seemed not to realize the danger.

When within [illegible] of the child, the frightened animals swerved to the side and galloped across a vacant lot.

On approaching the child, the men found a [illegible] wreathed in smiles as if the [illegible] had been greatly enjoyed.

FATAL FALL FOR MRS. JAS. OWENS

Was Mother of Mrs. Jas. Packenham, East City

The Campbellford Herald gives particulars of the death of the late Mrs. James Owens, who was the mother of Mrs. Jas. Pakenham of East City. The Herald says:

The death of Mrs. James Owens took place early last Saturday morning, at the family home on the first concession of Seymour, under peculiarly sad circumstances. Mrs. Owens, who was eighty years of age, had been enjoying excellent health and was able to go about the house and do considerable work. She retired as usual Friday evening, and arising next morning, probably before daylight, it is thought she mistook the cellar door for the door of her room, and fell to the cement floor below, sustaining injuries which caused her death. The body was discovered some time afterward by a member of the household. A physician was summoned but life had departed.

The late Mrs. Owen, whose maiden name was Margaret McCormack, was a native of Ireland, and came to this country with her parents when about five years old. About 55 years ago she was married to Mr. James Owens and for over half a century they lived on the farm on which she died. Mrs. Owen was possessed of a vigorous constitution, and remarkable vitality, never having been seriously ill in her lifetime. She was a member of the Anglican Church, and was beloved by a large circle of friends and acquaintances for her many excellent qualities.

The surviving members of the family, besides her husband, are three sons; Joseph, of Warkworth, Dennis, of Seymour, James of Campbellford; and two daughters, Mrs. J. Pakenham of Peterboro, and Mrs. Charles Benor, of Campbellford. A brother, Mr. James MacCormack, resides in Detroit.

The funeral took place on Monday afternoon, from the family residence, the remains being laid to rest in Warkworth. The services at the house and the grave were conducted by Rev. Charles Carpenter, rector of Christ Church.

NEIGHBORS TESTIFY AT TAMWORTH INQUEST

Evidence of Doctor Who Made Postmortem Examination and That of Women Who Saw Miss Yorke Last Show that She Was the Victim of an Illegal Operation.

who has fully approved the decision of his Government to mobolize the Russian army to prepare for any eventualities that may suddenly develop in the Austrian-Servian crisis.

CUT HIS THROAT.

Kingsville, Ont., July 30.—James Harris, aged 70, who recently purchased a summer cottage at Linden Beach, Cedar Creek, attempted to commit suicide by cutting his throat with a razor. Small hopes are held out for the man's recovery, his windpipe being nearly severed, [illegible]

Detective Miller Now on the Trail of the Missing Physician.

TAMWORTH, Ont., July 30.—That the death of Blanche Yorke, the dressmaker, whose body was found in Dr. Robinson's house, resulted from hemorrhage and loss of blood, caused by an illegal operation, was the finding of Prof. W. T. Connell, of Kingston, who performed the post-mortem examination at the inquest held here yesterday.

Shortly before the inquest opened Provincial Detective Miller slipped away quietly and is now supposed to be on the trail of Dr. Robinson.

Bruce Richards, one of the men who first discovered traces of the crime, told the jury of his visit to the Robinson house with J. Taylor and the bailiff to seize furniture. He outlined the manner in which the discovery of blood stains on the bed railing and floor was found. He volunteered the information that after a search of the house he and his companions located in a laundry bag a blood-stained towel and clothing. His evidence was corroborated by the other members of the party.

"She told me she was going to Dr. Robinson's office to get some medicine," said Miss Walsh, one of the last persons to see Blanche Yorke before her disappearance. She also told of a visit to the office of Dr. Robinson the evening when Miss Yorke was last seen. She waited in the doctor's office for fully ten minutes while he was working in his small office. She saw a telescope grip passed in and out by the doctor, but saw or heard nothing of a third party behind in the office.

A few minutes after Mrs. Irwin came into the doctor's office and the doctor talked to them both for a

PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, JULY 30, 1914

IT STUNG.

A CRITICISM by the Review of the brand of justice that is being dispensed in the local police court over which Magistrate Dumble presides, has stung our esteemed evening contemporary, which poses as the champion of fairness, into making false or at least prevaricating statements. The Examiner says not a word about the third case we mentioned, where a man was virtually given a private hearing. This skating over disagreeably true facts, which would nullify its partisan support of Magistrate Dumble, is to be expected from our slippery contemporary. Of course, it desires to be fair and never hit below the belt, yet it ignored the third case we cited for obviously unfair and partizan reasons.

Our contemporary says there is not a word of foundation in fact for our charge in the gypsy case. This statement of our honest friend, is false, for, while Chief Thompson disposed of the case, it was with the direct or implied concurrence of the magistrate. This is what the Examiner thinks of the case:

> "Chief Thompson handled the whole case, and handled it well, too. He secured the return of the money dishonestly obtained, secured the departure of the gypsies, and saved the city and county the expense of maintaining them in jail."

Just here let us ask what constituted authority gave the Chief power to dispose of this case? The Examiner admits there was a misdemeanor, for it says the Chief returned the money, yet these gypsies were not punished for their offence. Would our esteemed contemporary explain to its readers what compounding a felony is? Will it take up the shield of the Crown Attorney or the acting Crown Attorney, who permits such a state of affairs to exist in the place where justice is supposed to be obtained? The explanation would be interesting, for we have an idea that the chief of police overstepped his jurisdiction. The Examiner has made a sorry mess of its attempt to defend Peterborough's little Czar, for it has admitted between the lines of its comment the justice of our criticism. What we objected to, was letting the gypsies go (possibly illegally)—for an indictable offence, when their reputation should have deprived them of leniency, and, on the same day, withholding leniency from an unfortunate woman, whose case merited leniency, and on which our contemporary was not bold enough to express a decided opinion, as well as giving a virtually private hearing in a third case. The Review had no intention or desire to make a partizan attack on Magistrate Dumble, as any fair-minded reader of our criticism would admit. What we criticised was the way in which justice was being dished up in the local court, and, we think a comparison of these cases shows that our criticism was well founded.

The Examiner admits there was an indictable offence committed in the gypsy case. It admits the treatment of the woman was "a matter of opinion." It has nothing whatever to say on private hearings in reference to the third case mentioned, where the man is known to be a good Grit. It has said nothing on the fact that one of a band of gypsies proved to have committed an indictable offence was not prosecuted, or at least, not punished. Our readers can easily judge for themselves how insincere and partisan the position of our esteemed evening contemporary is.

HIGH MEAT PRICES.

THERE ARE indications that the prices of meat will surpass the record high marks of recent years, according to the representatives of [illegible] of the great packing plants of America. The present tendency of the market appears to bear out this prophecy.

The chief source for the ample beef supply of other years are not on the ranges, and the farms of this or any other country. There is a great shortage—it is a world shortage. The [illegible] by State and national experts show that the cattle swept from the ranges by the settlement of the old grazing States have not been replaced. The farmers who hold the old grazing lands are crop growers and not growers of live stock, and the passing of the ranges meant the passing of cheap and plentiful beef. In brief, beef and meats are rising in price for the same reason that diamonds are valuable—because of the comparative scarcity of the commodity. We may get some relief from the beef of the Antipodes and the Argentine, but in the Argentine at least the supply is handled by the same companies that handle American beef and the prices cannot be much lower. Possibly the placing of meat on the free list under the Underwood tariff will have a tendency to hold the prices level, but the world-wide shortage will greatly nullify this effect.

AN OPEN SCANDAL.

THE MONTREAL MAIL says the police raided a store on Notre Dame street and seized a thousand post-cards, which will be examined for evidences of obscenity and suggestion, and says:

> "Whether these cards are found to be immoral or not, there is no doubt that many of the cards exhibited in the open windows of stores in this city are immoral or suggestive in the extreme.
>
> Many of these cards are simply disgusting; others are openly vicious. Numbers border on the line, catering to the rather careless people whose tastes are vulgar.
>
> There is great need, however, for the cleansing of many store windows in which hundreds of cards are exposed. Every day one may observe children clustered around these windows, like flies hovering over filth. The cards are hung low, in many cases, so that the children may see them."

For our life we cannot see why action in such a matter has been so long delayed. We have seen post-cards in a five, ten and fifteen cent store that were a disgrace, yet the police never had any idea that their services were required in this matter. There are many post-cards exposed for sale that are a crime against society, yet there has been little effort to correct this evil. The police seem to confine the major part of their efforts to gathering in a few drunks and vagrants, rather than in preventing harm to growing children. Besides, there are societies and organizations that have the welfare of the city as an object, but they have taken little or no action in this matter. The Montreal paper has taken timely action, and matters in Peterborough should be investigated. There may be nothing wrong here, but the authorities should be certain, and if any store in Peterborough has indecent post-cards for sale, they should be severely dealt with.

WHERE ARE PEACE PROPAGANDISTS?

WHERE ARE Andrew Carnegie, the editor of the Toronto Globe, Nobel Peace prize-winners, Trade Unionism, Hague Tribunals and Arbitration now? War has been declared, the leading journals of Europe are talking, not against war, but of localizing war. Peace seems to be as scarce a subject of discussion in the present European crisis as a live dodo. The occasion seems to illustrate that universal peace is still a dream of the distant future, and that there are some situations that can only be satisfactorily answered by a resort to arms.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL SHOULD INQUIRE.

THE FINDING of Blanche Yorke's body reveals the [illegible] work of one of the most revolting crimes in Ontario criminal annals. Only the pitiable details remain to be filled in by coroner's jury and police investigations.

There are two or three things in connection with the case which require comment. Why has the Attorney-General's Department been so slow in the matter? Why did the police not search Dr. Robinson's house when they took the trouble to search his office? Why has Dr. Robinson's house never been inspected until he has had ample time to make a big get-away? Did the police frame up a wild-goose chase to enable Dr. Robinson to clear out? If a bailiff could find plenty of evidence and clear up the mystery in half a day, what is the use of having detectives and police at all? The conduct of this case certainly requires investigation by the Attorney-General's Department, as it appears to have been very incompetently handled.

Peterborough's Expansion.

Windsor Record.

The Peterborough Review recently issued a creditable industrial number, showing the expansion that has taken place in that city.

The Treacherous Water.

Montreal Star.

Prudence is always necessary in playing with water. It is not man's natural element. It will kill him if for a moment his vigilance, his skill or his strength fails. In the heat of summer, it is a most tempting playground; but we should always remember that the sword of death—like another Excalibur—lies just below the smooth and shining surface.

Canada and India.

Toronto Star.

India is the great Imperial problem, and it is upon India that the energies of Imperialists ought to be concentrated. If India were self-governing, as Canada and Australia, the troubles and anxieties of Imperial statesmen would be much less than they are today. Those who are trying to modify imperial relations pay too much attention to Canada and too little to India. The framers of new constitutions for the Empire seem to have left India out of their plans; and it is not unlikely that their activity increases the disquiet of India. Most Indians are continually hearing of new schemes of imperial government, in which India is virtually ignored.

Complete self-government for India is not feasible at present, but the whole force of Imperial statesmanship ought to be directed to preparing India for self-government, which is the only stable government.

By Alfred Noyes.

I.
Peace! When have we prayed for peace?
Over us burns a star
Bright, beautiful, red for strife!
Yours are only the drum and the fife
And the golden braid and the surface of life!
Ours is the white-hot war!
II.
Peace? When have we prayed for peace?
Ours are the weapons of men!
Time changes the face of the world!
Therefore your ancient flags are furled,
And ours are the unseen legions hurled
Up to the heights again!
III.
Peace? When have we prayed for peace?
Is there no wrong to right?
Wrong crying to God on high
Here where the weak and helpless die,
And the homeless hordes of the city go by,
The ranks are rallied to-night!
IV.
Peace? When have we prayed for peace?
Are ye so dazed with words?
Earth, heaven, shall pass away
Ere for your passionless peace we pray!
Are ye deaf to the trumpets that call us to-day,
Blind to the blazing swords?

COOL CLIMATE

By Walt Mason

An Eskimo was sighing before his igloo door; the snow around was flying which made him very sore. The ice was in his galways, the snow was in his ears, and evermore and always the climate froze his tears. "Doggone this beastly blizzard," the Eskimo remarked, "it chills a fellow's gizzard and keeps his larynx barked. Ah, would that I were living in those United States, where Nature's always giving her sunshine to the skates! I've heard it said the weather is often there so hot that people get together and cuss — delightful thought! They have a summer season when blizzards do not blow, and no one thinks of freezin' or dying in the snow! Oh, it must be delightful to live in such a clime, away from every frightful old elemental crime. But Doctor Cook informed me that folks don't like the heat (the information warmed me with anger, I repeat); they don't appreciate it, the climate they have there; in fact, some people hate it, and rant around and swear." His meditations soured him—he might have saved his breath; a polar bear devoured him, and then it froze to death.

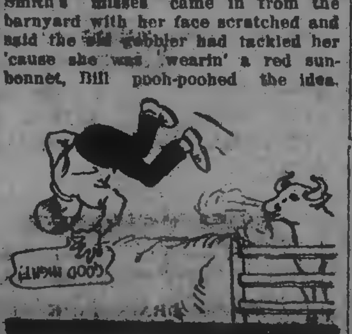
ON CONVICTIONS

WHEN a feller gets so set in his opinions thet he feels sorry fer anyone havin' anythin' of an opinion thet don't jibe with his own, it's a purty sure sign thet somethin' is goin' to drop on that chap sooner er later. When Bill Smith's misses came in from the barnyard with her face scratched and said the old gobbler had tackled her 'cause she was wearin' a red sunbonnet, Bill pooh-poohed the idea.



Said thar wan't nothin' in thet stuff the red infuriated gobblers and things and jest to prove it he put on a red flannel shirt and went out in the pastur' and smiled friendly like at the prize Durham he's so proud of. Thet bull took one good look at Bill and then made for him. He tossed him across the lot and throwed him over the fence among some Canada thistles. Bill got up to the home along 'bout sundown carrying the red shirt in one hand and his obstinacy in the other. He dropped both jest outside the door and while his misses was administerin' the liniment to his bruises he remarked casual like thet he reckoned arter all red made some difference to gobblers and things.

BELGRADE BOMBARDED

Austrians Shell Servian City

SEMLIN, Hungary, July 30.—Early yesterday morning the Austrians began hostilities by bombarding Belgrade. Three monitors took up positions at the confluence of the Danube and the Save, and when close to shore opened fire. The monitors' guns were directed on the Belgrade fortifications, and no pains were taken to avoid hitting the public buildings, some of which seem even from here to have been damaged. The Servians made no reply to the Austrian gunfire, but they have destroyed the railway bridge. The bombardment is desultory as far as the Imperial forces are concerned.

Servians Retreated.

VIENNA, July 30.—The Servians at 1.40 yesterday afternoon blew up the bridge spanning the River Save, between the Austrian town of Semlin and Belgrade. The Austrian infantry and artillery stationed at Semlin, in conjunction with monitors on the Danube, fired on the Servian positions beyond the bridge. The Servians retreated after a short engagement with trifling losses.

A small detachment of pioneers, in co-operation with the customs officers, Tuesday captured two Servian steamers laden with ammunition and mines. The pioneers and revenue guards, after a short, sharp encounter, overcame the Servian crews and took possession of the vessels and their dangerous cargoes. The captured ships were towed away by one of the Danube steamers.

WHOLESALE HOLD-UPS

Two Men Loot Stages Full of Tourists

GARDINER, Mont., July 30.—Stage coaches of four of the largest transportation companies operating in Yellowstone Park were held up yesterday by two men. The 165 passengers on the stages were robbed of their money and it is reported the robbers obtained a total of $3,000.

The hold-ups occurred at different times at Spring Creek Canyon, four miles from Old Faithful, a geyser, and 54 miles from Gardiner.

Lt.-Col. L. M. Brett has a large force of men pursuing the robbers, who were reported to be heading toward the Jackson Hole country in Wyoming. Only one robber participated actively in the hold-ups, the second man remaining behind trees as a lookout.

The transportation companies offered rewards aggregating $900 for the capture of the bandits.

The highwaymen had the advantage, because Government regulations prevent any person except those with permits from carrying arms in the park.

PREFERRED DEATH TO DISGRACE

BUFFALO, N.Y., July 30.—S. R. Schmidt, 42 years old, of Huntington, who has been in the Erie county jail since July 16 on the charge of defrauding a local hotel, committed suicide by diving from the third gallery to the cement floor. A note found in Schmidt's clenched fist declared that he was innocent of any crime and could not stand the disgrace of arrest. He was to be sentenced yesterday.

Explosion Kills Twenty-Five.

TUDELA, Spain, July 30—Twenty-five people were killed and fifty others injured, some of them fatally by an explosion of fire works during a local festival yesterday.

Youthful Murderer Gives Himself up

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 30.—"Always the ghost of the man I killed was before me. It would rise up in the night and keep me from sleep; it would appear before me in the daytime when I tried to work, and I couldn't get away from it a moment."

Thus did Charles Whetley, 19 years old, who gave himself up to the police, describe the pangs of a guilty conscience which has tortured him since the time of his crime. He declared he had killed Lee Thompson, a brakesman on a train in Arkansas. Whetley said the killing was on the night of March 14 on a freight train between Gilbert and Harrison, Arkansas.

He was "bumming" a ride, he said, and the brakesman tried to put him off.

FLEETS ARE MOVING.

British Home Squadron Sails For Unknown Destination.

PORTLAND, Eng., July 30. — The British fleet sailed from here yesterday for an unknown destination. No information could be obtained from naval officials as to the movements of the war vessels.

Far East Fleet Gather.

SHANGHAI, July 30.—The British far eastern fleet is mobilizing at Wei-Hai-Wei on the north coast of Shan-Tung province. The German fleet is mobilizing at Tsing-Tao, about 200 miles to the south.

Spain Assembles Ships.

GIBRALTAR, July 30.—Spain has ordered every available warship to assemble at the Balearic Isles, in the Mediterranean.

All necessary precautions are being taken here.

Towing Disabled Ship.

WASHINGTON, July 30. — Captain Johnston of the revenue cutter Seneca, reported yesterday that he was towing into Halifax the new British steamer Sable I. from Glasgow for Halifax, picked up ten miles off Cape Race, Nfld., totally disabled by the bursting of a high pressure cylinder.

OWES HER LIFE TO "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Cured Both Stomach Trouble and Headaches

PALMERSTON, ONT., JUNE 20th. 1913.

"I really believe that I owe my life to "Fruit-a-tives". Ever since childhood, I have been under the care of physicians and have been paying doctor's bills. I was so sick and worn out that people on the street often asked me if I thought I could get along without help. The same old Stomach Trouble and distressing Headaches nearly drove me wild. Sometime ago, I got a box of "Fruit-a-tives" and the first box did me good. My husband was delighted and advised a continuation of their use.

Today, I am feeling fine, and a physician meeting me on the street, noticed my improved appearance and asked the reason. I replied, "I am taking Fruit-a-tives". He said, "Well, if Fruit-a-tives are making you look so well, go ahead and take them. They are doing more for you than I can".

MRS. H. S. WILLIAMS.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, etc.

CHICAGO, July 29.—Apparently increasing chances that after all, the war might be narrowed down and prove brief, tended to give the wheat market today a sharp setback instead of another stunning advance. Failures which were looked for had prices at once repeated yesterday's leap of nearly 10 cents, did not develop among even the smallest traders. In consequence weakness rather than feverish strength characterized the close, with final values at virtually the lowest point of the day and 3 5-8 to 4 3-8 under last night.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, July 29.—The excitement of Tuesday, due to the war outbreak in Europe, was continued this morning on the wheat market, and on the curb there was heavy buying at 1½c over Tuesday's close. This fact caused Winnipeg at the official opening to start off strong, comparatively, on the distant months, but they eased off in sympathy with American when their values were posted.

Trading, however, was active on the decline, and there was little or no abatement until news from a private source spread that the war area would be localized.

While the weather in the Canadian West is extremely hot, according to the weather map, many points being over 90 degrees, rain has occurred at a dozen points, which will be beneficial.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, July 29.—There was no improvement in the export trade in grain today, there being practically no demand from foreign buyers, and exporters were not disposed to make offers with the political situation so unsettled. The tone of the local market for oats was firm at the recent advance in prices, with a fair amount of business doing in carlots.

The export trade in spring wheat flour was quieter, but there were some sales made at a further advance of 3c per sack. The local market is steady, with a fair demand for small lots in the butter market, with a fair trade passing for local account. Cheese is quiet and steady. Eggs fairly active.

time quite cooly. This was about 8.30 the evening on which Miss Yorke disappeared. Mrs. Irwin's story followed along the same lines, but she also saw a satchel said to have belonged to Miss Yorke. The witness made two trips to Dr. Robinson's office that evening and on both occasions saw the hand satchel.

Two days after Miss Yorke's disappearance, Mrs. Wager the next witness, who lives across the road from the Robinson house, saw black smoke coming from the furnace chimney. She remarked to her husband that the doctor must be cold, and that it was unusual to see such smoke in July.

Mrs. Gertrude Redden, who lives east of Dr. Robinson's house told of seeing a light between 9 and 10 o'clock in what was probably the cellar room in which the body was found. The same day she saw smoke issuing from the furnace chimney. This was the night before the doctor's disappearance.

The inquest then adjourned until to-day.

At eleven o'clock yesterday morning the partly dismembered and badly mutilated body of Blanche Yorke was dug up in the cellar of the home of Dr. Clarence Robinson by Provincial Inspectors John Miller and Greer, following its recovery Tuesday night.

After searching the house thoroughly the detectives located two partly burned limbs together with burned clothing and personal effects in the furnace.

The only theory that the provincial police have as to why the body of Blanche Yorke was not located when the house was diligently searched on Dr. Robinson's request two weeks ago is that it must have been sewn up in the bed mattress, parts of which were scattered around in the transfer to the cellar.

$12.00 Suits, latest styles and materials, and a few of last season's suits, worth up to $20.00, for $5.98.

Now,—a firm determination on our part to clean up all Summer stocks and do a humping business the next two weeks is responsible for this most unusual sacrifice of profits, the biggest price reductions we have ever made under ordinary conditions, and at this period of the year.

Every person who has made a purchase at this store knows what excellent values, styles and satisfactory service is given for their money. And now during this business humping sale these same superior values have been priced much below the former regular price.

Our purpose now is to clean up all present stocks of dependable merchandise. The season's business has left us with many still big assortments of good merchandise, and this sale has planned to effect a good clearance in the short time of 15 days. That is not long for such an undertaking, but when we think of the wonderful values to be placed on sale, the very eagerness among good thinking people to take immediate advantage of the timely and worth while savings, such as we provide, and the fact that a general sharp price reduction is made on every line of wanted wear, we are certain that 15 days will bring about the result we desire, and see scores of more than satisfied purchasers in attendance at the sale. Come on the opening day if you can—it doesn't matter if you don't need a thing—Come alooking anyway.

SWIMMING POOL PROPOSED FOR LOCAL Y.W.C.A.

Matter is Under Consideration by the Officials

The suggestion, or more correctly speaking, the idea of fitting the Y.W.C.A. with a swimming pool and affording accommodation for the young ladies of the city is in all probability about to become a reality. When Miss Peacock, the new secretary, arrived, there was much talk of a public bathing house. Then, like Reciprocity, the proposition died a natural death, hence the desirability of providing a swimming pool in connection with the Y.W.C.A. presented itself.

Miss Peacock herself is desirous of getting the young ladies of the city, other than those who board at the institution, interested in the Y.W.C.A. work, and one assist in this would be the swimming pool.

Tutored along with the proper care the matter was placed before the proper authorities and at present they are busily engaged in bringing the project to a head. The building has been gone over and the best location selected, so it is anticipated that it will be but a matter of a few weeks till the work will be commenced.

The movement on the part of the Y.W.C.A. to cater to the city working girls cannot be too highly commended. There are many maids in this city who have afternoons off and to provide them with gymnasium work, privileges of a reading room and lectures would surely be a good work.

With the first of September the fall work will be commenced, and it is generally recognised that it will be far more extensive than in any previous year.

CROSSING NEEDED AT NEW WHARF

Dust and Mud Encountered by Excursionists

A communication was received by the Board of Works last evening from J .O. Fife, secretary of the St. James' Church, in which water service along the front of the church was requested. The matter was left in the hands of the Chairman, City Engineer and Street Commissioner.

Account Paid.

An account of $62.50 from Mr. B. F. Ackerman for the rental of the lot north of his factory, which the city has used to store wood, was ordered to be certified by the Chairman and paid. The above amount represents the taxes on the property for the year.

Engineer Will Investigate.

The Board assumed the role of Daniel when dealing with a communication from E. H. D. Hall, which asked for permission to construct a nine inch connection to the sewer on Aylmer Street between Hunter and Brock Street and use the same as an outlet for the sewerage of a row of houses facing Fleming Place. City Engineer Parsons will look into the matter and report.

Two More Crossings.

W. H. Munro, of the Peterboro Radial Railway Co. had a letter before the meeting in which it was requested that crossings be built on the north side of Westcott St. and at the New Wharf, north of McDonald's Mill. It was pointed out that these crossings were greatly needed, more especially the latter as the many excursionists are oftimes compelled to walk in the dust in dry weather or the mud after rain. The matter was left with the Chairman and Engineer with power to act.

CORNER STONE OF NEW CHURCH

Charlotte St. Ladies Aid to Make the Arrangements

The matter of arranging for a fitting ceremony in connection with the laying of the corner stone of the new church, was discussed last evening at a joint meeting of Charlotte Street Church societies and it was decided that the arrangements should be left in the hands of the Ladies' Aid Society.

The important event is expected to take place during September and the ladies will no doubt give a good account of themselves, in their preparation of the program.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN HICKEY.

Mrs. John Hickey, aged 80 years, one of the most widely known and most highly respected residents of the township of Emily, passed away at St. Joseph's Hospital last evening. It will be remembered that some eight weeks ago while the late Mrs Hickey was performing her household duties she fainted and fell on the stove, sustaining very serious burns. Since then she has been confined to St. Joseph's and at first hope for her recovery was held out but her advanced age together with the effect of the shock caused medical aid to be of little avail. She is survived by her husband. two daughters, Mrs. J. E. Hayes, 219 Park Street, and Mrs. Thomas Lane, 243 Hunter Street, also two sons, Mr. Patrick Hickey of Park Street, and Mr. Martin Hickey on the homestead in Emily.

The remains will be removed from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. J. E. Hayes, 219 Park Street, tomorrow afternoon to the homestead in Emily and the funeral will take place on Saturday morning at nine o'clock to St. Martin's Church and Cemetery, Ennismore.

MRS. MARGARET CROWLEY.

Mrs. Margaret Crowley, aged 87 years, passed away at the residence of her nephew, Mr. Maurice Crowley, 56 Hunter Street east, last evening. Deceased was born in Douro and had lived the greater portion of her life in this part of the country. She is survived by one sister, Miss Mary Tobin, of this city.

The funeral will take place tomorrow morning to St. Joseph's Church and Cemetery, Douro.

Funeral Held To-day.

The funeral of the late Charles Rabbett, who passed away on Tuesday in St. Joseph's Hospital after a few days' illness with pneumonia, took place this afternoon from Lane and Eano's Undertaking establishments to St. Peter's Cathedral and St. Peter's Cemetery. Deceased had one brother in New York City, but the remainder of his relatives live in Ireland.

BOARD HEARD OPINIONS OF CITY SOLICITOR

Regarding Construction of Sewers in Special Cases

At the meeting of the Board of Works, held a week ago last night two questions came up on which the advice of the City Solicitor was required. His answers to their queries were read at the meeting last evening. In connection with laying sewers on sections of the city which is far below the level (instance that section on the south-east corner of Hunter Street bridge) he claimed that it was not compulsory. If the local Board of Health recommends sewers they may or may not be laid according to the feeling of the Board of Works and unless the Provincial Board of Health orders the sewers to be built the Board of Works can refuse to construct them.

With regard to the laying of sewers on the boundaries of the city the townships can in no way be made responsible for part of the work. It is impossible to make any arrangement with the townships but arrangements for the paying of a division of the cost for the privilege of utilizing it, could be made with the individual residents of the townships. The city can go ahead at present and construct the sewers on their own side of the boundary but the citizens on the street will have to pay double the usual tax per foot frontage.

The laying of the sewer on Lansdowne Street from Maud to Lock Streets was the sewer in question and as the property across the street is the Exhibition Grounds the meeting thought it best to have the Engineer and Mayor take up the matter with the owners of the property Ald. Johnston voiced the general feeling of the meeting when he stated that he thought it would be unfair to burden one side with the total cost, minus the usual share the city pays and he wished to see the matter properly defined and understood before any permanent work is done.

At a meeting of the Board of Works a week ago last night a deputation of citizens requested that the sidewalk on the north side of Romaine Street from Park Street to the east side of A. Lazure's property be not built. The Board passed a resolution in accordance with their request.

Last evening, however, a petition was received from some seventeen residents asking that the pavement be built and after much discussion, in which it was pointed out that J. Lynch, the owner of the majority of the property which the pavement in question would front, was in favor of having it laid, the matter was put to a vote. Those in favor of the sidewalk being built were Ald. Anderson, Green and Johnston, while Ald. Saunders, Stratton and the Mayor voted nay. It was up to Chairman Ald. Duncan to cast the deciding ballot and he voted for the sidewalk.

PAT JEFFRIES KICKED HIS WAY TO FINE OF $10

Children Fell out and Pat got Angry

HE WAS BOOTLESS

Found guilty by Magistrate Dumble on the charge of assault by kicking Mrs. Blair of Driscoll Terrace, Patrick Jeffries was fined $10 and costs. In reviewing the case Magistrate Dumble said that Jeffries had shown very little manliness and had evidently lost his head entirely and kicked the woman. There was also a decrepancy in the evidence.

A Slap on the Face.

Mrs. Agnes Blair, Driscoll Terrace, stated that on Saturday evening, Patrick Jeffries had chased her two boys home. He was evidently very angry. He insisted on entering the house and she slapped him on the face. He told her if he was a woman he'd take satisfaction out of her. His actions had frightened her to such an extent that she had been confined to her room for some time. During the altercation at the door, he had kicked her. He didn't have his boots on. She had her baby in her arms at the time. She couldn't walk on Sunday as a result of the kick. She was attended by Dr. McPherson.

Jeffries had also advised her that he could beat up the entire family if necessary. Jeffries then left and came back and denied to her aged father that he had been near the house or had kicked her.

Cross-examinationed, Mrs. Blair said she struck Jeffries first as he was trying to enter her house. She denied using any threats toward Jeffries.

Stephen Hourd, father of the former witness, told a similar story.

"Could you see Jeffries kick Mrs. Blair," he was asked.

"Yes," he replied.

The Cause of it All.

Fred Blair, the cause of the "war," said he had a scrap with one of the Jeffries' girls. He waited for her on Friday afternoon when she was coming from the store. She had a bag of oranges. They had a quarrel and the girl threw the bag of oranges at him and ran. One of the oranges rolled out on to the road. She told her father and this started the rumpus. He said Jeffries kicked his mother.

Jeffries in defence said he had nothing against Mrs. Blair. He admitted he had no right to go on the verandah after the children. When he was backing up she struck him. He denied kicking Mrs. Blair. He could honestly swear that he did not attempt to kick a woman. He always respected women. Mrs. Blair did not have a baby in her arms.

Mrs. Jeffries said she saw the fracas and stepped out to the street to see the whole trouble. Mrs. Blair had her baby in her arms. She was forced to keep the children chained up to keep them from fighting with the Blairs. Miss Annie Lamb, a boarder at Mrs. Jeffries said that Jeffries became angry at the boys. She told the same story as Jeffries.

MIGHT BE A LESSON BUT---

"Drunk and sorry for it," said James Greaves, to Magistrate Dumble this morning. He was dismissed with the advice to leave Peterboro.

Greaves claimed to be a rancher. He came to the city yesterday with over $50. When arrested he was broke and claimed that some one had relieved him of over $40.

"You came to a good place to get relieved," remarked the Magistrate.

"I was never before a court before, and you can bet I never will again," grinned the culprit as he disappeared.

RUSSIA MOBILIZING ON AUSTRIAN FRONTIER

Anxiety is Felt Lest Russian War Plans May Include a Secret Mobilization Along the German Border—Kitchener is in London Advising War Office.

LONDON, July 30. — The day's events brought no relief to the suspense nor any diplomatic achievement to restrict the Austro-Servian war to those two nations. The feeling throughout England and the continental feeling as reflected by the correspondents of the London papers yesterday is distinctly more anxious than on Tuesday.

Two events have made for pessimism. The direct negotiations between Russia and Austria, which gave the other Governments hope of a compromise, have failed, and are ended. Russia is mobilizing against the Austrian frontier four army corps in each of four districts, consisting of 1,280,000 men. Russia's resolve to stand by Servia appears to be fixed, and the Russian censor has approved despatches declaring that Russian sentiment is all for taking up arms.

A manifesto by the Russian Emperor making his policy clear is expected hourly. The diplomatic representatives have not yet despaired. They all say there is still hope, and base their belief on the fact that Germany, France, Great Britain and Italy—the two last named most of all—do not want war, and do not think the Austro-Servian quarrel important enough to justify it.

St. Petersburg messages say that Russia has asked Austria for a direct exchange of views, and that Austria refused this offer.

Sir Edward Grey, the British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, to whom all look as the foremost conciliator of Europe, is attempting, it is said, to frame fresh proposals for a settlement. The diplomatic world of London clings to the belief that a means can be found whereby Austria may satisfy Russia that she can attain her ends without recourse to measures which the Russian Government and Russian public opinion cannot accept.

There is the greatest anxiety as to whether Russian mobilization will be confined to the Austrian boundary or proceeding secretly against Germany, but between mobilization and war there is a gap which the two nations bridged in 1909, and may again.

The first important fighting occurred before Belgrade, when the Servians blew up a bridge across the river. The Austrians attacked them and the Servians retreated to the capital, which unconfirmed reports say is being bombarded.

Lord Kitchener, who is now in London on leave, has been in daily attendance at the War Office, giving the benefit of his counsel to the general staff, and it was said yesterday that he assisted in giving the finishing touches to a scheme for landing an expeditionary force of a hundred thousand men in Belgium in case it becomes necessary for Great Britain to assist France. British officers who are home on leave from abroad have all been ordered to report themselves at the War Office and not to leave the country without permission.

The gloom and danger of the situation was most strikingly reflected on the Stock Exchange, where, as a defence against an avalanache of selling orders from home and abroad, there was a tacit understanding that no business should be done. The only real business transacted was in consols at 70 1-4, and the only reason that the committee decided not to shut the exchange was that this might cause a bigger panic still.

In the House of Commons Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George said after the conference at the Bank of England he found no justification for adopting any panic measures. This announcement the House received with obvious relief. There were seven failures on 'change yesterday. Two important failures and several more are anticipated before the settlement is through.

Councils of state were held yesterday at St. Petersburg, Berlin and Paris. The British Government continued the attitude that the crisis does not yet concern Great Britain save as a spectator and peacemaker. An official statement issued last night says:

"No measures have been taken by the military authorities, which are of the nature of mobilization. The only orders which have been given are of a purely precautionary and defensive character. The naval measures are also precautionary. No mobilization has been ordered."

In the face of what so calm a minded statesman as Viscount Morley called in the House of Lords last night "the possibility of a vast catastrophe," the politicians and the press have become sobered to an extent that this country has never before known. Not a word inciting to international or domestic hostilities comes from any quarter.

BIG FUNERAL IN DUBLIN

Two Hundred Thousand Bare Heads as Coffins Pass

DUBLIN, July 30. — More than 200,000 persons, standing bareheaded and silent in the street last night, witnessed the funeral procession of the three persons killed last Sunday when the King's Own Scottish Borderers fired into a mob during an attempt by the police and the soldiers to seize arms which were being brought into Dublin for use by the Irish Nationalist Volunteers. All shops were closed for the occasion.

Three processions, which started from the cathedral, was a mile and a half long. The mayor and the city council and other public bodies and battalions of Nationalist volunteers followed the hearses. As the funeral cortege passed the scene of the shooting the bands played dirges.

Burial was in Glasneven cemetery and the volunteers fired a volley over the graves.

Connaughts Not In Peril.

OTTAWA, July 30. — The report published in New York papers that the Duke and Duchess of Connaught narrowly escaped drowning at Kenora on Saturday is a wild exaggeration. Their Royal Highnesses were attending a motor boat parade in their honor, and Hon. Robert Rogers' craft, in which they were travelling, bumped on a log.

Lake Street from Aylmer to G.T.R.

Monaghan Road from Homewood to Walkerfield.

Wilfie Can Train at Castle Nesbitt

Drunk and looking for trouble, Wilfred Ireland and George Edwards, two lumbermen, last evening embarked upon a good time. The result was that to start something they commenced to pummel each other. Cops appeared on the scene and they were pinched. This morning Magistrate Dumble ended their efforts at pugilism by imposing a fine of $5.75. Both being without the money they will accept the hospitality of Castle Nesbitt for fifteen days.

HENRY PRINGLE PROMINENT MAN AT BELLEVILLE IS DEAD

Belleville, July 30.—Mr. Henry Pringle, one of Belleville's prominent business men, died yesterday morning. Deceased was born here 58 years ago and was the senior member of the Pringle Lumber Company. Twice Mr. Pringle was the unsuccessful Liberal candidate for Legislative honors for West Hastings. For years he was a member of the Board of Education, a member of the senate of Albert College, and the city representative on the public library. He was an official of the Bridge Street Methodist Church and always took a deep interest in mission work. He was prominent in Masonic circles and a member of the A.O.U.W. society.

TRACEY ---- CLEMENT

Opposing Twirlers in Booster's Day Game This Afternoon---No Scoring up to End of Third

Riverside Park, July 30.—Jack White's reorganized Hamilton Club were the opposing forces at Riverside this afternoon. The crowd kept coming in goodly numbers, and the fans were entertained with a few selections by the Italian street musicians, while the teams were warming up. Among the new faces on the Hams were Cunningham, formerly of the Montreal Internationals, Shears a former Jersey City Skeeter, and Pendry from the Central League. Each manager warmed up a couple of hurlers. "Rube" Brady amused the fans with a wind up a'la Mathewson. Umpire Miller announced the batteries as follows: Clement and Fisher for Hamilton, Tracey and Kelly for the Petes.

The teams lined up as follows:

Peterboro.	Hamilton.
Blount, c.f.	Cunningham, 2b.
Welsh, l.f.	Corns, c.f.
Dolan, 1b.	Pendry, 3b.
Rooney, r.f.	Ivers, 1b.
Byrne, 3b.	White, l.f.
King, 2b.	McGroarty, s.s.
Fox, s.s.	Baldwin, r.f.
Kelly, c.	Fisher, c.
Tracey, p.	Clement, p.

First Innings

Hamilton—Cunningham skied out to Byrne. Corns died likewise to Fox. Pendry flew to Welsh. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Petes—Blount scratched a hit which was too hot for McGroarty. Welsh flew to Cunningham. Dolan drove one at McGoarty, who tried to double Blount at first, but pegged high and Blount went to second. He was out a moment later trying to score on Ivers' boot of Rooney's effort. No runs, one hit, two errors.

Second Innings

Hamilton—Ivers flied to Blount and White went out King to Dolan. Kelly caught McGroarty's foul against the stand. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Petes—Byrne singled through second. King forced Byrne at second. Fox went out on a hard hit ball to Ivers. Kelly hit to Pendry, who tagged King. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Third Innings.

Hamilton—Baldwin was thrown out by Fox. Fisher flied to Dolan. Clement flew to Fox. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Petes—Tracey skied to Fisher. Blount raised one to Cunningham. Welsh hit a low one, which McGroarty trapped. No runs, no hits, no errors.

By innings—

GOOD SPORTS FOR THE LABOR DAY PROGRAM

The committee having charge of the sports at Riverside Park on Labor Day met last night. Mr. W. Cotton was elected as chairman and Mr. Miller, sports secretary. A fine schedule of events was drawn up for presentation to the general committee on Monday next for approval. Watch for further particulars.

Local football teams desirous of entering the contest for the Peck Trophy are requested to send names to C. Hammacott, secretary general committtee, 88 McDonnel St. There is one entry to date, from All Saints' football team.

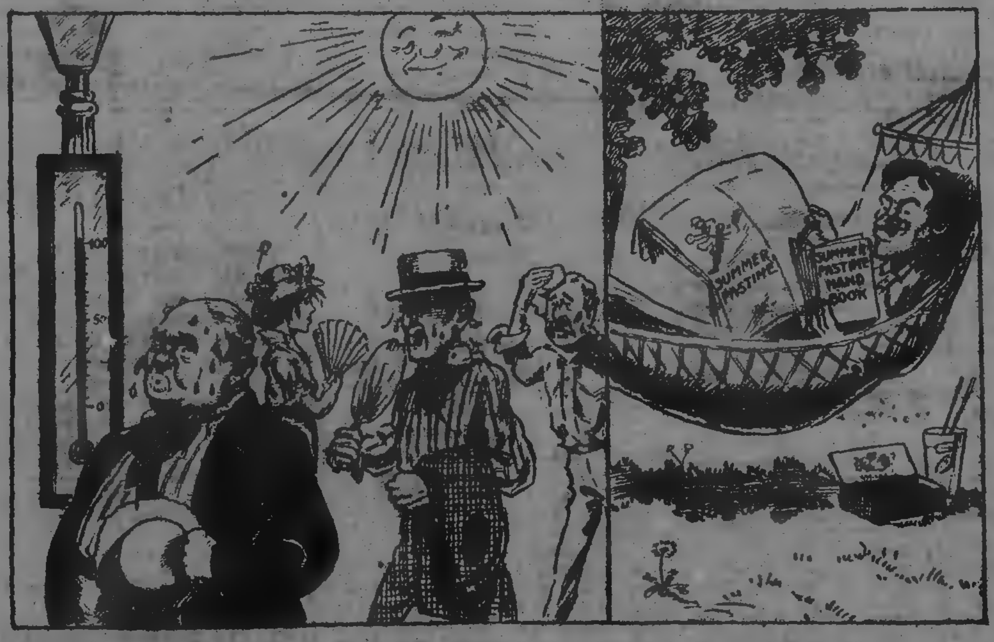
Escaped by Taking Refuge in Stream

During the recent bush fires in Northern Ontario, when the town of Hearst was almost completely wiped out, Messrs. Will McKim and C. Bevin had a most thrilling experience. They had gone to work on their farms a few miles from Hearst, and while cutting timber they noticed the smoke of the fire that was raging through the trees like mad; the boys just took time to pull down their tent and pitch it into an old well close by, and made a rush to the stream of water in which they stood for two hours. They had barely reached the water, when the fire swept over the place where their tent had stood, and destroyed their clothing, edibles, etc., in a twinkling. The boys after standing to their necks in not very warm water for two hours, started to walk to Hearst, leaving about 2 p.m., and arriving at Hearst at 10.30 p.m., only to find that the fire had almost made a clean sweep of the town. It is an experience the boys will not soon forget, nor will they care to have a similar one again.—Millbrook Mirror.

DEAD AT 102.

Windsor, Ont., July 30.—Francis Nolan, who for 46 years lived in the town of Sandwich, died at the home of his daughter in Detroit at the age of 102. He was a Civil War veteran and fought on the Confederate side from 1860 to 1864.



There's a lot of satisfaction in quietly getting into a cool place where the Summer Pastime rebus pictures can be worked out at leisure. The prizes are worth gaining and there is pleasure in the job. CLEVER FIELDING IN FINAL WHICH PETES WIN BY 3-2

Quick Work on a Double Play, Grand Catches in the Garden and Home Run by Fox, Feature the Festivities

No, Pauline, that moving van you noticed Frank Fox perched on last evening was no indication that the shortfielder had been canned and was going to leave town. Frank was just buzzing around collecting all the donations given to the first Pete who made a home run on the local grounds. Frank did that yesterday in the second when he smote one of Graham's fast ones into right field and into the "rivah." The circuit clout helped some, because it made the Petes' total count "3," and as Toronto scored before the game was over, that gentle tap proved a regular Blucher. Fox was the first man up in the second, and he connected with the first ball pitched, and —bing—there was a thud and a splash as the Spalding output took a high dive into the Otonabee.

The pastime was good all the way, but Schettler had by no means the better of the argument with his younger adversary, Mr. Alexander Graham, of Toronto. The Beaver youth twirled great ball, was steadier, and had his repertoire showing at its best, while Schettler had difficulty in locating the platter. He fanned nine, but that good showing was offset by the fact that he walked five and cracked Trout in the ribs. The wind was blowing wrong for Louie's shoots, but as Peterborough won, everything was strawberries and cream.

Byrne's Timely Poke.

The game emphasized the point that you never can tell in a game of baseball. The first innings settled the question. There were two out and Graham was going nice, when Dolan singled. Rooney leaned on one which looked good for a triple, but Trout by a great run got to it, but dropped the ball. Joe Byrne then came through with a single which counted Dolan and Rooney. There was a chin talk over the point of whether Trout held the ball and dropped it while attempting to make a throw. Umpire Miller ruled that Trout dropped the ball. Harkins rushed out from the Toronto bench and tried to make the argument resemble a Paris court scene, where it seems that everyone talks at once and the judges let 'em go to it. Umpire Miller could not see it that way, however, and chased Harkins from the grounds. When Trout made the catch he was running at full speed towards the fence which separates the left fielder from the brewery. There were two out at the time. Trout took a few steps after he had caught the ball. He did not need to make a throw, and after the ball had fallen to the ground he picked it up and shot it to third, which made it look as though Trout realised he dropped the ball. At any rate, he was not in a position to throw when he dropped the pill.

A Dazzling Double Play.

Outside of that piece of excitement Fox, King and Dolan pulled off a double which was one of the neatest pieces of infield work shown here this year. Frank went back of second, tossed the ball to King, and he in turn sent it bullet-like to Dolan. Fox missed a chance to make another double by throwing high to King when he should have ran to second himself and also make the throw to Dolan. Burrill for the Beavers hauled down a few in centre which looked like extra base pokes. The climax of thrills came in the ninth when Joe Byrne made a great catch of a foul off Gadsby's willow, and Curly Blount robbed Ort of a hit by a beautiful run in, a shoe-string stab and a few somersaults. Outside of that the game was just the sort which pleased, as snappy work predominated on both sides, and it was anybody's struggle till the last man had died.

After the second innings only four Petes reached first, and one got on via the boot route. During the entire game only eight Petes reached first, so that is a fairly good illustration of the sort of ball Alexander Graham was hurling.

Schettler Was Liberal.

On the other hand, Schettler was very uncertain and he issued passes twice when the bases were thickly populated. Thirteen Beavers got on, one by the error route. A little indifference on the part of Welsh was responsible for Snell getting a hit in the seventh. Snell had one clean hit and two flukey ones, as he dumped a Texas leaguer into right when he tried to get away from the ball and it connected with his bat.

The Petes got two in the first, when, after two had died, Dolan singled, Trout dropped Rooney's liner after a hard run, and Byrne came through with a single. One more was added in the second on Fox's home run clout. They were never dangerous afterwards.

In the third, Snell singled, Hunt was safe on Fox's error, and Ort walked, filling the bases. Schettler forced Snell across when he passed Trout. With three still on, he fanned Killilea, and Isaac flew to Byrne, letting us out of a bad hole. In the fifth Hunt doubled, but the other three were easy outs. In the sixth a lightning double choked off a rally. Schettler became wild again in the seventh when Snell doubled, Graham fanned, Hunt fanned, Ort drew a pass, and Trout was hit, filling the bags. Killilea worked Schettler for a pass, and once again Snell was forced home. That was about all, but it was enough, to make the fans uneasy.

First Box of Davis Perfections Won By Shortstop Frank Fox

When shortstop Fox clouted the pill for a homer in yesterday's game with the Hogtown Beavers at Riverside Park, he won the first box of "Perfection" cigars donated by S. Davis Sons, Limited, the Montreal manufacturers of high class smokers. Mr. Clydesdale, the George Street tobacconist, handed over the "Perfections" last night and congratulated Frank on being the first winner this year. Now that a start has been made it is up to the boys to follow the example of Fox and pole a few "Perfection" wallops, as this offer of the Davis' people is good for each and every homer made by the Petes at Riverside. Fox's smoke winning drive yesterday was some poke as it nearly rolled into the drink. Get busy with the willow boys and make Art Clysdale loosen up with the "Perfections."

BANKEPS LOST TO DRAFTING ROOM

Good Ball in the Mercantile League

The Drafting Room defeated the Bankers 4-3 in a regular Mercantile League game at Riverside Park yesterday evening. The ball dished up by the two amateur nines surely deserved better patronage. Both teams played practically air tight ball the game being anybody's till the last bat was in the bag.

Paddy Gorman and Roy Smith were the opposing slabmen and it would be difficult to say which had the better of the argument. Of course the Drafting Room carried off the honors but at that it was more by getting the breaks than by superior play. In the end of the second they shoved the first run of the game across the pan when Olson was hit, stole second and third and scored when Phelan dropped the third strike on the batter and then threw high to first. In the third they made the total four, when Panter, in right field for the Bankers, misjudged a long fly from Olson's bat, with the bases crowded.

Gorman held the Bankers scoreless till the first of the fifth when four hits resulted in three runs. Two were down, Minorgan on second, Parsons at bat and one run needed to tie the game up but the first sacker was an easy out from pitcher to first. Bill Shaw repeated his performance of the previous evening and satisfied all.

COMMENT

As You Like It

Umpire Miller outside of being a first class master of ceremonies on the ball field has had the pleasure of being the third man in the ring when some of the world's most prominent boxers hooked up, and is looked upon as one of the best referees in the middle west. The umps hails from Kansas City which is the home of several good umpires including "Brick" Owens. Four, six and ten round contests are allowed in the city and Umpire Miller referees the majority of the bouts. Some of the men he has separated from a clinch in the roped arena are the late Luther McCarthy, Jim Flynn, Al Kauffman, Carl Morris and Freddie Welsh the present lightweight champion. The umps thinks that Luther McCarthy would have been the man to bring back the title to the white race had he lived. "I think he would have given Johnson a great fight" said the umps. The bout which Umpire Miller handled in which McCarthy fought was staged at Springfield, Mo., and Carl Morris the human truck horse was McCarthy's opponent. The umps said he was surprised to learn that Welsh had beaten Ritchie. He thought that the latter would be too rugged for the clever Englishman. In the opinion of the umps Welsh is the greatest boxer the lightweight class has even seen. "Welsh fought a rugged chap, Mickey Sheridan when I handled the bout and I don't think the Irish lad landed a blow. It looked that way as Welsh was as quick as lightning." Some other bouts handled by the umps were the Kaufman-Jim Flynn go, Welsh-Donohue, Harry Brewer-Wild Cat Ferns and Dillon-Norton bout.

Brantford's action in selling Gero to Ottawa at this stage of the race does not look good. If the Brantford Club needed financial gain it would have been O.K. to sell to some other club but Ottawa should be discouraged in its idea that it should be permitted to buy the pick of the league. It would be all right if Ottawa were in last position or down in the race somewhere but when the club has a chance to win the pennant, that chance should not be strengthened by the other clubs in the league. Gero is rated as Brantford's best bet but it was claimed he was a trouble maker, which is the usual claim under which managers and magnates hide when announcing the sale or trade of some fairly good player.

Shaughnessy is taking desperate steps to capture the flag again but the league outside of Ottawa should be pulling for London. There is no doubt that London was the only club in the league which started off with a genuine Class "B" club Doc Reisling has kept his men at their work with regularity and deserves the honors and no one in the league will begrudge them as the doctor is pretty well thought of around the circuit.

"Shag" paid $1,000 of his hard earned cash to the Adrian Club for Mitchell, his new short field man. After watching Mitchell work a few times the Ottawa sport writers heralded him as a second Maranville and said that he would surely be in the big leagues before very long. Detroit was after him, etc. Take a look at the box scores each day and you will see that "Mitch" is having his daily error and it not breaking up any games with his club.

DE LAVALS ENTER SECOND PROTEST

More excitement in the Mercantile League. The De Lavals have entered another protest, this time against Wing, who played second base for the Red Caps, Tuesday evening and helped a whole lot both in the field and at bat. The De Lavals claim the player was not properly registered. An executive meeting is called for the Y.M.C.A. Friday evening at 7.20 and representatives of both teams are expected to be on hand.

BRITAIN'S NAVY EQUAL TO TRIPLE ALLIANCE

Ship for Ship Germany, Italy and Austria Can Muster Same Tonnage but Training is not so Good

The Danube River, which forms the boundary between Servia and Austria, affords room for manoeuvring a respectable fleet, but Servia has never put an armed vessel on the river. Austria, on the other hand, has long maintained a flotilla on the Upper Danube, and within the last two years—since the last two Balkan wars revealed Servia's military strength—she has increased her naval forces on the river.

She has in commission on the Danube six little monitors and two more are building. None of them amount to much fighting value as against other ships, but on the Danube and against shore batteries or field artillery they will prove formidable. Austria also has eight motor patrol launches, with a machine gun in each on the Danube.

As Belgrade is situated directly on the river and has no batteries that could effectively resist even this little navy, the flotilla would be ample to capture Belgrade single-handed. The flotilla, moreover, would have no difficulty in covering the landing for an invading navy.

Germany's Fleet.

When is comes to a comparison of the navies of the Triple Alliance and the Triple Entente, the figures come much nearer to a balance. In the Triple Alliance the most formidable naval power is Germany. The German fleet has been making rapid strides in the last few years and can send to sea seventeen battleships or battle cruisers of the Dreadnought class. She has eleven more on the way, but not now available. Besides this first fleet, Germany can still show a second line, in reserve, of twenty other battleships, all built in the last twenty years. Many of these, however, need not be taken seriously. In the first place they are not all, by any means, in full commission, and there is no doubt that it would take weeks of hard work, at least, to get them all ready for sea.

In the second place, until less than ten years ago Germany maintained the remarkable policy of arming none of her ships with guns of more than nine-inch calibre, and all these ships belong to that period. Sending them into action with modern Dreadnoughts, with 12 and 13.5 inch rifles, would be pure slaughter.

Italy's Power.

The second naval power of the Triple Alliance is Italy. She can send out a powerful and homogeneous squadron of four Dreadnoughts, which, designed as they are by the man who is conceded to be the ablest warship designer now living, will have to be reckoned with in any sea fight. She has two more fine ships on the ways, but not within months of commissioning. With this one contribution, however, Italy's bolt is shot. She has eight old battleships, which although, probably, gun for gun, better ships than Germany's twenty old ships, are open to much the same criticism.

Austria, numerically, is stronger than Italy in fighting ships, but their quality is not comparable. She can bring into action two ships of the Dreadnought class and three others, which, although older, smaller and slower, wouldn't compare unfavorably with the United States Connecticut class. Besides these she has three more which class with Germany's and Italy's secondary line. All her fleet is in full commission.

Britain's Mighty Fleet.

Against these three fleets, for the Triple Entente, the backbone, if not practically the entire opposing force, is in Great Britain's great war fleet. Great Britain has now at sea and ready for action, thirty battleships of the Dreadnought or super-Dreadnought type, besides ten others which like the Lord Nelson and Agamemnon class are but little behind the Dreadnought rating.

The ships carry four 12-inch guns, therefore they are classed below the Dreadnoughts. But they carry no less than ten 9.2-inch, which make them far superior to any other battleship not of Dreadnought rating now afloat. And that is aside from the fact that the British 9.2-inch is a gun of terrible effectiveness but faintly shadowed forth in figures.

Besides, Britain has thirty-eight smaller and older battleships, which outclass the twenty older ships of Germany. Of armored cruisers, Britain has sixteen to Germany's three, Italy's four and Austria's none.

French Fleet.

France, the second member of the entente, in battleships can show but two Dreadnoughts, but she has nine ships of the Justice, St. Louis and similar classes, all worthy to be classed, say, with the Connecticut, and twelve old craft which could in emergency be hauled out to the firing line. France has also fifteen armored cruisers, and these, though perhaps not of tremendous fighting value, are really fine ships.

The Russian fleet need hardly be taken seriously, though she has four battleships—on paper—one of which might be extricated from the dockyard in time to fire a shot at an enemy. This brings the question down to the really important basis of comparison—morale, training, discipline and fighting efficiency.

German Discipline.

The German navy is a wonderfully efficient organization—in a typically German way. There is no discounting the thoroughness with which the German fleet has been drilled. The Italian navy has almost none of the showy precision of discipline of the German. For one thing, their ships are dirty compared to the spotless decks beneath the banner of the Fatherland; for another, their drill and discipline has a rather Latin spirit of slapdash in it and doesn't impress the eye. But for all-around, offhand sea-fighting efficiency a good many competent critics rate the Italian navy, ship for ship, a notch above the methodical German.

In personnal the Austrian fleet is heavily handicapped at the very start by one circumstance—the Austrian German is no sailorman and never was. The Hun is no better. As a consequence the Austrian fleet is manned entirely by Italians and Dalmatians, with the Dalmatian in overwhelming majority. Now the Dalmatian, while a good sailorman racially, is a Serb. He is pure Slav, with as much love for the Germans as any of his race. He is Serb in language, sympathies, and very largely in religion.

Criticism of French.

The French navy has come in in the past for some very hard knocks from the critics. Discipline in that service has been declared to be just two jumps above the Russian standard and approximately that of Spain. As a matter of fact, the French navy suffers from very much the same trouble as the Italian. There are no naval men in the world who study their profession along scientific lines with the zeal the French put into it.

But it is the English ships which are today the best manned, the best handled, and probably would be the best fought, of any ships in the world. It might be possible, by lumping all three fleets of the Triple Alliance together, to muster a fleet that numerically would compare with that England would send against them. But the figures of the experts, comparing ton for ton and gun for gun, entirely overlook the essential fact that sixteen ships thrown together without even so much as a common system of signals arranged would be easy prey for a real battle fleet.

It takes more than ships, it takes months of hard practice to produce a fighting combination out of an aggregation of ships.

Germans No Match.

The German fleet alone is an excellent, compact fighting organization. But the German fleet numerically is no match for the English fleet, and to add the heterogeneous units of Austria and Italy, that are not even tactically acquainted with each other, in the hope of overcoming that superiority, would only make the whole array so much the easier victims.

C.M.B.A. EXCURSION.

The annual excursion under the auspices of Branch 30 of the C.M.B.A., was held yesterday via Steamer Stoney Lake to Mount Julian and Burleigh. Some three hundred people were on board and thoroughly enjoyed the rugged scenery of the northern waters. Dinner was served at Mount Julian and supper on the boat. They arrived in the city about 8 p.m.

COMES FROM NOME ALASKA FOR HIS BRIDE

J. K. L. Hyman Has Had Many Exciting Experiences

In recounting a few incidents of fifteen years' experience in the nornorthern wilds, as he sat in the Oriental today, Mr. J. K. L. Hyman of Nome, Alaska, an experienced and famous traveller remarked to the Review reporter that about the only feasible way to reach the north pole was by the old reliable dog team. Personal experience of long travels amid the storms of the far north had taught this. Mr. Hyman who is on his way to Montreal to meet his future wife a girl whom he left some sixteen years ago when a mere youth to try his fortune in the far wilds of Canada, acknowledged the greeting of the scribe as he asked for a few incidents in his life spent in Alaska and other northern parts.

"Away back in 1884 I left Toronto for the west travelling by horse and any form possible as long as I could reach my destination. I was young and full of life and the prospect of making a fortune in the wilds appealed to me as it does to all youths who are fond of an outdoor life and are trying to make good. Reaching the middle west I kept on to British Columbia. Here I spent a couple of years prospecting and when news of the California gold strike came through I hurried through to the scene which afterward proved to be a big issue.

Tiring of life there I commenced my journey for Alaska hearing of the remarkable gold finds there. I had spent a few years in Alaska in various capacities when the famous strike of 1898 struck the entire world with the result that thousands of men rushed to Alaska. Nome was one of the busiest places of the country and was noted for its wildness and uncivilized manner of living. Dance halls and gambling dens were the reigning powers. I made considerable money during the rush having thrown in my lot with two others and we cleaned up a fair amount of dust. Such a life I never lived before —and haven't since, as during those few years of that time, smiled the gentleman in question as he placidly smoked his cigar.

After this I lost track of my relatives and having a very strong liking for adventure I united with the Mounted Police for a couple of years no doubt attracted with the magnificent work they were engaged in and their arder in their undertaking. Tiring of this I started prospecting and travelled with others and was in parties that made several trips to Wrangels Islands where Bartlett and his party are now marooned. Mr. Hyman also was able to recount several thrilling adventures of various kinds he had on the MacKenzie in company with others.

Mr. Hyman after a hand shake departed for his room to pack up to take the train for Montreal. "It's great to land back amongst friends," he concluded.

NOTHING TO GIVE HOPE THAT WAR WILL BE AVERTED

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, July 31.—The official announcement of the resumption of "conversations" at St. Petersburg and Vienna came at a moment when pessimism had taken entire possession of all Europe and the hope that it might lead to a peaceful solution, was grasped with desperation, but the news was later offset by the proclamation of martial law in Germany. Everybody then seemed to settle down to await the news that the Great European Powers had decided to engage in a struggle for supremacy. There was nothing to give the public hope that a general war might be averted. Stock exchanges all over the kingdom and on the continent were closed owing to the breakdown of the credit system which was made complete by the postponement of a Paris settlement. It was pointed out this would necessarily be followed by the failure of some fifty members of the stock exchange.

Precautionary military and naval measures taken by the British Government are almost completed. The great bulk of public opinion here is determined that England must observe her unwritten obligation to assist France in her difficulties with Germany but a small body of radicals continue to utter objections to England involving herself in the quarrels of continental powers.

London, July 31.—The Bank of England today increased the discount rate to eight per cent.

NO RELIEF FOR UNCERTAINTY FELT IN THE GERMAN CAPITAL

Berlin, July 31.—The morning passed without the heavy cloud over the European horizon breaking and there was no relief to the almost despairing uncertainty existing in the German capital where excitement continued to increase.

SANG GOD SAVE THE KING WHEN PREMIER ANNOUNCED AID OFFER

Wellington, New Zealand, July 31.—Premier Massey announced to Parliament today that the government proposed to offer the services of the expeditionary force to the Imperial Government if events necessitated such action. All the members thereupon stood and sang "God save the king."

Berlin, July 31.—Contrary to expectation the German foreign office gave notice today that no mobilization order would be issued today.

This gave rise to hopes that something might happen to avert the necessity for doing so but general feeling throughout Germany was that only a miracle could prevent war. Meanwhile the government is making the greatest exertions to prevent the spread of alarming rumors having established strict censorship of news and confiscated four newspapers which printed an erroneous report that mobilization had been ordered.

London, July 31.—It has been officially announced here today that "conversations" had been resumed between the Russian and Austrian Governments. The London Stock Exchange has been closed until further notice. A settlement due August thirteenth has been postponed four days and settlement on Consols has been put over until September. The rate of discount of the Imperial Bank of Germany has been raised one per cent. to five per cent. The Hamburg American Steamship Company gives notice that the sailing of their big steamer Imperator for New York today has been cancelled owing to the clouded political situation. She will sail when the situation clears up.

Vienna, July 31.—The tension in Vienna was greater today than at any time since the start of the international crisis although nothing definite had occurred to change the situation for the worse. The Neue Freie Presse insists today that Russia must cease to procrastinate and say plainly what she intends to do.

London, July 31.—A despatch from Berlin to Reuters Telegram Company says that a state of war has been proclaimed in Germany. State of war is in other words martial law under which military authorities take charge of the situation.

New York, July 31.—The Stock Exchange will not open today.

FATALITY ON RETURN FROM MOTOR TRIP

North Bay Man Sustains Fracture of Skull

Canadian Press Despatch.

North Bay, July 31. — John B. Sauve, a prominent and well-to-do citizen of this place, was killed yesterday, one hundred miles east of here in a motor accident. With his family, he was returning from an automobile tour of Eastern Ontario begun July first. An embankment on the side of a narrow road gave way, and the car fell over on its side. Mr. Sauve was thrown to the ground and his skull was fractured.

Ex-Reeve Moher of Douro Passes

William Moher, one of the oldest and most extensively known residents of Douro, passed away to-day a few minutes before noon. Deceased has been a resident of Douro all his life and a number of years ago was reeve of that township. His widow and grown family survive.

The funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon at 4.30 from the family residence on the east half of Concession 7, Douro, to St. Joseph's Church and Cemetery.

DR. GEORGE C. CREELMAN
President of Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, who will sail from Vancouver next week to Auckland, New Zealand, and from there will go to Australia, the East Indies, Manila, in the Philippines, thence to Hong Kong and Shanghai. Dr. Creelman is making the trip on the invitation of the New Zealand Government, which is desirous of introducing Canadian agricultural methods. Meetings will be addressed at various centres.

IS SHOCKED AT LETTER-BOX

TORONTO, July 31.—While Geo. Hepden, of 222 Spadina avenue, was working at one of the new letter boxes and postage stamp stands on Yonge street, opposite Child's restaurant yesterday morning he got a shock of 500 volts, and was burned about the left hand and leg.

Hepden is employed by the Hydro-Electric, and was taking off some tape on the wires in the bottom of the box to cut off the power so he could take the top off. How he came to get such a shock he does not know, but he was taken to St. Michael's Hospital, where he was detained for a day.

FIREMEN GALORE.

The day before yesterday, particularly in the afternoon, would have been a mighty poor time for any one to start a fire. There was another fire brigade as well as the local one in the city. The fire fighters from New Liskeard, who attended the celebration yesterday at Lindsay were the guests of the local department, and inspected the Fire Hall, with Fire Chief Howard as a host.

REPAIRS TO STORSTAD.

Quebec, July 31.—The collier Storstad that rammed and sank the Empress of Ireland, causing the loss of over a thousand souls, is expected to come out of the Lauceon dry-docks Wednesday next. The completion of repairs is being rushed day and night.

FELL TWENTY FEET

TORONTO, July 31.—While working on the new Methodist Book Room at Queen and John streets, Harry West, living at 12 Bleecker street, fell 20 feet.

How he came to fall nobody at the building knew. When picked up he was unconscious and was taken to the General Hospital in the police ambulance. His injuries are not serious and no bones were broken.

BUREAU URGED

Deputation Ask Provision Against Unemployment

OTTAWA, July 31.—A deputation of the Social Service Committee, the Builders' Exchange, Trade and Labor Council, the City Council and other local bodies waited on the Government yesterday afternoon strongly to urge that active steps be taken at once to relieve the present unemployment in various parts of the Dominion and to prevent worse conditions during the winter or next year. The Cabinet Ministers present were: Hon. C. J. Doherty, Hon. T. W. Crothers, Hon. J. D. Hazen, Hon. J. D. Reid and Hon. W. B. Nantel.

The Government was asked to establish labor bureaus in all the principal centres and also to find employment, through public work or otherwise, for the men now idle.

Mr. Doherty, acting Premier, said the Government was heartily in sympathy with the desires of the deputation, and would do whatever it could, consistent with reasonable economy, to provide the largest possible amount of employment during the coming year.

TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND MEN TO BE SENT TO THE FRONT AT ONCE IF NEEDED

Militia Council Holds Session at Ottawa and Advises War Office That Quick Action May be Relied On.

Permanent Forces Are Advised to Stand Ready For Orders to Move to Europe.

OTTAWA, July 31. — The Militia Council, at a special meeting yesterday, made preliminary arrangements for sending a first contingent of 20,000 or 25,000 men to aid the Imperial forces in case Britain is drawn into the war. The British War Office has also been advised that it can rely on quick action by the Canadian militia forces. The militia headquarters' staff have plans for mobilization already prepared and every official has been instructed as to his duties in case Canada is asked to send a contingent. The permanent force at Halifax, Esquimalt and other points have been ordered to be ready for mobilization orders, and the Halifax garrison have been ordered back from the camp at Aldershot to their barracks and Fort Station at Halifax.

Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes says a Canadian first contingent of 20,000 or 30,000 could be ready to sail in two or three weeks. It is not improbable that he would go himself and command the contingent.

The active Canadian militia now numbers about 60,000. There are nearly half a million men on the reserve who have had training in past years, but the total available, if full strength were called out, would be about $250,000, and such a force would take a long time to equip.

It is stated that 20,000 men could be mobilised and equipped without delay. At Petawawa this summer 12,000 men were mobilised in a week. Col. Hughes left for Bracebridge last night and will be back here on Monday. Brigadier-General MacDonald, head of the militia supplies branch, is also going on with his plans for a western tour of inspection, leaving to-morrow. The Prime Minister, Sir Robert Borden, may be back from Muskoka early next week, though he has been advised that this is not necessary.

Mobilization at Halifax.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 31.—There are indications of the mobilization of the whole garrison of Halifax, on the strength, it is reported, of a despatch from the War Office. The artillery were mobilized yesterday morning, and it is understood that they will immediately man the different forts in the harbor.

Whatever preparations are being made are being carried out quietly. No information could be gained as to what was being done at headquarters. The officials stated that they had instructions to give nothing out for publication. The citadel, however, was the scene of much activity.

By one o'clock the R. C. garrison artillery of both companies stationed in the citadel were mobilized and proceeded to the forts on the transport steamers. A special train will bring back the R. C. R. stationed in Aldershot, and it is expected that when these arrive the infantry will be held in readiness.

EXCITEMENT AT ST. PETERSBURG

Russian Capital in Fever at Prospect of War

ST. PETERSBURG, July 31.—The war fever seized on St. Petersburg immediately after the announcement of mobilization, and increased almost to a delirium on receipt of news of the sailing of the British squadron from Portland. Business was half suspended, and the activities of the streets confined to cheering and to reading newspapers or talking of the prospects of war. To all appearance war would be popular in St. Petersburg.

It is stated that the order for partial mobilization is intended merely as a reply to the Austrian declaration of war. As a matter of fact, mobilization is absolute, and general reservists in the northern districts are also being summoned to arms. No bills are being discounted. In view of the closing of the Bourse, cash payments on Government securities are suspended.

CLEARING HOUSE.

The following are the figures handed out by the manager of the Clearing House for the past week:—

Austria May Declare War With Russia To-day.

LONDON, July 31. — Early this morning comes news that the German Cabinet presided over by the Emperor, sat at Potsdam until midnight and that a censorship over the telegraph lines is being imposed at Berlin.

This is interpreted here as implying preparations for German mobilization and a few hours will probably decide whether Europe is to be involved in universal war.

It is fully expected both at London and Berlin that the Russian Foreign Minister, Sergius Sasonoff, will reply to Germany's demand for an explanation to the effect that the Russian mobilization has already been ordered and cannot be cancelled.

In the event of Germany mobilising, it is expected that Premier Asquith will immediately ask Parliament to sanction a large vote of credit as a necessary precaution.

A despatch from St. Petersburg to Reuter's Telegraph Company says that it is believed in St. Petersburg that Austria will declare war against Russia on Friday. The despatch adds that if this should be the case, it is understood that Emperor Nicholas will go to Moscow to deliver a pronouncement in the Uspensky Cathedral.

While the news of the actual developments in the Austro-Servian war is unsatisfactory the general situation is one of growing menace. There is a vague report that Austria and Russia are still engaged in diplomatic negotiations through the medium of Berlin, diplomatic intercourse between these two countries having been suspended, but slender hopes are entertained of success in this direction.

Germany has addressed a note to Russia requiring an explanation within twenty-four hours of Russia's mobilization, and, in the absence of a satisfactory reply it is feared Germany may take steps to mobilize also. It is understood that on the failure of his conference scheme Sir Edward Grey invited Germany to suggest some way out of the difficulty, and all eyes are now turned to the German Emperor as the man upon whom Europe's fate depends.

It is believed that if the German Emperor desires it, peace will be maintained. The German view is that it behooves Great Britain and France to bring pressure to bear upon Russia to let the two principals settle their differences without outside interference.

In the meantime, every nation in Europe is taking active steps to be prepared for any eventualities.

Sir Edward Grey, a central figure in the controversy, owing to his strong efforts to keep the powers of the triple alliance and triple entente from flying at each others throats, was not able to give any assuring news when he spoke about the crisis to the members of the House of Commons. The British Foreign Secretary said:

"I regret that I cannot say the situation is less grave than it was yesterday. The outstanding facts are much the same. Austria-Hungary has begun her war against Servia, and Russia has ordered a partial mobilization of her troops.

"This has not hitherto led to corresponding steps between the further powers, so far as our information goes. We shall continue to pursue our one great object of preserving the European peace, and for this purpose we are keeping in close touch with the other powers. In thus keeping in touch we have, I am glad to say, had no difficulties so far with the other powers, although it has not been possible for those powers to join in diplomatic action, as was proposed on Monday last."

Japan May Get Into Fight.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 31.—The official agency here yesterday published a despatch from Tokio quoting a newspaper there as expressing the view that in case of a general European war the participation of Japan as the ally of Great Britain is possible.

South Africa Gets Ready.

CAPETOWN, U. of S. A., July 31.—The manoeuvres of troops in South Africa were cancelled yesterday and the soldiers ordered to return to their posts in consequence of the critical situation in Europe. Special precautions have been taken for the protection of the ports, and the naval station at Simonstown.

Hope Lost In Italy.

ROME, July 31. — Official circles here appeared yesterday to have abandoned all hope of the efficacy of mediation in the European conflict. It was stated that the moment had now come for Germany to show whether she wanted and still wants war, and it was argued that she alone could influence Austria for peace.

AUSTRIA ACCOMPLISHES OCCUPATION OF BELGRADE WITH BUT LITTLE LOSS

Troops Have Crossed the Danube and the Save and Are Advancing in the Direction of Nish—Austrians Cross Into Belgrade by Way of Partially Destroyed Bridge and Pontoons Says London Standard.

LONDON, July 31.—A Semlin despatch to The Standard says:—"The Austrians crossed the Danube 30 miles to the east of Belgrade and the Save ten miles to the south. Belgrade has been captured and is now occupied by Austrian troops, and the force which invaded Servia at Semendria is advancing along the road which leads to Osipanica and ultimately to Nish.

"The occupation of Belgrade was carried out without serious difficulty. The invading troops crossed the river partly by means of the remnants of the railway bridge, which was blown up by the Servians, and partly by a pontoon bridge constructed under its cover, and approached the Servian capital from the south. The attacking forces advanced by a steep hill, driving the Servians before them. The Servians retreated partly along the road leading to Groca and partly towards Popovica. The losses on both sides appeared to have been comparatively light.

"The invasion of Servia at Semendria was a much more difficult task. The Austrians built a pontoon bridge under the cover of darkness from an island in the middle of the Danube, where the channel narrows to 200 yards and the current is swift. The construction of the bridge was a hazardous operation. The work was perceived from the Servian shore and the Servians opened fire. The attacking forces were aided by artillery and infantry along the south shore of the island and succeeded in completing the bridge, over which they passed."

The Servian Legation here received a message last night from Nish saying the bombardment of Belgrade was resumed by the Austrians at six o'clock yesterday morning. Shells were directed at the principal streets of the city.

The telegram added that several Austrian spies had been captured by the Servians.

Despatches from Servia declare that reports of the occupation of Belgrade are premature.

DR. ROBINSON ACCUSED OF CAUSING GIRL'S DEATH

Coroner's Jury Finds Him Responsible For the Tragedy.

TAMWORTH, Ont., July 31—That Blanche Lillian Yorke came to her death on the night of July 8 as the result of an illegal operation performed by Dr. C. K. Robinson, is the substance of the verdict returned by the coroner's jury at the close of the inquest yesterday. According to the evidence, the callousness exhibited by Robinson after the death of the girl was remarkable. For eight days he slept and ate in the house with the remains, at the same time questioning the girl's friends and relatives as to her whereabouts, and even assisting in the searches for her, so as to divert suspicion from himself.

According to Dingman Floyd's evidence Dr. Robinson told him that he had not operated on Blanche Yorke, "because it would take too long to do it." He was treating her for stomach trouble.

Mrs. Thompson, who occasionally did washing for Dr. Robinson, swore that one Thursday evening the doctor brought her two blood-soaked sheets, one flannel and the other cotton. The sheets were wet and heavy, as if an attempt had been made to wash them.

High Constable Van Koughnet, who accompanied Detective Miller in his investigations, said Robinson told them when they questioned him that Miss Yorke had been in his office only twenty minutes. Later on he admitted that she had been "on the slab for an hour and a half." He described their search of the house and declared there was nothing suspicious to be found there at that time. The ashes had been removed from the furnace, but no buttons or burned clothing were in it.

When asked by the crown attorney if he knew Dr. Robinson had been treating Miss Yorke, Daniel McGregor, her fiance, admitted she had told him so.

"Did she say anything about paying the doctor? Did you directly or indirectly remunerate him for his services?" was the next question, to which he answered "No."

Saw Dr. Robinson on 16th.

KINGSTON, July 31. — A young lady residing on Princess street, a relative of Dr. C. K. Robinson, charged with a serious crime at Tamworth, Ont., made a definite statement about his being in Kingston on July 16th. She was absolutely positive she saw him go aboard the steamer America on Thursday, July 16th.

She could not recall how he was dressed, as she merely spoke to him when passing, and did not ask or learn where he was going. He was alone so far as she knew when he went aboard.

BAND CONCERT TO-NIGHT.

Weather permitting and by the kind permission of Lt.-Col. Clegg, Commanding Officer of the 57th, the Band will render a concert to-night at Victoria Park.

A medley of Harris' Hits, No. 7, will be included in the program.

PETERBOROUGH; FRIDAY, JULY 31, 1914

EFFECT OF A GREAT WAR ON AMERICA.

A GREAT DEAL of interest has been aroused by a discussion as to the effect on ocean shipping of a war between Austria and Servia, involving Germany and Russia, and possibly England, France and Germany as allies. As a matter of fact, foreign and domestic shipping representatives do not seriously believe that there will be a war. They say that the European nations directly affected, or involved by reason of treaty engagements, must realize that war will not gain for them anything that would begin to be commensurate with the price they would have to pay in loss of life and destruction of values.

But should a war come steamship representatives say it would result in a material appreciation of tonnage values. The value of tonnage would be increased almost at once, because of the great need of Europe for foodstuffs and other supplies necessary to the existence of its people, and to the proper maintenance of the fighting armies and navies.

Particularly this year would Europe look to the United States because of the fact that crops abroad have been more or less below normal yield, and instances pretty close to failure. Foreign purchase of wheat from the United States alone amounted to something of 5,000,000 bushels.

A war involving some of the European maritime powers, as, for instance, Germany and France, might result in the cancellation of many of the passenger and freight services of lines belonging to those countries for fear of reprisals at sea, such as were resorted to in the war of 1870-71, and to an extent in the later Russo-Jap war. Supplies to those countries, shipping men say, would be sent under neutral flags. Should all of the maritime powers of Europe become involved in war, it is likely that those countries, in order to protect their merchant shipping, will place it under neutral flags, probably Norwegian or Dutch.

While the United States Government deprecates the possibility that all Europe will be drawn into the vortex of the Austro-Servian war, little anxiety is felt as to the effects upon it. Heavy exports of gold will not affect the financial status of the nation, it was said. The drain hardly will be felt by industries of United States. It is recognized, however, that increased demand for American food stuffs will have a strong tendency to stiffen prices and rob the consumer of lower prices which bumper harvests seem to promise.

Canada would very likely feel the same effects as the United States. A great war would bring a certain measure of prosperity in war prices for wheat and other products enhanced by such a conflict. These would inevitably be followed by a period of hard times. If Britain is drawn into the conflict, Canada will be in a different position from the United States, but as far as the financial side is concerned, all America will likely gain in wealth and prestige because of it. Our great food-producing resources are likely to leave Europe greatly in our debt.

LORD NELSON AND LADY HAMILTON.

THE OTHER DAY the Toronto Mail and Empire had an editorial on Admiral Nelson, occasioned by the proposed sale in London of some of Lord Nelson's love letters to his wife, Fanny Nesbit. Two quotations were made from the letters, as follows:

> "Most sincerely do I love you, and I trust that my affection is not only founded upon the principle of reason, but also upon the basis of mutual attachment. Indeed, my charming Fanny, did I possess a million, my greatest pride and pleasure would be to share it with you."
>
> Shortly before he was married he wrote:
>
> "Never was poor mortal more disappointed than myself yesterday at not receiving a letter. . . I sometimes fear it was occasioned by illness. It would make me miserable, indeed, my dear Fanny. No person but yourself can tell what my feelings are."

In 1798 Nelson began his intrigue with Lady Hamilton, who eventually became his wife. On this romantic feature of the great sailor's life the Mail says:

> "Sentimentalists will say that Nelson did not love his first wife. The letters are evidence to the contrary, as was his life with her for several years. Nelson was different from ordinary mortals in that he recognized no laws or orders that did not suit him. He refused obedience to the moral code as well as to the rules of marine warfare when there was a prize to be gained. For the one, posterity has forgiven him. The other remains a grave blot on the career of one of our greatest heroes."

We do not agree with the last sentence here, because it is historically inaccurate, and unjust to judge a man's acts in one age on the standards of another. If society in Nelson's time regarded what he did in the same moral light as such an act would be regarded today, the condemnation would be quite just, but society did not, and that is what constitutes the difference between then and now.

Many historical accounts of this romance have been unfair to Lady Hamilton, but there is one which can be found in most large libraries which is regarded as an impartial biography. It is handsomely illustrated, but the name of the author has for the moment escaped us. Lady Hamilton's humble origin was always her greatest disadvantage. She was beautiful beyond the fortune of most women and possessed a spirit or temper that was as charming as her beauty was attractive. But she was sold for definite considerations, as plainly as any negro was ever marketed. Moreover, she was not cultured or educated as fine ladies of that time were trained. She had little advantage to rise above her surroundings. She was clever, had an absorbing mind, was trained in a lady's ways, and had her taste for art cultivated by her first consort. He afterwards bargained with Sir William Hamilton and she became Lady Hamilton for a handsome consideration, of which she was ignorant and received no personal benefit. Then Nelson fell in love with her. But always polite society, that is in England, shunned her, because she was not born a lady and because it was jealous of her beauty and fine mental qualities, not because she was Nelson's natural wife. The main point is that had Lady Hamilton been traditionally a lady, and had she used her charms politically, as Madame de Pompadour did, society of her own day would have temporized with her past and received her as one of them.

Besides, it was quite a customary thing for gentlemen of Nelson's time to maintain a mistress. Even much later, distinguished men did things that would not be held morally right on the standards of today. Victor Hugo had practically two wives. The scientist, Ampere, and the poet, Chateaubriand, were admirers of Madame Recamier. While Sir Robert Peel did much to raise the moral tone and art of the British House of Commons, he sent a dozen challenges for duels to satisfy his honour. Lord Nelson was no different from his own time, only that having placed his affections on a woman other than his wife, he made no secret of it and openly avowed his intention to make her his legal wife as soon as circumstances would permit. As a matter of fact, Nelson was more honourable and straightforward than most gentlemen of his own day. There were exceptions, to be sure. Lord Collingwood was one. But to say that this romance is a blot on Lord Nelson's escutcheon is to concemn him alone, when the whole society of his time was deserving of that censure.

It was due to Peel and Gladstone that the ethics of public life were raised so as to condemn what today would be called the moral lapses of men like Nelson. The Parnell episode illustrates well the difference between Nelson's day and that of the present time.

The old gentleman's wife was getting into a carriage, and he neglected to assist her.

"No," was his ready response, "and you are not so buoyant as when you were a gal!"

Sensational News in London, Ont.

London Advertiser.

One of London's centenarian ladies went for an automobile ride the other afternoon with her youthful niece, aged 77. To our way of thinking, this was the finest news printed in the Advertiser in a week. It was pleasantly sensational. It had nothing to do with the moral or ethical lapses that usually are called sensational news. In a way it was "constructive" news. It was cheering, and it did not depress any one. Many more years to her whose life has compassed almost every era of modern wonder making! She is young in spirit or she could not have been persuaded to enter an automobile. She had no prejudice against such a modern contraption. We warrant her life is a great story of cheerfulness and sweetness and wholesomeness.

Naming the Farm.

Galt Reporter.

The question of naming the farm is worth more than passing consideration by the farmer who takes a pride in his place. And when such a harvest as Ontario is about to reap is in prospect, what farmer would not? A farm with a name has an individuality which the unnamed farm does not possess. It is an individuality that perpetuates itself. No matter how many owners the property may have the name remains, and it will generally carry with it any prestige its history has gathered.

When the father has made an enviable reputation for the name of his farm, little further incentive is needed for the son than that he should maintain the reputation. It is something like the trademark on manufactured goods. When it has gained a prestige with the public every possible effort is put forward to see that it is upheld. Why? Not for merely sentimental reasons, but because it pays. When a man starts in business with a reliable name at his back, he has got that start which is characterized as "half the battle." So it is with agriculture. The young man that starts farming for himself on a farm whose name means something, is already well on the road to success.

It's worth while to name the farm.

What is a Woman's Honor?

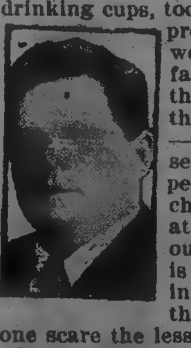
Philadelphia Ledger.

The outline of the defence of Madame Caillaux, whose trial for the murder of Gaston Calmette, editor of the Figaro, has begun in Paris, indicates that Maitre Labori has attempted to find reasons for that which is without reason. Passion ruled when the wife of the Cabinet Minister shot the editor who had been attacking her husband. When the editor published love letters written to her while her husband was still married to another woman, her lawyer says "she shot him dead with the dual object of protecting her honor as a woman and saving her husband from inevitable political ruin."

If there had been any reason in her act she would have perceived that she was doing just what would proclaim to the world that her honor was impugned. And what was the "honor" that she sought to protect? If there was dishonor in receiving love letters from a married man she was guilty of that. She admits it. The unpublished letters were more compromising than the one that was printed. She admits that. Paris was full of the unprinted gossip about the matter. But so long as the newspapers did not proclaim it to the world her "honor" was safe. This is the way her attorney seeks to interpret her mind. And he hopes to persuade the court that a woman is justified in doing murder when she fears that the newspapers will print what every one is saying. Of such fragile stuff is "honor" made in Paris! It used to be made of the same stuff in the United States, when full-grown men, and not emotional women, would go to the duelling field to kill each other in vindication of their "honor." It was thought better to have murder on one's soul than a smirch on the sleeve of one's coat.

TOWN DOGS

By Walt Mason



This is the season when town pups, which have no private drinking cups, too often must go dry; there are no fountains to produce three fingers of refreshing juice for bow-wows trotting by. Along the blazing thoroughfare they seek in vain, in their despair, for something they can drink; their blood gets heated and their jaws are dripping foam—with ample cause—their eyes turn red or pink. When some one sees a thirsty brute, he "Mad dog!" cries, the peelers shoot, the mob arrives with bricks; they chase poor Carlo through the town, and when at last they've run him down, they knock him out with sticks. Not one in fifty dogs thus slain is mad or bughouse or insane, they're merely in distress; if dogs could always have a drink, the "rabies" fake would die, I think; there'd be one scare the less. So let us station in the shade large tubs of wholesome lemonade for dogs which are athirst, and they will bless us day by day, in their own friendly, doggish way, till they are wienerwurst.

China to Have National Anthem

Peking, July 31.—China is to have a national anthem. It has been composed by one of her most prominent statesmen, Mr. Chang Chien, minister of agriculture and commerce. There are three verses. The music has an appropriately Oriental flavor, and the anthem promises soon to become really the people's song. Here is a free translation of the general theme:

Her majestic mountains and superb landscapes
Witness the greatness of China,
Chosen home of the oldest civilization.
The emperors have effaced themselves and restored the throne to the people.
To the people belongs the supreme power.
Long have Confucius and Mencius taught this:
In the time of Yao and of Shun was it proclaimed.
The people comprise the five races, and the five races are indissoluble.
Thus united, China is invincible.
We must develop the wealth of the land, foster agriculture and industry,
Redress wrongs, and make our people happy.
Education and civilization are the great works of the day.
We must all be equal in fact as well as in name. For did not Confucius and Mencius teach absolute social equality?

CANADA HAS NO SHIPS TO AID IN EMERGENCY

Britain Will Have to be Content With Men in the Event of Outbreak

Ottawa, July 31.—Advices of an official character which have been received in Ottawa from Great Britain indicates the situation of extreme gravity in regard to the war outlook, and the Militia Council here, as was intimated, is preparing for the worst. It is keeping in closest touch with developments.

Should Great Britain be drawn into the terrific conflict by reason of Russia and Germany attacking each other, the participation of Canadian troops—cavalry, artillery, infantry and the rest would be certain. The same wave of popular sentiment which swept over the country in 1899 and forced an unwilling Administration to send contingents to South Africa would, with an intenaction now when the peril is graver and its consequences more far reaching in their character.

On the "Qui Vive."

It is learned that private communications directing attention to the situation and its all too imminent potentialities have been sent out to military authorities, who are advised to be ready.

In the event of war and in the absence of a specific appropriation for the expenditure of millions which Canadian participation would entail, the strictly consitutional procedure would by the summoning of Parliament to vote the necessary moneys. Such however, would hardly be necessary. These could be raised by recourse to the process of Governor-General's warrants, subsequently ratified by Parliament in the regular session.

Easy to Prepare For.

It would be a ratification of the principle that when Great Britain Government here, it may confident- Government here, it may confidently be predicted, would show no hesitation in the performance of its imperial obligations. The experience gained in South Africa and the lessons learned in mobilisation and transport at that time will together with the more efficient and active militia training, meanwhile, make Canada's part in the threatened conflict easier to prepare for. The equipment since acquired will add greatly to the efficiency of troops in the field. The peace footing of the Canadian Militia is around 50,000. The war strength could easily be raised to 150,000 in case of defence of the country.

Would Send 30,000 Men.

Roughly speaking, it is probable that in the event of war Canadian contingents, comprising cavalry and artillery brigades, divisions of infantry and subsidiary corps to the number of 30,000 men would be sent to the front. The regulars in the permanent depots would likely be drafted first and the volunteers called for and recruiting established at all principal points, as was done in 1899.

There is every reason to believe that, with the growth of imperial sentiment meanwhile, the response would be even more general and enthusiastic than that which characterized the enlistment, for the South African campaign. The commands of the contingents would, in all likelihood be, assigned to officers now at headquarters or performing the duties of divisional commanders in the respective military centres of Canada with subordinate officers to be selected by the Militia Council.

Fly in Ointment.

There is one aspect of the situation which causes much comment and criticism. It is the fact that, on the prink of a terrible struggle, in which the British navy is the keystone of national safety, Canada has no ships in the firing line or no contributions to the enormous cost of maintaining the Empire's naval supremacy. The peril and emergency were emphasized strongly enough not only by the Government here, but by the Admiralty, yet the partisan spirit of the Senate majority blocked the whole business.

What Might Have Been.

Canada will be well represented on the battlefield and do its share nobly and enthusiastically in that respect, but a concrete contribution to the navy will be a conspicuous void. Were Parliamen now in session there could be little doubt that the measure would without apposition, be adopted. It would be now but an earnest indication of the country's patriotic sentiment. If passed two years ago the ships would be nearing completion and adding, as they were designed to do, to the efficient fighting forces of the Empire. The situation is conceded to be one of peculiar humiliation.

GUARDING BRITAIN.

Naval Movements Are Mere Routine, Says War Office.

LONDON, July 31. — The British War Office last night sent a request to all newspapers to refrain from publishing news of British military and naval movements.

The War Office last night explained the calling out of several sections of the special defence force of Great Britain as follows:

"It was in accordance with the ordinary routine when precautionary measures are put into force. Only the special reserve sections of the territorial force are being employed and no other territorials are involved in these measures."

None but the Admiralty, which is in constant touch through wireless knows the whereabouts of the first fleet, which left Portland Wednesday, but it is a safe presumption that the fleet is in a position close to the channel where it can strike the North Sea in the event of hostilities.

The crises could not have arisen at a more convenient time for the navy as the fleet has just been through a review on a war footing, which took the place of manoeuvres this year.

Small Vessels Deserted.

HANKOW, China, July 31. — The British gunboats Snipe, Woodcock and Kinsha of the British-China squadron were deserted by an Admiralty order yesterday. The crews removed the breech blocks from the guns, took away all the arms and ammunition possible and threw the remainder into the Yang Tse Kiang.

It is stated that the bluejackets are to be utilised to strengthen the crews of the British warships on the China station, where the British fleet is decidedly superior to the German.

British Cruisers Start For Home.

VERA CRUZ, July 31.—The British flagship Suffolk, with Admiral Sir Christopher Craddock aboard, left Vera Cruz yesterday for home waters. The cruiser Bristol sailed from here last night for England, leaving no British ships in Mexican waters.

Wash rugs, when they are put through the wringer, are all out of shape. Lift the rug from the rinsing water and spread on a clean space of floor (the verandah will do), then press all the water out you can, with an ordinary rolling pin. The rug should then be left to dry, and will be smooth and without wrinkles.

CENTURIES OF HATE BEHIND CONFLICT

While the immediate cause of Austria-Hungary's attack on Servia is the demand for reparation for the murder of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife, the Duchess of Hohenberg, the ultimate causes are the movement of the Hapsburg Empire toward the south and the desperate efforts of the entire Serb race to regain complete national existence.

Ever since the repulse of the Turkish army from Vienna in 1683 the Austrians have steadily fought their way southward, expecting ultimately to make their way to the Aegean over the ruins of the Turkish Empire. Austria, like Russia, was not unwilling to see small buffer states set up to occupy the middle ground during the intervals of rest in her forward movement, and so most of the Balkan States of to-day came into being.

Of the Servian race, which in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries ruled a vast empire, extending over the western half of the Balkan Peninsula and the eastern coast of the Adriatic, practically all had come under Turkish domination in the sixteenth century. The Serbs of the hinterland of Istria and Dalmatia were soon taken from Turkey and Austria, and Montenegro won its independence. This left the Serbs of Bosnia, the Herzegovina, and Servia proper, as well as of the Sanjak of Novi Bazar and Northern Macedonia, still under Turkish rule.

The Serbs of the present kingdom became autonomous in 1830, but revolted in 1876-78, aiming at complete freedom. With them joined their kinsmen of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The Russo-Turkish war which followed made great changes in the Balkans. Servia proper obtained complete independence but Bosnia and Herzegovina were left nominal Turkish dependencies, but really to be occupied by Austrian troops.

Austria's Seizure of Bosnia.

The consequence of this was a four-year insurrection against the Austrians, the effect of which have never disappeared. The Austrians have spent large amounts of money on the country, but never allowed it autonomy; and, using as an excuse the constitutional revolution in Turkey, which would require delegates to the Turkish Parliament to come from those two states which were actually in Austrian hands, the Hapsburg monarchy formally annexed Bosnia and the Herzegovina. Germany backed up her ally, and the protests of the Slav powers did not go to the extent of war. Meanwhile the Slavs of Dalmatia are under Hungarian rule; and here, as in Bosnia and the Herzegovina, promises of local self-government have never come to anything more than words. Thus the northern half of the Servian race is still under the Austrian Empire.

Meanwhile the southern half was finally united by the victories over Turkey in the war of 1912. Not only did this reconquest by the Servians of the core of their old empire, in Western Macedonia, give a tremendous impulse to he longing for complete national unity; it showed the Servian nation that its military organization could be relied on for hard work.

In the fall of 1912 the Servians mobilized 260,000 men in the first three weeks, and later added 145,000 more to the number, and, while their losses in this war and in the struggle with Bulgaria in the summer of 1912 were heavy, the Servian troops fought brilliantly and proved themselves efficient and enduring.

Robbed of Fruits of Victory.

But the fruits of this war were in part taken from them by Austria, whose diplomatic activity was responsible for the ruling of the powers which compelled the Servians to give up part of their conquests in Albania. Thus Servia lost her chance to get a seaport and remains a landlocked power, her only outlet being through the friendly Greek ports on the Aegean.

But the Servian victories in Macedonia, and the Greek capture of Salonika, put an unexpected obstable in the way of Austria's march to the south. No more could the Dual Monarchy hope to inherit Salonika and the land between that port and the frontier of Bosnia on the final downfall of Turkey; Servia was now squarely across her path.

To this were added minor irritations, such as the railroad question in Macedonia. The Servians wanted to add the railroads in the territory conquered from Turkey to the State system, but the stockholders, most of whom were Austrians or Hungarians, objected. Moreover, there was constant friction in Bosnia, and the party in Servia, which regretted the break-up of the Balkan League, was inclined to attribute the discord between Bulgaria and her former allies to the operations of Austrian diplomacy.

Thirty years ago Servia was a catspaw for Austria in Balkan schemes, with Russia backing Bulgaria, but now the Servians can count on Russian sympathy, for their cause is indirectly the cause of the entire Slavic race in its double struggle to be free from German rule, and to fight with the Germans for the heritage of Constantinople.

Peter Made King by Tragedy.

King Peter, under whose rule Servia has advanced to a strong position in Southeastern Europe, came to the throne as the result of a crime that shocked the world.

Eleven years ago King Alexander of Servia and Queen Draga were assassinated in their palace at Belgrade. Half an hour after midnight on June 10, 1903, forty army officers entered the palace, burst into the apartments of the King and Queen, and killed them. Details of the tragedy vary, but the best authenticated is that the couple died in each other's arms. The same night several other Ministers were slain by the plotters. The total number of victims of the conspiracy is said to have been fifty-four.

At the time of the tragedy King Peter was in Geneva, living a secluded life, and, apparently, taking little interest in the politics of his native land Ever since the terrible night of the assassination he has denied that he had any foreknowledge of them Nevertheless, suspicion has continued, justly or unjustly, to rest upon him, and it was some years after his accession to the throne before Great Britain and other powers recognized him formally as King of Servia.

King Peter as a young man led an adventurous life. He studied in Switzerland and then went to the French Military Academy at St. Cyr. He toow part in the Franco-German War as an officer of the Foreign Legion.

For many years he is said to have engaged in conspiracies against King Milan of Servia, but for forty-five years he never set foot on Servian soil until he was elected King by the Servian Parliament.

New Capital Easier to Defend.

Kraguyevatz, to which King Peter has moved his court from Belgrade, is about fifty miles due south of Semendria, on the Danube, and about sixty-five miles south-southeast of Belgrade. It lies on a branch spur of railroad about fifteen miles from the main line to Salonika and Constantinople, and is well adapted for defense. It is the third town in size in the old kingdom of Servia, with about 20,000 people. Its only superiors are Belgrade and Nisch.

The town was the first capital of the principality of Servia, after its partial liberation from the Turks, serving as the seat of the Obrenovitch Princes from 1815 to 18[illegible]. After that the family of Karageorgevitch has occupied the throne from 1842 to 1858, the Obrenovitchs again from 1858 to 1903, and the Karageorgevitches since; all these families have made Belgrade the capital

It has always been realized that its isolated position made Belgrade of less value as the seat of Government, and it is believed that ever since the victories in 1912 and 1913 the Servian Government has planned to move its headquarters to some town nearer the centre of the kingdom.

UNITED IN WAR CRISIS

Party Quarrels Forgotten by British Statesmen

LONDON, July 31.—The political forces of the country also are almost mobilized solidly, presenting, in Premier Asquith's words to the House of Commons yesterday, "a united front."

The remarkable sight was witnessed yesterday of Premier Asquith and Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition, who a few days ago were on terms of personal as well as political hostility, driving in the same car for a consultation with Sir Edward Grey, Secretary for Foreign Affairs.

Not only the Home Rule question but all measures likely to arouse party or international hostilities have been sidetracked. They include the naval vote, which inevitably excites discussion of Germany's policy, and the vote for imperial defence. Nevertheless, there is a strong, although apparently a minority feeling, that Great Britain should maintain neutrality whatever comes, and refuse to be drawn into the quarrels of the continental powers.

The peace section of the Liberal party, which through past years of strained relations with Germany, has worked for reconciliation, and which often has been called "the little Englanders," is taking a strong stand against the war.

The Labor party also opposes war unitedly. Its members in the House of Commons yesterday adopted a resolution praising Sir Edward Grey for his attempts at mediation, and saying: "The Labor party hopes that on no account will the country be dragged into a European conflict, in which, as the Prime Minister has stated, we have no direct or indirect interest." The resolution calls upon all the labor organizations to oppose the war.

Premier Asquith also spoke of the extreme gravity of the situation. When announcing to the House of Commons the postponement of the second reading of the bill to amend the Irish Home Rule Bill, he said: "Under the existing conditions it was agreed on both sides of the House that purely domestic matters should be laid aside for the moment."

HOME RULE SETTLED?

Statement Is Made That an Agreement Has Been Reached.

LONDON, July 31.—A Belfast despatch to The Morning Post says it is reported that an agreement has been reached over Home Rule which is satisfactory to the Ulsterites.

The transfer of troops from Ireland to England has begun. The Cornwall Regiment left Newry last night.

In Widnes, Eng., the price of gas is 24 cents a thousand to users of over 2,000,000 cubic feet per annum and 16 cents a thousand to users for power purposes.

THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, etc.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Wheat prices rivaled in activity to-day. A rise of nine cents a bushel was scored, partly due to unconfirmed rumors of a final break between Russia and Germany. Trading, however, was deadened both by the virtual refusal of many firms to attempt business and by stoppage of export demand because of uncertainty regarding ocean war risks.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, July 30.—The wheat market was again excited over the war news and prices for all months, in sympathy with Liverpool, opened higher. This advance made July wheat $1, October 98c and December 97c. Despite the wild and excited conditions, the volume of trading is light. One prominent member said that brokers were not encouraging new business today and a rumor was circulated that Chicago might close until matters were more settled.

The range of prices up to noon was 1¼c to 1⅝c, and at that they were fairly steady at ½c to 1c over the opening Weather and crop conditions were simply neglected, the news from the other side of the Atlantic being eagerly watched for. At 12 o'clock October wheat was sold at $1 also, but eased off a quarter of a cent shortly after.

The weather over the prairie provinces has been warm and light rain has occurred at five points. Flax, following the opening, made a sensational drop, caused by liquidation, and stood at noon about 10c to 12c lower than opening prices. Closing prices were: Wheat, 5¼c to 6⅛c higher; flax, 6⅝c to 9c lower. Cash prices: Wheat, 4c to 6⅝c higher; oats, ½c to 1¼c higher; barley, unchanged; flax, 8½c lower.

Inspections totalled 70 cars, as compared with 19 last year, and in sight were 170. Cash wheat—No. 1 northern, 99½c; No. 2 do., 98½c; No. 3 do., 92c; No. 4 do., 84c. Oats—No. 2 C.W., 49c; No. 3 do., 36½c; extra No. 1 feed, 37c; No. 1 f.e.d., 37c; No. 2 do., 37c. Barley—No. 4, 51c; rejected, 47½c. Flax—No. 1 N.W.C., $1.56; No. 2 C.W., $1.52; No. 3 C.W., $1.40.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, July 30.—There was some demand for wheat over the cable today and sales of a few odd loads were made, but the demand for oats from Glasgow was active at an advance of 9d to 1s per quarter and sales of twenty loads were made for August shipment at 19s to 19s 3d.

A very strong feeling developed in the local market for oats and prices advanced one cent to 1½ cents per bushel under an active demand from both local and export buyers, and sales of fully 300,000 bushels were made on spot and for shipment from the west.

The tone of the market for corn and barley was also very strong, at an advance of one cent to two cents per bushel. There was also a good demand from foreign buyers for new crop spring wheat flour, and sales of 30,000 sacks were made for October-November shipment, and considerable business has also been done within the past day or two with Newfoundland buyers at an advance of 25c per barrel in wood.

In butter the feeling is firm and a more active trade was done over the cable in cheese today. The demand for eggs is good.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN MARKET.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 30. — Close: Wheat—July, 97c; Sept., 95⅝c; No. 1 hard, $1.04⅝; No. 1 northern, 99⅝c to $1.03⅝; No. 2 northern, 97⅝c to $1.01⅝. Corn—No. 3 yellow, 75c to 75½c. Oats—No. 3 white, 35½c to 36½c. Flour—Fancy patents, $5.35; first clears, $4.25; second clears, $3; shipments, 63,000 barrels.

CHEESE MARKETS.

MADOC, July 30.—Four hundred and forty boxes offered; 12 9-16c bid. No sales.

BROCKVILLE, July 30.—At today's cheese board the offerings were 2,306 colored and 1,588 white. The sales were 665 colored and 120 white at 12⅝ cents. Balance refused.

CARDINAL WOLSEY'S STRAWBERRIES AND CREAM.

By far the greatest achievement of Cardinal Wolsey was combining strawberries and cream. A world benefactor, his failings may well be forgotten and forgiven.

How long have Britishers been, at least, partial fruitarians? Apples, pears, gooseberries, and plums appear to have been grown in England for a very long time, but cultivated raspberries did not arrive until the sixteenth century.

Rhubarb was introduced from Russia in 1573, but did not become popular until the nineteenth century. It is recorded that a Deptford gardener in 1810 sent a few sticks to the London market, but was unable to find a customer.

Cherries were brought over by the Romans, but ceased to be cultivated until one of Henry VIII.'s gardeners reintroduced them.

It is estimated that immigrants bring to Canada in money and effects about $100,000,000 a year, or an average of $250 each on a basis of 400,000 immigrants.

AUSTRIA HAS FINE AEROPLANE FLEET READY

Includes Several Large Airships of the Zepelin Dirigible Ballon Type

New York, July 31.—Austria has a formidable aerial fleet at her disposal, according to a recent issue of Flying, official organ of the Aero Club of America. This includes six large military dirigible air ships, ranging in length from 198 to 300 feet, with gas capacity of 118,000 to 400,000 cubic feet.

One of these air ships is of the rigid type adopted by the German army. The others are non-rigid, three of them of the French Astra-type, the others Hallborn and Kortling dirigibles built in Austria.

Lift Five Tons Each.

The total lift of all these great gas sustained craft ranges from five to eight tons each. In addition to those owned by the government there are two others owned by civilians, one of the Mannsbarth type recently offered for sale in the United States.

Henry Woodhouse, managing editor of Flying, yesterday estimated the aeroplane force of Austria to number eighty machines. The army has aerodromes at Wiener Newstadt near Vienna and at Gortz. The Etrih monoplane and Lohner biplane are the principal types recently reported in use. Most of the Lohners were purchased after Lieutenant Philip Blaschke established a world's altitude record in this type in 1912. The Daimler engine, with which the record was made, is manufactured in Austria. There is a flying reserve corps which includes leading constructors and civilian aviators.

Many Aeroplane Pilots.

Austria has about one hundred and fifty aeroplane pilots holding certificates of the International Aeronautic Federation.

For naval use there are about twelve Austrian marine aeroplanes on the Adriatic, with a central station at Pola. Two of these are American Curtiss flying boats of eighty horsepower each, and four are French Levesque flying boats. The others are Etrich and Lohner hydro-aeroplanes. In last year's demonstration against Montenegro the Leveque squadron flew 312 miles from Pola to Antivari and cruised two weeks on the coast of Montenegro.

Servia is almost unknown in aeroplane records. Mr. Woodhouse said, however, that the little power had about twenty heavier than air machines.

Militants at Palace

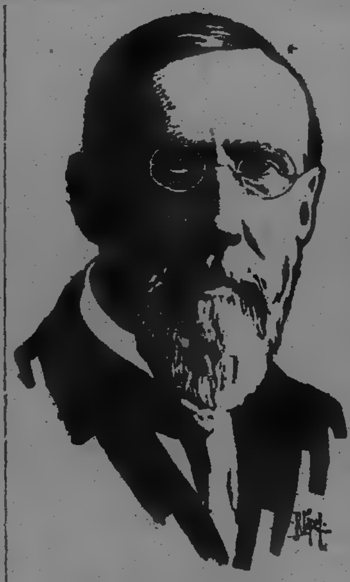
LONDON, July 31. — Mrs. Dacre Fox and another militant suffragette yesterday raided Buckingham Palace in a further effort to present a petition to King George. They were both arrested before they had got far within the precincts of the palace. A third woman meantime had chained herself to the railings round the grounds, and was in the middle of a speech when she was arrested.

THE POSSIBILITY OF CANADIAN TRADE WITH CHINA AND JAPAN

A special number of the Weekly Report of the Department of Trade and Commerce is being issued covering an interesting and valuable report upon the possibility of Canadian trade with China and Japan, and prefaced by an instruction by Hon. Sir George E. Foster, K.C.M.G., Minister of Trade and Commerce, expressed in the concise and vigorous English which characterizes the work of that gentleman. It deals with a subject of growing interest to all Canadians and a copy should lie on the desk of every merchant and producer in Canada, and should reach the hands of all who desire a concise and picturesque statement of the coming trade of China and Japan and of the future and perhaps decisive importance of these countries, more particularly as regards the Western portion of Canada. Sir George says:—

> "Upwards of 500,000,000 people inhabit China and Japan in a vast stretch of island and continent facing our Western front door. Between lies a facile ocean, now beginning to quiver beneath the swift keels of rapidly increasing mercantile fleets. . . . On all grounds of enlightened business policy Canada and Canadians cannot afford to neglect the great and promising field which lies so advantageously opposite our Western gateways and which the Panama Canal has brought so much nearer our Eastern ports."

The report is written by Mr. R. Grigg, Commissioner of Commerce, and is preceded by a letter of transmission giving an outline of its contents describing his journey, and concluding with reflections of the character and weight to which we have become accustomed by his previous work. The first chapter deals with the possible effect of the Panama Canal and provides remarkable figures with regard to the development of traffic across the isthmus by the Panama and Tehuantepec Railways. A table follows showing Canadian exports to China, and with comments upon the character and volume of such exports. While the report recognizes the probable development of trade in a multitude of articles which follow the establishment of a trade route, and increase of communication, it is shown that the more immediate interest to Canada is found in the export of flour and lumber to the Orient. The chapter dealing with the first of these products indicates the present production of flour in the Western Provinces; a table is given showing the exports of flour from the United States to the Orient for the past twenty-one years and instructive comments are made upon the principal figures. An interesting paragraph deals with the movement northward of the flour exports upon the Pacific coast and the reasons which account for that movement. A full argument is produced based upon the production of wheat and flour in competing countries, more particularly Manchuria, and remarkable information is afforded regarding the productivity of a soil subject to irrigation and unlimited labour under a hot sun.



SIR GEO. E. FOSTER

The results are truly extraordinary and will be a revelation to many readers. Important reference is made to the export of lumber from B.C. and the final chapters deal with valuable work done by the Consuls of all nations and also a reference to the question of Chinese students and the native press. In addition to its economic value the report provides interesting reading and amply justifies the commendation of Sir George Foster. The report upon Japan, which is printed in the same booklet and follows that upon China, is equally interesting although different conditions have resulted in totally different reports. Nothing is more remarkable than the contrast between the two countries. Whereas few figures are available with regard to China a contrary condition prevails in Japan and interpretation of the economic conditions of the country is largely expressed by tables of figures, but the full and interesting comment upon them removes the work from the "dry as dust" character which so commonly marks such papers. Canadians may sometimes forget that the phenomena due to the wonderful development of their own country does not exhaust the important problems in course of solution elsewhere and it is highly desirable that development likely to provide a subject of engrossing future interest to Canada should be presented in brief and graphic terms and handled in the masterly fashion found in this report. It is not given to any man to do more than suggest a possible outcome of the factors in operation, and Canada has some experience of the foreigner who spends three weeks in a country and writes a book. In China this is described as "seeing China through a porthole"; but a characteristic of the report under review is the moderation of its expression and the deference shown to the experience of competent authorities. It is impossible in a short article to do more than suggest the excellence of the work and advise that application should be made to the Department of Trade and Commerce for a copy which will be provided without charge. The weekly report of that Department, also distributed without charge, should have an increase of its already large circulation if only because it reflects in an adequate manner economic conditions in foreign countries and is designed to assist Canadian exports. The experience of the United States illustrates the enormous value of such work, and the Canadian public should not omit to encourage the efforts being made abroad for their advantage and paid for with their money.

INSURANCE RATES ARE BOOSTED AT ORILLIA

The insurance agents in Orillia last week received notice from the Canadian Fire Underwriters Association that the rates on various business risks have been advanced from 10 to 25 cents per $100, as a result of failure to remedy the defects in electric wiring reported by Mr. Minions, the Electrical Inspector for the Association, says The Packet. In some cases the advance in premiums would go a long way towards paying for the changes asked for. Among the delinquents is the Town of Orillia, which will be required to pay an additional 10 cents premium in the insurance on the market and opera house building, because of defects in the wiring.

DID YOU SAVE YOUR CAMEL?

Many people have been asking and wondering who the camels so common around the town and country the last few days, belong to.

The Reid Co. in another place in this issue acknowledg the ownership and say they will gladly buy all camels at 25 cents per head. One camel will be redeemed with each $5.00 worth of trade during the Business Humping Sale tomorrow. Saturday is opening day, so be sure and bring your camels in on that day and get $5.00 worth which is really about $8.00 worth on this sale for $4.75.

We have been assured by the Reid Co. that the values offered are without doubt the biggest bargains in wanted merchandise ever shown in Peterboro, and we are glad to pass this item of news along to our readers.

A BROKEN AXLE.

An axle's breaking on one of the coaches of the C.P.R. train to Lindsay this morning resulted in two coaches jumping the track when a little this side of Bethany Junction. Luckily the train was hardly moving when the accident happened. The only result was that the train from Lindsay to this city was a couple of hours late.

Why are people so foolish as to want their own way when our way is so much better.

Excursionists Had Fine Trip

The annual excursion of the Treasure Seekers' Bible Class of St. James Methodist Church was held yesterday via special C.P.R. train to Toronto, boat [illegible] Lewiston and trolley to Niagara Falls. The excursionists left the city yesterday morning at 6.30 a[illegible] arrived back this morning at 2.4[illegible] A very large number enjoyed the pleasant outing and magnificent scenery so prevalent around the Falls. The tickets were good till today and many availed themselves of the opportunity to remain over in the Queen City.

The committee in charge were Messrs. C. J. Hicks, C. H. Robinson, and A. Kent.

Jas. Skinner, C.P.R. Agent, accompanied the excursionists.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE GLOBE AND THE EMERGENCY.

Editor Review,

Sir,—The Globe of yesterday frankly confesses that "a real emergency" has arisen. It no longer scoffs at it. The Opposition at Ottawa has never ceased sneering, laughing, etc., at the possibility of an emergency. It founded all its immense waste, time, tongue and brains (?) on the supposed fact that a Conservative naval policy founded on an emergency was such an absurdity that it ought to drive us from power. Yet here it is. The Globe admits all but the furious Grit politicians, crazy partizans and office seekers admit it. It shows even The Examiner in a very bad light. Thus has the whole work of years of abuse vanished in a night leaving scarce a crack behind. The Examiner should change its motto to "Don't be a fool."

Yours,
READER.

Pride makes some people ridiculous and pevents others from becoming so.

ARTHUR KILBURN OFF FOR NORWOOD

At Least, He Was Told to so Direct His Steps

Arthur Kilburn of Owen Sound, who had just completed a ten day vacation at Castle Nesbitt reappeared this morning before the cadi on the charge of being drunk.

"I'm going to Norwood," pleaded the man.

"Owen Sound dry and Norwood dry," evidently he prefers the dry places," remarked the Magistrate as he hastened him on his way to Norwood.

Tom Clancy of Indian River had imbibed. He remarked that he was able to continue on his way. The court also agreed with Tom and he was told to hike for home.

Asleep in a Barn.

Arthur S. Taylor, a stranger charged with vagrancy said he was on his way to Cobourg. He had been found sleeping in a barn on Charlotte Street last evening. The case was adjourned meanwhile the accused was told to wend his way toward Cobourg. He complied.

The case of John Robinson charged with cruelty to animals, was adjourned until tomorrow morning.

SENT TO MERCER FOR ONE YEAR

Young Woman is Sentenced at Police Court

"Such people are a menace to the general moral interests of the city, and we can't afford to allow such conditions," said Magistrate Dumble this morning at Police Court in imposing a one year sentence in the Mercer, on Lena Van Norman, charged with being a common prostitute and already twice convicted on a similar charge.

The girl, aged twenty-two, was arrested last week and charged with the above offence and also of being drunk in charge of a vehicle. Her companion was charged with supplying liquor to a minor but the girl's mother stated that her age was twenty-two and the charge was withdrawn. A statement from the Salvation Army was to the effect that the girl had been an inmate of their Rescue Home in Toronto. Adjutant McElhiney remarked that efforts had evidently been futile as she had continued to go the downward path since her return despite their repeated efforts to start her on a new life.

"She is bent on a life of shame and to make things worse has commenced drinking which will soon throw her to the depths," said the Magistrate as he imposed the sentence.

Mr. O'Connell Acted.

In connection with an article, referring to Magistrate Edmison in yesterday's issue, which stated that he had acted in the capacity of deputy County Judge during the illness of Judge Weller and after his death until the appointment of Judge Huycke, the Review is informed that such is not the case and that Mr. Daniel O'Connell was appointed in this capacity and holds his commission for the same.

PICKPOCKETS WERE BUSY AT DEPOTS

Several Victims Report Loss of Money

Two pickpockets operating at the G.T.R. and C.P.R. stations yesterday morning managed to make their get away with something over $50. One of the light fingered gentry relieved Mr. Aylmer a local north end resident of some $25. Another local man is the poorer by $20. A lady from Toronto reported to Constable Dainard that she had been relieved of her purse. It contained about $10, with a few tickets and other papers. It is the opinion of the Police Department that the men had arirved here the night before, in order to get busy at the stations, among the large crowds that were going to Lindsay.

The presence of the light fingered ones is the first indication of pickpockets in the city for some years. The men were supposed to have gone through to Lindsay on the morning trains. Detective Catlo of the C.P.R. detective force, who was in Lindsay on business notified Chief Short of the Lindsay police force to be on the watch for the two men but the pickpockets succeeded in evading the efforts of the Lindsay police and incidentally made several hauls. Other C.P.R. detectives are on the trail of the men and are in hopes of effecting their capture.

OBITUARY

THOMAS P. ATTRILL.

The many friends of Mr. Thomas P. Attrill, of 473 Water Street, will sincerely regret to learn that this highly respected citizen passed away yesterday afternoon.

The late Mr. Attrill was born in Montreal 84 years ago. He went, as a boy to England, and took a course of training in the naval school there This led, through family influence and his recognized ability to an appointment in the navy where he rose to the rank of Paymaster. Mr. Attrill, who was known here as a skilful curler and in former years an ardent huntsman, spent some years in Australia.

The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon from the family residence to Little Lake Cemetery.

MADALENE McCALLUM.

The Review is in receipt of the following newspaper clipping, which refers to the death at Pasadena, Cal., of Madalene McCallum, daughter of Mrs. Alma McCallum, a former resident of Peterboro:

Madalene McCallum, 19-year-old daughter of Mrs. Alma McCallum, 456 Summit Avenue, was born in Canada, and came to Pasadena ten years ago with her father, mother, and sister Jean.

Madalene graduated from the public schools here, and had just three months more of school before her class graduated from the high school. Her classmates in the English department each sent her a letter and many flowers. They used to call her "The Ray of Sunshine," for wherever she went she seemed to scatter sunshine and joy. She was a favorite with all.

Her English teacher said it was a pleasure to teach one so responsive, gentle and courteous. She sent her the Item and a large basket of flowers when the class graduated in June, with regret that Madalene could not finish her term. During her short illness Madalene received many beautiful flowers and letters.

Near her home the neighbors are deeply grieved over the loss of such a sweet, beautiful life being taken from their midst, for to know her was to love her.

Madalene was a member of the First Presbyterian Church, and a member of its Sunday School.

We know she has just passed on a little too soon to join her father and brother, and await the coming of her mother and sister Jean, who feel that there is even more to live for, to join her where there is no more sorrowing and parting.—Contributed.

MRS. JOHN. O'DONOGHUE.

A lifelong resident of Ennismore in the person of Mrs. John O'Donoghue, passed away this morning at her late residence, after a lingering illness. The late Mrs. O'Donoghue was sixty-one years of age and was well known and highly respected. She leaves to mourn her demise a sorrowing husband, three daughters. Miss Loretto at home, Mrs. W. Carroll of Emily, and Mrs. Battersby of San Francisco; and four sons, Messrs. John, Edward, Robert and Mark all at home. The funeral will take place from the family residence on Sunday afternoon to the St. Martin's Church and St. Martin's Cemetery.

Barnardo Home Boy in the Toils

Claude Stacey, a seventeen year old Barnado Home boy, arrested yesterday on the alleged charge of vagrancy appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning and was remanded to jail for one week. Stacey came here a few months ago and was working for an Otonabee farmer. Last week he ran away. The farmer communicated with the police with the result that Tracey while wandering on the streets, last evening was arrested and taken to the station. The Chief has wired Toronto, for instructions in connection with the Home taking the boy back. The farmer states that he will not take the boy back owing to his habits as he claims he could do nothing with him.

Meanwhile the boy will be confined to the County Jail.

SIGNAL BELL AT LEVEL CROSSING TO GIVE WARNING

Protection at G.T.R. Crossing on Boundary Road

An official of the Railway Commission is in the city today and took the specifications and a sketch of the crossing on Boundary Road where James Cowie met his death on July 1st. In speaking to Station Agent MacNabb, The Review was informed that a movement is under day whereby a signal bell will be placed at the crossing.

The representative came to this city via G.T.R. at [illegible].40 and it was rather singular that an accident on a level crossing was narrowly averted when the train was approaching Lindsay. At the first crossing west of that town an elderly couple were driving and seeing the train approach they stopped the horse. Evidently not liking the idea of having the horse's head so close to the train the man drew out the whip and urged the animal across the rails. Engineer McClelland saw him pull out the whip and immediately opened the whistle but the old man was prepared to take the chance and drove right ahead.

The fast moving mogul missed the rear wheels of the vehicle by inches and the passengers on that side of the train who happened to be looking out were given a chance to gasp. The representative of the Commission remarked afterwards that he could plainly hear the whistle blowing when approaching the crossing. So severe was the shock to Engineer McClelland that it was with difficulty he could complete the run.

FIRST TRIP OF VESSEL THROUGH PANAMA CANAL

Panama, July 31.—Colonel George W. Goethals, governor of the Panama canal zone, announced today that the first sailing through the canal of an ocean-going vessel would take place next Monday, when the steamer Cristobal would make the trip from Colon to Balboa. This trip will be made in order to test the lock operations and the handling of large vessels at turns in the canal and at places where there are strong currents.

Colonel Goethals stated that the official opening of the canal to world traffic by order of Secretary of War Garrison would occur August 15, when the steamer Ancon will make the first official trip from deep water of the Atlantic to deep water in the Pacific.

The officials of Panama, the members of the diplomatic corps, canal officials and guests will be aboard the Ancon by invitation of Secretary Garrison. Only canal officials will make the trip on the Cristobal.

To make lampwicks do their best in taking the place of electricity, soak them in vinegar before using. Then dry them thoroughly. This treatment makes the wick burn well and, moreover, does away with the unpleasantly "lamp" odor so often noticeable when a new wick is used.

ALTAR LIGHTS IN R. C. CHURCHES

Some time ago dispatches were received from Rome which announced that the Holy Father had forbidden the use of electric lights on or around any of the altars which contains the Blessed Sacrament or the relics of a Saint. One Bishop has written to the Holy See for more complete information and for this the ecclesiastical authorities all over the world are waiting. Should this order be forthcoming, it will undoubtedly be complied with, and will affect many churches, including St. Peter's Cathedral and the Church of the Sacred Heart. The electrical system in some churches is very fine and is a source of pride and admiration and the public will greatly regret the issuing of any ordinance which will do away with the altar lights.

57th BAND BEST ON THE MARCH

Two Members Also Won Valuable Prizes

The members of the 57th Regimental Band more than distinguished themselevs at the band competition held at Lindsay yesterday in connection with the annual Firemens celebration.

Although the band failed to land any of the big prizes as a whole, they were successful in winning the prize of the best marching band. The prize for this was a drum major's baton, valued at $2[illegible]. The Weston Band won the grand prize of $200 in the special band contest. At the concert held in the evening, contests were held for the best individual players. Peterborough players made a good showing in this event. Otto Gliddon was successful in winning first prize in the clarionet contest for which a handsome clarionet was given. D. Memoi won a slide trombone when he was declared winner of the trombone contest. Walter Hughes, with his usual talent, easily captured the cornet contest, winning a $75 cornet. Mr. Hughes is now identified with the Port Hope band.

In the evening the various bands in a united concert delighted the large gatherings. The local band returned home last evening.

PETES HAD THE EDGE ALTHOUGH HAMS DID GIVE SOME TIMELY HELP

Athletics Did not Present Very Formidable Front and the Blountmen Had Rather Easy Victory by 6 to 2

The Hamilton crew dreamed that yesterday was Christmas and handed out nine presents in the shape of wild heaves and boots, and the Petes won the opening game of the series 6-2. Jack White's crew would have run last in a real war as their shooting was like that of the intoxicated blind man. It was the shooting to first which caused most of the trouble, and Gabby Ivers was called upon to stretch himself like an elastic guy in order to save his colleagues from a score of miscues. When the infield, barring Cunningham, failed to try to kill someone in the grandstand it endeavored to give a vivid exhibition of "feetsball," for which Hamilton is famous.

Tracey and Clements faced each other and the local lad had the best of the argument, but Clement, although he did make two wild heaves to first himself, did not deserve the cruel fate that overtook him, as really he twirled good baseball.

A big factor in the defence of the local squad was the work of Fox and King. The short-fielder, who looks as sweet as any in the league, at the present, and King played havoc with the knocks sent their way. They engineered a double which choked off a rally. King had eleven chances without the sign of a boot, while Fox had twelve chances with one error. Truly it was a good day's work. It also showed that the losers combed a few towards second, which is the attacking spot, and once a gap is left there, danger signals appear. The good work of Fox and King did away with any idea of sending out the S. O. S.

The Hamilton crew introduced some new ones. Cunningham, at second, was a former member of the Montreal International League team and he shaped up in good style, although he is suffering from a spiked toe. Pendry on third was also a new one, but he failed to uncork any real cut stuff, although advance notes show him to be a good ballplayer. McGroarty had a bad day, but should improve, as he is young and willing. Shears was the other new one, and the red-headed lengthy one from Jersey City made a noise like a gun on the coaching line, but his enthusiasm was dampened by the fact that his team mates were going very bad. The Hamilton team looked bad, but they may be better underneath than the surface showed yesterday, and at any rate they got a whole lot of bad baseball out of their frames.

Tracey hurled fine ball throughout, but showed signs of weakening in the ninth. Ken has had a bad knee and the strain was hard on him. Not a Ham reached first until the fifth, and outside of that inning and the ninth Tracey had them cooked.

Early signs are not always forerunners of what the future may bring. The game sailed along fine for a few innings, and every one thought it would be a peach. The Hamilton infield showed signs of being wobbly early in the game, but it was not until the fourth that the real collapse came. After Dolan went out, Rooney was safe on Clement's bag peg to Ivers. Byrne was an easy out, and King poled one to right for a triple, on which Rooney scored, and King made the circuit when Fisher allowed Baldwin's peg to get away from him. In the fifth Kelly singled and went to second on Clement's bad peg to second on Tracey's roller. Blount laid down a bunt and Clement threw to Pendry, who let the ball get away from him and Kelly scored. Welsh was an easy out, but Dolan combed one to centre and Tracey scored. In the eighth, King got a life on an error, Fox doubled, Kelly fanned, and Tracey singled, scoring two runs.

The Hams were dangerous only in the fifth and ninth, although a great double by Fox, King and Dolan choked off a rally in the seventh. In the fifth Ivers poled one to left, and was forced by White. McGroarty singled and when Fox foozled Baldwin's poke White scored. In the ninth Cunningham singled, only to be forced at second by Corns, who in turn was dead at second on Pendry's roller. Ivers then drew a pass and White doubled to right, scoring Pendry. With the pillows full, McGroarty whiffed the atmosphere and an adjournment was made to the refreshment parlors.

The game was not disturbed by any strenuous kicks. Joe Byrne tried to declare war on Umpire Miller in the eighth, but banished the idea after the umps had told him to hustle to the bench. Joe is now a firm believer in mediation.

Kelly again showed class behind the platter. His whipping was good and he went back against the stand and picked off a foul which an ordinary catcher would let go by the boards without any attempt to grab it. Dolan did not have any luck. He hit four hard ones and only one went for a hit, but it helped as it sent a run over.

BOOSTERS CAN GET BUSY TO-MORROW

Another Opportunity for Fans to Help Game

Another Booster's Day will be staged to-morrow when the fans will have a chance to get out and help the club along. An effort was being made to have Bobby Kerr sprint against one of the local players, but Bobby reluctantly declined. He will be here to-morrow when he joins the Hamilton Club, and will accompany them to Ottawa.

"I would do anything to help any good cause. I have not had a shoe on in more than a year, and with such short notice I could not do myself justice and might injure myself. If I had been asked before, I would have limbered up a little and got myself acquainted with the spikes again, and I certainly am sorry that I cannot get out and help, as I would be tickled to death in doing so," said Bobby Kerr to a Review reporter over the long distance phone.

Bobby added that he would be professionalized for staging a race where a gate was taken for a professional sport, but that would not have stopped him as he does not intend to compete for honors again. "I have a room full of trophies as you know, and I know I am done as a world's champion, so let the other fellow go to it," added Bobby. He also said he would willingly start a race to-morrow, and an effort is being made to arrange a race between some of the local players and the visitors. At any rate Bobby Kerr will be on the gate taking the tickets.

MANY ENTRIES FOR TOURNEY

Lawn Bowling Meet at Local Greens

The bowler and his bowls will invade this city on Monday next, when the annual tournament of the Central Ontario Bowling Association will commence on the greens of the local club on Brock Street. Nearly every club in the district and a few from Toronto will be represented. It is expected the tourney will be over by Tuesday night. The trophy and consolation matches with suitable prizes for each will be provided.

COMMENT

As You Like It

AS AN ADDED ATTRACTION for Saturday's game the local management with the assistance of a friend is trying to prevail upon Bobby Kerr to step off a hundred with one of the local players. Bobby did not accompany the team to this city yesterday but will be in Saturday morning. He has not ran for two years except with the youngsters connected with the H.A.A.A. and the Y.M.C.A. in Hamilton. Regardless of that he is in the greatest of shape as he has yet to take a puff out of a pipe, cigar, or cigarette, taste a strong drink or munch a chew from a plug. His records in the official book show a hundred yard dash at 9 4-5 seconds and a 220 yard dash at 21 2-5 seconds. He was credited once with a hundred in 9 3-5. He was the winner of the 200 meter in the last Olympic games and held the championship of Great Britain for two years, holding it when he retired two years ago. He also holds the Canadian record for a 50 yard dash which he made in Peterboro when he appeared at the rink four years ago. He negotiated the 50 on boards in 5 1-5. He also holds the 60 yards indoor record of the New England States as he beat the cream of the States in Boston when he dashed off 60 yards in 6 seconds flat. It is to be hoped that Bob will consent to try a come back and if he does the fans will see a ten second man in action because privately he ran a hundred around 10 seconds in Hamilton, and he was minus a regular running regalia.

DAN McCABE SAYS that Umpire Miller is the best in the league. Dan should know as he has considerable experience and has watched the best of them work. We share the same opinion. Miller's big advantage over his colleagues, is that he is master. He chokes off miniature riots in the bud by chasing men or sending them back to the bench, and as Kelly, the local catcher says, "he can say $5 quicker than any man in the league." Beyond his control of the players the umps can call them right. He had one of the hardest games of the year to manage yesterday. The Hamilton crew were hurling the ball to first in all ways and every catch Ivers made was a reach. Only one kick was registered and that was by Byrne whom his royal umpess subdued smartly by saying "get back on the bench." And Joe got back.

THE HAMILTON TEAM was a bitter disappointment. In practice the infield looked good and we were on the point of believing that White's crew were really bona fide. But in action when action was necessary, the club looked like a bunch of pork handlers. The throwing was about the worst seen here this year. White looked like the only real ball player on the club although Cunningham did very well. The least said of the said affair, the better.

Manager Jennings, of the Detroit Tigers, believes that in the natural course of events there is no chance for any of the American League clubs to beat the Athletics out of the pennant this season, but he is going to keep his men fighting in the hope that there will be a break and that the Tigers will be able to take advantage of it.

"We have been having so much bad luck lately," said Hughie today, "that it seems that we must begin to have some good fortune before long. As it looks now there is no chance for any club to beat the Athletics out of the pennant. Still it will pay all the clubs, the Tigers among them, to keep on fighting. If there should come a break and the Athletics should suffer a streak of losses as long as the string of wins they are now having, the team that has been fighting to keep up will be in position to take advantage of it.

"Injuries have been our jinx this season. The various injuries to Cobb, of course, have been very harmful but second to them is the combination of injuries to our third basemen. First Moriarity was put out of the game with a broken hand. Vitt, who was subbing for him, was playing great ball when he had his arm broken. He is still carrying it in a sling, and it will be some time before he can get back into the game. These two injuries coming at the same time were very hard on us. Then besides that we have Miles Main, one of our best pitchers, out of the game with a sprained ankle. This has left a hole in our pitching staff."

In spite of the fact that Hughie is still battling for this season, the impatient fan is alreay looking forward to next season as reviewing the results of the present year.

The Tigers can't kick on what the season has brought them. They have one new catcher, one new pitching star, one reliable hurler, three good pitching prospects, and one doubtful one, two new regular infielders, and a substitute, and a new substitute outfielder.

Baker is the new catcher. He has made good as an assistant to Stanage. His judgment in handling the pitchers has made him as good if not better than McKee. Coveleskie is a star hurler, Main is good, while Boehler, Cavet and Reynolds are fine prospects. Of these Boehler is the best. John Brodie Williams, the Hawaiin, is doubtful, Burns and Kavanagh are the new regular infielders with Purtell a substitute. Hielman is the outfielder.

"I can't see a pitching staff in the league that has anything on us," is the way Connie Mack expressed himself, when asked why his pitching staff is so generally regarded as being weak.

"Let the other teams think that; I hope they do; it is going to make our fight for the flag a whole lot easier.

"Seriously speaking, I cannot understand why the opinion is so general that our pitchers are weak. I most certainly do not think they are. We are leading the race, and that means that our pitchers have been winning games for us.

"We have had several slumps in other departments. Our batting has fallen off, our fielding has been mediocre, but our pitchers have continued to win more than their share of the games. Doesn't that indicate that our staff is O. K.?

"Take Bush, Wyckoff, Pennock, and Shawkey, and where will you find four young pitchers doing better work? And all of them will improve. Wyckoff especially has done splendidly for us this year, but he is going to be a better pitcher as the season advances and he gets more confidence. Shawkey, too, pitches steady ball as a rule, and he will be stronger later on. Pennock, who was ill last season, is going to be one of the best left-handers in the game unless I am greatly mistaken. Then there is Bressler, who is giving them some help now and is going to show plenty of stuff when he gets the experience.

"Bush hasn't got into his proper stride yet, but he's coming along rapidly. I think he is going to be one of the great pitchers. In fact, I look for him to show his true worth before this campaign is ended. Then, with Plank and Bender continuing to do what they have been doing—and everybody knows what that is — I really fail to see where another team has a thing on us in the pitching department."

Curious Forms of Proposals

Timidity can scarcely be said to have marked the wooings and proposals of some of the men whose names are household words, although some of them chose rather odd phraseology, according to "Still Happy Though Married," a book by the Rev. E. J. Hardy. This is the way Daniel Webster proposed. One day, when kneeling before his ladylove, he suddenly dropped the skein of silk she was winding off his hands and made with a piece of tape half a true-lover's knot. The lady (a Miss Fletcher) completed it, and a kiss sealed the bargain.

"Do you know people say we are going to be married?" said Sir Alexander Duff Gordon one day to the beautiful Lucy Austin, and before she could reply he added, "Shall we make it true?" And they did.

Tolstoi was downright, as usual. He proposed by letter, in which he wrote: "Tell me sincerely, do you wish to be my wife? But only if you can say 'yes' fearlessly and with all your soul. If you have a shadow of a doubt it would be better to say 'no' at once. For Heaven's sake, question yourself well. I dread the answer, yet I foresee it, but I shall have fortitude enough to bear it. If as a husband I cannot be loved as I love myself, it will be dreadful."

The great preacher, Spurgeon, asked the girl who became his wife by means of a book. He was reading one day, as he sat by her side, Tupper's "Proverbial Philosophy." Coming to the lines:

> If thou art to have a wife of thy youth, she is now living on the earth:
> Therefore think of her, and pray for her weal.

He pointed them out to her, and asked, "Do you pray for him who is to be your husband?"

Edison, too, was very bold in his proposal to Miss Stillwell, a telegraph operator, whom he ultimately married. The story has often been told how, looking her full in the face, he said one day with his characteristic bluntness and ardor: "I have been thinking considerably about you of late, and if you are willing to marry me, I would like to marry you. The young lady said she would consider the matter and talk it over with her mother. The result was that they were married a month later.

Proposing to take a girl for life, for better, for worse, is a serious matter; but that Scotsman need not have resorted to such a grave way of doing it who, bringing his ladylove to the family vault, asked: "Will you one day lay your bones beside mine there?"

TO MAKE AMMUNITION.

A train of soft coal, embracing some twenty or twenty-five car loads passed through the city from the west via C.P.R. during the noon hour to-day. The train stopped at the long siding about half a mile from the depot for some time, and the employees of the C.G.E. who were passing, were unanimous in deciding that it was bound for the scene of warfare on the other side of the pond. The Review inquired and found that it was billed for Havelock to be used by the C.P.R. engines.

Bristol, Eng., has decided to municipalize its street railway system, a poll of the citizens having resulted in 18,057 in favor, against 14,884 in opposition.

TRIED TO EVADE LAW; TOOK TO PICK AND SHOVEL

Bank Clerk Endeavors to "Disappear" as Laborer

Sudbury, July 30.—How many of the thousands of pedestrians who have traversed the streets of Sudbury during the past two weeks, or the bystander who daily watches the laborers at work on the paving and street railway operations, have entertained or even dreamed of the thought that an ex-bank clerk, young and athletic, had donned the overalls, took pick or shovel in hand, and gone to work as a common laborer in an attempt to evade the law? Such has proven the case, however, when N. Vivian Sankey, 22, son of prominent and well-to-do parents in Toronto, was taken into custody on advice from authorities in the Queen City. Detective Taylor, of the detective department, arrived and took the young man back on the evening train.

The charge against Sankey is for issuing bogus cheques or passing cheques without funds. The specific amount named is $25, but the defalcations are said to be many times that amount. Sankey's father is a surveyor in the employ of the City of Toronto.

The Toronto police located Sankey through a letter addressed to his mother, bearing the imprint of a local hotel, and which was intercepted by the detective department in Toronto. He has been working on the street railway construction since July 1st, and during that time has made many friends, not a few of whom visited the cells last night prior to train time to say good-bye.

ABOUT CAMELS WHAT THEY ARE

Considerable comment has been caused around town and in the country by the appearance of colored tags with a camel printed on them, bearing the legend, "I Am Worth 25c. to You."

Now The Reid Co. comes out with an announcement elsewhere in this issue, claiming ownership of the entire Camel herd, and stating that they are willing to pay you 25c. per camel, under certain conditions, fully explained.

As you well know, when The Reid Company offer any special bargains, they are genuine reductions, and we know our readers will do well to take advantage of the many chances to save.

ONTARIO HIGH SCHOOL HISTORY OF CANADA

The Ontario High School History of Canada has just been issued from the press. It is a book of 433 pages, tastefully bound in green, printed on paper of special quality and containing excellent maps and illustrations. The author, W. L. Grant, professor of Colonial History in Queen's University, and son of the late principal Grant, is some guarantee of the literary quality and historical accuracy of the book. Prof. Grant presents his subject in a clear and convincing yet fresh and attractive style, so that for the first time in a Canadian textbook of history, the treatment of facts becomes as picturesque and interesting as the presentation of a story.

The book is composed of thirty-five chapters, each dealing with some definite historical movement. The last ten chapters are devoted to the history of the period since confederation and the facts are brought up to the present year. The treatment of recent events in party politics and references to men and women still living, requires much tact, but the writer has succeeded admirably in keeping his narrative free from both personal bias and political prejudice.

The maps and pictures which accompany the text deserve special attention. The illustrations are not profuse, but are exceedingly appropriate, and the maps have in many cases been specially drawn with a view to both clearness and accuracy. But perhaps the most valuable feature of the book, aside from the text itself, is the very comprehensive table of contents and index. The table of contents in itself forms a systematic summary of the chief movements and events in Canadian History, and, as such, must be exceedingly valuable to the student.

CARD OF THANKS.

HEARST TO BE REBUILT AT ONCE

Change Will be Made in Town's Location

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., July 31.—The Algoma Central and Hudson Bay railway is losing no time in rebuilding the town of Hearst which was completely destroyed by fire. A slight change will be made in the location. Whereas the former town was at the junction of the A.C. and H.B. railway the new town will be about a mile east. A large number of the people rendered homeless by the fire were settlers who were preparing the land for tillage. The company through its energetic superintendent of lands, Mr. J. A. Dresser, has evolved a scheme of assistance that will enable the settlers to live in the village and carry on the work of clearing until they have sufficient land vacant to make it safe to build good buildings. The new townsite will be laid out in quarter acre lots, which will be sold at a nominal figure to settlers who wish to live with their families and not miss the opportunity of schooling their children. A custom mill is also being installed in order to make it easy to obtain lumber for building.

At Hales Station, which is about half way between Hearst and Oba a gang of men is engaged in cutting eight miles of road through the agricultural land.

At Oba a party of men is engaged in clearing land in order to have farms partly cleared so that settlers going into the country may have some land to till at once.

THE WHY OF IT.

The excavation on Chambers Streets, which necessitates puncturing the pavement, is to fit the Review Office with a new water service. The leak on the main south of Simcoe Street for which the large hole was dug in front of R. Hall and Son has been remedied and continued excavation is due to the fact that the waterworks department is installing a new service for the Warne Drug Co.

ESTABLISHED 1879. PETERBOROUGH, ONT., FRIDAY, JULY 31, 1914 PRICE 2 CENTS

LADY HENRY SOMERSET HAS SOLVED A BIG PROBLEM

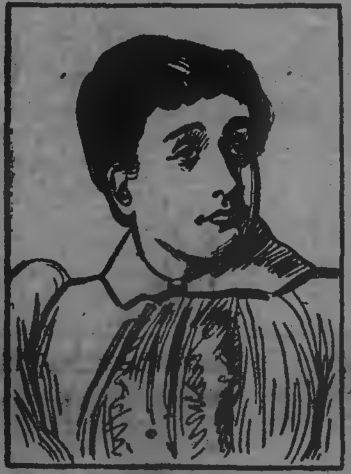
English Noblewoman's Farm at Duxhurst Has Proved That Inebriates When Taken to the Country and Given Healthful Work Under Good Conditions Can Put Away Slavery to Alcohol.

One of the great reform works in England, confined to women alone, but the principle of which equally applies to men, is being conducted by Lady Henry Somerset at the little village of Duxhurst. It is the reclaiming of women lost in the desolation of woe brought on by strong drink.

The most disgusting and revolting sight on earth, Lady Somerset thinks, is a woman drunk. In her dissolute being, humanity seems to have sunk to its lowest. A man, drunk, is bestial. A woman, by so far as she rises above man in her divener hours, sinks, when she is drunk, so far beneath him in her depravity.

Only the eye of faith could have seen, as did Lady Henry Somerset, the possibility of redeeming these lives from destruction. Hundreds of rosy, healthy, happy, respectable English women are shedding abroad the light they gained from Lady Somerset's village at Duxhurst, who once had sunk to the seeming lowest depths of depravity.

Fifteen years ago Lady Somerset advanced the novel idea that addiction to intoxicants had a physical cause. Up to 1899 cases of drunkenness were considered by the English penal authorities moral delinquencies. The work houses were filled with cases of women who came, were discharged, came again and again. Law was powerless to secure their reformation.



LADY HENRY SOMERSET.

Prison was a recognized failure. The authorities began to take cognizance of the argument that the drink habit might have a physical basis as well as a moral basis. Then it was that Duxhurst, the Somerset country village, was opened. Since that time hundreds of women have been reclaimed to society through it. Hundreds have returned to its picturesque rural lanes and cottages years after, showing every indication of prosperity and sobriety.

There are two or three cardinal principles connected with Lady Somerset's village life to which she attributes the success of its 15 years. In the first place, complete isolation from the scenes of their former conflicts and failure she considers essential. Then she believes that an occupation as widely removed from the patient's former occupation as possible is less likely, from the power of association, to bring back the memory of the former struggle and the former falls. She firmly believes that outdoor gardening is a great reclaiming agent. The open air, the results of labor so sure, the beauties that gradually dawn to those who work in gardens among flowers seldom fail to turn the thoughts of the most depraved to higher, better things. There is a dairy where the women make delicious butter, a laundry where they wash the snowy linen of the institution, rooms where they weave and make lace.

"Institution" is hardly a fair name, either. There is nothing institutional about it. There is no big building, divided into wards, with guards and sentinels; there are no high spiked fences, no sentinels, no punishments. There is nothing to suggest an institution. The aim has been to restore to the normal, lives that have become abnormal. To this end, there are a number of picturesque English cottages, vine-covered and attractive in a beautiful English setting, amid the hedgerows and the exquisitely green turf. In each cottage is a motherly cottage sister, who looks after those beneath her roof.

The normal life and the pleasant occupations really have accomplished what prisons have failed to do. Some of the women are taking care of domestic animals. What the gardens have done for others the care of the pets has done for them. Women are by nature protectors of the weak. Many who have gone to Duxhurst with their tender instincts almost crushed out have been restored to their own better selves, their natural feelings of tenderness being reawakened by the dependency of the animals under their care.

Not Really Crooked.

In Chesterfield, England, is a church spire of which, no matter from what point of view seen, appears to be dangerously crooked. In spite of appearances, the spire is safe and sound. A spiral construction was adopted and this makes it appear bent. In realty it is plumb.

London Bridge.

More than 100,000 pedestrians and 20,000 vehicles pass over the London bridge daily.

BURIED TREASURE OF PERU

There has always been fascination for man in lost or sunken treasure, and this again has been brought home to us by the many attempts which have been made lately to recover from the ocean bed bullion which has laid there for centuries, and in some cases a few weeks only.

The sinking of the Empress of Ireland in the St. Lawrence River has added to the number of ships which have taken to their grave beneath the icy waters valuables which are essential to the works of man.

Divers are now endeavoring to recover the bullion aboard the Canadian liner, for there are men still willing to risk their lives in the recovery of treasure from wrecks, as in the old days men were ever ready to go into unexplored lands in search of riches reported to be buried there.

The treasure of the Incas of Peru is among many that have defied the efforts of expeditions to locate, and even to this day no definite clue has been found of the many million dollars worth of gold buried on the approach of the Spaniards into the interior of the present republic.

One of the stories of these lost treasures relates to a Cuzo white man of Spanish descent whom the Lord blessed with numerous children. It is the custom here that a godfather shall look after and provide for his godchild; and so, as this man was poor, he tried to add to his resources by getting a corps of good godfathers.

So as the infants came one after another he named each in honor of one of the distinguished citizens of the town. The citizens, however, did not respond and the man grew poorer and poorer. At last he had nine babies, each of whom had been given a rich godfather, but there was no help forthcoming. The father swore that he would leave the rich and choose as the patron of his next child the first man he met on the street after its birth.

Great Bag of Gold.

In due time the stork came again, and the man, rushing out, saw a poor Indian driving a caravan of llamas into the town. He stopped him and told him he wanted him to be godfather to his child.

The Indian objected, saying that he was poor and not fit to be godfather to a white child. The man then told of his vow and finally persuaded the Indian to accept the position.

In due time the baby was baptized and the Indian appeared at the ceremony as its godfather. He kissed his godson as he left the church and the next day came back into Cuzco with a score of llamas loaded with wood. He took this wood to the father of his godson, saying be had brought what he could and that he must accept the wood as a gift.

The man was thanked, and the wood was duly stored away in the court of the house. Some time after that the bundles of sticks and roots were opened, and inside of each was found a great bag of gold in nuggets and dust. In the meantime the Indian had disappeared and could not be found.

The man took the gold and built two large houses on the street called Triumph. If you do not believe this story come to Cuzco, and the people will show you the street and point out the houses.

Another of those Inca traditions relates to a cave in a mountain called Pillchau, near Cuenca in Ecuador.

This cave contains a mighty treasure of gold, but its entrance is closed by a giant of granite under whose arm is a hole which is open only once a year, and that on Good Friday. Then, and then only, the giant raises his arm and the man who can be there at that time can crawl in under it and get an immense treasure of gold.

As the story goes, the gold is in piles so labeled that only one pile is to be taken at a time. If one man takes only the assigned quantity he will get away safely. But if he is greedy and takes more he will be squeezed to death by the arm of the giant as he goes out. This is the belief held by the Indians.

A fairly well authenticated tradition refers to an Inca named Ruminagui, who is said to have carried away the gold and silver of Quito and buried them. These treasures were taken from the palaces of Atahualpa and from the temples and convents of the virgins of the sun at that place.

Died Rather Than Tell Secret

It is said that some of the gold was started to Cajamarca in order that it might aid in freeing Atahualpa, but that Ruminagui feared the treachery of the Spaniards and buried the gold on the way.

This story came to the Spaniards and Sebastian de Benaloazar, one of the subordinate officers under Pizarro, took 150 men and started for Quito, searching along the path of Ruminagui, but finding nothing.

In the meantime Ruminagui had dug traps in the trails and made snares to destroy the enemy and their horses. He also set fire to Quito and killed the virgins of the sun before Benalcazar appeared. He then climbed to the high mountain behind the city, where he was finally taken by Benalcazar.

He was tortured to death to make him tell where the golden hoard was secreted, but he showed no sign of weakness and the knowledge of the location of the treasure died with him.

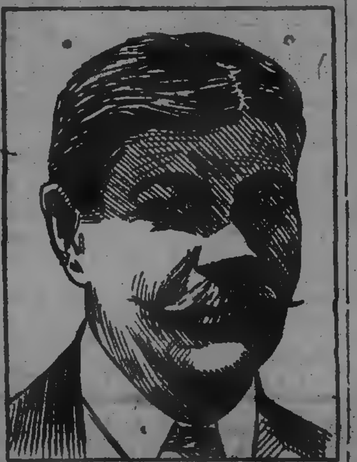
SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE IS NO MEAN SLEUTH

One Case on Which the Famous Novelist Exerted Himself Has Resulted in a Sweeping Reform in British Criminal Law.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who is about to spend some time in Canada, has many claims to popular attention on this side of the Atlantic besides the conception of his great detective character Sherlock Holmes It is to him more than to anyone else that Britain is indebted for the creation of a Court of Criminal Appeal. Until four or five years ago there was no means in Great Britain of quashing the sentence of anyone convicted of crime through a judicial error. Judgment in civil suit could always be appealed. But the decisions of the criminal courts were final, and irrevocable.

To-day there is, thanks to Conan Doyle, a Court of Criminal Appeal, where all wrongful convictions and judicial errors can be righted.

If Conan Doyle was led to take a leading part in the public movement for the creation of a Court of Criminal Appeal, it was because his interest had been aroused by the fate of two victims of judicial error, namely Adolph Beck, an English citizen of Swedish birth, and a lawyer—a solicitor—of the name of George Edalji, whose parentage was Eurasian, that is to say, his mother was an Englishwoman, while his father was the son of a Parsee merchant of Bombay. After receiving his education at an English university, the father had entered the orders of the Church of England and had obtained the rectorship of a county parish in the Midlands.



DR. A. CONAN DOYLE.

In the face of almost insuperable difficulties of an official character, partly due to red tape and partly to the determination of the Government lawyers, of the presiding judge, of the members of the jury, and of the police to uphold their contention that they could not possibly have been wrong in the case of Adolph Beck, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle ended by proving that it was a case of mistaken identity.

Conan Doyle, indeed, stirred up so much popular feeling about the matter, especially when he was able to show that the unfortunate Beck had had his entire business ruined through his arrest and conviction, that the Govenment was led to make him a special grant of $15,000.

Doyle after graduation started out in medical practice at Southsea, and there published his earliest work, "A Study in Scarlet," in which Sherlock Holmes makes his debut. "The Adventure of Sherlock Holmes" followed four years later, in 1891, and the book proved so much of a popular success that Doyle to a great extent abandoned his medical practice and devoted himself to writing novels and plays, thanks to which he is to-day a very rich man.

Sir Arthur has been twice married. His first wife died after twenty-two years of wedded happiness in 1906, and about two years later he led to the altar the present Lady Doyle, who was a Miss Jean Leckie. With her and with his two children by his first wife he makes his home at Windlesham, his charming country place in Sussex near Crowborough, while in town he divides his time between the Atheneum and the Reform Club.

He has always been an enthusiastic cricketer, is a veteran member of that premier cricket organization the Marylebone Cricket Club, is a Liberal Unionist in politics, which accounts for the defeat of his attempts to get into Parliament, has traveled extensively to the Arctic regions, in the west of Africa and in the Soudan, did a quantity of shooting in the Rocky Mountains twenty years ago in the Selkirk Range, north of Banff, which he intends to visit with Lady Doyle before returning home, and takes a leading part in all sorts of public movements, to which his personal popularity and the gift of his pen are invaluable.

$500 For Old Penny.

The first day of a sale of Anglo-Saxon and English coins at Sotheby's, London, realized $5,649. A very fine penny of King Wiglaf, 825-838 A. D., possibly unique, brought $500; it was found at Dorking, in 1817 with more than 700 Anglo-Saxon coins.

A very fine and rare Canterbury penny of King Baldred, 805-825 A.D. fetched $375; an extremely rare penny of King Egberhdt, of Kent 765-791 A.D., $242, and a penny of St. Martin, of Lincoln, of very great rarity, $352.

VANCOUVER MEMBER PREACHES EXCLUSION OF ALL ASIATICS

Mr. H. H. Stevens, M.P., Has Had an Active and Adventuresome Life—After His Fighting Days He Settled Down in the West.

(From Toronto News.)

Ottawa, Ont., Bristol port has been sending forth British adventurers for centuries. The boys of Bristol seem to be born with the wanderlust in their bones. The tang of the ocean air and the spirit of the place, with its sailors from the world over and its ships from every clime, breeds a love of adventure in the blood of Bristol men.

A Bristol man is Mr. H. H. Stevent, M.P. for Vancouver, who has been in the forefront during the stirring days of the past week while the immigration officials have been endeavoring to deal with the unruly Hindus. He was born at Bristol, but, in addition, his father was a Cornishman, and his mother came from an old sea-faring Devonshire family. Is it any wonder that Mr. Stevens, although barely 36 years of age, has pioneered in the West, has fought in the Philippines, seen service in China, and had adventures enough in the South Sea Isles to fill a half dozen Richard Harding Davis novels ?

Period of Adventuring.

Mr. Stevens was but nine years old when his parents emigrated to Canada, and settled at Peterborough, Ontario. He was only in his teens when he started west to see life for himself. He drove a stage in British Columbia, fired on the C. P. R., and roughed it generally in the coast Province. Then came the Spanish war. With his born love of adventure, he sought enlistment in the American army for service in the Philippines. However, he found that meant taking the American oath and forswearing allegiance to Great Britain. Stevens is nothing if he is not patriotic. He refused to do this, so he did the next best thing and joined the transport service. No questions are asked in the transport. With his ability for getting ahead, he was soon in command of the transport for one regiment, and saw fighting enough to satisfy any ordinary adventurer. Then came the Boxer troubles, and Stevens was off to China with his regiment. It was not until the close of the Boxer troubles that he returned to Vancouver to settle down to the prosaic daily grind. He became a successful broker and real estate operator, and started a weekly paper in which he attacked several departments of the municipal government. He entered civic politics and during the two years he was Alderman, made more copy for the newspapers than they had had for years. Through his efforts a department of the municipal government against which he made charges were investigated, despite violent opposition. But Stevens is always a fighter. He has the pertinacity of the Englishmen. He won out and he made his case.

Exclusion of Asiatics.

Then came the 1911 elections. Stevens' name was barely mentioned for the Conservative nomination. He was a real dark horse. There were a number of candidates. Mr. Stevens' name was placed before the convention. He made a rousing speech and he won. He had a formidable opponent in Mr. J. H. Senkler, a popular barrister. Mr. Stevens conducted a regular whirlwind campaign. His election was conceded, but that he would win by the enormous majority of 3,256 no one dreamed.

Mr. Stevens, through his travels in Asia — for, after finishing his fighting career he visited Japan, China and the South Seas several times—has formed the most decided opinions as to the Oriental problem. He came to Ottawa and the East, a man with a mission, to preach the necessity of total exclusion of all Asiatics from the shores of Canada. He was not content, as is the ordinary member, with simply impressing his views on the Government and Parliament. He started a campaign through Eastern Canada. On every possible occasion he addressed Eastern audiences on the Asiatic problem. He impressed more by his eloquence of his earnestness and sincerity than any natural oratory. That there is a growing sentiment in Eastern Canada that British Columbia is right and that British Columbia must be supported, is due largely to the efforts of Mr. Stevens.

Immigration Creed.

The following quotation from a speech by the member for Vancouver during the last session of Parliament, an immigration debate, about sums up Mr. Stevens' creed on the immigration question:

"We oppose the immigration of Orientals into Canada on the ground that many years have demonstrated that they will not assimilate. That is of vital importance. We have not begun to assimilate the Chinese, although they have been with us sixty years. Physically, mentally, morally, socially, and in domestic matters, they are entirely distinct from us. They may have their own civilization, about which I have nothing to say at the moment, but I hold that it is distinct from that civilization which we hold dear. They have no conception of our ideals or of democracy ; they are totally unfit to exercise the rights and privileges of citizenship as we understand it ; and on that score they should not be admitted. Lastly, we cannot hope to preserve our national type if we allow Asiatics to enter Canada in any large number, and it is the sacred duty of the Government and of the people of Canada to preserve that type so far as we are able."

Stevens is one of the most promising of the many promising young men who entered Parliament in 1911. He has youth on his side. He is ambitious. He has ideals, which is a good thing even in a politician. He has views of his own and is not afraid to express them. Above all, he is a good fighter, and Parliament as well as the world in general loves and respects the fighter, provided he fights fairly, which Stevens always does. He will be heard from yet in Canadian public life.

If you are contemplating a trip, don't let this slip your memory. Candian Pacific Steamships make the fastest time, have the best of accommodation, and the table is unexcelled. Full particulars and reservations on trains and ships, to every Canadian Pacific Ticket Office.

The Postmaster-General of Australia hopes to be able to combine at busy street corners a pillar box, telephone cabinet and stamp-selling machine.

CONVICTED AND SENTENCED TO HANG FOR FIFTH TIME

Remarkable Case in Which Negro Awaits Execution for Murder

Anniston, Ala. — Probably without a parallel in the annals of American courts is the remarkable case of Ervin Pope, the Alabama negro who has just appeared in court and for the eighth time listened to the reading of the death warrant and heard the date set for his execution. For five years the negro has been in jail under conviction for the murder of J. B. McClurkin, a white man living near the town of Oxford. He has been convicted and sentenced to hang five times; the case has been before the Supreme Court and reversed four times, and eight different days have been set for the execution. Through it all the negro's nerve has never been shaken. From the day of his arrest he has maintained his innocence of the crime charged against him and has expressed confidence in his ultimate acquittal.

The murder of McClurkin occurred on the night of April 19, 1909. About midnight the victim was awakened by the noise of someone robbing his cotton gin. He got up, saddled his mule and followed the robber's wagon toward Oxford. The next morning his body was found horribly mutilated in a cotton patch on the edge of the town. In an alley in a negro settlement he had evidently been hit in the head with a heavy club, and his skull beaten in with a large stone.

Evidence Circumstantial.

Ervin Pope lived in the town of Oxford about a mile from where the body was found. He owned a little farm in the country and also ran a little restaurant in town. It was proved that on the afternoon preceding the murder Pope was at the mill owned and operated by McClurkin and had exchanged corn for meal. The principal witness for the State was a negro, John Body, in front of whose house the murder was committed, was arrested and held on suspicion. After Pope's conviction, Body was released. He immediately abandoned his crop and family and ran off and all trace of him has been lost. The State and the defense have both made efforts to find him but they have failed.

The lawyers for Pope have contended from the start that Body was the guilty man. Their theory is based on the seeming improbability of Body's story; on the fact that the murder was in front of Body's door; that the club with which McClurkin was killed came from a wood pile in Body's yard; that the murderer had taken pains to drag the body away from Body's door; that Pope had a wagon which exactly corresponded to the tracks found at the scene of the crime; that barefoot tracks were found at the scene of the murder; and that the cotton seed which was stolen from McClurkin's gin on the night of the killing was found in an out-house just back of Body's house.

At the first trial the court permitted a negro witness to describe his own conduct and actions as proof that Pope was guilty. The Supreme Court held that this was an unfair and improper way to proceed against the accused and ordered a new trial. The second appeal was granted on the ground that the defendant had a right to have Body's guilt considered by the jury, and that the State could not introduce illegal evidence to clear Body. By a singular accident, the court repeated at the third trial the identical error it had committed at the second trial, and this resulted in the third reversal of the conviction. The verdict found at the fourth trial was reversed by the Supreme Court on a point of law. On the fifth trial Pope was again convicted and sentenced to hang. The Supreme Court has now handed down a decision affirming the verdict of the Trial Court. Nothing short of executive clemency or the discovery of new evidence tending to prove his innocence can now save Pope from the gallows. He is under sentence to be executed on August 25.

"The Home of Good Clothes"

BOWSER, NURSE

Mrs. Bowser Tells Story of His Loving Devotion.

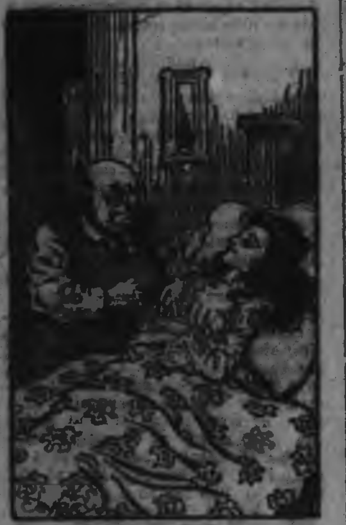
By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1914, by Associated Literary Press.]

MR. BOWSER is an eccentric man. He is an impulsive man. He is what they call a bluffer. With him a thing must be so because he thinks so.

He prides himself on being a student of economy, and yet he buys a hog for $7, pays $6 for a pen, feeds him $22 worth of grain and when he is through his bacon has cost him 7 cents a pound more than it would at the butcher's.

I knew from the cook's face the other morning that a cataclysm of some sort was due, and half an hour after Mr. Bowser had departed I was sobbingly informed that her father had broken a leg, her mother was down with typhoid fever and one of her sisters had been blown up by the kerosene can. She hadn't said anything about it before, not wishing to worry me, but now she felt that she must put on her hat and be off at half an hour's notice.



"LIE QUIET AND DON'T WORRY."

When a cook's family is all battered up and broken down and blown up and she is feeling that she ought to go home and fall down the cellar stairs and break her neck to keep them company, nothing can be said by the lady who employs her.

I simply assured Mary that my sympathies went out for her and that I hoped she would be back within a day or two, and away she went. There was the ironing left undone, and one of my headaches coming on, but I set out to do the best I could and let it go at that.

Unusually Sympathetic.

By 3 o'clock in the afternoon I went to bed with such a splitting headache that it seemed as if nails were being driven into my skull, and there was only a slight abatement when Mr. Bowser came up to dinner. I was dreading his arrival. As a rule, when he comes home and finds me in bed he stands before me with folded arms and nods his head and says:

"Flat down in bed again, eh? I knew it would come! A woman who goes wading around barefoot in the snow or rain must expect to pay for it. Well, you'll get no sympathy out of me!"

On this occasion, however, and to my great surprise he came upstairs with quiet tread and laid a hand on my head and said:

"You've got one of your old headaches, and I'm mighty sorry for you. As the cook is not to be found downstairs, I suppose she's gone?"

"Yes, but it wasn't my fault."

"Of course not. Well, there's no use to worry. I'm not so helpless that I can't pick up a bite for myself. You lie quiet and don't worry."

"But I am sorry to have things all upset in this way when you come home," I said.

"Never mind, little woman. It's a long time between your headaches, and we'll get along as slick as grease."

Heaping on the Kindness.

There have been occasions when I had headaches that Mr. Bowser would go whistling and tramping about and banging away at the furnace doors, but this time he carefully avoided making any noise. It was half an hour before he came upstairs again, and then it was to say:

"What you want is something to eat. A headache is always worse on an empty stomach."

He had brought me up some cold corned beef left from the day before, with a liberal slice of bread and butter with jam on it. I turned dizzy at the sight, and it was all I could do to thank him for his kindness and tell him I hoped to have an appetite by and by.

"I will leave it here," he said, "and the minute you feel like eating I hope you will devour every morsel of it. I can stave off a headache every time by filling up with corned beef and sauerkraut. Just let me cool your head for you."

He took a towel and sopped it in cold water and laid it on my head. The water ran down my neck in streams, and he pressed a part of the towel over my mouth till I could hardly breathe, and then he said:

"You want another quilt on this bed. Always sweat a fever out if you can."

I was burning up and needed less coverings instead of more, but I couldn't hurt his feelings by saying so. He put on an extra quilt and then insisted on rubbing my feet to get up a circulation. Every move of his hand went through my head, but I determined to die before making any objections. He lifted me up and turned my pillow over, shaded my eyes from the gas, wet the towel again and asked to look at my tongue and then departed on tiptoe.

His Grandmother's Idea.

I was dozing when Mr. Bowser came up again, carrying a dish in his hand. I scented the odor of fried sausages and nearly expired.

"I happened to think of what my grandmother used to say," he observed as he put the dish down. "She always contended that fried sausages were better than any doctor's medicine. As soon as you can eat three or four I believe your headache will entirely disappear."

I think it hurt his feelings a bit because I refused to make an effort, but he soon got over it. Then he remarked that his Aunt Ellen suffered for twenty years with headaches, but finally learned that if she sat propped up in bed they would go away within an hour. I tried to please him, but was so much worse after fifteen minutes that he agreed that his Aunt Ellen must have had asthma instead of a headache.

How Mr. Bowser got things ready for breakfast I did not learn until next morning. Then I found that he had ground coffee and allspice together, mixed sausage, corned beef, cabbage, oatmeal and sage together for a hash and dropped the wiping cloth into the teakettle. When he came up again I had fallen into a light sleep, and the cat was there. As soon as he began talking to the feline I awoke.

"So you are here, are you, you miserable, wall eyed son of a gun!" he said in a stage whisper. "I can't wring your old neck here and now, but don't forget that I am on your trail. If Mrs. Bowser dies, and there is a chance that she will, I'll be the death of you within fifteen minutes! If she pulls through my vengeance will only be delayed. I have sworn to have your scalp, and have it I will!"

The cat got downstairs and out on the back fence as soon as possible to do some thinking, and as soon as Mr. Bowser discovered that I was awake he offered to go over to the drug store and get me some salts, carbolic acid, chloride of lime or anything else any of his family had ever heard of in connection with any ailment whatever. When I replied that I needed nothing in that line he offered to go out and arouse the butcher and baker and bring in pork chops and graham bread. He suggested pickles and sardines from the delicatessen store for an appetizer and for a long five minutes descanted on the virtues of hard cider as a cure-all.

Soothing Literature.

As I wanted nothing but sleep to cure my headache, he decided to sit by me and read me to sleep. Under the circumstances I couldn't tell him that if he would go downstairs I would be asleep in ten minutes. He looked around for a book, but the only thing at hand was a copy of the voyage of Captain Cook. That was as good as anything, according to Mr. Bowser. Every word seemed to go through my head, but I shut my eyes and gritted my teeth and let him read on. How many islands and continents the captain discovered I shall never recall to memory, but I recollect that he had been discovering here and there for a number of years, when he landed to be eaten by cannibals. Mr. Bowser's voice betrayed considerable emotion when he reached this point. He had never been eaten himself, but he knew how it must be. The natives were working away when I fell asleep and lost Mr. Bowser, the cannibals, the captain and all else.

It was daylight when I awoke. My headache was all gone, and I was myself again. Mr. Bowser had also read himself to sleep. He sat in his chair in a heap, the book on the floor beside him and the cat on her back asleep, with legs in the air.

"By George," exclaimed Mr. Bowser as I roused him up, "I didn't know whether you would pull through or not. You were an awfully sick woman, and nothing but my loving care and knowledge of what should be done pulled you through. And now let this be a great moral lesson to you to behave yourself!"

Some men are not content with being treated well; they wnt to be treated often.

FOREST INSECTS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

"Forest Insect Conditions in British Columbia is the title of a new bulletin of the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, which is the result of a preliminary survey undertaken by Mr. J. M. Swaine, M.Sc., Assistant Entomologist for Forest Insects. During the past few years frequent reports of serious forest insect depredations in British Columbia have been received by the Division of Entomology, and in view of the high commercial value of the merchantable timber in the province, an investigation was projected. The present publication has been written with a view to assisting immediately the lumbermen and owners of timber limits in the matter of recognizing the commoner species of injurious beetles, and their injuries, with a view to the adoption of the control measures which are described. This bulletin, No. 17, Second Series, may be secured free by those who are particularly interested in this subject and make application to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Participating versus Non-Participating
Life Policies Again

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO a Publisher of this City at age 43 took out a Ten Pay. 15 year Endowment Policy of $2,000, No. 81226 in The Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada paying therefore an annual premium of $187.20.

The Non-Participating Premium would have been $170.40.

The extra paid for profits per year (for 10 years only) was $16.80.

Had this man taken a Non-Participating Policy he would have saved $168.00 extra in premiums paid for profits during the ten years, but he would have lost $620.25 at maturity of Policy as he would have received only $2,000.00 instead of $2,620.25, as he did.

Where is there a man that would not like to invest money at such a rate and that too in the Largest and Strongest Life Insurance Company in the British Empire?

This Picture is No. 18 in Our
SUMMER PASTIME

There will be seventy-five in all. Each picture represents the name of a player of baseball, football, lacrosse or hockey. This picture represents what? Is it SCOTT? Is it KILTY? We will tell you. The name indicated by the picture is that of the well known Canadian ball player,

DOC. REISLING

There's a lot of fun in the Summer Pastime game. There's money in it, too. The way to win is to study every part of the picture and to make sure that the suggested word or combination, like rye and sling, constitutes a player's name. Few persons know the several thousand names in the field of sports and nobody can think of all constantly. The best safe guide to finding the correct names represented by the pictures is to look up each idea in the guaranteed Summer Pastime Handbook. Perhaps you never heard of Mr. Reisling or you may not have thought of the name in connection with the picture. But if you had the Handbook, you would look up Scot, basket, rye, etc. Then you would find the name Reisling and you would know you are right. Get the Handbook and Win.

THE PINK SUNBONNET

How an Artist Found His Model.

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Neal Whitcomb whistled cheerfully as he climbed the hill to the low white farmhouse. On every side the ground sloped away from the hospitable looking domicile. In front was a tree covered lawn, on the north was a vegetable garden, on the south a flower garden and on the east sunny fields of strawberries.

Neal went up the front walk and rang the doorbell.

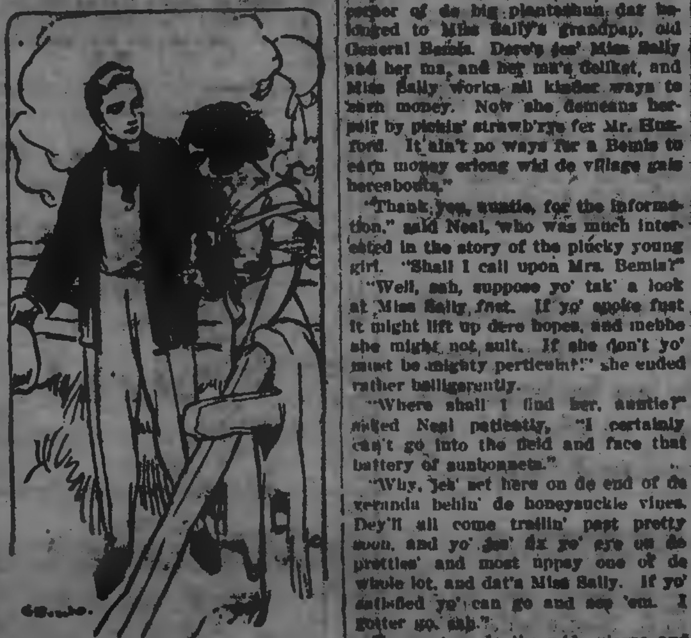
"I am looking for Mr. Huxford," said Neal.

"Mistah Huxford am gone to town with a load of berries," replied the servant, "and Missis Huxford am gone to de sewin' s'ciety."

Neal smiled pleasantly. "Then I'm afraid I must call again. Perhaps you can tell me if there is a Miss Huxford here?"

The woman shook her head. "No, sah; ain't never heard of no Miss Huxford. Dere's young Master Huxford, but he's away at school jes' now."

"I am a painter—an artist," explained Neal as he turned away. "I am staying at the hotel. The proprietor told me I might find a young lady to pose for me up here at Huxfords'. I told him I wanted some one dressed as a country girl in a pink sunbonnet—to put in a picture, you know." Then, suddenly realizing that he was doing much useless explaining, he added hastily, turning away, "Of course there may be another Huxford."



"MISS BEMIS, I WONDER IF YOU REMEMBER ME?"

"Dere ain't no mo' Huxfords around heah," advised the woman, and she added, with a twinkle in her eyes: "P'raps mebbe Mr. Dowd down to the hotel meant yo' could find a young lady out in our strawb'ry beds here. Dere's any night of 'em pickin' berries this minit."

"May I go around and look for myself?" inquired Neal. And without waiting for permission he started around the house.

"Mebbe yo' might find a pink sunbonnet yander in de field," called the servant after him.

Neal Whitcomb went around to the back of the farmhouse, through the green tunnel of a long grape arbor and down a winding path that led to a barred gate. Over the gate he went into a small field, and, crossing this field, where several cows were pastured, he came to another gate, against which he leaned in stunned surprise.

Here were several acres given over to long rows of strawberries, and thickly scattered over the field was a sea of pink sunbonnets!

There was the sound of laughing voices, merry questions and answers, pink sunbonnets bobbing up and down as sun browned hands filled the square wooden baskets, which were quickly removed by several older women, who kept tally of the pickings of each girl.

Out of this sea of pink sunbonnets he was to choose his model! The landlord of the village hotel was evidently a joker. No wonder the black servant at the house yonder had grinned when he mentioned pink sunbonnets!

Neal turned away and tramped with what dignity he could muster back through the grape arbor and around the path to the front entrance. He had started down the path when the servant ran out and spoke to him.

"Scuse me, sah," she said timidly. "I hope yo' all don't think I was gettin' a joke off on yo'?"

"Not at all," said Neal stiffly.

"If yo'll scuse my presumptiousness, mistah, I'd like to say somethin'," went on Delia. "Yo' was sayin' yo'd like to paint a young lady inter yo'r pictur'?"

"Yes."

"I spects dere's money in it fer de young lady, sah?"

"Of course I always pay my models," said Neal.

The woman came closer and spoke confidentially.

"Den, sah, I'd like to recommend Miss Sally Bemis, the prettiest young lady in de county, jak a rose, sah—so pinky and sweet! Her folks has come down in de worl', and dey's livin' in dat little cottage yander on a weeny corner of de big plantashun dat belonged to Miss Sally's grandpap, old General Bemis. Dere's jes' Miss Sally and her ma, and her ma's delikat, and Miss Sally works all kinder ways to earn money. Now she demeans herself by pickin' strawb'rys fer Mr. Huxford. It ain't no ways fer a Bemis to earn money erlong wid de village gals hereabouts."

"Thank you, auntie, for the information," said Neal, who was much interested in the story of the plucky young girl. "Shall I call upon Mrs. Bemis?"

"Well, sah, suppose yo' tak' a look at Miss Sally fust. If yo' spoke fust it might lift up dere hopes, and mebbe she might not suit. If she don't yo' must be mighty perticulmr!" she ended rather belligerently.

"Where shall I find her, auntie?" asked Neal patiently. "I certainly can't go into the field and face that battery of sunbonnets."

"Why, jes' set here on de end of de veranda behin' de honeysuckle vines. Dey'll all come trailin' past pretty soon, and yo' jes' fix yo' eye on de prettiest and most uppey one of de whole lot, and dat's Miss Sally. If yo' satisfied yo' can go and see 'em. I gotter go, sah."

He went up to the wide piazza and sat down in a great easy chair close to the honeysuckle that screened the piazza from the path around which the strawberry pickers must come.

Two years ago, at the art school, there had been a little student, and he was sure her name was Sally Bemis or something of that sort. He had given several talks to the students, and he remembered the girl's lovely, earnest face upturned to his. If he had met her oftener he would have fallen in love then and there, but he was very busy at that time, and he was about to sail for Italy, and the little student had drifted out of his memory.

Voices were heard approaching from the rear of the farmhouse, and presently there strolled past, singly or in groups, the strawberry pickers.

Nineteen girls had gone out of the big gate, and he confessed himself disappointed that not one would do. There came a light step along the path and a rich contralto voice trilling softly. Through the honeysuckle vines he saw her coming. Her sunbonnet slipped back on the dark masses of her curls; her fair face with its magnolia-like complexion tinged with soft pink; her lovely dark eyes fringed with long curling lashes; her sweetly curved lips, so tenderly smiling.

It was Miss Sally Bemis. More than that, she was the one girl for his picture. She was the girl of his dreams, and she was the little student of the art school!

Neal overtook her at the gate.

She turned lovely, surprised eyes at him, and suddenly a deep rose flush stained her cheek from brow to chin. There was embarrassed recognition in her glance.

Neal lifted his hat.

"Miss Bemis, I wonder if you remember me?" he asked eagerly.

"One does not soon forget a celebrity like Neal Whitcomb, the artist," she said quickly, holding out a stained little hand. "What are you doing way down here in Dixie?"

"Painting," said Neal, falling into step beside her. "I've been looking for a model to pose in a daisy field. I wanted a girl in a pink sunbonnet, and when I expressed my wish somebody sent me up here to Huxfords'. Fancy my dismay when I went out to the strawberry field and saw twenty pink sunbonnets!"

Sally laughed deliciously.

"The pink sunbonnets are Mrs. Huxford's idea. She bought a piece of pink calico and made sunbonnets for all the girls; said she liked to see us in the field."

"It's an amazingly pretty sight," agreed Neal as he went down the hill beside her. "You are taking home some of the strawberries?"

"Yes, to my mother. She is an invalid. Her failing health, combined with lack of money, compelled me to abandon my art career," she explained cheerfully.

"That was a hardship," said Neal sympathetically.

Sally laughed again.

"It was at the time, but I have found out that my talents are more in the domestic line than otherwise. I am fortunate in finding it out in time, don't you think so?"

"Brava!" cried Neal. "And now tell me, Miss Sally, is this your home that we are approaching?"

"Yes, and there is mother on the porch waiting for me. You will come in and have a cup of tea with us, Mr. Whitcomb?"

"It will give me much pleasure," he said, so emphatically that they both laughed with some sudden knowledge of good fellowship.

Sally led him to the porch and introduced him to the sweet faced little lady who was her mother, and then she disappeared while Neal talked to Mrs. Bemis.

Mrs. Bemis declared that she and Neal fell in love with each other long before Neal fell in love with Sally, but they all agreed that it didn't matter in the least so long as Neal and Sally were married and lived happily ever after.

If you ever see Neal Whitcomb's famous painting "He Loves Me—He Loves Me Not!" showing a pink sunbonneted girl telling her fortune in a daisy field you will recognize the lovely girl stripping the petals from the daisy as Miss Sally Bemis, and those who know will add that she is the artist's wife.

ISSUE STAMPS

U.S. will Commemorate Peace by Special Design

WASHINGTON, July 30. — As its contribution to the celebration this year of the centenary of peace between Great Britain and the United States, the Postoffice Department was preparing yesterday to issue two special stamps, the designs for which have been approved by Postmaster-General Burleson.

The stamps of two and five cents denominations will be ready for issue early in the fall. The words "Peace; 1814-1914," will be on each. The two-cent stamp will have on it a hemisphere with a female figure on the left holding an American flag and on the right a figure bearing a British flag, the two clasping hands across the hemisphere. On the five-cent stamp will be a winged figure typifying the spirit of peace and with a dove of peace flying before it.

Canada May Not Imitate.

OTTAWA, July 30.—At the Postoffice Department yesterday it was stated that no official representations have been made concerning the issue of peace centenary stamps.

MESSAGES TO CANADA

Coded Despatches May Require Instant Attention

OTTAWA, July 30. — Code despatches from the British Government were received late last night bearing on the war situation in Europe, and it is possible that Sir Robert Borden and the other members of the Cabinet may be hurriedly summoned back to the capital this week.

Of course, no information is available as to the contents of the confidential communications. The Minister of Militia was not expected back till the end of the week, but will probably return at once, as the Canadian Department of Militia and Defence will, naturally have to take prompt action if Great Britain is drawn into the conflict. There are a number of British officers now in Canada, as well as thousands of reservists, and the British War Department will have to be advised at once as to the amount of assistance which can be relied upon from here.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson V.—Third Quarter, For Aug. 2, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Mark xi, 1-11. Memory Verses, 7-9—Golden Text, Zech. ix, 9—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

It is sometimes difficult to get the correct sequence of events in the life of our Lord, but it does seem from John xii, 1, 2, that the supper and anointing at Bethany took place six days before the passover and just before the so called triumphal entry of the lesson today, and yet the lesson on the anointing is not assigned us till Oct. 4. Well, the order of events does not always matter much if we see Himself more clearly and receive the message for our own hearts. The great event of this lesson is recorded in each of the four gospels and was a literal fulfillment of the prediction in Zechariah (our Golden Text), quoted in Matt. xxi, 4, 5; John xii, 15. Fulfilled prophecy is the key to that which is as yet unfulfilled, so we should confidently expect as literal a fulfillment of other predictions of Zechariah, such as those in Zech. ii, 10-12; vi, 12, 13; viii, 22, 23; xii, 9, 10.

After the night at Bethany, when Lazarus, whom He had raised from the dead, was one of them that sat at the table with Him (John xii, 1, 2), He and His disciples proceeded toward Jerusalem. On the way He sent two of the disciples to find an ass and colt tied in a village near by, saying that they should loose them and bring them to Him, and if any one asked why they were to say, "The Lord hath need of them" (verses 2, 3; Matt. xxi, 2, 3). The colt was one whereon yet never man sat, reminding us that He was Mary's firstborn and also that Joseph's new tomb had never been used till it received His body. The disciples are not mentioned by name, but as Peter and John were a little later sent to prepare the passover (Luke xxii, 8) they may have been the two sent on this occasion also. Whoever they were, they found even as He had said unto them, both in connection with the colt and the man bearing the pitcher of water (Luke xix, 32; xxii, 10-13). So it always has been and will be, and whether in this life or the life to come.

Having brought the colt, they put their garments on him, and Jesus sat thereon. Many spread their garments in the road also, and others cut down branches off the trees and strewed them in the way, and the multitude as He came to the descent of Olivet began to rejoice and to praise God with a loud voice, saying: "Hosanna! Blessed be the King that cometh in the name of the Lord! Blessed be the kingdom of our father David!" and other words. Compare verses 7 to 10 and Luke xix, 35-38. The Pharisees found fault, as usual, and wanted the noise stopped, but our Lord said, "I tell you that if these should hold their peace the stones would immediately cry out" (Luke xix, 39, 40).

This lesson is called "The Triumphal Entry," and, while thus far there is some show of triumph, it was for our Lord a sad day—one of the three occasions on which we read that our Lord wept, the other two being at the grave of Lazarus and in Gethsemane (John xi, 35; Heb. v, 7). The record of this weeping is found in Luke xix, 41-44, and part of it is as follows: "He beheld the city and wept over it, saying: If thou hadst known, even thou, at least in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace! But now they are hid from thine eyes * * * because thou knewest not the time of thy visitation." Compare His other pitiful lament over the city in Matt. xxiii, 37-39. He saw the judgments which would come upon the city and nation, even as He sees the wrath which will fall upon the unbelieving.

The city was moved as He entered it and the question asked, "Who is this?" (Matt. xxi, 10, 11), reminding us of the same question concerning Him in Jer. xxx, 21; Isa. lxiii, 1, the one referring to His first coming as our daysman, surety, redeemer, and the other to His coming in judgment. The reply of the multitude on this occasion, "This is Jesus, the prophet of Nazareth of Galilee" (Matt. xxi, 11), reminds us of His own reply to the question of Saul of Tarsus, "I am Jesus of Nazareth whom thou persecutest" (Acts xxii, 8). Having entered the city, He went to the temple, healed some blind and lame people, quoted part of the Eighth Psalm to the faultfinding chief priests who would have Him stop the children from crying "Hosanna to the Son of David," looked round about upon all things and then returned to Bethany with the twelve and lodged there (verse 11 and Matt. xxi, 14-17). According to one of the harmonies, the incidents and sayings of John xii, 20-36, fit in here.

I have been helped by considering the following suggestions from the incident of the ass' colt, typifying a sinner brought to and then serving the Lord Jesus: "Vain man would be wise, though man be born a wild ass' colt" (Job xi, 12, omitting the italics). Every sinner may be said to be found where two ways meet (Mark xi, 4), for he is in the broad way and can step out of it into the narrow way if he will. Every sinner is bound by the devil, but may be loosed by disciples and brought to Jesus Christ and may become a Christ bearer.

ORGANIZING FOR WAR IN THE AIR

The British Admiralty has just announced the creation of a Royal Naval Air Service with its own ranks and uniforms.

The promulgation of the regulations marks a distinct step in the introduction of the aerial arm into the Empire's fighting forces; in fact, it is a preface to the history of war in the air.

Up to the present date air work in the Navy has been of too recent birth to admit of the application of firm lines of organization. The present regulations show that it is considered that the time has now arrived when this section should begin a distinct and individual life of its own. We have therefore in these regulations the formation of a Royal Naval Air Service, which is to be constituted as a distinct part of the military, or fighting branch of the Royal Navy.

The scheme is based on the principle that all classes of officers and men in this naval air service shall enjoy equal facilities in regard to military command, so that officers and men of the military and the non-military branches of the royal navy, officers and men of the royal marines, of the royal naval reserve forces, those transferred from the army, and those entered direct from civil life shall all take rank and precedence according to their naval air service grade while performing air service duties.

It has therefore been decided in the first instance to frame an arbitrary seniority list as regards the officers and men now engaged on this work; and in future that all officers and men will take position on the list from the date of their being graded. At the same time the age and previous service of candidates will be adjusted to ensure that all shall begin as nearly equal as is practicable.

The pay is on approximately the same rates as those for submarine service, but slightly higher on the whole.

The uniform will be the same as that worn by executive officers in the Royal Navy. A small badge in the shape of an eagle will be worn above the stripes on the left sleeve. The uniform will be very similar, but the anchor (the emblem of the sea) will be generally replaced by the eagle, which has been established as the emblem of the air.

An important feature of the new regulations is that civilians will be permitted to enter direct into the air service, in which they will hold a position of entire equality with the other officers.

MANY OF ONTARIO BENCH IN HARNESS AT AN OLD AGE

At one of the Toronto clubs much favored of the legal fraternity, the illness which prompted the late S. H. Blake to retire from private practice for a nine-year occupancy of the bench, was being discussed, and the fact that he was then moved to take up firm work again, and so long continued it in good health. Much interesting matter concerning the seeming wholesomeness of official life was evoked among the legal groups. The great Canadian counsel and chancellor, recently called away, achieved the good age of 79.

Judge Morgan, though billed for retiral from county court activities by the generous age limit of 75, is only 76, and good for a long time at his surrogate duties, Judges McLaren and Garrow, of the high court, are 72 and 71, respectively. Chief Justice Meredith—whose amused eye upon recent provincial events would make a live newspaper picture, if enlarged for judges have no politics, you know—is 74, and capable of the best work of his life, as witness his burdensome task on the workmen's compensation act. Chief Justice R. M. Meredith, is 67, but looks a decade less. Chief Justice Falconbridge is a year older. In January next Sir William Mulock will be 71. Sir John Boyd, chancellor of Ontario, is yet another proof that the bench atmosphere really is a longevity tonic —being 77. Then there is Mr. Justice Britton—81 upon his birthday next September — "still going strong."

In fact, long lives are not unusual in Ontario court annals. Further attestation to this becomes patent from a casual glance through Osgoode Hall records. Sir John Robinson, who lived 72 years, was for 33 years chief justice of Ontario. Sir Henry Strong was as long on the bench, as vice-chancellor, judge or chief justice. Mr. Justice Gwynne, at the age of 88, had also served the like period. If Chief Justice Spragge's judicial service were counted from his appointment as master, June 2, 1837, until his decease, April 20, 1884, it would exceed the above by thirteen years. Chief Justice McLean was on the bench from March, 1827, until 1868, and lived 74 years. Chief Justice Campbell also attained the same age, but only eighteen of it was on the bench. Chief Justice Draper lived 76 years, and held judicial office from 1847 till 1877. Sir John Hagarty from 1856 until his resignation in 1897 gave service, and reached 82. Chief Justice Armour presided in our courts from 1877 until his promotion to the supreme court, 1902, 25 years thereafter. Senator Gowan, styled by the literary Davin, "one of the noblest and most interesting figures in our political life," served 41 years on the county court bench prior to that. Judge Wm. Elliot, of Middlesex County, who retired in 1904, had completed 35 years of achievement.

Perhaps fittingly after the recent "spirited" spell, the list may be closed with the late Hon. Sir Oliver Mowat. When he passed away on April 19, 1903, he was 83 years old, and, since his call in Trinity term, 1841, had been a barrister, judge, or crown officer for a period nearly equal to two ordinary generations. His history is interwoven with that of Ontario's development.

A NEW PEER.
Sir Edgar Vincent, Chairman of the Dominion Royal Commission, which is to meet in Canada this year to discuss trade relations between the various British colonies. He was formerly Financial Adviser to the Egyptian Government, and received a peerage in the Kings birthday honor list.

THE NEW MEN ON THE JOB

Preliminaries of the Public Utilities

MAKE RIGHT START

At a meeting of the Public Utilities Commission yesterday afternoon Mr. Howse intimated that he would like to have an insight into the waterworks end of the game. He would prefer having the big end of the business through his department of which he would be manager. He would then be in a condition to take charge of the system should anything go wrong or Mr. Dobbin be out of the city.

"We are holding Mr. Dobbin responsible for the waterworks end," remarked Chairman T. F. Matthews.

Mr. Matthews pointed out that in no manner or form did they want any friction between the two heads.

Mr. Hicks remarked that he was looking forward for Mr. Howse to innovate the best possible system in connection with the departmental in which they were concerned as representatives of the city at large.

Mr. Moore pointed out that Mr. Howse was not entirely conversant with the waterworks system like Mr. Dobbin, not having as much experience.

"Yes, Mr. Dobbin has had experience and we have every confidence in him," remarked Mr. Matthews.

The matter was ended by the Commission requesting that both men get together and draft a plan by which both may be conversant with the propositions before them, in order that they may work in harmony and for the best possible interests of the city.

Both are willing to do so and evidently merely wanted sufficient understanding to know where and what they were to do.

Mr. Howse reported that he had submitted contracts for cabinet filing cases and printing.

Report on Hydrant.

In connection with the hydrant next to the Quaker Oats Plant on Hunter street east, Mr. Dobbin reported that the chairman of the Power Committee had informed him that they hadn't sufficient money to remove the hydrant to the other side of the road at present. The hydrant was only twenty feet away from the building and would be no use in case of fire. Mr. Matthews also agreed that the hydrant should be removed.

"What size is it?" inquired Mr. Moore.

"Five inches," responded Mr. Dobbin.

The matter was laid over until the next meeting. Mr. Dobbin reported that the service to the Y. M. C. A. had been laid.

Cause of Leakage.

Mr. Dobbin also reported on the leak in front of Hall's on George street. The matter was being attended to. The cause of the leak was due to the pipe breaking. They had laid a new pipe which would be satisfactory. The service in the first place had been badly laid.

Petitions for services on Barnardo avenue and Smith street were considered and left over.

Sprinkler System.

The Peterborough Lock Company complained of insufficient service and asked for extra service so that they might install a sprinkling system. The service at present was not adequate for the sprinkler service.

"I am inclined to grant it," remarked Mr. Hicks.

"They would have to pay for it," added Mr. Moore.

The engineer was asked to report on the matter.

The Fire, Light and Water Committee asked the advice of Mr. Howse in connection with the fire alarm system.

The Commission then adjourned.

DOUBLE FATALITY

Canadian Press Despatch.

Stratford, Ont., Aug. 1.—Gordon Killer, son of Mr. J. H. Killer and Alfred Colquhoun, son of James Colquhoun, both about 22, were fatally injured in a motor accident at two o'clock on St. Mary's Road, Killer dying at six o'clock and Colquhoun at eight o'clock. Roddy McDonald, Jack Branston, Gordon Colquhoun and Wm. Riehl, the driver of the car were also injured but not fatally. The party were returning from a party in the country and when about five miles from the city, a buggy was noticed ahead at a road crossing. Riehl who was driving at a fast clip turned the car which ran into and smashed a telephone pole and was itself badly wrecked.

Stratford. — Later. — Auto accident caused only one death. Colquhoun is not dead, and will probably recover.

WAS STRUCK AT AGINCOURT BY MIDNIGHT TRAIN

Henry Taylor is Brought to Local Hospital

Henry Taylor of Agincourt was struck by the first C.P.R. midnight running east last night, and sustained a fractured leg and bruises about the head. The train was brought to a stop. Whether he was walking along or across the tracks could not be ascertained. The man was hurled some distance from the track, and his moans brought the train crew to him. He was placed in the baggage car, brought to this city and conveyed to Nicholls Hospital. He was then unconscious.

Dr. Carmichael, C.P.R. physician, was called and found the man to be suffering from the above injuries. This morning it was learned that he was resting as well as could be expected.

PAVEMENT WILL BE CONSTRUCTED

Petition of Residents not Allowed

The petition which E. D. H. Hall, Thos. Brightman and others laid before the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board against the construction of a pavement on Aylmer Street between Hunter and Brock streets has been turned down. The work was authorised under the local improvement act and when the city decided to go ahead, the residents objected and Messrs. Hall and Brightman were named as the chief petitioners. Automatically the question resolved to the railway board and written arguments against the work being started were made by Mr. Hall and for the work being carried out by City Solicitor Gordon. The railway board describes the petitioners' case as very weak. The work will now be gone on with.

Accident Victim Well Known Here

Joseph Stanton, who was killed yesterday at Toronto Union Station by falling down the elevator, had many friends in this vicinity who regret to learn of his demise. The late Mr. Stanton was the conductor on the train that run from Belleville to Hastings before this division was completed and with Engineer Tim Daley, made up a pair of the most widely known and popular railway men ever in this vicinity. When the line from Belleville to Peterboro was opened Mr. Stanton was one of the conductors and he officiated in that capacity for years.

THE VICTIM OF ASSASSIN

PARIS, Aug. 1.—Jean Leon Jaures, the Socialist leader in the Chamber of Deputies, was assassinated yesterday.

M. Jaures was sitting in a cafe when a young man entered and fired several shots at him. Two of the bullets took effect in the head of the Socialist leader and he expired in a few minutes.

Jean Leon Jaures, the murdered leader of the French Socialists, was born in Castres, France, in 1859. He was elected member of the Chamber of Deputies in 1885, and has remained a member for Paris since that date. He was editor of Le Petite Republican, and author of many books. Social science and economics were his chief studies. He was professor of philosophy at Aite and Toulouse Universities. A Socialist in politics, he was opposed to the reactionary policy of former Premier Briand and equally hostile to the ultar-revolutionary tactics of Gustav Herve, and the materialistic conceptions of Paul Lafargue.

Although a profound scholar and the most sincere advocate of the French workingmen's cause, strange to say the "syndicaliste revolutionaire" fostered a hatred for him because of his attitude towards Parliamentary government and many attempts had previously been made to murder him.

He was chosen to lead the French Socialists at the International Socialistic Congress, which convenes in Vienna next week. He advocated world's peace, industrial co-operation, complete free education and public ownership of industries.

URGENT MESSAGE SENT BY KING GEORGE TO THE CZAR

TIME LIMIT OF ULTIMATUM EXPIRES

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, King George has sent an urgent message to the Russian Emperor in an effort to avert war. The Bank of England has raised its discount rate to ten per cent. and at Berlin the Imperial Bank has raised its discount rate to six per cent. The National Penny Bank was closed today.

Newspaper despatches from Berlin and Rome confirm the report that Germany has addressed an ultimatum to Russia and has questioned France regarding the latter's intentions. It is semi-officially announced in Vienna that nothing important occurred at the front yesterday.

Berlin, Aug. 1.—It is officially announced here today that the time limit on Germany's ultimatum to Russia expired at noon.

GERMANY'S ULTIMATUM DEMANDED THAT RUSSIA SUSPEND MOBILIZATION

Canadian Press Despatch.

Rome, Aug. 1—The German Government's ultimatum to Russia asked her to suspend mobilization within twelve hours. Germany's demand on France was for information, within eighteen hours, whether in case of war between Germany and Russia, France would remain neutral. The German ambassador to Italy to-day asked to be informed as to Italy's attitude in the event of war between Germany and Austria against France and Russia. The Italian foreign minister thereupon conferred with the prime minister, and their opinion as to Italy's attitude is given in the newspaper Messagero as follows: Italy has decided to confine herself to pointing out to her allies, Germany and Austria, that as it is not for them a defensive war, her treaty obligations do not compel her to take up arms, and she will remain neutral. The Messagero adds that Italy will stand aloof as long as she believes her interests are not being infringed.

London, Aug. 1.—When the news of King George's intervention with Russia was conveyed to the German embassy here it elicited the remark that it "tended to revive hope."

Berlin, Aug. 1.—The North German Gazette, the Government official organ, says after the Russian emperor had given the order for mobilization of the entire army and fleet, Emperor William sent a final telegram to Emperor Nicholas in which he made it clear that his responsibility for the security of the German empire had compelled him to adopt defensive measures. The Kaiser continues he had gone to the utmost limits possible in efforts to preserve the world's peace, and that the responsibility for the calamity threatening the world did not rest on him. The peace of Europe would still be maintained if Russia would cease to threaten Germany and Austria. Prior to this, on July 29th, the Russian emperor telegraphed Emperor William urging his help to avert the misfortune of an European war and to try to restrain Austria from going too far. Emperor William assented, and diplomatic action was intimated at Vienna. While this was in progress the news arrived that Russia was mobilizing, and the Kaiser telegraphed the Czar that his role as mediator was by this endangered. A decision was to have been taken in Vienna today in regard to mediation proposals in which Britain had joined Germany, but meanwhile Russia had ordered complete mobilization. Thereupon, the emperor addressed his last telegram declaring he had been forced to take defensive measures.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Official advices received at the White House today reported the German ambassador leaving St. Petersburg. Ambassador Herrick in Paris reported that a proposition to place German interests in his hands was being discussed there.

Paris, Aug. 1.—The German ambassador conferred with Premier Viviani at the foreign office this morning and was to have had a second conference this afternoon. These audiences gave rise to the impression that all hope of peace was not gone, but the situation was admitted to be very gloomy.

London, Aug. .—The French embassy here learns that the German ambassador at Paris intends leaving the French capital tonight.

PLANS FOR PARTICIPATION IN WAR TO BE DISCUSSED

Cabinet Meets at Ottawa To-day—Austrians Will Not Be Permitted to Leave Country.

OTTAWA, Aug. 1.—While waiting for the final word regarding the appalling war in Europe, which now seems past prevention, the feeling in the capital is very tense.

The Prime Minister returned this morning and Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes is expected to-day. A Cabinet meeting has been called and the latest developments will there be discussed and any steps that should be taken by Canada in the way of action or preparation.

If Canada is called on to send men to aid the Imperial forces, the only trouble will be in getting properly qualified officers and sufficient equipment for the men who would be ready to go. It is believed from the numerous offers that have come in that fully 100,000 men could be sent over. At present, however, it is said, that barely more than 20,000 could be offered or equipped satisfactorily. There are plenty of rifles and ammunition, but not enough of other equipment.

The first troops that would be called out would be from the permanent force. The various units of the Royal Canadian Regiment, Royal Canadian Engineers and Royal Canadian Artillery at Halifax, Quebec, Toronto and Winnipeg, number about 3,000 men. They are ready to leave at any time. All leave of absence has been cancelled and arrangements are being made to promptly mobilize a considerable portion of the troops.

In the event of war the naval service department will have control of all wireless stations.

Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes will go to Quebec Sunday or Monday to look after the defence preparations there.

It is reported here that the Duke of Connaught will return to Ottawa at once if Britain is drawn into the war, in order to aid in the mobilization of Canadian troops. His long and distinguished military experience would be of great value.

The War Office yesterday cabled the Canadian Government to know how much wheat Canada would be able to send to Britain this year. The Russian wheat crop cannot be depended on by the old country this year if the war goes on.

Sir Robert Is Reticent.

TORONTO, Aug. 1. — "I consider the situation so grave and serious that I deem it my duty to hasten back to the capital immediately," was the brief and significant statement of the Prime Minister, Sir Robert Borden, last night.

The Premier reached Toronto early in the evening, and proceeded to Ottawa on the night train. He came at once from the Muskoka Lakes, where he was holidaying.

Sir Robert was exceedingly reticent regarding the immediate proposals of the Canadian Government and concerning its communications with the Imperial Government. So far as any official statement was concerned the Premier intimated that he was not yet in a position to even indicate what steps might be taken. Any decision reached would be based upon information awaiting him at Ottawa.

Austrians Must Stay.

OTTAWA, Aug. 1.—When war is declared the Canadian Government will keep a close watch on Austrians and Servians in Canada. The Servians are a negligible quantity; but Austrians number about 60,000 males. Many of them are reservists. They will not be interfered with if they remain quiet, but if they attempt to go home to rejoin their army and fight against Great Britain and her allies, they would be promptly stopped. They must stay in Canada.

Afterwards Blessed the Cat.

Maud—Did he fall on his knees when he proposed.

WHERE STREET CARS STOP

Agreement Compels Company to Stop at Further Crossing

It is no uncommon occurrence for a stranger in the city to stand on the wrong side of the crossing while waiting for a street car and then have to hoof it across the street when the car is brought to a halt. The stranger will undoubtedly think that the motorman needs the attention of an eye specialist at once, while the onlooking citizen is prompted to put the stranger down as a resident of rural districts who is unaccustomed to radials. On a second consideration, however, the stranger may perhaps be from some big city and undertook to board one of Peterboro's street cars in the same manner as he would at home.

In the larger cities, instance, Ottawa, Toronto, Detroit, and Rochester, the street cars invariably stop on the near side of intersecting street, and why? Purely because it is "big city like" and practically minimizes the duties of a traffic officer. When a car approaches a crossing it should stop on the near side since in doing so it gives cross traffic an opportunity to get away before the car commences to move. Under existing conditions in this city the car goes [illegible] across the street at a rate of some eight or ten miles an hour and the fact that the number of local accidents is very small, is due more to good luck than good management. It is to be understood that it is in no way the fault of the Peterboro Street Railway Co. The following is taken from Clause 22 of the agreement between that company and the city of Peterboro made on the sixth of October, 1902:—

> "That in operating the railway cars shall stop at the further crossing of intersecting street and the body of the car shall not stop on or over a crossing or on any intersecting streets and cars shall not be left on any street at any time unless waiting for passengers."

Should the street railway employees stop on the near side of the street they are breaking the company's agreement with the city, hence in order to have this improvement put in force it must be on the request of the City Council and the consent of the Peterboro Street Railway Co.

In speaking of the idea to Mayor Buller today, The Review learned that his Worship is strongly in favor of it since, to use his own words, "it would greatly assist in handling congested traffic." Mayor Buller has seen it worked out successfully in larger cities and it would not be surprising to see some step along that line taken locally.

Detective Newhall is another great admirer of the movement. He has officiated as traffic officer in London, Liverpool and Toronto, and states from actual experience that it is one of the greatest of movements to prevent fatalities. In London every street car stops at the near side of a crossing whether hailed by a pedestrian or not but of course that is altogether too much to expect in a city the size of Peterboro where the traffic is not always very heavy.

In speaking of such places as the corner of George and Lake Streets where there is but one crossing and when the cars running one way stop at the further side the passengers have to alight or enter from a dusty or muddy road as the case may be, City Engineer Parson said that the City should give the Street Railway Company some latitude, permitting them to stop their cars at the crossing, whether it be on the near or further side of the intersecting street. Mr. Parsons referred to the conditions of things in Ottawa since the street cars in that city commenced stopping on the near side. He stated that the only drawback was that it was a little confusing for autoists and drivers of other vehicles who would stop at the corner expecting the car to pass on by while they could have been across the street very handily.

Considering the little inconvenience for drivers in comparison under existing conditions it is only logical that practically every citizen would like to see the [illegible] brought about. It [illegible] above, in the hands [illegible] Council.

PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, AUGUST 1, 1914

CANADA WILL AID BRITAIN.

THE CONNECTION of Britain in the entente with France and Rusia does not necessitate Britain going to war under any or every circumstance that may arise. But Britain's honour is at stake to the extent that she must not weaken the entente by withdrawing. For that reason it seems difficult, should the worst complications arise, for England to keep out of the struggle.

But what of Canada in the event of Britain going to war? Had it not been for Laurier and the Grit Senators, Canada would now have three super-Dreadnoughts nearly completed, which would be a powerful quota to the great British navy. The emergency so long talked about, and for which the Conservatives wished to prepare, is about to be turned into an actual condition. Canada will not be out of the conflict, should Britain be engaged, but, had it not been for the Liberals, she would have been properly prepared to meet it now that it has assumed the gravest appearance.

In any event, the Canadian people will not see Britain fight alone, and what aid the Borden Government can give will have national support.

CELEBRATING THE CANAL.

THE ORILLIA PACKET, referring to the celebration of the opening of the Trent Valley Canal, says:

> "Peterborough is talking of a celebration of the opening of the Trent Valley Waterway. We should welcome an invitation to the festivities on the long-hoped-for occasion, but we fear our Peterborough friends will have to exercise a little more patience before they can fix the date. If our information is correct, the Trenton end may be open next summer, but it will only be for launches and light draft craft. And as to the northern outlet, it will be two or three years yet before we expect to see vessels plying between Orillia and the Georgian Bay."

Our Orillia friends can trust Peterborough to do the job as it should be done. The work of completing the canal will be done as quickly as possible, and, now that the Toronto Globe recognizes the value of this waterway, it should be given an imposing introduction to Canadian commerce.

A good many have been thinking seriously of the matter, and the suggestion of Dr. Cameron that an historical reference be made to the fact that Champlain was the first white man to traverse this beautiful waterway three hundred years ago, is timely and worthy of consideration. An historical pageant might be considered, as well as the erection of a monument or tablet. A water pageant over the lift-locks might be feasible. At any rate, more places than Peterborough have their eyes on this waterway, and that is why the committee having charge of proposing plans for the celebration should not neglect any suggestion. The importance of this canal to other places should be borne in mind and their co-operation secured in the proposed fete.

FIGHTING IN THE AIR.

THE PRESENT WAR between Austria and Servia is likely to see an effective trial of fighting in the air by means of flying machines. For a number of years there has been a great deal of experimentation in applying aerial navigation to war purposes. There has been much progress, particularly in France, in this new method, and if it proves effective, France and those countries which have developed war aeroplanes will have a distinct advantage. If a continental conflict breaks out, as is very probable, an effective test of this latest means of fighting will be assured.

British experts predict that the part aerial corps would play in the fighting would be of the greatest importance, and the relative aviation strength, from a military viewpoint, of the different nations apt to be drawn into the threatened war has become a topic of lively discussion.

France is known to have a large fleet of airships, manned by skilled aviators with military training, ready to go into action at a moment's notice. The army and navy together have about 750 machines.

Germany has an aerial corps operating over five hundred aeroplanes and dirigibles. The Russian army has about 350 airships at its command.

Austria has only about 150 flying machines of various types. Italy has at least 200 well equipped airships, many of the aviators in the Italian army have the benefit of training received in the war between that country and Turkey.

The British army, in the event of war, it is said, would have less fighting strength in the air than any of the leading European nations, as it has only 130 airships equipped and ready for service at the present time.

PERHAPS it would be feasible for France and Italy to arrange a saw-off.—Hamilton Herald. Perhaps. But, then, they have not the experience that Hamilton has in this matter.

STAGE PLAY DETECTIVE WORK.

THE CONDUCT of the Tamworth case, concerning which we said the police and detectives acted very incompetently, is receiving similar treatment by leading newspapers. The Toronto News says:

> "Provincial detectives went to Tamworth when it was announced that Miss Yorke had disappeared. They 'investigated' the case, and announced sententiously that there was nothing wrong. From the doctor involved, a statement was secured, a statement which, it was said, made everything as clear as noon-day. The detectives returned to Toronto. No efforts were made to detain the doctor, and his sudden disappearance did not disturb the simple trust of the Provincial Detective Department. Two weeks after the detectives' departure the body of the poor girl is found by a bailiff in the cellar of the doctor's house. Twice within a few months the Provincial Detective Department has proved itself to be a numbskull institution. It failed to find Moyes. It failed to solve the Tamworth mystery. The service requires reorganisation."

The Toronto Telegram says the work of the police and detectives was stage play:

> "The finding by the bailiff of two bodies and a half-burnt mattress in a house searched by the Provincial Police is the sort of thing which might be acceptable in some cheap melodrama. In that class of play there is usually a dull-witted sleuth to provide comic relief. His principal occupation is to polish up his badge of office and to take every means possible not to locate criminals.
>
> Burlesque of police methods may perhaps be excused on the stage, although even there it is apt to bring the authorities into contempt. The burlesque of detective work which has characterized the official investigation into the Tamworth murder is not so tolerable.
>
> Some explanation of the failure to find the body of Miss Yorke by the sleuth who made a search of Dr. Robinson's house is indeed necessary. It may be that the Provincial force contains at least one artist who would make a greater success of detective work on the stage."

The authorities should institute an immediate inquiry into the manner in which this case was handled. There are enough people going astray without having a monkey police and detective force to assist them.

SUMMER DRESS FOR MEN.

THE MONTREAL MAIL thinks the average man doesn't even bother his head about the expense which we pointed out as an objection to the wearing of white duck clothes by men. We do not know what kind of an average man the Mail is familiar with or if it is well acquainted with the average man. We still think the expense is quite a serious item because we heard many deprecate white pants on that ground. But still the suggestion is good, and no doubt there are some sweeping and salutary reforms needed in men's clothes. As for ourselves, we wear white pants when we want to, and we don't care who knows it or what they think about the matter.

Another Psychological Explanation.

Indianapolis News.

Let us remember, too, that a woman is not so cool as she looks and that a man is not so hot as he feels. It's all psychological.

Queer Sabbath Observance.

Montreal Gazette.

At Atlantic City, N. J. on Sunday couples tangoed on the beach to the tune of Onward Christian Soldiers. Doubtless this was considered by them to be a concession to the holiness of the day. There are some queer ways of observing the Sabbath.

The Sign of the Demagogue.

Saturday Evening Post.

Do not trust the man—to whatever party he belongs—who seeks to load all the faults of a condition on a few individual shoulders. He is either not intelligent enough to know the truth or not honest enough to speak it. Do not forget that the main difference between big business and little business is simply size—and the fact that little business has more votes to give. There are plenty of clean, straightforward big businesses and plenty of mean, unscrupulous little ones.

Deadly Science.

Life.

Dr. G. B. Abbott, of Los Angeles, says in the California Electric Medical Journal, May, in part.

"Cancer was practically unknown until cow-pox vaccination began to be introduced. It is certainly about time to study out the possible connection between the two.

"I have had to do with many cases of cancer, and I never saw a case of cancer in an unvaccinated person."

And the filthy old practice is compulsory!

"Lorna Doone."

London Chronicle.

The popular mind often moves in a mysterious way, but perhaps there is no more remarkable instance of its whim than is supplied by Blackmore's fine romance, "Lorna Doone." It was originally published by Messrs. Sampson Low in three volumes, and had no great success. Mr. Low was convinced of its merits and determined to issue it in one volume at what was then a low price for novels. The issue coincided with the engagement of the Marquis of Lorne and the Princess Louise, which, of course, created tremendous interest in the country. For some reason the public got it into its head that the title had something to do with the betrothal and the book sold like hot cakes.

Professional Ball Not a Necessity.

Philadelphia Ledger.

The best actor without a theatre to play in would be as worthless as the best theatre without any actors.

A baseball team made up of Frank Baker, Eddie Collins, Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker, Honus Wagner, Walter Johnston, Chief Meyers, Larry Lajoie, Christy Matthewson and Sherwood Magee couldn't earn enough to buy bats and uniforms unless it had good organized teams to play against. The public spends its money to see a contest, not a practice game.

Professional ball is not a necessity, and every day it appears to become a less coveted luxury. For players to strike for more gate receipts at this time is as foolish as for farmers to strike and quit work because of too much rain.

Here is a strong proof of the falling interest in professional baseball which we observe: The crowds in front of the score boards are not half the size as in former years.

Anyhow, the spectator who pays to see a game dislikes to hear player and club owner scrapping about the division of his dollar.

WHEAT

By Walt Mason

On breezy western prairie, on fertile northern plain, the wheat is reaped, and nary a farmer should complain. We have kind Nature's bounty, for which we long did yearn, and every blooming county has stacks of wheat to burn. There's wheat in car and waggon, there's wheat in barn and shed; and everyone is braggin',—if not, he should be dead. There's wheat in bins and barrels, there's wheat in stacks afield; is there a gent who quarrels with such a noble yield? The farmer's joyous slogans should perforate the air, for wheat is in his brogans, and wheat is in his hair; and wheat is all around him—each sackful means a scad; and yet, alas, confound him, the husbandman seems sad! "The weather isn't proper for castor beans," he wails, "and I shall be a pauper if autumn rhubarb fails! I lost my finest rooster a day or two ago; I cannot be a booster — misfortune dogs me so!" The Lord hands down a blessing, and when it comes to us, we make a face distressing, and shed some brine and cuss.

OBSTINACY

OBSTINACY isn't a bad quality if it's utilized in the proper way and I wouldn't think of chalkin' it up as a failin' 'gainst anybody arter what I've seen it do fer Hank Finn and his old dad. They was both powerful bad drinkers and Hank was leavin' home fer the Klondyke. He sez to his father, "Dad," says he "we'll have a drink at partin', and we won't either of us have another till we meet again. What ye say?" Old Man Finn was game. "You're on son," says he, and they parted. Hank was gone ten years and all that time old man Finn kept his word and was gettin' thirstier and thirstier. Then Hank came home and the fust thing him and his dad did was to have a drink. "Now then, son," sez the old man, "we've had our drink, s'pose we don't have another till you're leavin' home ag'in?" "You're on, dad," says Hank. Thet was eight years ago and neither of 'em have took a drink since, 'cause Hank has stuck right clost to home and is workin' tho farm.

FOR SALE

Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald is offering for sale some beautiful Building Lots on Benson and Geraldine Avenues.

This property lies within two minutes' walk of the Street Railway and within ten minutes' walk of the heart of the City. The City water, gas, light and sewer service are installed, the property already being completely surrounded by beautiful homes. The site is an ideal one, with a gentle southeasterly slope, and being considerably elevated above the city and not in the immediate vicinity of any manufacturing industries. The air is always pure, healthy and invigorating. Nearly all the lots are already beautifully wooded with foreign and domestic shade trees, and for anyone contemplating the erection of a home, there are certainly no lots in the city that offer equal advantages.

Copies of Registered Plan No. 149, which covers the property, may be seen and all other information may be had at the offices of Mr. R. J. Kidd, J. T. O'Connell & Co'y, C. J. Carroll & Co'y, also at the office of the owner, Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald, Ontario Land Surveyor, 425 George St. 'Phone 885.

The Green Umbrella

Its Pursuit Brought Him Good Luck.

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Chester Folsom stood in the doorway of his club watching the procession of dripping umbrellas passing up and down the sidewalk. The newest member of the Quill and Ink Pot club frowned disconsolately as he recollected that the editor of a popular magazine had demanded from him a story of amazing adventure at once.

"Put plenty of punch in it and have the love element strong—go to it!" the editor had said, and Folsom, who badly needed the forthcoming check, had been vainly racking his brains for an idea.

"It's like looking for a needle in a haystack seeking an adventure in New York on a rainy day," he grumbled, setting his broad shoulders against the doorway.

At that instant an idea came.

"I'll follow the first green umbrella that comes along and see what happens," he muttered, with a return of his natural enthusiasm. He straightened up and looked eagerly up and down the street, which was one of the principal uptown thoroughfares of the city.

"There it comes!"

Looming like a gigantic mushroom among a hundred smaller ones came a large green umbrella. Originally it might have been black, but now, worn by time and weather, it was a most unmistakable green. It was a cotton umbrella upheld by a little, dwarfed old woman whose limp skirts were held primly above a pair of small rubber boots.

"Here goes!" said Folsom as he raised his own umbrella and joined the procession.

Suddenly the green umbrella swayed uncertainly and then turned down Fourth avenue. Chester Folsom followed close behind.

The rain dripped heavily, and just when the little old woman paused to struggle while closing the umbrella a little gust of wind tore it out of her frail grasp and it went bounding skittishly along the pavement, upsetting the dignity and equilibrium of the passersby.

Chester Folsom closed his own neat umbrella, and with half a dozen nicely calculated leaps he succeeded in capturing the green monstrosity and, furling it, went back to its flustered little owner, who stood in the doorway of a bird shop.

"Thank you, sir," she said gently; "it was very heavy."

"If you would not consider it a liberty," said Chester eagerly, "I should like to exchange umbrellas with you. Mine is much lighter and"— He paused awkwardly, for a quizzical smile broke the primness of her lips.

"And much more valuable," she added. "In spite of taking advantage of your gallantry, young man, I will exchange umbrellas with you, and believe me, sir, you will find that you have a most interesting bargain."

"I am willing to take the risk," said Chester lightly as he gave his handsome silk umbrella to the trembling little hands of the old woman and received in exchange the big green cotton umbrella, which he now discovered to wear a small blue patch on one side.

Presently he noticed that in his progress down the avenue there continued behind him the same steady rhythmical beat of feet, one man walking heavily, one man stepping lightly, but swiftly.

Suddenly Chester whirled about and faced his pursuers, for such he believed them to be.

Two men, one a very giant for size and hulking strength, and the other a small, wiry, alert individual, with a dark, eager face, almost fell over him.

"Why are you following me? What do you want?" he demanded.

IT WENT BOUNDING ALONG THE PAVEMENT.

"It is nothing!" the little man was stammering when a girlish form darted from a taxicab at the curb and held Chester's arm in a tight grip.

"Where is she? What have you done with her?" she demanded indignantly.

"Now, miss, you've spoiled the nicest bit of detective work I ever saw," rumbled the big man in a disappointed tone. "You forget I told you that if we undertook this job we wouldn't stand for any interference."

"I know it!" half sobbed the girl, still clinging desperately to Chester's arm. "But when he is right here you can ask him, the big, big villain!" She unconsciously gave Chester's arm a vicious little shake as she spoke.

"Do you mean me?" he gasped.

"Of course I do! Where is she? What have you done with her?"

"I haven't the least idea what you are talking about," said Chester, with what dignity he could muster.

"You have Aunt Ophelia's umbrella! Here is her note. I found it fastened to her pincushion this morning when I went to carry in her chocolate. Can you deny that you are the man mentioned in that note?" Her little gloved finger traced some lines of crabbed handwriting before Chester's bewildered eyes.

"Dear Phyllis," it read, "the clock is striking the witching hour of midnight. The moon that shines on all true lovers is drawing a cloud over its friendly face, so that I may fly with my adored Alexander. When you read this I will be his wife. Sweet thought! Although he is many years my junior, he appreciates the rich maturity of my years, and I know we shall be very happy together. I will send for my trunks."

"Am I to understand that your aunt has eloped with a young man and you believe that I am—er—the Alexander mentioned in the note?" asked Chester, with amusement.

"Why not? You have her umbrella. It is the only thing that was missing. She is eccentric and always carried the green umbrella when it looked like rain. It rained last night. Where did you get that umbrella?" And the young lady fixed accusing eyes on Chester.

"I see no harm in telling you," he said gravely as he gave her one of his cards. "It is apparent that I exchanged umbrellas with your aunt. She seemed so tiny and the umbrella was so large and unmanageable that I was constrained to offer her my lighter one. She disappeared around the corner of Twenty-ninth street. [illegible] that that will not be of much help to you in [illegible]."

"Did your aunt have any friends or relatives in, or near Twenty-ninth street?" asked Chester of the lovely dark eyed girl.

"Of course! There is Miss Weldon, the nurse she was so fond of. Miss Weldon took care of Aunt Ophelia during her long illness. The poor dear has never been the same since. Of course I meant Aunt Ophelia," she explained in response to Chester's look of puzzlement. "Miss Weldon lived in Twenty-ninth street somewhere. Mr. Jones, you must have some suggestion to make." She turned impatiently to the large detective.

"I'll find out," he said gruffly and disappeared in an adjacent shop. Presently he returned with the required information, and the four, entering the waiting taxicab, were driven up to Twenty-ninth street and to the number Jones had discovered.

"I shall go up and see her myself," said Miss Spencer as they went up the steps. "Perhaps Mr. Folsom will go with me. She may recognize him as the owner of her new umbrella."

At the first landing Ophelia tapped lightly at a door, and a pleasant faced woman [illegible] sight of her.

"Oh, Miss Spencer! I'm so glad to see you!" she whispered cautiously. "I've tried to telephone to your house, but the servants said you were out looking for your aunt. She frightened me half to death. She came here in the middle of the night and said she was going to live with me. [illegible] out this morning, and I hoped she had gone home, but she came back an hour, and now she is resting quietly."

"Miss Weldon, this is Mr. Folsom," said Phyllis, "whom I have treated most rudely because I found him with Aunt Ophelia's umbrella."

"I will return it reluctantly," said Chester, "because it has been the means of—of—well, some day I may have the opportunity of explaining to you why I pursued the green umbrella," he ended, with eager embarrassment.

"Perhaps you could come and tell me about it some day, and you will want to inquire for Aunt Ophelia," said Phyllis demurely.

When Chester reached the street he was amazed to find that the address Miss Spencer had given him was on the most fashionable residence street in town, and when he made the promised call in polite inquiry for the health of Miss Ophelia Spencer he found that the green umbrella had actually led him to an adventure where romance was waiting for him in the fair person of Phyllis.

[illegible] demanded his editor when that young man submitted the long delayed story. "This yarn hasn't got an ounce of punch, but the love interest—well, you've found your forte, son! This is one of the best love stories I ever read. What's happened to you?"

"Oh—ah—well, you know," stammered Chester in helpless confusion before the editor's quizzical eyes.

"Congratulations!" laughed the other as Folsom suddenly turned and fled.

WORLD'S GREATEST KIDNEY REMEDY

"Fruit-a-tives" Have Proved Their Value In Thousands of Cases

WONDERFUL RECORD OF A WONDERFUL CURE

Only Remedy That Acts On All Three Of The Organs Responsible For The Formation Of Uric Acid In The Blood.

Many people do not realize that the Skin is one of the three great eliminators of waste matter from the body. As a matter of fact, the Skin rids the system of more Urea (or waste matter) than the Kidneys. When there is Kidney Trouble, Pain In The Back and Acrid Urine, it may not be the fault of the kidneys at all, but be due to faulty Skin Action, or Constipation of the bowels.

"Fruit-a-tives" cures weak, sore, aching Kidneys, not only because it strengthens these organs but also because "Fruit-a-tives" opens the bowels, sweetens the stomach and stimulates the action of the skin.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

FIGHTING GOES ON

LONDON, Aug. 1.—An Exchange Telegraph Co.'s despatch from Nish, Servia, via Salonika, says that up till Friday night the Austrian invaders at Semendria had not succeeded in forcing the pass held by the Servian troops, whose possession would give them access to the Morava river valley, and thus open up a direct road to Nish.

Another despatch from Nish to the Exchange Telegraph Co. says desperate fighting continues along the River Drina. Both Austrians and Servians have sustained heavy losses.

Bridge Blown Up.

BERLIN, Aug. 1. — Official confirmation of the reported blowing up by Russian troops of the railroad bridge between Granica, Russian Poland, and Szczakowa, in Galicia, on the railroad from Warsaw to Vienna, was received here last night.

Servians Driven Back.

VIENNA, Aug. 1.—Austrian frontier guards yesterday repelled a strong attack by Servians near Klotievatz, on the Bosnian frontier, without sustaining loss. The Servians lost one officer and 21 men.

Pursued Royal Yacht.

ATHENS, Greece, Aug. 1. — The Montenegrin royal yacht Daglara was almost captured yesterday by the Austrian fleet blockading Antavari. The yacht was approaching the port, but when she sighted the blockading fleet turned and fled. She was pursued by Austrian destroyers, but arrived safely at Corfu.

London Lineman Killed.

LONDON, Ont., July 29. — John Christy, 50, a lineman in the employ of the London Electric Co., was almost instantly killed on Dundas street yesterday morning when one of the company's poles, from which he was removing the wires, broke off at the bottom and the man was hurled 66 feet to the cement sidewalk below.

Romantic Prison Wedding.

After carrying on a love correspondence while serving sentences of one month at Knutsford, Cheshire, two ex-prisoners were married recently on their release at the parish church, which stands opposite the prison. While in jail the man proposed and was accepted. The prison chaplain made the necessary arrangements for the wedding, and himself officiated at the ceremony.

A Short Address.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, at the Hotel Cecil, London, the other night, at the annual dinner of the Institute of Lecturers, told many stories, but the best of all was one concerning Dean Hole. "On one occasion," Sir Arthur said, "the dean's chairman spoke for half an hour, and then announced 'The dean will now give his address.' "My address," replied the dean, 'is the Deanery, Rochester, and I am going there now'."

Edvina Among the Greatest.

Since her remarkable performance of the heroine's role in "L'Amore dei Tre Re," Montemezzi's masterpiece, in Paris a few weeks ago, Paris music critics are now hailing a Canadian woman as one of the greatest of dramatic singers.

Known to the operatic [illegible] as Mme. Good form

Calling on New Neighbors.

Usually the etiquette of calls is that those residing the longest in a town must pay the first call. This should be returned within a fortnight—just a short and formal call, with a calling card of a married woman and one of her husband left for each lady and an additional one of his for each man of the family. Quite often, however, in these informal days of the convenient telephone an evening is arranged for, where the first formal call may assume the less formal and pleasanter form of a purely social visit.

In small towns the calling is more extensive, and newcomers are welcomed more or less cordially very soon after arriving. The pastor of their church calls, and this is perhaps the best means of becoming acquainted, as a minister of the gospel requests his wife to call upon a new parishioner, and in this way the acquaintance of church members will soon be made.

After the more formal calling is done with a really friendly feeling started, and the "stranger within the gates" is made to feel entirely at home. Then by judicious small "afternoons" and teas a woman becomes a favored and sought after hostess, with her "affairs" always well attended and with her own preferences at her command. Yet it should be remembered that it is better to be on the best of terms with all neighbors, and by attention to one's own business—in the meaning that a woman is not inclined to gossip or make mischief—this desired end is attained.

Street Etiquette.

It is not considered good form for a man to take hold of a lady's arm in walking at any time except to assist her in alighting from a vehicle or over a crossing or in some place where assistance is absolutely necessary.

In walking on the street during the day a man should walk beside the lady, preferably on the right hand, which will prevent her being jostled in meeting those going in the opposite direction, but always on the outside of the walk. He does not take her arm nor does she take his, unless, as said, for the purpose of assisting her in some way.

In the evening a lady may take the arm of the man she is walking with that he may be a support and that they may the better keep step, but he should not take hers. The exceptions are where a woman is feeble or aged, when any support and assistance that can be rendered should be done in the easiest and most inconspicuous fashion.

A Rose Luncheon.

A charming decoration for a luncheon is a big central basket or birch bark filled with white garden roses. The leaves may fall over the edge of the basket on to the cloth to form a border.

At the four corners have tall glass or silver vases filled with pink and white roses and drooping border of leaves. The cakes and bonbons may be white and pink.

Serve the dessert in tall sherbet glasses with the stems twined with vines and a border of flowers around the edge of the plate. One plate can have a wreath of the white roses and another of the pink and thus alternate around the table.

Serve the ices in the heart of rose cups twined with vines, and on one side of the plate have a spray of roses, alternating a white flower with one of pink.

Bread and Butter Notes.

Letters must always be sent in acknowledgment of overnight hospitality. Of course calls take the place of letters in most forms of entertainment. But a week end visit or an overnight stay with a friend calls for a note.

FARMER'S WIFE TOO ILL TO WORK

A Weak, Nervous Sufferer Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Kasota, Minn. — "I am glad to say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me than anything else, and I had the best physician here. I was so weak and nervous that I could not do my work and suffered with pains low down in my right side for a year or more. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now I feel like a different person. I believe there is nothing like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weak women and young girls, and I would be glad if I could influence anyone to try the medicine, for I know it will do all and much more than it is claimed to do." — Mrs. CLARA FRANKS, R. F. D. No. 1, Maplecrest Farm, Kasota, Minn.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should be convinced of the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health by the many genuine and truthful testimonials we are constantly publishing in the newspapers.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

THE TRIPLE ALLIANCE WAS PROMOTED BY BISMARCK

Unless the efforts being made in favor of peace succeed, the Austro-Servian war may develop into the greatest military and naval struggle in the world's history, and may result in a radical reconstruction of the map of Europe. Such a conflict may eliminate one or more of the great powers as formidable factors in the comity of nations and cause a completely new formation of defensive and offensive combinations.

In this part of the world, people find it hard to correctly estimate the racial and national ambitions which are seething in Europe, and which possibly cannot be gratified without deluging the continent with blood.

Necessity makes strange bed-fellows. Britain, a democratic country, as a member of the Triple Entente, is linked up with France, a socialistic country, and with Russia, the most despotic of nations. On the other hand, the Triple Alliance is made up of Austro-Hungary, an ultra-montane country, which has the right to veto the Roman cardinals' selection of a pope, and actually did veto the selection of Cardinal Rampolla, when the last pontiff was chosen; Germany, which gave birth to Luther, but which is looking to the Roman Church to bolster up the monarchy as against socialism, and Italy, a strongly anti-clerical nation. From the religious standpoint, these alliances are little, if any more natural than from the national or political, for Britain is Protestant, France is atheistic and anti-clerical, and Russia is Greek Orthodox, but all three may be considered opposed to ultramontanism.

Bismarck Arranged It.

The Triple Alliance has been regarded as the masterpiece of Bismarck, the Man of Iron. It was negotiated in 1879 at which time Bismarck said: "It is not in our interest that Austro-Hungary should cease to be a great power, for then we would be placed between Russia and France." The other party to the alliance is Italy, which was not considered very loyal to its allies at the time of the Moroccan crisis, nor during the pour parlers leading to the conclusion of peace between the Balkan States after the last war. Italy was not alone at the time of the Moroccan trouble, for Germany considered that Austro-Hungary did not back her up as she should have done. Indeed, the allies have had several tiffs of their own, and there is a strong possibility that Italy will repudiate the alliance within a few weeks if the present conflict becomes general.

Italy May Quit.

Italy has good reason to question whether she would be wise to support Austro-Hungary. There is considerable bitterness between the two countries and commercial rivalry is intense. Italy has a longing eye on Albania herself, and she is just as anxious to keep Austria out of Albania as she was to prevent a Greater Servia acquiring a long coastline on the Adriatic. She was not very well pleased when a German prince was chosen king of the independent nation of Albania, and now that it is apparent Prince Wied, the man the concert of Europe allowed to take the throne, is not strong enough to hold it, and Austria threatens to go a long way toward extending her territory down to the Aegean Sea at Salonica, and also towards acquiring a position where she could dominate Albania. Italy is naturally nervous. It is really a matter for wonder that she was persuaded to renew the Triple Alliance in December, 1912, for a term of seven years, particularly as the Austrian war office has just fallen into the control of two generals who were renowned Italo-phobes, one of them being General Krobatkin, who was made war minister. This officer had the reputation of being a jingo.

Russia Secured Plans.

A fact worth recalling at this juncture is that in May fo last year both Austro-Hungary and Germany were dumbfounded to learn that plans and documents and other information of the most valuable character had been stolen and sold to Russia, the arch-enemy of both. The consternation was increased when it was learned the culprit was Colonel Redl, chief of staff of the Prague army corps, and that he had been supplied with a revolver and invited to suicide, which he obligingly did. It was admitted at the time that this was the "gravest military scandal in sixty years." The incident is an illuminating commentary on the rivalry existing between the European powers, and the unscrupulous means that are adopted to further national ends.

Terms of Alliance

The exact conditions of the Triple Alliance have never been published. It is supposed that they provide that should France attack Germany or Italy, these two powers should combine against her, and that should Russia attack Germany or Austro-Hungary, these two powers should combine against Russia, while should Russia and France together attack any member of the Alliance, all three members thereof should make common cause. It is not known whether these conditions were modified in Italy's favor in 1912, but it is not unlikely.

Generally speaking, it must be admitted that the Triple Alliance tended to assure peace. But, unchecked by any other combination, it might readily have developed into an arrogant power, and consequently the Triple Entente was formed between Britain, Russia and France. Sir Edward Grey is authority for the statement that it does not require Britain to participate in any conflict for which she has no heart—that is, she is not honorably bound to assist either France or Russia in a struggle in which she has nothing at stake—but there have not been lacking signs that in certain contingencies the other members of the Entente would expect Britain's active co-operation.

What Will Britain Do?

Should Russia adhere to her present determination to prevent the extermination of Servia, and Austro-Hungary continue aggressive movements against that country, it is inevitable that Germany should support her ally. In that case, as France is further bound by the terms of a dual alliance between her and Russia to assist that nation, it is certain that the republic would be brought into the conflict Then, and not till then, the question will arise. "WHAT WILL BRITAIN DO?"

Could Britain allow the French fleet to be annihilated, and France reduced to a fifth rate power; the military strength of Russia broken, and the development of that rude country retarded for generations, while a Pan-Germanic combination that, in the course of a decade may become a unit, secured absolute domination of the military situation in Europe, acquired naval supremacy in the Mediterranean, and prepared to challenge Britain's title as Mistress of the sea? Would such developments immediately imperil Egypt, the Suez Canal, and India, and ensure, sooner or later, the downfall of the British Empire?

DON'T GROW BALD

If your hair is getting thin, losing color, or has that matted, lifeless and scraggy appearance, the reason is evident—dandruff and failure to keep the hair roots properly nourished. These are the main causes of baldness or dry, brittle and unsightly hair.

Parisian Sage applied daily for a week and then occasionally, is all that is needed. It is a scientific preparation that supplies hair needs. It gets to the hair roots, nourishes them, and furnishes the elements necessary to make it grow. It removes dandruff with one application; almost immediately stops falling hair and itching head; cleanses, cools and invigorates the scalp. Equally good for men, women or children—everyone needs it.

This delightful and refreshing hair tonic can be had at any drug or toilet counter in 50 cent bottles only. The Warne Drug Co. always sells Parisian Sage with agreement to refund the money if you are not satisfied.

Get a bottle at once—use it every day for a week and you will be surprised with the result. Delighted users say Parisian Sage is the best and most invigorating hair tonic made.

Kaiser Beggared by Red Cross Collectors

He was obliged to confess it in the most public manner to a bevy of pretty girls, who besieged him when he landed from the Hohenzollern with importunities to buy trinkets which they were selling in the streets for the benefit of the Red Cross Society.

His Majesty laughed heartily when they asked him to buy, and astonished the girls by exclaiming: "Yes; but I havent any money on me!" The girls were very embarrassed, but were promptly put at their ease when the emperor called up members of his suite and invited the girls to tackle them. Then the Kaiser induced an adjutant to "advance" him some gold, which he distributed among the blushing saleswomen.

His final purchase was a ten-shilling carnation, which he asked the overjoyedl seller to pin on the lapel of his admiral's uniform.

The Kaiser explained that he reached Hamburg impoverished because a trio of "irresistible highwaywomen" selling Red Cross post-cards had stopped his motor car earlier in the day.

Exhibiting a handful of cards, bought at ten shillings each, the emperor told the burgomaster in a stage whisper that they included "several rather naughty pictures of naked little boys."

PALE AND SICKLY BOYS AND GIRLS

Need All the Strength That Good Red Blood Can Give

Youth is the time to lay the foundation for health. Every boy and girl should have plenty of pure, red blood and strong nerves. With thin, impure blood they start life with a handicap too great to win success and happiness. Pure, red blood means healthful growth, strong nerves, a clear brain and a good digestion. In a word, pure blood is the foundation of health.

The signs of thin, impure blood are many and unmistakable. The pale, irritable boy or girl, who has no appetite or ambition, is always tired out, melancholy, short of breath, and who does not grow strong, is the victim of anaemia, or bloodlessness—the greatest enemy of youth.

There is just one thing to do for these boys and girls—build up the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. You can't afford to experiment with other remedies for there must be no guesswork in the treatment of anaemia. Through neglect or wrong treatment anaemia gradually develops into the pernicious form which is practically incurable. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills work directly on the blood, giving it just the elements which it lacks. In this way these Pills build up every organ and nerve in the body, thus developing strong, rugged boys and girls. Miss Anna Loseke, Grand Forks, B.C., says: "I think that before taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I was one of the most miserable girls alive. I was hardly free from awful headaches, was as pale as a ghost, and could not go upstairs without stopping to rest. Now since taking the Pills the headaches have gone, my appetite is good and I am equal to almost any exertion, and you may be sure I will always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing direct to The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Wild Cat With Car of Bananas

(Kingston Standard.)

An unheralded visitor to the city on Saturday night was a small wild cat that had concealed itself in a car of bananas consigned to Mr. M. Amodeo, Princess street. Mr. Amodeo had gone down to the G. T. R. freight yards about seven-thirty on the evening above mentioned with the intention of bringing some of the consignment to his place of business.

On opening the door of the car he was astonished to see a pair of shining eyes staring into his visage. Being somewhat taken back he hastily closed the door and called out for a man who was in the vicinity for assistance. He came to the merchant's aid and with all caution they opened the door. Mr. Amodeo went in with a lantern while his companion stood in the doorway. The former had gone but a short distance into the car when the object of their search leaped at the breast of the man in the door.

With an exclamation of fright the man withdrew from the car, closely followed by his companion. Mr. Amodeo returned to his shop and armed himself with a number of articles to capture the animal. On his return it could not be found, and he is of the opinion that the car was opened in his absence and the animal got away. He is positive that it was a wild cat, as he had a like experience in the old land.

The bananas he received were from the north of Jamaica, which is somewhat a wilder territory than the south. It would be an easy matter for the cat to get into the car.

Wouldn't Be Ignored.

Elsie is a self-willed child. One evening while her brother was studying his lessons, she asked him something. Getting no reply, she repeated her question, and again repeated it with increasing petulance. Her mother said rebukingly: "Don't annoy your brother, Elsie. Can't you see that he's busy?"

"I know," replied the child; "but he might at least have said: 'Shut up!'"

SAYS GERMANY NEED NOT FIGHT

Military Correspondent Explains Mobilization Motives

LONDON, August 1. — "By the strict lette of her engagements," says Col. Charles a'Court Repington, military expert of the London Times, "Germany is not bound to move unless Austria is actually attacked, and mobilization does not necessarily mean war.

"Germany may do one of three things. She may order a general mobilization or a partial mobilization confined to the eastern frontier, or may sit still and await events. If an eventual Russian attack on Galicia is repulsed there would be no necessity for Germany to move, but any other excuse for German inaction would be hard to find. Partial mobilization on her eastern frontier only might conceivably — though the chances are not numerous—keep France and England out of the fray.

"When the dice are rattling in the box for the great gamble of war Germany usually stakes the maximum. If war cannot be prevented Germany is more likely to engage in it with her whole armed strength and with the intention of seeking drastic remedies than to fritter away her forces upon a limited war.

Servia Can Resist.

"Military exigencies now override political considerations. Military exigencies in the first place compel Austria to seek a rapid decision in the south in order to shake her forces free for a much more dangerous campaign in the north. This may not be easy. Servia is a difficult country, with poor communications.

"In the district into which the Servians have retired there are magnificent positions, while any revolt which may take place in Bosnia. Herzegovina and Dalmatia, fostered as it would be by Servian and Montenegrin partisans, might impede or possibly prevent the march of the army to the east. We cannot yet be sure that an Austrian army in Servia will be utilizable elsewhere before Russia can act.

Russia Must Hurry.

"Military exigencies, again, compel Russia to act as quickly as she can in order to reap the benefit of Austria division of force. In normal circumstances, we should not wager much upon the readiness of Russia to attack Galicia in less than a month, but partial mobilization and partial concentration may abbreviate the term, and in any case masses of Russian horsemen and numerous Austro-Hungarian cavalry will come early to grips and fill the world with their doings.

"In this terrible automatic war one thing leads to another. As with a line of tin soldiers, if one is knocked over the rest fall down in turn, so may the powers, one by one, dreading and detesting war as they do, be dragged into it. We shall all support our friends because we must, and a very short time after Russian mobilization is announced it will be a miracle if all Europe is not aflame."

ESTABLISH FOX FARMS ON G.T.R. MAIN LINE

Fur farming promises to be one of the most successful of the industries springing up along the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. At several points west of Graham fur ranches have been established, Mackintosh, Sunstrum and Hudson being among the points chosen. A Prince Edward Island Company is also making arrangements to establish itself in the territory. Black foxes are the main stay of these fur farms but Silver, Red and Crossed foxets are being bred with other fur bearing animals.

Almost Human Intelligence of Some Plants

It is a well-known fact that tendrils and roots of plants have a mysterious power of "feeling" objects at a distance. That is to say, they act as if they were aware of the presence of a certain thing, even though they may not be in contact at all.

But sometimes plants find themselves in very awkward situations. Such was the fate of a hazel bush, the seed of which had been placed in the upper part of an old willow tree. Now there was a certain amount of soil, formed of decayed leaves, where the seed of the hazel tree started, and for a time this was sufficient for the needs of the bush. But as the plant increased in size, the need for more root room became imperative. Yet the hazel tree was a full twelve feet above the ground.

Now a strange thing happened, for the hazel bush started to send out roots to the soil beneath. These traveled downward through the hollow trunk of the willow, and finally reached the ground. When this occurred the hazel bush at the top of the tree started to flourish with renewed vigor, and threatens to become more prosperous than its host.

Another strange case of a plant growing down to soil many feet beneath comes from South Africa.

This was a species of the trailing cactus, which was rambling over the roof of the shed. The roof was formed of galvanized iron and at one point rust had eaten its way right through. As soon as the stem of the cactus reached this point it at once started to send down an immense quantity of roots through the hole to the ground beneath, a distance of nine feet.

We may take it that the plant was not satisfied with its existing accommodation, and the soil in the shed (which happened to be nice soft mold offered a tempting medium for fresh root activity.

"Feeling" for Water.

Some plants of the tropical creeper known as monstera were established in a greenhouse.

These plants are very fond of rambling about the roofs of the structure in which they are growing, and will often send down roots to the ground. In this particular case the plants made no attempt to develop their aerial roots until they were directly over a large water tank. Then the roots were produced in abundance, and these traveled down through the atmosphere, and finally reached their goal many feet beneath.

In another case a little fern sought out some water with an intelligence that seemed to be almost uncanny. The plant was growing in a pot, which was kept standing in a saucer; the latter was always well filled with water.

Now one may suppose that the fern did hot have a sufficient supply of water to meet its needs in the ordinary way, and it determined to get into touch with that in which the pot was standing. Accordingly, the plant sent down a special root, on the outside of the pot, to the water in the saucer.

Dr. Carpenter, the celebrated botanist, once gave a striking case of root intelligence.

"In a little hollow on the top of the shell of an old oak (the outer layers of which, however, and the branches are still vegetating) the seed of a plant had in some way been accidentally sown. It grew there for some time, supported, as it would appear, in the mould formed by the decay of the trunk on which it had sprouted; but this being insufficient, it had sent down a large bundle of roots to the ground, within the shell of the oak.

"These roots have now increased so much in size that as they do not sub-divide until they nearly reach the ground they look like so many small trunks. In the soil, however, toward which they directed themselves there was a large stone, about a foot square, and had their direction remained unchanged they would have grown down upon this.

"But about half a yard above the ground they divide, part going to one side and part to the other; and one of them branches into a fork, of which one leg accompanies one bundle, and one the other, so that, on reaching the ground, they enclose the stone between them, and penetrate on the two sides of it."

Plant Catches Flies.

It is now pretty generally known that some plants catch flies. The leaves of the sundew are covered with tentacles, which, being very sensitive, close in round the captive. But the foliage of the sundew has another remarkable characteristic. If a fly is fixed about half an inch from any of the leaves a most astonishing thing happens.

After a short interval it is seen that the sundew leaf has moved perceptibly towards its victim. Soon the cruel tentacles have actually reached the unhappy fly, and are seen to be slowly moving round their prey. There is now no chance of escape, and with every moment the fate of the insect becomes more certain. A few feeble wiggles and the fly is dead.

When one comes to think of it, it is very strange that a plant should be able to go in pursuit of its prey in the manner indicated, but many interesting things may be learned from even the ordinary plants in a cottage garden.

Nearly 11,000,000 cattle can be grazed in the national forest reserves of the United States.

G.T.R. Improvements For This City

Mr. A. McNabb, local G. T. R. agent, in conversation with a Review reporter yesterday, stated that it has been practically decided that the much-needed improvements will be put through next summer. The forerunner of heavier steel, balasting, has already been completed in this city, and Roadmaster P. Yerrow, who now resides here, expects to place the heavier rails early next spring.

The local agent remarked that if the appropriation of $85,000, which Superintendent Coyle is endeavoring to have set aside for this work, had been obtained this year, the work would be well under way now. When the work is begun, a general renovation of the G. T. R. property is contemplated. One item which will meet with the approval of many citizens will be the removal of the engine house.

Take "Safety First" on Your Holiday

"Take 'Safety First' out on your holiday with you, and come back without regrets." This is the message of the Ontario Safety League. It asks all persons to exercise care throughout the holiday, whether on land or water, and states that if the simplest precautions are put into effect there will be considerably fewer accidents. The Safety League asks the co-operation of the general public in making the holidays a record so far as lack of accidents are concerned.

Do not attempt to board a moving train. That is not "Safety First." It is better to lose the train than lose a limb.

Do not attempt to board or alight from moving street cars. That is not "Safety First." It is far better to wait a minute or two than run the risk of an accident.

Do not attempt to change seats while in a canoe on the water. That is not "Safety First." Wait until you reach land, and then change seats if you wish.

SOME CLAIMS ARE SETTLED

No Action Taken in Claim of E. J. Hickey

At the Legal Committee meeting, last evening, City Solicitor G. N. Gordon reported that he was of the opinion that the city was not responsible for the accident of E. J. Hickey. No action was taken. He reported that he had settled the claim of Mrs. Jane Walsh for $40. This action was approved by the Committee.

In connection with the claim of the Peterborough Hardware Company for damages due to their cellar being flooded by water Mr. Gordon was instructed to settle the claim

It was also decided that Mr. Gordon be given authority to purchase office supplies for his work used in the city's interests.

OBITUARY

ELLEN CUNNINGHAM.

The death occurred yesterday morning at Cunningham Corners, South Ops, of Ellen Cunningham, daughter of the late Patrick Cunningham in her sixty-third year.

The deceased, who has been an invalid for thirty-eight years, was born on the homestead and is survived by three brothers. Arthur, of Lindsay, James, of Alberta, and Patrick, of Essex, and four sisters, Mrs. T. B. McGrath, Peterboro, Mrs. Raymo, Detroit, Anna and Cecelia, of South Ops.

The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence to St. Mary's Church and thence to the Roman Catholic Cemetery, Lindsay.

HARVEST HELP EXCURSIONS

$12.00 to Winnipeg August 11 and 18th

The Grand Trunk Railway System will run Harvest Help excursions via Chicago and Duluth on August 11 and 18, from all stations in Ontario, Kingston, Renfrew and west at low rate of $12.00 to Winnipeg, plus half cent. per mile from Winnipeg to destination. First excursion on August 11 applies to all points in Manitoba. Second excursion on August 18 to certain points in Saskatchewan and Alberta and all points in Manitoba. Returning, half cent per mile to Winnipeg, plus $18.00 from Winnipeg to destination in Eastern Canada.

The route via Chicago is an attractive one, many large cities and towns being passed en route, which breaks the monotony of the journey. The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is the shortest and quickest route between Winnipeg, Saskatoon and Edmonton and traverses some of the best farming country in Manitoba and the most rapidly developing section of Western Canada.

PAPER BY F. M. DELA FOSSE READ AT PUBLIC LIBRARY CONVENTION

The following paper by Mr. F. M. DelaFosse was read at the Library Institute meeting at Beaverton on Thursday, July 30th:

One of the pleasantest and most important features of library work is that of collecting information for the benefit of reading and debating clubs.

It is impossible, in the course of a short paper such as this, to enter fully into the subject, but enough can be written to show to how great an extent a librarian can assist in the mental and literary development of the community through such an agency.

But in order to be of the best possible assistance to the public, it is necessary that the librarian should be possessed of three attributes:—first, a fair knowledge of the rudiments of art, science and literature; secondly, intuition in research work, without which what knowledge he possesses will be of little account, and, lastly, a genuine desire to be of service to those who come to him in quest of information.

If the community in which his library caters is a large one, his duties will bring him into touch with several clubs. He will be continually called upon for assistance for church reading clubs, church debating clubs, reading clubs unconnected with any church, and public school, collegiate institute and normal school reading and debating clubs.

Without further preamble, I will state what measures are taken in our own library with regard to such clubs, trusting that what I have to say may be the means of bringing out further suggestions for usefulness in our common work.

Our juveniles claim the largest share of our attention, for they come to us almost daily during the school season for material for oral compositions and debates. The same method is pursued with them as with the students from the Normal School and Collegiate Institute. If anyone asks for advice as to the general make-up of an essay or a speech, he or she is given it, and sources of information are pointed out, to aid the cause in hand. Nothing is handed over merely for the asking, but questions are gone into thoroughly, and children are shown on what basis an essay or a speech should be fashioned. No favouritism is shown, and it often happens that arguments pro and con on the same question are talked over with opposing debaters on the same day. It may be argued, of course, that this is not exactly a librarian's work, but I think that anything in the literary line is a librarian's work, and if, by helping young people to take an interest in such things, we can aid likewise in furnishing them with a higher degree of literary style or forensic force and finish, we are most certainly doing our share in the educational work of the country.

The system of scrap-books that we started some two years ago has proved of the highest service in dealing with the children. They are continually referring to them for material for their oral compositions and debates, and as every item is catalogued, it is easy work for them to discover what they may be in search of.

We long ago discovered that the easiest way of overcoming the diffidence and bashfulness of the children was to go straight to them and ask in what manner we could be of use to them. By this means we established a friendly footing, and today I think there is hardly a child frequenting the library who will not promptly and gladly accept our assistance. It is a very simple method of bridging the chasm between adolescence and youth and which separate librarians from the most interesting and valuable portion of their clientele.

With regard to our adult reading clubs, there is not much to be said. We endeavor, as far as possible, to meet their every wish, going so far even as to occasionally purchase volumes for their special edification. In doing this the Board feels that the cost of a few books, which may or may not be of general interest to the public, is as nothing compared with the good-will and lively interest of so influential a section of our library patrons.

No pains are spared in getting up bibliographies for such clubs as need them. Announcements are also made in the press at stated intervals showing in what particulars the library is prepared to further the interests of readers.

So far I have dealt with the purely literary aspect of the question, but there are other clubs which were not mentioned in the preamble to this paper, to which the library also caters and by whom its aid is constantly invoked. These are the Temperance, Women's Art, and Medical Associations, and the local branch of the National Council of Women. For these societies we do as much as in us lies. We have furnished them with rooms for their special work and the resources of the library are placed absolutely at their disposal. The only charge made against them by the Board is for the bare cost of lighting and cleaning. The result of this action has been that the library has been for three years one of the chief factors in the city's social and moral activities.

LINTONIA SUFFERS BROKEN RUDDER

Tug Bob Hall Went to the Rescue

The steamer Lintonia met with a mishap last night on her trip to Sturgeon Point. When near the fourth light house the rudder bumped into some encumbrance and was broken off. This left the boat helpless, but a Lindsay young man happened to have a canoe on board, and they paddled back to Lindsay, and secured the assistance of the Bob Hall. In the meantime several launch owners came to the assistance of the passengers, and with their craft conveyed them to Sturgeon Point. The Bob Hall towed the Lintonia to Kennedy's wharf.

When the Lintonia met with its mishap, excitement prevailed among the passengers, a number becoming unnecessarily alarmed. The action of Mr. Wilson, receiving teller of the Bank of Montreal, in taking his canoe and in company with the mate, paddling to Lindsay for the Bob Hall, was greatly appreciated by Capt. Gray and those on board.

The Lintonia was taken by the Bob Hall to Fenelon Falls, where a new rudder was installed. She will be on her regular trip to-night, it is expected.—Lindsay Post.

LOCAL MARKET

Apples put in their first appearance on the local market this morning and sold for 25 cents per peck. New potatoes are down to 40 cents and it is expected that they will drop a few more cents before many days. From a general standpoint, the crops of apples and potatoes are both very good.

Berries still remain very prominent but are sold mostly by the pail, for which the price depends on the size.

CHICAGO, July 31.—With export trade in wheat as completely stopped for the time being as if the United States was the enemy of all Europe, values on the exchange today inevitably declined. Prices, altho steady at the close, were 5¾c to 6¼c down as compared with last night. Other net losses were: Corn, 3½c to 4c; oats, 1c to 1¼c to 1⅞c, and provisions generally 20c to 67½c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, July 31.—The war news of today had a double effect on wheat prices at Winnipeg. On the curb October wheat sold at $1.06 and good sales at that. October official opening had a wide gap, being all the way from 98½c to $1.04 sold. December opened 97½c to $1.02 sold.

A change took place within the first forty minutes, however, on the assumption that shipments will be stopped from this continent and trade routes unsafe, which will cause a piling up of grain stocks at terminal points and probably for a time be unsaleable.

At 10 o'clock October was down to 95c and December month followed in sympathy. Prices at noon stood at 94½c for October and 93 1-8c for December, showing a decline of 9½c on the former and 8 7-8c on the latter.

Oats were comparatively steady, while flax continued its downward course, being at noon 2½c to 5c lower than yesterday's close. Closing prices for wheat were 3 5-8c to 4c lower.

The cash trade is good for Nos. 1, 2 and 3 Northern wheat, but little or nothing doing. Cash grains closed: Wheat, 3 5-8c to 4 1-8c lower; oats, 2c lower to unchanged; flax, 5¼c to 5 5-8c lower and barley unchanged.

Inspections totaled 178 cars, as against 184 last year, and in sight 110 cars. Cash wheat, No. 1 northern, 98½c; No. 2 northern, 94c; oats, No. 2 c.w., 38c; No. 1, f.o.d., 37c; barley, No. 3, 54c; No. 4, 51c; rejected, 48c; flax, No. 1, n.w.c., $1.49 3-4; No. 2, c.w., $1.46 3-8c; No. 3, c.w., $1.34 3-4.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, July 31.—Business in Manitoba spring wheat over the cable today was very quiet, there being no firm bids in the market, but there was a good enquiry from the continent for oats at a sharp advance in prices, which exporters would not accept on account of the war situation.

The undertone to the local market for oats continues strong, and prices have scored a further advance of 1c per bushel, with a good business doing in carlots, but dealers state that if a buyer wanted a round lot he would have to pay more money for it.

Manitoba barley is very firm with sales of car lots on spot at 63c to 64c for No. 3, and 1c less for No. 4. The export trade in flour was quiet on account of the fact that millers are not accepting any further orders or making any offers for the time being.

The tone of the local market is strong, but prices as yet show no actual change. The demand is good for car lots for prompt delivery. Mill feed is active and firm. The butter market is stronger and prices at the auction sale advanced 1-8c to 1-4c per pound, with sales of finest creamery at 24 3-4c. There was considerable enquiry from English buyers today, but up to a late hour no business had resulted.

A much stronger feeling has developed in the cheese situation, and prices at the country boards all scored sharp advances today, which was attributed to the active demand from English buyers for supplies at an advance of 1s per cwt. over their bids made yesterday, and a large volume of business was done. Eggs are firm and fairly active.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN MARKET.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 31.—Close: Wheat—July, 91½c; Sept., 90¼c; No. 1 hard, 97¾c; No. 1 northern, 93¼c to 96¼c; No. 2 northern, 91¼c to 94½c.

Corn—No. 3 yellow, 72c to 73½c.

Oats—No. 3 white, 35c to 35½c.

Flour—Fancy patents, $5.10; first clears, $4.15; second clears, $2.90.

DULUTH GRAIN MARKET.

DULUTH, July 30.—Close: Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.00⅛; No. 1 northern, 99⅛c; No. 2 northern, 97⅛c to 97⅝c; July, $1.00⅛; Sept., 92⅛c.

HARVEST IS EARLY.

Southern Alberta Grain Cutting Is Now Under Way.

CALGARY, Alta., Aug. 1.—One of the earliest harvests in the history of the west is now under way in southern Alberta. From Pincher Creek, Cardston, Nanton, Claresholm, Vulcan and Gleichen come reports to say that cutting has commenced, and that by the middle of next week the whole of southern Alberta will be in the hands of the harvesters.

Barley has been the principal grain to be harvested this week. Much wheat and oats will be in stock by this time next week. The crop has ripened very rapidly during the past ten days as the result of continued warm weather, and in consequence of such progress the tendency has been towards a lighter yield. In certain of the southern districts there has been no rain for nine weeks. Northeast of here, towards Stettler, the crop has matured very quickly, and considerable barley has been cut.

Married on Steamer.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Aug. 1.—George H. Wagner and Miss Eileen Williams, both of Waterdown, were married on the steamer St. Lawrence during a searchlight ramble among the islands at the annual outing of the Brotherhood of the Congregational Church of Waterdown. Rev. J. H. Larsen officiated. This is said to be the first marriage to have occurred on any steamer among the islands.

Lightning Strikes Barn.

BROCKVILLE, Aug. 1.—During a thunderstorm lightning struck a large barn on the farm of Robert McCannon of Glen Small, in the Township of Edwardsburg. Fire immediately started and the building, with a portion of the season's crop, together with two head of cattle and farming implements, were destroyed. The barn was one of the finest in the section.

GREAT BRITAIN CALM

Mind of the Nation Is Reconciled to Prospect of War.

Demonstrations, Flag-Waving and Music Hall Patriotism Absent From London, But Grim Determination Is Evident to See the Fight Through to the Bitter End —Hour Has Come For Struggle.

LONDON, Aug. 1. — Facing the most perilous epoch in their history since they shivered before the spectre of a Napoleonic invasion, the English people are the calmest nation of Europe. Yesterday they felt that the decision whether Great Britain was to be drawn into a general European war was hanging in the balance. Today they believe it is a probability rather than a possibility.

There is no mistaking the fact that, with the exception of a minority of peace advocates, whose voice is hardly heard and seems to carry little weight, the nation's mind is reconciled to war.

There have been no "demonstrations," no flag-waving, no music hall patriotism, but there is apparent among all classes a sober and grim determination, if the Government declares that the nation's interests and obligations require her to take up arms side by side with Russia and France, to see the business through to the bitter end.

The belief of the average man is that the existence of the whole of Europe as an armed camp, nervous and jealous, could have but one culmination, and if the hour for a general settlement has struck there will be no flinching.

The change that has swept over the temper of the country within a week is marvelous. A week ago the people were wrapped up in prize fights, the Goodwood races, the Cowes regatta and vacations on the continent.

To-day they are asking only, can the British fleet play its part in protecting the island from isolation, which means, in the first instance, can it destroy the German Emperor's navy? They are concerned also as to whether the food supplies can be maintained, and to what extent private fortunes will be impaired by the financial upheaval of the war.

The military situation stands where it did last night. The mobilization of the naval forces has been completed, and the army is on a war footing, except for the calling out of the Territorials. The machinery for their mobilization requires only a word to be set in motion.

The request of the War Office that the English newspapers refrain from publishing army and navy movements has met with a patriotic response. The London evening papers publish news concerning almost all the armies of Europe, except that of Great Britain and regarding the whereabouts of the British fleet and the preparations of the British army they say nothing. There is a popular belief that the fleet is in the neighborhood of Flushing, in the North Sea, but the truth is known only to the members of the Government.

Dover and Sheerness are virutally on a war basis and protective booms are ready to be drawn around at a moment's notice. These and other harbors have been mined. The Calais and Ostend steamers are likely to be transferred to Folkestone from Dover.

The momentous announcement was made by Premier Asquith in the House of Commons yesterday that Russia had proclaimed the general mobilization of her army and fleet, and in consequence martial law had been proclaimed in Germany and a general mobilization in Germany would follow.

Premier Asquith's statement was as follows:

"We have just heard, not from St. Petersburg, but from Germany, that Russia has proclaimed the general mobilization of her army and her fleet, and that, in consequence of this, martial law is to be proclaimed in Germany.

"We understand this to mean that mobilization will follow in Germany if the Russian mobilization is general and is proceeded with.

"In these circumstances I prefer not to answer any further questions till Monday."

Active Preparations at Hong Kong.

HONG KONG, China, Aug. 1.—Most active preparations are going on here in view of eventualities. The Canadian Pacific steamer Empress of Asia has been chartered by the Government and guns are being mounted on board.

At the dockyards work is proceeding night and day and double guards have been put on duty.

All the troops are confined to barracks and leave has been stopped.

The British battleship Triumph yesterday took on her war stores and is prepared for action.

All the boundaries of the city are being protected.

Final Efforts In Progress.

PARIS, Aug. 1.—France and Great Britain are making a final effort to find a way out compatible with the dignity and interests of both Russia and Austria. This is why Premier Asquith postponed making a further declaration in the British Parliament yesterday.

New Cobourg Industry.

COBOURG, Aug. 1.—Mr. George Thompson, of the Thompson-Macdonald Company, is promoting a new industry here for the manufacture of drain tile. The project is to form a syndicate to purchase a tile drain machine. It is claimed this will be of much benefit to farmers in the district and to manufacture the tile in Cobourg.

THE SPORTING WORLD

HAMS SURPRISED CROWD; CINCHED GAME IN NINTH

Made It Hot For K. Belting and Scored Three Runs on Good Work.

The wild and wooly gang from the Mountain side party recovered themselves, much to the consternation of the fish day gathering at the manoeuvres yesterday afternoon, the net result being a victory to the tune of 5 to 1. They say it's always calm before a storm and also that you never can tell how old mary is by the size of her slippers.

Ball players are funny creatures. If such were not the case, the populace would cease to "bury" grandmothers or forget about the dinner bell, because the old ball game would be as tame as button, button, who's got the thimble?

And Johnny White's erstwhile cellar "champeens," are some riddle. Doc Yates, the former commander, must be enjoying his sleep these days. In the face of what has been, he earned it.

Knute Belting no doubt had thoughts of home and other conflicts, as the enemy sailed into his citadel in the closing moments of the fray. As old Kasper once replied, 'twas a noble victory—for the other fellows. Both teams had travelled along with very little to put aside for a rainy period, and when the showers arrived, the Hams were on the inside, watching the Blountmen struggling in the wet stuff. How it really happened nobody seems to know. It just came.

The score book shows something that looks like a combination of bingles, errors and stolen bases, contributed jointly by the Petes and Hams, to the advantage of the latter, and to the extent of three runs, making a total of five, or four more than the local gang possessed. But great hopes were entertained that the visitors would come across with a helping hand ere the struggle had ceased, but in this the gathering was disappointed. True, the dark skinned shooter of the opposition started the finale with a free ticket to our Mr. Rooney. But right there he ceased. Mr. King smote the pellet, not through any kindly assistance, but rather as a matter of course. Mr. Fox also biffed—into the waiting paws of Mr. Corns; Mr. Miller, presented another, this to Mr. Baldwin, and Mr. Kelly broke into the breach—and then sat down again. The festivities will be continued this p.m. at 3.

TOUGH DOSE FOR THE RED CAPS

Not Credited With Win Over De Laval

The meeting of the executive of the Mercantile League held last night to decide whether the Red Caps could claim the game they won from the De Laval last Tuesday evening, while playing secondbaseman [illegible], who had not signed a certificate, decided that the Red Caps were at fault and that the game must be played over again next Thursday evening.

The meeting further ruled that any team playing a man not signed up, will forfeit the game.

Irishmen Seem to be Getting Out of Baseball While Germans Are Horning Way Into Fame

The Irish seem to be disappearing from baseball, and their ancient honorable enemies—the Germans—seem to be horning their way into the Hall of Fame that once was peopled almost altogether by the sons of Erin.

A recent list of averages for the American league shows only two out-and-out Irish names among a list of 50 pitchers. This pair was Collins of the Red Sox and McHale of the Yankees. Against these there are 15 pitchers who have unmistakable German names, and about six others whose names may be Germans—and may not. But whatever they are, they aren't Irish.

Forty-five pitchers were in the National league list and only four had Irish-sounding names—Ragon of the Dodgers, Ames of the Reds, and McQuillen and O'Toole of the Pirates. And there is a questing as to whether [illegible] despite his red hair, is an Irishman. Fourteen real German names appear in the pitching list and there are about seven other twirlers whose names seem to have a German flavor.

In the American league batting list, that included all hitters over .200, there were 75 names. The Irish had a somewhat better presentation there than in the pitching, but it wasn't enough to give them cause for a celebration, for once again the Germans outnumbered them. The list showed 15 sure enough Irish names against 20 real Germans and six other names that sounded suspiciously German.

In the National league batting list the Irish were worsted, the out-and-out count being 22 Germans against 17 of the other class.

COMMENT

As You Like It

On August 11, the second day of Old Boys' Week at Brantford, Connie Mack's Athletics will play a picked team from the Canadian League. Listen to what the Brantford Expositor says:

"Before leaving for London last evening, Manager Shaughnessy of the Ottawa Senators, Canadian champions, assured President Nelson that he would take a chance on losing to Peterborough that day just to loan him any of the Ottawa players he might require, so long as enough were left to play the league fixture in Peterborough. Other managers have made similar offers, and Brantford fans are going to have the pleasure of seeing a real ball game."

Paddy Dougherty the youthful Hamilton southpaw looked like the best port sider in the league yesterday. Paddy has just recently got out of the hospital and is still feeling the effects of a strain. For that reason he did not let himself out except when men were on bases and on those occasions yesterday he certainly had the Indian sign on the locals. This is Dougherty's second year in professional baseball and he certainly looks as though he will go up before long. He is the best left hand prospect in the league.

The work of the visitors was a striking contrast to that of the day before. Today's game will no doubt be a good one as the Petes are anxious to take the rubber. Either Dolan or Shears will work for Hamilton while Schettler or Sterling will serve them up for the Petes.

Fascination of Golf

What is the secret of its fascination? Probably at bottom that it looks so easy and is so hard. Nothing can well seem simpler than hitting a stationary ball with a club. But in actual fact the human body proves to be curiously ill-adapted for any such task. Nature does not point the way; proficiency in other games is no passport. There are subtleties of how to stand, how to swing back, how to secure the proper co-operation of body, arms, and eye, that have all to be mastered before it can be satisfactorily accomplished.

The problem of despatching that insolent ball in the desired direction becomes suddenly terrifying. Men wrestle with it as with a refractory collar-stud. The most even tempers are ruffled by its perversities. Prodigies of resolution and will-power in other spheres cannot remember on the golf links to keep their head down and their eyes on the ball. Weak little men with hardly an effort send it flying a sixth of a mile. Huge, burly fellows, with a blow that would shake St. Paul's, hit it thirty yards.

But if the sorrows of golf are great so also are its rewards. There is a feel and a glow about a clean-hit drive, or an approach that dribbles up to the hole, that very few strokes at polo, cricket, lawn tennis or billiards are able to evoke. In course of a two hours' round a player has every variety of chance to cover himself with glory or disgrace. It depends altogether on his own skill and nerve and self-control. One suffers for one's own shortcomings; one profits by one's own prowess — with just enough of luck and chance thrown in to remind one of the mutability of life.

And to many people this sense of standing on one's own merits or defects, and of being solely responsible for victory or defeat, is part of the attraction of golf. It comforts the diffident; it inspires the self-reliant; and the essential companionableness of the game saves it from egotism. Even on the black days of remorseless incapacity there are consolations in being out in the open air, in the scenery and surroundings, in the absolute escape from mundane worries, in the jolly sporting spirit that blows over the links, and in the consciousness that by tomorrow one's good shots will be remembered, one's bad ones forgotten, and hope again in the ascendant.—London Times.

Rainbows and Bad Weather.

Dr. O'Brien Ellison, lecturing on "The Camera and the Weather," said that color in the sky had no weather significance. A red sunset neither portended bad weather nor the reverse. A rainbow, however, was an extremely bad sign. It was bad at any time, but the later it appeared in the day the worse it was. If a rainbow appeared at sunset the weather was likely to be bad for some time afterwards and the lunar rainbow was the worst sign of all.

WARSHIPS OF DENMARK

German Vessels Are Warned Away by Fort Commandant.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 1.—Preparations for the mobilization of the Danish army were completed yesterday. A declaration of neutrality is expected to-day.

Both German and British warships were observed yesterday in Danish waters. The German torpedo-boat destroyers steamed close to the fortress at Middlefrund, a few miles from Copenhagen. The warships retired only after being commanded to do so by the commandant of the fortress, who threatened a recourse to force if they did not leave.

A big German naval fleet was reported yesterday off the south of Holland.

A German squadron, cruising off Langeland, in the Great Belt, is stopping all vessels to investigate their nationality and the destination of their cargoes. German torpedo boats have been observed near Giedeser and in the Cattegat, and German warships are patrolling between Sweden and Jutland.

A big Russian squadron has been seen outside the Danish island of Bornholm, in the Baltic.

MOFFATT—GRAY.

A pretty wedding took place Wednesday evening, July 29th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Barnabas Lyon, Pape avenue, when Mary Alice, daughter of Mrs. Mary and the late John Gray, formerly of Millbrook, Ont., was married to Mr. James Alexander Moffatt, son of Mrs. Margaret and the late John Moffatt, Crawford street, the Rev. J. A. McKenzie officiating. Miss Gladys McMaster played the wedding march while the bride entered the drawing-room on the arm of Mr. Barnabas Lyon. She was gowned in ivory duchess satin, trimmed with shadow lace and pearls. Her embroidered tulle veil was caught with a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lily of the valley. Miss Belle Gilchrist acted as maid of honor, and wore mauve silk brocade trimmed with shadow lace, and hat to match. She carried yellow tea roses. Mr. Hilliard Moffatt supported his brother, and Miss Catharine Lyon sang "O, Perfect Love," during the signing of the register. The groom's gift to the bride was a piano, to the maid of honor a pearl bracelet, the soloist a silver vanity purse, the pianist a pearl pin, and the groomsman gold cuff links. Supper was served in a marquee on the lawn, after which the bride changed her wedding gown for a travelling suit of navy blue taffeta over ivory crepe de chine blouse, and Panama hat, and left for a honeymoon trip to the Thousand Islands, Montreal and Quebec. Upon their return the happy couple will reside at 76 Grace street, where they will be "at home" to their friends after September 1.—Toronto Telegam.

BIG CROWD VISIT THE HUMPING SALE

With humping crowds and remarkable success, the first annual Camel Sale of the Reid Company was ushered in this morning. Long before the opening hour of sale, large crowds were waiting at the store ready to grab the numerous and most advantageous bargains, such as never seen in this city. The management of the store have reduced goods far below cost, and the manner in which the goods were snapped up was sufficient evidence of the real bargains and satisfactory returns of the opening day. The sale, which is for the purpose of cleaning up the summer stock, is one of the best offered here for some time. The stock is new, and are of the quality and quantity that is needed in every household.

The sale will be conducted for two weeks, during which time the general public should get busy and watch for the big bargains in the Review of the gigantic humping sale of The Reid Co., the well known ladies' ready-to-wear store.

Canadian Oil for Navy

(London Daily Express.)

Since Mr. Churchill, for good or ill, has plunged the navy into the oil wells, it is clearly right and proper for the Government to seek some permanent and sufficient sources of supply free from pressure by any trust or commercial combination. But why Persia? The trade route, whether the oil comes by way of the Suez Canal (did the memory of Disraeli's deal inspire Mr. Churchill?) or round the Cape, is vulnerable and tedious. The wells are situated in a country of no settled government in a neutral zone between what may at any time become the contentious influences of Russia and Great Britain; the pipe line is to be protected by the Persian gendarmerie, which resembles the protection against suffragist outrage afforded by Mr. McKenna. The reasons for the choice of Persia as the Admiralty's chief oil well seem markedly inadequate. Why not develop oil fields within the Empire if the government is prepared to put down two millions of money to checkmate the Shell combination? Why neglect Canada, where oil deposits are proved, where protection of supplies can be assured, whence the voyage is comparatively short and not particularly open to attack?

Yuan Shi Kai, A Remarkable Chinaman

In the course of a public speech in England last year, Sir John Jordan, the present British Minister in Pekin, paid a strong tribute to the remarkable man who is at the head of the new Chinese republic. "The election of Yuan Shi Kai as president," he said, "has placed supreme power in the hands of an eminent statesman who for two years has directed the affairs of the country with a clearness of vision and an unswerving steadiness of purpose which has evoked universal admiration and respect. Only those who know the difficulties which he has to confront at every turn, and the masterly way in which he has met them, can fully realize the almost unparalleled services which that great man has rendered to his country."

Yuan Shi Kai is a most remarkable man. A man of the people, he has raised himself from insignificance to the first position in a state which numbers some four hundred millions of souls; and he is only about fifty-five. To those who have met him, or who have lived in the surroundings in which he has been prominent for the last fifteen years, there are two things about him which mark him out. One is the vigorous commonsense, amounting almost to genius, which has enabled him, although a thorough and typical Chinese, to arise above blind adherence to tradition. The other is his adoption of the military idea.

Tradition has a force in China which it is impossible for us to realize. The manners, customs, speech, clothing, and everyday sights and sounds which one sees or hears in the streets of Pekin today, are the same as they were four thousand years ago, or two thousand years before Julius Caesar came to Britain, and the history of England began. It is not easy to grasp the fact, even after living for some years in China. Yuan Shi Kai has contrived to fly straight in the face of many traditions without for a moment ceasing to be a loyal Chinese. He did it when, eight or nine years ago, he discarded the Chinese robe to put on breeches and uniform, and appear on horseback at the manoeuvres of his troops. He did it again when, at a reception of the foreign communities in his vice-regal palace in Tientsin, he allowed his wife to leave the seclusion of her apartments and stand by his side to receive the foreign ladies. To do things like these without losing caste, or pandering to foreign methods, required extraordinary strength and dignity of character.

Yuan's adoption of the military idea has been at once the secret of his success, and the outstanding feature of his political life. Here again he has shown his independence of character, because until he came upon the scenes the soldier's trade was held in disrepute in China as being quite unworthy of educated and well-bred men. When only a humble youth of eighteen he was taken to Korea by a soldier uncle who held some command in the Chinese forces there. At that time China was the suzerain power in Korea and was responsible for the maintenance of order in the country. But in reality her troops were little better than the unarmed rabble whom they were supposed to hold in check, and this clear sighted young man learned a lesson which he has never forgotten. It was the lesson how not to do things. He must have shown his worth from the first, because after a few years in Korea, while he was still under thirty, he was appointed Chinese Resident in Seoul.

From that time onward he was always a man of mark; and in every post he has filled he has remained true to his military training, never losing sight of the fact that a good army under his control is a lever which he can use either to assert his will in Chinese politics or to assert Chinese claims against the foreigner. In 1899, when the Boxer troubles broke out he was governor of Shantung province; and it was mainly due to him that so few Europeans lost their lives.

Temperance in the Army of The Czar

There has been much talk recently in Canada about the temperance rules now in force in the training camps of the militia force.

Only a short time ago it was brought home to the Czar of Russia and his advisers that in the past excessive quantities of drink have been consumed by the Russian army with the result that an order was published in St. Petersburg dealing in the most drastic way with the drinking evil among the soldiers. In the attempt to stamp out drunkenness, officers are forbidden to drink vodka in camp, on manoeuvres, or while on duty with their men; and not only this, but they are ordered to discourage drinking among the men as much as possible, and themselves to set an example of sobriety. The rule for the private soldier is even stricter. Vodka is to be absolutely forbidden at all times, and the most stringent measures are to be adopted to prevent the Russian Tommy Atkins from indulging in his favorite drink.

Attractions Provided

So strict a serveillance is to be exercised over them that no man who is known to be addicted to drink is to be allowed to receive any money from home without the express permission of his commanding officer.

The rules are certainly extremely stringent; but, granted the necessity for them, the authorities are very wisely determined upon doing their best to provide the men with sufficiently varied interests in life to make them less inclined to feel the deprivation caused by the wholesale total abstinence pledge.

Commanding officers are to do their best to improve the lives of the men under them; the introduction of games, the promotion of libraries, and the giving of facilities for the study of foreign languages being especially recommended.

Soldiers will watch with interest the results of the Czar's experiment. Compulsion is a thing that is distasteful to most people, especially compulsion along a particular moral path; and it may be true that the order of the Czar may lead to an enormous amount of secret drinking.

At the same time, the probable result will be that in the Russian army drunkenness, instead of being a manly peccadillo, will be regarded as a secret vice, and at the best a breach of good form.

British the Soberest Army

Thanks very largely to Lord Roberts's temperance crusade, drunkenness has been, in the British army, daily growing in disfavor, so much so that one might spend weeks in a large garrison without ever seeing a drunken soldier. In spite of the insults which some people are ever ready to heap on the head of the British soldier, the British army is probably the soberest army in Europe.

Both in the officers' mess and in the barrack room, the man who drinks to excess sins against the unwritten law, and is told so in terms that are unmistakable. It is not only in the army that a marked change has been seen of recent years in this direction. The whole attitude of society towards the question of intoxication has completely changed. The man who would drink himself to slumber beneath his host's mohogany would today be treated with scant consideration.

LAID AT REST.

The funeral of the late Mrs. John Hickey took place this morning from her late home to St. Martin's Church and Cemetery, Ennismore. The large number who formed the cortage and filled the church spoke very highly for the excellent characteristics by which the life of the late Mrs. Hickey was marked. Rev. Father Fitzpatrick officiated at the church and grave. The pall bearers were five grandsons and Wilfred Carroll.

LEFT $10,000 FOR KIND ACT

Watchman Bequeathed Money by Mother of Girl He Helped

Omaha, Aug. 1.—"For being a gentleman" one night fourteen years ago, Albert Ayer of Omamo has been bequeathed $10,000 in cash. He is a night watchman for the American District Telegraph Co., and $10,000 is more money than he ever before saw at one time.

The legacy came from Mrs. James Atkinson of Dayton, O., who died two months ago. One item in the will reads:

"For being a gentleman to my daughter in a time of distress I bequeath to Albert Ayer, Ohoma, Neb., the sum of $10,000.

Ayer was almost paralyzed when he was informed that he had $10,000 in cash coming to him. When the news reached him he was making his rounds at the plant of the Omaha Ice & Cold Storage Company. He thanked his informer and continued on his way.

"I didn't do anything but what any man would do," said Ayer to a reporter. "I found a girl who needed help and I helped her. Any fellow would have done as much. It was in the midst of a railroad wreck, and pretty near all of us were more or less smashed up. My right arm was broken in two places, and my right hand crushed flat as a pancake. But the girl, Miss Atkinson, was worse off than I was so I turned in and helped her. And for doing a little thing like that her mother goes and leaves me $10,000.

Ayer had forgotten the name of the girl, and he looked up an old note of thanks sent him by Mrs. Atkinson to make sure of it. The note had recovered and returned to her home in Dayton with the story of Ayer's aiding her the night of the wreck.

Fourteen years ago Ayer, then just 25 years of age, was en route to London, Ont. The car was very crowded. In the seat next to him was a young woman. Ayer performed several little courtesies for her and thought no more about it. At Pittsburg, Ont., the train collided with another train and several passengers were killed or injured. Ayer's hand was caught between two seats and badly lacerated, and in extricating it part of the flesh was torn away and his arm was broken in two places.

Despite his own injuries, however, Ayer went about doing what he could for those worse injured than himself. He found the girl who had sat near him on the train with her hand crushed and suffering from other injuries.

Surgeons had arrived by this time, and in the hurry of caring for the wounded they started to amputate the girl's hand. Ayer stepped in and had the girl taken to a local hospital and then telegraphed her mother, who arrived the next day. The hospital physicians were able to save the girl's arm. After taking Ayer's name and adress the mother and daughter returned to Dayton. Ayer went on to London and there blood poisoning developed which caused him to almost lose his hand and arm. Some time later he received a nice note of thanks from Mrs. Atkinson, mother of the girl. After that he heard nothing until the notice of the legacy came to him.

Upon the death of Mrs. Atkinson, two months ago, notice of the legacy was mailed to Ayer, but was returned undelivered. The case was placed in the hands of an attorney with instructions to locate Ayer, but Ayer had moved around so often that he could not be found. Four years ago he married and settled down. A week ago he suffered ptomaine poisoning and became so ill he fell on the street. It was chronicled in a local newspaper, and the item caught the eye of the attorney who was searching for him. A call resulted and identification was easily established.

Three years ago Ayer stopped a runaway carriage in which were a mother and four children, and in doing so was so badly injured that he spent several months in a hospital. Last year he dropped three stories down an elevator shaft and had to go to the hospital again. Sometimes the arm and hand which were injured in the railroad wreck troubled him. Altogether he has a good deal of hard luck.

"What am I going to do with the money? Well, first off, I am going to buy a little home," he says. "Then probably, I'll buy a little business with part of what's left. But I'll keep right on this watchman's job until I get another one. I've got a wife and child to support.

"But who would ever have though that just because I was nice to a girl so many years ago I would be paid such a huge sum of money at this late date?"

ENGLISH TEACHERS TO TOUR CANADA

Preparations are being made to welcome the English school teachers who are due in Montreal on Saturday next, August 1st.) The party is led by a member of the British House of Commons, Mr. F. W. RUSSIANS DEFEATED BY GERMANS IN NAVAL BATTLE

REPLY BY FRANCE IS NOT SATISFACTORY TO GERMANY

Canadian Press Despatch.

Berlin, Aug. 3.—An official communication says: "In consequence of a Russian attack on German territory, Germany is in a state of war with Russia. The French reply to Germany's note has been received, and is of an unsatisfactory character. In addition France has ordered the mobilization of her army, so that an outbreak of war between Germany and France must be awaited at any moment."

Stockholm, Aug. 3.—A battle was fought yesterday between German and Russian fleets off Atard Islands, and resulted in the Russians being driven back. The Russians took refuge in the Gulf of Finland.

STEERAGE SPACE FOR TOURISTS.

New York, Aug. 3.—Steamship agents announced to-day that there would be sufficient space in the steerage of one dozen liners sailing from Europe early this month, not taken up by immigrants, for thirty-one thousand returning tourists. Because of war there will be very few immigrants leaving Europe.

COALITION GOVERNMENT IN BRITISH ISLES.

London, Aug. 3.—The Evening Standard says there is every probability of the formation of coalition government in the British Isles to tide over the present crisis. Andrew Bonar Law, the Marquis of Lansdowne and Arthur J. Balfour, three opposition leaders, were in consultation with cabinet ministers to-day.

London, Aug. 3.—Germany sent an ultimatum to Belgium, offering an entente provided Belgium facilitates the movement of German troops. This ultimatum expires at seven o'clock this morning. German troops are said to have reached Vie, only twelve miles northeast of Liege. Martial law has been proclaimed throughout France and Algiers.

A wireless report to Berlin, transmitted by the small cruiser Augsberg, says the bombardment of the Russian town of Libau is going on, and a naval port is in flames.

It is reported that the German fleet has passed through Kiel Canal and is steaming westward in the North Sea.

Decisions of the British Cabinet to be announced by Asquith to-day, will deal not only with the naval and military preparations, but with every aspect of the national crisis and the food supply. The Daily Telegraph says many provision shops in London are sold out, and little is left for the poor to buy. People are stocking their cellars. Returning tourists report French and German officials are seizing automobiles belonging to American and other travellers.

BRITISH ARMY TO MOBILIZE

Sir Edward Grey Explains the Situation to House of Commons — Will Help France

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, Aug. 3.—It is officially stated that the British Army will mobilize tomorrow.

London, Sir Edward Grey told the Commons he had given France the assurance that if the German fleet came into the English Channel or through the North Seas to undertake hostile operations against the French coast or shipping, the British fleet would give all protection in its power.

Sir Edward requested the House to deal with the issue before it without passion and added "when documents are made public it will be seen how genuinely and whole heartedly we have made efforts to preserve peace."

Dealing with the question of Great Britain's obligations, Sir Edward said, "Up to yesterday we had given no promise of more than diplomatic support. I was asked at the time of the Algeria crisis if we would give armed support and I said I could promise nothing to any foreign power until it received the whole-hearted support of public opinion.

"I gave no promise but I told both French and German Ambassadors that if war was forced on France, public opinion in the British Isles would rally to France."

This part of the speech was received with loud cheering. Sir Edward added that if a foreign fleet came down the English Channel to bombard the French coast, "we could not stand aside." The Foreign Secretary stated that the British fleet had been mobilized and mobilization of the British army was taking place but that no engagement yet had been made" by the British Government to send an expedition abroad. He continued "The French fleet is in the Mediterranean and the northern coasts of France are defenseless. If a foreign fleet engaged in war against France should come down and battle against those defenseless coasts we could not stand aside." "I gave an answer to the French Ambassador last night that if the German fleet goes into the English Channel or into the North Sea to attack French shipping or the French coast, the British fleet will give all protection in its power." "That answer is subject to approval of Parliament. It is not a declaration of war." "I understand the German Government would be prepared if we would pledge ourselves to neutrality to agree that its fleet would not attack the northern coast of France." "That is far too narrow an engagement. The House broke out into cheers at this remark.

Are Prepared.

Toward the close of his speech Sir Edward Grey said, "We must be prepared and we are prepared to face the consequences of using all our strength at any moment in order to defend ourselves."

Andrew Bonar Law warmly supported the Government and referred amid cheers to the pledges of support received from the British dominions.

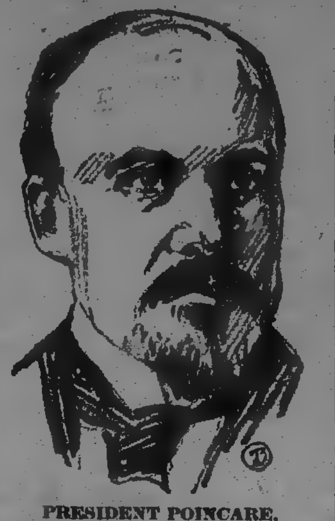
Ireland's Sons Will Fight.

Wild cheering from all parts of the House greeted John E. Redmond Nationalist leader, when he assured the Government that every soldier in Ireland might be withdrawn tomorrow and the coasts of Ireland would be defended against invasion by her armed sons, Catholics of the south and Protestants of Ulster.

Communication Cut.

Brussels, Aug. 3.—All communication between Germany and Belgium was cut today.

GERMANS VIOLATE TREATY BY INVADING LUXEMBOURG



PRESIDENT POINCARE.

Paris, August 3.—President Raymond Poincare, of France, cut short his Scandinavian trip and hastened back to Paris to take charge of the war situation. Plans were at once made for rushing the army to the German frontier.

FEATURES OF THE DAY

London, Aug. 3.—Violation of neutral territory by Germany, frontier raids by German, Russian and French troops, clashes between outposts, the bombardment of a Russian Baltic port by a German warship and the seizure of merchant ships by Russia and Germany, constituted the striking war features of the day. The position of the British Empire remained still to be defined this morning but it was feared Germany's seizure of Belgian territory would be a decided factor which would lead Britons to take the sword in hand as under the treaty of London in 1839, Britain stands pledged to maintain Belgium's neutrality.

London, Aug. 3.—The belief is prevalent, that Lord Kitchener whose return to Egypt has been cancelled, will be appointed secretary of state for the war office, which position is being temporarily filled by the Prime Minister.

Paris, Aug. 3.—All telegrams were refused at the Post Office in Paris for a time today and it is assumed that difficulties in transmission of news and private despatches will rapidly increase. Pillage of a German jewelry store and raids against stores which had raised the prices of provisions caused the prefect of the police to post a placard, appealing to Parisians to maintain order.

ITALY NEUTRAL.

Rome, Aug. 3.—Italy today made formal declaration of neutrality.

BIG LINERS REMAIN AT MONTREAL

No Steamer Will Attempt the Ocean Trip

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, Aug. 3.—The war has struck the port of Montreal as not an ocean liner of any type put to sea yesterday. Neither "tramp" or passenger vessel cleared this morning. No steamer will attempt the voyage across the Atlantic from Montreal until tomorrow evening at the earliest. Then the Victorian is due to leave but her action will be decided by what occurs in Europe in the meantime.

Auto Overturned

Auto Overturned; Woman Killed.

EXETER, Ont., Aug. 3.—Mrs. Dow of this town was killed in an auto accident Saturday morning while returning from Grand Bend in company with Miss Burridge, her brother, and Earl Southcott. When about a mile west of the town the auto struck a rut, and when turning out the car took to the ditch and upset, throwing the occupants out. Mrs. Dow's head struck against the embankment and she died almost instantly. The other occupants were unhurt.

Miss Edna Burridge, of London, who was driving turned out to pass a wagon on the road. They were running about ten miles an hour at the time.

Dr. Hyndman, the coroner, was called and deemed an inquest unnecessary.

Another Body of Soldiers is Reported to Have Crossed the Frontier at Cirey and to Have Been Repulsed by the French Troops With Heavy Loss.

LONDON, Aug. 3. — A German force traversing Luxemburg is marching on the French fortress at Longwy, according to an official despatch received here shortly after four o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Longwy is a fortified town of France, on the Belgian frontier, 40 miles north-northwest of Metz, in Germany.

Germany declared war on Russia Saturday night.

One German force crossed the French frontier near the village of Cirey, between Nancy and Strassburg, and another German detachment, probably the 29th Infantry, Saturday night invaded the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg, neutral territory between France and Germany, and continued its march on the French fortified town of Longwy. A despatch from Brussels said there was good reason to believe that this force later in the day entered France.

The German force which came into France near Cirey, which is 40 miles from Nancy, is reported to have been repulsed with heavy losses, but this has not yet been confirmed.

Apparently the German army is duplicating the first movement of the Franco-Prussiar war. It was on Aug. 2, 1870, 44 years ago yesterday, that the French and Germans clashed in the first battle of that war at Saarbrucken, where the Prince Imperial, under the orders of the Emperor, received his famous "baptism of fire."

It would appear to-day that Germany is taking the fullest possible advantage of her supposed superiority in rapid mobilization over France. The plan of the German Emperor, according to military observers here, is to vanquish or attempt to vanquish France in the interval before Russia will be able to create serious trouble on her northern frontier. It is supposed that Russian mobilization will take about three weeks.

All telegraphic and telephonic communication between Brussels and Luxemburg has been severed.

By the treaty of London, signed in 1867, the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg was declared neutral territory. Its integrity and independence were guaranteed.

A train full of German soldiers arrived at the station at Luxemburg during the night. The troops seized the station and the bridges on the Treves and Trois Vierges line in order to secure the regular passage of military trains across the Grand Duchy.

According to an evening newspaper published at Liege, twenty thousand German troops crossed the French frontier yesterday morning near Nancy. They encountered French forces and were repulsed with heavy losses. This news, however, lacks confirmation.

The French Embassy yesterday issued the following statement:

"French territory has been invaded at Cirey, and German troops are marching on the fort at Cirey. This act has been committed without a declaration of war. The German Ambassador is at present in Paris."

Germany declared yesterday that she was unable to answer the question put by the British Ambassador at Berlin as to whether she is prepared to respect the neutrality of Belgium.

This statement appeared in a communication issued by the French Embassy.

The neutrality of Belgium has been guaranteed by Great Britain, and she is bound to protect Belgium for her own safety, as Belgium under German rule would be a never-ending menace to England.

No Hostile Intent.

LUXEMBOURG, Aug. 3. — The Minister of State of Luxembourg has received a telegram from the German Imperial Chancellor declaring that the military measures taken by Germany in Luxembourg do not constitute a hostile act against the grand duchy. They are simply measures, the chancellor states, to protect a railroad connected with the German system against possible attack.

FIELD AND HOME FORCES OF THE BRITISH ARMY

The Different Units That go to Make up British Army

Field and Home.

Now that things have a decidedly warlike look on the Continent it may be of interest to view just how the Mother Country has her troops divided and how they would be used in case of Great Britain becoming involved in what from this distance looks very much like a great war in which most of the great nations may have to take part.

How Made Up.

The British Army is divided as follows: 1. A Field Force or Expeditionary Army, which when mobilized at home will consist of one Cavalry Division (4 cavalry brigades and Cavalry Divisional troops) six divisions (each of three brigades of Infantry and Divisional Troops) by Divisional Troops is meant, Artillery, Engineers, Army Service Corps, and Army Medical Corps. Then there are troops to maintain the lines of communications.

The principal units will be:

Cavalry, 14 regiments (regulars) 12 Squadrons Imperial Yeomanry.

Artillery, 72 Batteries Horse and Field, six batteries of Heavy Royal Garrison.

Infantry, six battalions of Foot Guards and 69 battalions of the Line.

Then there is the proportion of Engineers, Army Service Corps, Army Medical Corps, and Army Ordnance Corps.

Home Establishment.

The present home establishment of cavalry, 16 regiments (regulars, including three regiments of Household Cavalry) Artillery, 14 Batteries of Royal Horse, 99 Batteries of Royal Field, and 43 Companies of Royal Garrison, eight Battalions of Foot Guards, and 71 Line Battalions of Infantry. In addition provision is made for maintaining 20 Special Contingent Battalions (Special Reservists) in Ireland and 81 Battalions in Great Britain, or a total of 101 additional Battalions of Infantry. A reserve of 80,000 men is provided to reinforce the First Line after six months in the Field.

Men on the Reserve.

There is also 300,000 men in the Reserve that could be obtained in case of need and when the Territorials were organised it was intended to form 14 Divisions and 14 Cavalry Brigades, but the recruiting of these fell short of expectations, but there is no doubt that if danger threatened there would be no difficulty in even increasing the above estimate. The establishment of an Infantry Battalion at war strength is 1,000.

Canada's Militia.

In Canada this year about 50,000 of all ranks were drilled, but as on former occasions if war were actually to break out and Britain was involved the men offering would largely exceed the amount of arms and equipment obtainable. The great difficulty in Canada is that no reserve of arms or equipment is kept, and if a mobilization were ordered that would be where the Department would fall down. Ammunition is about the only war munition that is kept in any quantity, and the regulations require from 50 to 100 rounds per man, and this is actually done in all the City Corps, but not in the rural regiment.

QUEBEC IN CHARGE OF MILITARY

Usual Rules Will Govern Action of Vessels

Canadian Press Despatch.

Quebec, Aug. 3.—The commanding officer of the fifth division has issued today regulations that simply put the port of Quebec under the charge of the military authorities.

No vessel shall be allowed to enter the port unless it flies special signals that have been chosen.

No vessel shall leave point of inspection here before it has signed clearance.

Any vessel disobeying this order will be fired on.

The order continues that any vessel disobeying any order given by the inspecting officer shall be regarded as an enemy and treated as such.

It is strictly forbidden for ships or persons to approach government steamships or dry dock and any person or ship disobeying this order shall be shot at.

CAR AGAINST CAR.

While stalled on the street car tracks on George Street, about twenty yards north of Hunter Street Saturday evening a motor car occupied by two strangers was struck by south bound car No. 33, with the result that the rear of the auto was badly damaged.

RUSSIAN AMBASSADOR IS HANDED HIS PASSPORTS

Canadian Press Despatch.

Berlin, Aug. 3.—M. Sverbiev, the Russian Ambassador, was handed his passports this morning.

BELGIAN KING APPEALS TO BRITAIN.

London, Aug. 3.—Sir Edward Grey announced in the House of Commons to-day that a telegram from the King of the Belgians made a supreme appeal to Great Britain to safeguard the integrity of Belgium.

GERMAN EMBASSY EXPLAINS

London, Aug. 3.—The German Embassy here to-day issued the explanation of the recent interference with British ships by German war vessels, that the action was merely a police measure and there was no intention on the part of Germany interfering with the property of vessels.

BRITAIN HAS NOT COMMITTED HERSELF.

London, Aug. 3.—Sir Edward Grey stated in the House of Commons to-day that Great Britain had not committed herself to anything but diplomatic support. Her House would approach the consideration of the European crisis from the point of view of British interest, British honour and British obligations. He said the House was free to decide what the British attitude should be.

FRENCH MOVED BEFORE DECLARATION.

Berlin, Aug. 3.—A semi-official communication issued today says, "While no German soldiers have yet set foot on French soil, official reports from the frontier state that French troops in large companies crossed the border at four points before there was any declaration of war. French airmen in great numbers have flown over Belgian and Duchy territory on their way to Germany, thus commiting a breach of neutrality.

Brussels, Aug. 3.—It is estimated that one hundred thousand German soldiers have occupied Duchy Luxombourg and are massed on the French frontier.

London, Aug. 3.—A later despatch from Brussels says the Belgian cabinet has given a formal refusal to the German note asking Belgium to facilitate the movement of German troops. The Daily Chronicle thinks Germany by marching through Luxembourg has made a decisive stroke, getting possession of the only gap in the French fortified line. The French Ambassador in London has issued a formal statement pointing out that although Germany has not declared war and the German ambassador is still in Paris, German troops are invading France. The good intentions of France are plain from the fact [illegible] she knew what was going on across the border, she withdrew her troops some distance from the German frontier.

"It is well that at the beginning," says Ambassador Cambon, "that the world should know this fact."

EMPRESS OF RUSSIA STOPPED AT BERLIN

GERMANS ACTIVE ON THE FRONTIER

Also Reported to Have Taken Possession of Belgium Town

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, Aug. 3.—A Daily Telegraph despatch from Paris says German troops have taken possession of the Belgian town of Arlon. A Berlin despatch says French soldiers crossed the frontier last night at Laschluct and shots were exchanged without result. German cavalry today raided the French frontier near Belfort, and attempted to commandeer horses.

A batallion of German infantry with machine guns crossed the frontier into Russian Poland today. The Dowager of Russia, sister of Queen Alexandra, was stopped at Berlin today on her way to St. Petersburg and given the choice of returning to London or going to Copenhagen.

FRENCH DOCTOR SHOT SOLDIERS ARE EXECUTED

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, Aug. 3.—The German Embassy has received official despatches stating that a French doctor with assistants tried to infect wells with cholera microbes. He was tried, courtmarshalled and shot. Another French party attempted to blow up a tunnel near Cochem. All were shot.

Prepares For Mobilization

QUEBEC, Aug. 3.—In the event of Premier Borden's offer of an army division of 20,000 men being accepted, Quebec will be the point of embarkation. Col. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, arrived here by special yesterday morning and motored out to Valcaraier, about 20 miles away. This he says has been chosen as the mobilization base and the probability is that thousands of troops may be pouring in here before next Sunday, according to what the Minister told the Canadian Press correspondents, it had already been selected as a camp some time ago and was to have been a training ground for artillery. The camp area is about 10 miles square and Col. Hughes considers it will be an ideal spot for mobilization owing to its proximity to Quebec, the nature of the country and the fact that there is a plentiful supply of water.

BIG LOSS OF LUMBER AND COAL

Quarter Million Dollars is Estimate of Loss

BABE PERISHED

Canadian Press Despatch.

Chicago, Ill., Two fires in coal and lumber yards in the southwestern part of the city last night, caused a loss totalling nearly three quarters of a million dollars. A watchman in King's lumber yard, with his wife left the baby in their house while they attempted to extinguish the fire in a lumber pile, but the [illegible] spread cutting off their [illegible] house and the baby perished.

PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, AUGUST 3, 1914

CANADA AND BRITAIN.

THE TORONTO GLOBE has recognized the fact that an emergency exists. Despite the fact that the Liberal party has scoffed at the emergency for which Sir Robert Borden has long been anxious to prepare, the Globe has come out frankly in support of preparations for an emergency. The Globe says:

> "Upon this side of the Atlantic we may hope for comparative immunity, even from raiding visitors, but it is clearly the duty of the Dominion Government to mobilize in the vicinity of Halifax and Quebec a large enough force to beat off landing parties from small hostile squadrons. What further active measures may be required must be taken later, but Canada's first duty in default of a fleet for the defence of her coasts is to take all necessary steps by means of a mobile field force to prevent landings. The clouds may pass without breaking, but if Britain finds that she cannot stand aloof without running terrible risk of destruction, Canada must do her part as an integral portion of the Empire, and assuredly must discharge the imperative first duty of self-defence. When Britain is at war Canada is at war."

We must give the Globe credit for recognizing in the gravity of the present European crisis, the necessity for casting aside merely party interests for the good of Canada and the Empire. The last sentence of the above paragraph voices the national feeling, that Conservatives have maintained is the legitimate excuse for their forward naval policy. The Borden Government has thus support from both parties, in Ontario at least, for its policy of Imperial Defence.

But, while it says there is no haste, we distinctly urge that haste is the very word. Germany certainly moves, when she decides to do so, with surprising speed, and the rapidity with which Germany moved in the Franco-German war put the whole world aghast. We know not what the next hundred hours will develop, but let us take no chances in a world conflict in which the whole Empire is in danger.

THE FRENCH-CANADIANS.

THE REVIEW wired Henri Bourrassa's paper, Le Devoir, on Saturday at mid-day asking that journal to reply by wire, giving its idea of what French-Canadians think that Canada should do in the present crisis. We have received no answer.

We are well aware that a large number of our French brethren are one with the rest of us in a desire to be fully Canadian and members of the British Empire. We are not now addressing ourselves to them. But we do wish to address ourselves to those who like Mr. Bourrassa have expressed no such intention or wish. If they are against us, let us know. We cannot tolerate traitors, least of all, in a crisis. They have had all the liberty men can ask for, in times of peace. But now when war threatens—when the Emergency is upon us—what stand do they take? Are they for a united British Empire or are they against it? Are they with us or against us? Canada must know. Moreover, we must notify these gentlemen that they must talk treason less loudly in future. We cannot force them to kiss the hand that protects them, but we can prevent them from biting it, and the crisis in that little matter is also at hand. Canada badly needs a shaking-up.

BIG NEWSPAPERS.

A RECENT EDITORIAL in the Toronto Globe on "The White Paper Problem," comments on the problem of producing large newspapers of forty, sixty and one hundred pages. There are occasions when a newspaper of such dimensions is legitimate and desirable, but to make a practice of producing them militates against their usefulness.

In the first place, they are too large. People have neither the time nor the energy to digest fifty large newspaper pages. If the advertising patronage necessitates such a size, the advertising is sold too cheaply, and the people do not regard it with as much attention as they should. So many and so large newspapers tend to make people give them merely a cursory perusal, rather than an attentive survey, and that causes the papers to have less weight with their readers. For the same reason, the mass of people devote less time to the best book literature.

The problem of continually increasing the size, circulation and advertising patronage of a newspaper, together with rising cost of producing it, such as increases in the price of wages and materials, while keeping the price at which it is sold constant, is an impossible or losing proposition. What is wanted is less quantity and more quality in newspapers. Better construction of English all through, and a more judicious preparation of news is needed. It is our opinion that few cities require a newspaper larger than twenty pages, and that an eight to twelve page paper will carry all the news and comments necessary for the average man's mental digestive capacity. With an unduly large paper, most people tend to throw half of it aside unlooked at, and then it constitutes an unwarranted element of waste.

But there is another feature of the Canadian newspaper situation. It is the practice of city dailies selling their paper for one dollar a year to outside people, merely to inflate their circulation with a volume that is uncalled for and improper. What city people pay four and five dollars for is sold to outsiders for one dollar, and, on this watered circulation basis the advertiser pays for his space. It certainly is a case of exploitation, and calls for postal regulations that would make it unprofitable. These "dollar dailies" are the equivalent of American "one-cent shriekers," which gamble on the sensational and exert a bad influence on the public. While Canadian newspapers have maintained an individuality that has withstood Americanization, the tendency has been to produce steadily larger papers. What the Globe says is worthy of consideration.

> "Canada's equivalent of the "one-cent shrieker" is the "dollar daily," with a huge circulation paid for by advertisers. It has long been a demoralizing influence in the Canadian newspaper field. Its career as a disturbing element has almost ended. The cost of white paper is so great that the shrinking volume of advertising can no longer carry the increasing load of unprofitable circulation. We are going to have smaller papers all over America, approximating more to European standards, with greater concentration of news, fewer features, especially comics, and relatively fewer advertisements. The standard of the advertising will be much higher than in the past, and advertising will result in greater profits alike to the advertiser and the publisher, for it must be remembered that the forty-page paper is as bewildering to the reader of advertisements as to the reader of news. The newspaper business has been running loose on this continent. Concentration is the order of the day."

THE BEGINNING OF ANARCHY.

IT WILL BE RECALLED that among the ruins of the tenement house which was wrecked in New York recently, there was found a package of poems ridiculing religion. That is the beginning of anarchy. Denying the existence of a Supreme Being and a higher power is the forerunner of rejection of human laws and contempt for the constituted authorities of society. To hold life valueless and to take it by violence, or to destroy property to right real or imaginary wrongs, is then a natural step. The anarchistic process of thinking, like the line of action, makes for complete demoralization.

THE PROVINCIAL POLICE have offered a reward of $500 for the apprehension of Dr. Robinson. Possibly a reward is what the police have been figuring on.

WAR NEWS.

DURING the present European embroglio, the Review will make every effort to give its readers the very latest news and will authenticate that news as far as possible. Extras will be issued for whatever is momentous or deemed important enough to warrant such a procedure. At such a critical time as now prevails, there must unavoidably arise a great many wild rumors having no foundation and which tend to cause needless alarm. The Review will not cater to a frothy sensationalism, but will make every effort to supply its readers with reliable news. The Review has a first class telegraph service, and, being the only paper in Peterborough that is a member of the Canadian Press Limited, which furnishes news from abroad, readers of this paper can be assured of reliable reports of the war situation in Europe.

A Diplomatic Hubby.

Exe—I admit that, my love, but think of all the money I'd have to spend entertaining myself in your absence.

Just Proverbial Stupidity.

Montreal News.

The London Bystander, supposed to be one of the well-informed journals of England, publishes a picture of the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa at midnight. It is an excellent picture, but it is labelled: "The House of Representatives, Ottawa, at midnight." Is this another case of the "Americanization of Canada," or another illustration of the ignorance of some Englishmen?

The Metaphor is Not Mixed, but Overdone.

Orillia Packet.

At last, as the Packet pointed out last week, the Globe admits the existence of the Trent Valley Canal, and sees some prospect of its future usefulness. Now let us hear from the other city papers. Hogtown is always contemptibly unwilling to admit the existence of any avenue or channel of intercourse which does not carry swill to its own trough.

The Reminder.

By Samuel Daniel (1619).

Beauty, sweet love, is like the morning dew
Whose short refresh upon the tender green
  Cheers for a time, but till the sun doth shew;
And strait 'tis gone as it had never been.
Soon doth it fade that makes the fairest flourish;
  Short is the glory of the blushing rose
  The hue which thou so carefully doth nourish,
  Yet which at length thou must be forced to lose.
When thou, surcharged with burthen of thy years,
  Shall bend thy wrinkles homeward to the earth,
  And that in beauty's lease expired appears
  The date of age, the calends of our death—
But ah! no more this must not be foretold
  For women grieve to think they must be old.

Crede Experto.

Orillia Packet.

A writer in one of the city papers, in describing the colourless and monotonous life of the average denizen of Toronto, says he "takes a certain car, gets off at a certain corner, walks to a certain office, does certain things, and returns home. Six days a week, fifty weeks a year he follows the same round, like a cub in the Zoo, running to the end of his chain, turning a somersault, and running back." One cannot quarrel with the description. Anybody at all familiar with life in the city will endorse it. Then why are so many eager to flock to the large towns, where one's identity is lost in the crowd, and life is a dull and dreary round of servitude? Life in a small town is infinitely more enjoyable than life in a city of five hundred thousand, and for every argument in favour of Toronto, ten can be advanced on the side of life in Orillia. Crede Experto. If you have any doubt about it, ask anybody who has tried both.

For the Harvest in Western Canada

Approximately Fifteen Thousand Men will be required from Ontario to help in the great work of harvesting the Western crop, and practically the entire task of transporting this great army of Harvesters to the West will fall to the lot of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run, and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route.

"Going Trip West," $12.00 to Winnipeg.

"Return Trip East," $18.00 from Winnipeg.

Consult C.P.R. Agents regarding particulars in connection with transportation west of Winnipeg.

GOING DATES

August 11—From Kingston, Sharbot Lake, Renfrew and West to Azilda and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., to all points in Manitoba only.

August 14—From East of Kingston, Sharbot Lake and Renfrew in Provinces of Ontario and Quebec, to all points in Manitoba only.

August 18—From Kingston, Sharbot Lake, Renfrew and West to Azilda and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., to all points in Manitoba and certain points in Saskatchewan and Alberta.

August 21—From East of Kingston, Sharbot Lake and Renfrew in Provinces of Ontario and Quebec, to all points in Manitoba and certain points in Saskatchewan and Alberta.

For full particulars regarding transportation west of Winnipeg, etc., see nearest C.P.R. Agent, or write M. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto.

HEAVY FIRING IN NORTH SEA

LONDON, Aug. 3. — The News of the World says it has received a wireless communication to the effect that heavy firing is proceeding in the North Sea. The newspaper presumes that German and French fleets are engaged. No confirmation of this report was received.

A despatch to The Central News says the Germans have taken possession of the steamer Castro in the Kiel Canal and ordered her to Hamburg. The Castro belongs to the Wilson Line, an English company.

According to another despatch to The Central News from King's Lynn, a seaport in Norfolk, Eng., the British steamer Saxon, which left King's Lynn late Thursday with a cargo of coal for Brunsbuttel, Prussia, has been overtaken by the German navy and diverted to Cuxhaven.

BULLETS RIDDLED AEROPLANE.

French Flying Craft is Brought Down By Germans.

BERLIN, Aug. 3.—A French aeroplane was brought down by German marksmen at Wesel in frontier yesterday.

Saturday night several other hostile air craft were seen in the Rhine provinces. One was observed flying from Keprich in the direction of Andernach, 10 miles northwest of Hobelns. Others were sighted near Duere flying in the direction of Cologne.

Saturday night a hotelkeeper in Kochem and his son tried to blow up the Prussian state railroad tunnel at Kochem. The attempt failed and the men were shot and killed.

Wesel, where the aeroplane was shot down, is about 140 miles from the northeastern frontier of France.

While a train was crossing a bridge at Thorn yesterday a passenger tried to throw a bomb from the window of a coach, probably with the hope of destroying the bridge. He was arrested.

JAPAN WILL AID BRITAIN.

Any Movement in Eastern Waters Will Be Signal, Says Ambassador.

TOKIO, Aug. 3. — The Japanese navy has been prepared to meet any emergency, and the Minister of Marine, Vice-Admiral Rokuro Yashiro, Saturday went to Nikko to consult the Emperor on the international situation. In the meantime the second battle squadron had assembled at the naval station, Sasebo.

A Fair Warning.

LONDON, Aug. 3. — In regard to the Far East, the Japanese Ambassador in London said Saturday that as long as the warships belonging to the nations composing the Triple Alliance remained at Tsing-Tau Japan would take no action against them, but should they attack British interests or should Tsing-Tau be attacked a situation would arise which would be dealt with by Japan in the spirit of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance.

German Liner Is Due.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Aug. 3.—The only German liner in the vicinity of Vancouver is the Saxonia, which is now in Seattle harbor and due in Vancouver this week with a thousand tons of oriental cargo. It is expected that under the present circumstances she will remain in Seattle harbor.

Germans Beaten Off.

LONDON, Aug. 3. — A late despatch from Paris says that two officers and twenty men of a German patrol were killed at Longwy, and that the German attack was repelled.

The way to a man's heart may be through his stomach, but the man who lets his indigestion settle in his heart isn't worth wooing.

CROWD CHEERED KING AND QUEEN

LONDON, Aug. 3. — There was scene of great enthusiasm outside Buckingham Palace last night. A crowd of five or six thousand persons gathered before that place and sang the National Anthem and called for King George, who, with Queen Mary, appeared on a balcony and bowed in response to cheers given for His Majesty.

A number of processions were formed late last night and paraded the streets, singing and cheering.

MANN OFFERS TO GO.

C. N. R. Magnate Volunteers as Transport Director.

OTTAWA, Aug. 3. — Sir Donald Mann, vice-president of the Canadian Northern Railway, has offered to take charge of the transportation work in the event of Canadian forces going to the aid of Great Britain if she goes to war in Europe. Sir Donald's offer, made to Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, is to go with the forces wherever they may be despatched.

The men and officers who have volunteered to go to the front now number about eleven thousand, and if the call for volunteers is officially made it is confidently felt that this number would be multiplied several times.

At militia headquarters everything is ready for the word. If orders are given to mobolize, the necessary steps will be taken instantly to start the work all over the country.

The Farm Hand

The Story of a Flirtatious Couple.

By MARY. C. ETHEREDGE.

Nancy Burrows was such a desperate flirt that her mother, who deprecated her treatment of young men, determined, instead of taking her to places for the summer where she would meet them, to pass their outing season on a farm. Mrs. Burrows selected a place in a very attractive region, but distant from any summer resort. Indeed. Miss Nancy was obliged to remain without any attention whatever unless her passion for winning hearts should lead her to prey upon the farm men.

There was no one in the house where Nancy and her mother boarded except the farmer and his wife and several little children. From the front porch or from her window looking out over the fields Nancy saw nothing that resembled a man except a scarecrow set up in the midst of some growing corn. "If I remain here long enough," she said to herself, "I do believe I'll be spooning with the scarecrow. Oh, my goody gracious! What shall I do?"

She thought of the summer hotels full of guests, the country places of friends whom she had visited, the tennis, the boating, the bathing, the music and dancing, and heaved a deep sigh. Then she went to her mother and promised that she would be good, very good, if she might be permitted to spend at least the month of August elsewhere. "You'll be good here," replied the stern parent, "simply because you can't help yourself. I shall certainly not again trust you where there is a man within a hundred miles."

"Don't you expect me ever to be married, mamma? Do you intend to make an old maid of me?"

"I certainly do expect you to be married, and that's the reason I have brought you here. When you get the sense into your head to understand that marriage is the most serious event in a woman's life I will let you out again among men. At present you seem to have no appreciation whatever of the sacredness of love."

From this speech it may be inferred that Mrs. Burrows was a strong woman, quite capable of controlling her daughter. The truth is she desired when Nancy married to have something to say about the man she should choose for a husband. With these flirtations going on, how could she be sure that her daughter might not be caught in some one of her own traps? Once caught, it might be impossible to extricate her.

And, since Nancy was still fancy free, it seemed that this course was wise. Every year she was older than the one before, and perhaps by and by she would have some appreciation of the importance of marriage. She could then possibly be induced to select for a husband a man to be relied on to give her a position in the world rather than one whose only recommendation was that he was an excellent dancer or tennis player.

All this is full of wisdom and might have been carried out had not a certain young man who was as much of a scapegrace as Nancy herself heard the matter talked about—how a certain girl he had never seen or heard of had been buried in the country to keep her away from men because she had a mania for breaking hearts for pastime. The young man who heard the gossip, unterrified by the broken hearts of others, straightway was seized with a desire to have his own heart broken.

He asked the young lady's name and where she had been buried. The former he had no difficulty in learning; the latter required diligent investigation.

One morning when the July sun was shining down on a waving wheatfield Nancy Burrows heard the sound of a distant mowing machine. Going to a window, she saw a pair of horses drawing the machine in question along the edge of a field of wheat. The driver was dressed in a woolen shirt, trousers and a hood brimmed, faded straw hat. Doubtless, the harvest having arrived, a farm hand had been hired to cut the grain.

Nancy put on a shade hat and strolled out to witness the operation of cutting wheat. As she drew near the machine she noticed that the man driving it was not old. Indeed, he was not middle aged; he was young. But his dress was execrable. He didn't wear a cravat, not even a collar. Nevertheless his figure showed to advantage in his farmer's costume. As Nancy approached nearer she saw that he was not bad looking.

Nancy stood where the machine would pass her and as it did so expected the driver would give her an admiring glance such as she had been used to receiving from men, but at the moment he seemed to be interested in something about the harness of one of the horses and didn't even look at her. When he came back Nancy called to him, motioning him to stop. He pulled in and waited to hear what she had to say to him.

"Would you mind explaining your machine to me?" she asked.

"Can't: I'm working by the hour Git up!" was the response, and the machine rattled on its way.

"Well, I declare!" muttered Miss Burrows. "How little sense of politeness these country jakes have!"

When the farm hand returned he found the lady standing directly in his way, and he was forced to pull up or run over her.

"Would you mind moving aside, miss?" he asked. "You're directly in the way."

"Yes, I would. I asked you to explain your machine to me, and you refused. I have not been used to being treated that way."

Having been brought to terms, the young man did not seem averse to a bit of dialogue.

"Are you working for the man who owns this farm?" asked Nancy.

"I am."

"Are you going to stay at the house?"

"No."

"How long do you expect to work here?"

"As long as I'm wanted—till the end of the season, I reckon."

The man made several attempts to start his team, but every time was stopped with a question which Miss Burrows conjured up for the occasion. At last she permitted him to go on, with the injunction that thereafter when a lady asked him for information he was to stop his team and listen deferentially.

Mrs. Burrows one morning, sitting at a window reading a novel, saw her daughter emerge from the house, look about her irresolutely, pluck a spear of grass and chew on it, then proceed down into the wheatfield where the farm hand was driving the mowing machine. On Nancy's arrival the machine stopped, and a brief dialogue took place between the man and the girl. The man descended from his seat and helped the girl up into it. Then he drove from the ground, walking beside the machine for some distance, when Nancy held out her hands for the reins. They were passed up to her, and with difficulty she maintained her seat and drove the team.

"Great heavens," exclaimed the mother, "the child will fall off and be cut to pieces!"

But Nancy managed to maintain her balance, and her mother, having held her breath till her daughter descended from her perch, breathed easier.

"If he were any one but a country bumpkin," said the mother doubtfully, "I should feel worried."

The country bumpkin remained about the farm for some time, though he did not appear to work very steadily. Nancy found him far more useful to amuse her than the scarecrow and visited him frequently while he was at work. But she usually did so when her mother was busy or taking a siesta, so that she wasn't observed.

One day the farmer said to his hand: "I didn't hire you to amuse city boarders. I reckon you can light out. Here's what's due you." The hand made no reply, but, taking his wages, departed. The next morning, seeing Nancy leave the house to go to the wheatfield, he sauntered toward the fence. She saw him and, approaching, asked him why he was not at work.

"I'm discharged," was the reply.

"Discharged! What for?"

"The farmer says I spend too much of my time with you."

"You don't mean it! That's too bad. I'm awfully sorry. I didn't mean to take you away from your work."

"Can't be helped now. Besides, if he'd take me back I'd do it all over again."

"It's very nice of you to say that," said Nancy, lowering her eyes. "I'm indebted to you for a great deal of pleasure. It's very lonely here. I'm awfully sorry you won't be here any more. Where are you going?"

"I don't think I'll go right away. I'll stay where I am for awhile to see if I can't get more work about here."

"I'm glad you're not going right away."

About the time Mrs. Burrows was thinking of taking her daughter back to the city Miss Nancy was missing one evening from the supper table. The mother went to her daughter's room, but did not find her. Seven, 8, 9 o'clock came and no Nancy. Mrs. Burrows went over to some scattered houses across the road to make inquiries. She was informed that about 5 o'clock in the afternoon the discharged farm hand, driving on the road in a resplendent motor, picked up Nancy and disappeared in a cloud of dust.

Mrs. Burrows was very mad.

Nancy didn't show up again at the farm, but in a few days her mother received a letter from her stating that she had been married after a courtship that was "just too romantic for anything." A young man she had never seen, but had long loved her, so he said, had gone to the country disguised as a farm hand to win her. But mamma needn't worry, because he belonged to one of the best and wealthiest families in the city, was a member of the principal clubs and one of the best bridge whist players in the country.

"Can it possibly be that a man in a faded straw hat and without a collar can be a gentleman?" said the mother to herself.

The object for which she had taken her daughter to the country having ended, to say the least, peculiarly, Mrs. Burrows took the next train to the city. Before even announcing her presence there to her daughter she made inquiries about the man who had run away with her child and learned that Nancy had spoken the truth, but not all of it, for the groom had drawn the financial part of it very mildly. He was heir expectant to several millions.

Mrs. Burrows on getting this information sent for the couple and forgave them.

It has been said that the next summer no fewer than a dozen ladies, who had heard of this episode, took their daughters to spend the season on farms. But it does not appear that any of them married a rich man, while two of them married countrymen.

TRAGEDY AT GRIMSBY.

Man Attacks Grocer and Is Shot—He Also Tried Suicide.

GRIMSBY, Aug. 3.—Percy Sparling, aged 50, is dead from razor and bullet wounds and Jesse Ward, who keeps a store on the beach, held by Chief of Police Swayzee on a nominal charge, is also wounded in the throat from razor cuts as the result of a row over a woman named Miller.

Ward was asleep in bed above his store at three o'clock yesterday afternoon when Sparling entered his room and attacked him with a razor. Ward fought him off, but not before Sparling had gashed his throat severely. Seeing that he would be unable to overpower Ward, Sparling ran down the stairs and into the street using the razor to cut his own throat after he had got to the street. Ward chased him down the stairs with a revolver in his hand, firing twice and wounding Sparling in the leg and in the hip. Sparling died within a few minutes and Chief Swayzee arrested Ward.

GERMANY GIVES OUT WARNING

Is at War With Russia and Soon Will be With France

BERLIN, Aug. 3.—An official statement issued yesterday says:

"In consequence of a Russian attack on German territory, Germany is in a state of war with Russia.

"Moreover, France has mobilized, and an outbreak of war with France must, therefore, be reckoned with any day or any moment."

Another statement declares that Russia has invaded Germany during a time of peace, "in flagrant contradiction of Russia's peaceful assurances."

"The Russian column which crossed the frontier at Schwinden was accompanied by artillery.

"Two squadrons of Russian Cossacks are riding in the direction of Johannesburg, in East Prussia, fifteen miles from the frontier.

"The Russian patrol which entered near Eichenreid attacked the German guard at the railroad bridge over the Warthe. The attack was repulsed. Two Germans were slightly wounded."

The above information was given out by the Imperial Staff. The staff at the same time said that the invasion near Schwinden showed that war had actually begun.

A French aviator has been dropping bombs from an aeroplane in the neighborhood of Nuremberg, Bavaria, according to an announcement made by the military authorities yesterday. In making this announcement the authorities added that this action was a crime against the rights of man, as there has been no declaration of war.

ITALY IS NEUTRAL.

She Has Officially Notified Germany of Her Position.

PARIS, Aug. 3.—A despatch from Rome says that Italy formally notified the German Ambassador there yesterday evening that she will remain neutral. The text of the despatch follows:

"It is authoritatively announced that the Marquis di San Giuliano, Italian Foreign Minister, has informed the German Ambassador at Rome that Italy will remain neutral, her obligations under the Triple Alliance treaty applying only to a defensive war. Italy, therefore, considers herself released from her engagements, the war waged by Austria-Hungary, supported by Germany, being essentially an offensive war."

A further despatch from Chiasso says the Italian Government is undecided whether actively to participate in the struggle, or to remain neutral if the situation permits, making, meanwhile, sub-rosa, all military and naval preparations for defence or possible offence, notwithstanding the strong agitation by the Socialists, who favor abstention, even from preparations.

The Socialists challenge the Government, saying that if only one soldier or sailor is sent against France this time such a revolution will explode throughout Italy as to overthrow the present state of things.

Delcasse War Minister.

LONDON, Aug. 3. — A Paris despatch to The Central News, by indirect route, reports that Premier Viviani has made changes in the French Cabinet, whereby Theophile Delcasse becomes Minister of War and Eugene Georges Clemenceau, the ex-Premier, joins the Ministry.

SUMMER PASTIME
Instalment No. 42.

DON'T BE MISLED BY APPEARANCES

The Summer Pastime Requires Exercise of Wit.

In fact, we tell you that the surname represented by this picture is NOT William or Williams or Williamson. Surely you do not wish to win a cash prize without putting forth any effort at all. The name which is the correct answer to rebus picture No. 42 is not hidden either. It simply needs to be found, according to what you see in the picture.

You may think of the idea boy and imagine there must be a name Boye. In fact his first or Christian name might even be William as shown in hte picture. But how do you know that Boye or William Boye, or Bannerman o r any other plausible name suggested by ideas in the picture, is the RIGHT name? How do you know that it's the name of a recognized baseball or football player. You don't know. And even if you are a regular follower of sports, the limited number of names you are acquainted with is no criterion.

If you really want to WIN, if you want to get out of this competition in addition to delightful pastime, some of the good money we are offering, then get into the game in earnest.

What is worth doing at all, IS WORTH DOING WELL.

Provide yourself with a reliable aid, so you can quickly find the correct picture names, and feel that you are right when you have found them.

We recommend the
which is guaranteed to contain in accessible form the only correct 75 answers. The Handbook also has seventy-five extra Coupons. Duplicate, in fact as many as four, sets are permissible and you may win four prizes.

Save money by getting the coupons in the Handbook, which costs only 25 cents. And of course the Handbook contains the names which you are looking for.

APPOINTMENTS BY THE C.P.R.

Mr. E. J. Chamberlain, President of the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific Railways, announces the following important changes, effective Saturday, August 1st:—

"Owing to the death of Mr. M. M. Reynolds, Vice-President in charge of Finance and Accounting, that position is abolished.

"Mr. Frank Scott is appointed Vice-President and Treasurer in charge of all Finance of the Company, reporting direct to the President.

"Mr. W. H. Ardley is appointed Comptroller in charge of all Accounting of the Company, reporting direct to the President."

Mr. Frank Scott, the new Vice-President, is widely known in general banking and financial circles as well as in the railway world. He is a member of a distinguished Montreal family being the son of the late Dr. William E. Scott, M.D., for many years Professor of Anatomy at McGill University and Chief Medical Officer of the Grand Trunk Railway Company and is a brother of the Reverend Canon Scott of Quebec, one of the leading Canadian poets. Mr. Scott has been Treasurer of the Grand Trunk for the past thirteen years adding to that office Treasureship of the Grand Trunk Pacific in 1906. He entered railway service in 1879 as Clerk in the Audit Department of the Grand Trunk and has risen steadily to the Vice-Presidency. In 1891 he was appointed Secretary of the Audit Board and Purchasing Committee. Two years later he was made Assistant Treasurer and succeeded Mr. Charles Percy as Treasurer in 1901. He is a member of the board of Directors of the Grand Trunk Pacific; Past-President of the Society Railway Financial Officers of America and is a former Chairman of the St. James' Club, Montreal.

Mr. Walter Hardman Ardley, the new Comptroller has in his thirty years' service with the Grand Trunk risen from the junior clerkship to his present position as Chief of the whole Accounting Department of the big system. He entered railway service November 5th, 1884, and has been Chief Clerk and General Bookkeeper in General Auditor's Office 1893 to 1907; Auditor of Disbursements 1907 to 1908; Acting Chief Auditor August 31st, to December 31st, 1908, and General Auditor Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific Railways from January 1st, 1909 to date. He was recently appointed to the Board of Directors of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.

Dr. Robinson Has But Little Chance

In view of the fact that the interest in the Tamworth tragedy is now centred in the pursuit of Dr. C. K. Robinson, who is held responsible for the death of Miss York, the opinion of an official who has had long experience in criminal cases, will prove interesting.

He estimates that the doctor's chance of escape is less than one in ten, and his belief is founded chiefly on the fact that the doctor is a mere boy, and is what is termed an "accidental" criminal. He predicts that if Dr. Robinson is not caught within a few weeks, he will either surrender himself to justice or will suicide. Being an accidental criminal the doctor will not be sufficiently hardened to stand the pangs of remorse, and the magnitude of his crime, this official thinks, will bring the young man to a state of mind where he will do one or the other.

Assuming that the fugitive is fleeing from justice there are only two or three countries in the world where he would be safe from capture. In the whole of America, Venezuela is the only state with which there is no extradiction treaty with Canada. All the countries of Europe, except Turkey, are under extradition treaties, while China and Japan are the only countries in Asia in which Dr. Robinson would be safe.

If he is aboard any passenger liner at the present time his capture will be certain.

The following are the countries, with which extradition treaties with Canada are in force, and from whence any fugitive charged with a capital offence, may be extradicated: Argentine Republic, Austria-Hungary, Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Columbia, Denmark, Equador, France, Germany, Guatemala, Hayti, Italy, Liberia, Mexico, Monaco, Netherlands, Orange Free State, Portugal, Roumania, Russia, Salvador, San Mirano, Spain, Sweden, and Norway, Switzerland, Tonga, United States and Uruguay

Call to The Colors

The request from the Britsh War Office that the Canadian Government will expect all naval and army reservists to answer the call to the colors will affect several in this city. Sgt. J. A. Playford of the 57th Regiment is the only army reservist who belongs to the volunteers, but Policeman Downs and H. B. Watson are also on the reserve list. Sgt. Playford is understood to have received instructions from the department of Canadian Militia, but as he is out of the city on business that cannot be confirmed. He is an electrician in the employ of Alexander and Miller.

Several local people who intended to go abroad have cancelled their bookings owing to the graveness of the situation.

"Jack may have his faults, but his heart is in the right place."

"Well, you should know, my dear, for I saw you with your ear against it last night in the conservatory.

Canadian Pacific Increases Service

The Canadian Pacific is increasing its service on their Laurentian lines. In no part of their system has the travel developed in anything like similar proportion. It is, of course, to a great extent summer travel; but the late "Father" Labelle builded better than he knew when he first, after years of constant effort, was enabled to get his bit of pioneer line, through to St. Jerome—his "corduroy" line, as it was called in the early eighties — a line which ran through an immense country, the possibilities of which are only now being understood. The cure, whom the older generation would remember—burly and genial and rubicund —on St. James Street—did not foresee that development would commence as a result of his work—the setting down of scores of summer resorts, the building of towns, the setting up of pulp and kindred industries; the swarms of summer folk, living out in the open on the crests of the hills.

Irish Admiral of British Fleets

Great Britain has been fortunate in having her home fleet mobilized and ready for action at the moment when war clouds loomed up suddenly on the Austro-Servian frontier. Mobilized at Spithead for review by the King last month, men and ships are all found and in fighting trim.

Picked Out by Late King.

Among the old acquaintances which Britain's sailor King found on board the flagship, the Iron Duke, was the commander of the home fleets, Admiral Sir George Astley Callaghan, K. C. B. An Irishman of the old fighting breed, the man on whom the British nation now relies in the hour of danger is known throughout the navy as a brilliant officer. He was naval A. D. C. to the late King, whose judgment regarding men seldom erred. Edward VII. formed a very high opinion of his character and capabilities as a naval officer. Callaghan was one of the men spotted by Edward VII. as a coming man. He has worked his way up by sheer merit to his present responsible position, and is a general favorite in the senior service.

Blue Ribbon of Service.

As admiral of the home fleets, he has command of several fleets, and his command bestows upon him the blue ribbon of the naval profession. His salary is £1825 a year, augmented by table money to £1642 ($8200), not a big salary when compared with the "plums" in other walks of life. His term of appointment will expire in December, by which time history will have been made. The strong point in his favor is that he belongs to no clique, and in this respect sets an admirable precedent, which enables him to keep the navy out of political controversy.

Admiral Sir George Callaghan speaks Hindustani like a native, and knows every branch of his trade from gun-efficiency to sea-plane fighting. He first saw the light in Cork, 63 years ago, and has filled several important commands, including the Mediterranean. In the Boxer trouble of 1900 he commanded the British naval brigade in the march to Pekin, and was mentioned in despatches.

His Flagship.

The flagship of the home fleets, on which Admiral Sir George Callaghan flies his pennant, is the Iron Duke. This warship is one of the latest super-Dreadnoughts and was commissioned for the first time only a few months ago. She is 25,000 tons, carries ten 13.5 and twelve 6-inch guns. The entire fleets under his command number two hundred ships all told, including fifty five battleships of Dreadnought and pre-Dreadnought types, four battle cruisers, twenty-seven cruisers, twenty-eight light cruisers, seventy-eight torpedo-boat destropers, and other auxiliary vessels. In addition, the fleets have a large number of sea-planes and airships, which will doubtless play a spectacular and useful part in any engagements that may take plcae.

The Man of the Hour.

In the fighting turret of the Iron Duke Admiral Callaghan occupies the post of danger and honor, and it is no exaggeration to say that his mysterious departure from Portland with his fighting sea-dogs, and the glamor of uncertainty as to his objective, make him at this juncture the man of the hour.

DAVE TOPE MEETS DEATH IN HIS CAR

Hamilton Man Was Coming Here to See Ball Game

EN ROUTE TO LAKES

Widely Known for Prowess as Rugby Player

While motoring from Hamilton to Stoney Lake where he was to visit his wife and child, Dave Tope one of the greatest full backs that ever played Canadian rugby, was instantly killed on the lake road at Newtonville, Saturday, when his car struck a rut in the road and turned turtle. Mr. Tope was on his way to this city when he met his tragic death as he intended to remain over and take in the baseball game before going up the lakes. His body was shipped back to Hamilton for burial. In his home city he carried on a building contractor's business.

A Great Full Back.

In the death of Mr. Tope, rugby lost one of its most enthusiastic supporters and one of the greatest full backs that ever played. He was manager of the Tiger seniors last year. At the age of seventeen he captained the Tiger juniors and led his team to the Canadian championship in a game which was decided on a field of slush in forty minutes overtime by a score of 2-1

Played With Ben Simpson.

He was at the height of his career in 1908 when he played with Ben Simpson on the team that beat Montreal for the championship He broke his leg in that game and although he returned to the game the next year he lost some of his daring although when the Tigers beat Varsity in 1910 his great work behind the line probably saved the game as he was the only real fit senior on the back owing to injuries to Simpson and others. He was well known among the rubgy followers in this city.

Butcher's Horse Had to be Shot

Wm. Kemp, a bucher, lost a valuable delivery horse, Saturday evening, when the animal was struck by street car No. 33 and injured so that it had to be shot.

The driver escaped injury.

"HOLD IT TIGHT!"

"Hold it tight" is an excellent motto for a Scout at all times. You will find that if you touch a stinging nettle lightly with your fingers you will get stung, but grasp it firmly with the hand and it is quite harmless.

The same again with the hot handle of a kettle or saucepan on the fire; if you go to lift it gently you are nearly sure to burn your hand, but if you hold it tight you will not feel the heat.—The Scout.

PRACTICED FRAUD ON IMMIGRANT

Employment Agent is Fined $50 and Costs.

Fort William, Aug. 3.—A. F. Rochon, who operates an employment office here, was found guilty in police court of sending an immigrant out to a point 70 miles east on the Transcontinental railway from Superior Junction to work and charging him a dollar, when there was no job for the man there, and also of not keeping his registration book according to the immigration laws. He was fined $50 and costs on the first charge and ordered to pay $24 besides with which to cover the immigrant's expenses in connection with his trip, and $5 without costs on the second charge.

The case was prosecuted on behalf of the Dominion Government by Fred Babe of the firm of Morris & Babe. D. S. Reynold, travelling inspector of immigration and local immigration inspector A. H. Wilson were instrumental in laying the charge.

HARVEST HELP EXCURSIONS

$12.00 to Winnipeg August 11 and 18th

The Grand Trunk Railway System will run Harvest Help excursions via Chicago and Duluth on August 11 and 18, from all stations in Ontario, Kingston, Renfrew and west at low rate of $12.00 to Winnipeg, plus half cent. per mile from Winnipeg to destination. First excursion on August 11 applies to all points in Manitoba. Second excursion on August 18 to certain points in Saskatchewan and Alberta and all points in Manitoba. Returning, half cent per mile to Winnipeg, plus $18.00 from Winnipeg to destination in Eastern Canada.

The route via Chicago is an attractive one, many large cities and towns being passed en route, which breaks the monotony of the journey. The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is the shortest and quickest route between Winnipeg, Saskatoon and Edmonton and traverses some of the best farming country in Manitoba and the most rapidly developing section of Western Canada.

Contractor Jas. Bogue Met With Mishap

Contractor Bogue, who has bad charge of the work on the post office, had a rather peculiar and painful accident happen him this morning when he had the top of his index finger on his left hand badly bruised.

In some unknown manner, the vault door which has been installed in the new part of the post office, slammed shut, catching his finger and bruising it severely.—Lindsay Warder.

WM. H. ROBERTSON PASSED AWAY SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Proprietor of the Morning Times Succumbed to Paralytic Stroke

William H. Robertson, proprietor of the Morning Times, passed away yesterday afternoon at his late residence, Water Street, after a short illness. Last Wednesday night Mr. Robertson accompanied his wife and daughter on a motor ride. Eearly Thursday morning he was seized with a paralytic stroke which proved fatal. The late Mr. Robertson was born in Cobourg sixty-two years ago and moved to this city while a young boy. He received his early newspaper training with The Review. For the past forty years he had been associated with the Morning Times. The deceased leaves to mourn his loss a widow and one daughter, Miss M. Robertson at home. He was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

There are two sisters, Mrs. F. Wrightington of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Mrs. Hamilton of this city.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 526 Water St., on Wednesday morning, at 7.30, to the G.T.R. depot and the remains will be sent to Fenelon Falls for interment. Service will be held at the house on Tuesday evening at 8.30 by Rev. R. Pogue.

THOUSANDS AT FUNERAL OF MISS BLANCHE YORKE

Casket Was not Taken Into the Church

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 3.—Long before the hour set for the funeral services of Miss Blanche Yorke the Methodist Church was crowded, all the villagers and many of the people from the surrounding district being present. Some of these came from a long distance, a large contingent being from as far away as Smith's Falls. Outside in the street other crowds waited. Windows in all houses and stores were drawn.

Rev. Jos. Barnes, Methodist minister, preached a short sermon, taking as his text 'the deceitfulness of sin." He made no direct reference to any of the sensational features of the case.

The casket contining the mutililated remains of the young woman was not taken into the church. As the crowd filed out after the service the hearse brought the body up from the vault and the procession fell in behind. The burial ground is almost directly across the road from the house in the cellar of which Miss Yorke's body lay for almost three weeks. All the officials of the local council, together with W. J. Paul, M.P., and W. D. Black, M.P.P., were present.

Three Alarms of Fire

On Saturday morning between eleven and twelve o'clock the firemen answered two calls from the Dickson Co.'s Mill. The sawdust was on fire but was extinguished and no damage resulted.

Sunday at noon the firemen were called to the rear of Nugent's Drug Store where some debris was burning. A few minutes later and a large fire would have resulted. There was no damage.

This morning at ten o'clock the grass along the G.T.R. track between Perry and Lake Streets started to burn brightly and fearing that neighboring houses were in danger some one turned in an alarm. There was no damage.

Seems as though some women have so much time to sit on the front porch watching their neighbors, that they haven't a minute to themselves.

The Observation of the Sabbath

A theme of special interest was considered last night by Elder F. W. Johnston in the tent on the corner of Harvey and Dublin Streets, concerning why the great masses are and have been for centuries observing the first day or Sunday instead of Saturday, the seventh, the only Sacred day, of both the Old the New Testament, as Mr. Johnston asserts. Why is it, he declared, that the most of the Christian world is observing a day—Sabbath; for which as he says there isn't any Scriptural authority? Whence came such a veneration? the Elder enquired. Some assert that Jesus Christ and the Episcopal Church made the change of the Sabbath in honor of the resurrection. But nowhere said the elder, is such a change recorded, not even an intimation that such a change was intended. The Ten Commandment law which says "The Seventh Day is the Sabbath" is still of binding force and never was abolished at the Lord's resurrection.

Some confuse, so he said, the old law of Moses which consisted of offerings and feasts with God's eternal law which was spoken by him at Sinai and written with his own finger. But while the law of Moses expired at the cross of Christ the Ten Commandments law would continue on forever. This being true the Sabbath law as well which enjoins the observance of the Seventh day or Saturday would also continue, in the Lord's estimation, as being today of binding obligation.

Mr. Johnston then proceeded to show up the power that presumed to make the change in the Sabbath of the Lord. He presented Scripture and history to support all his statements and fully satisfied his hearers that it was not Jesus Christ, nor was even one of the Protestant denominations but Rome alone he said, is guilty of the act. He read the open challenge of Father Gerritsma where he offers $1,000 to any one who will prove from the Bible alone that Sunday is the day we are bound to keep instead of Saturday.

The tent was well filled and the evening was a pleasant one. Elder Johnston will be preaching every night during August.

Crop Outlook None too Bright

The outlook for good crops in the vicinity of this city is by no means bright, in fact Mr. R. Denne, who is sure to have the inside information on such matters, informed the Review today that there was going to be a feed famine. The straw is extremely short and the long dry spell had its effect on hay. In some parts the grain, such as late oats and barley is reported as being fair but on the whole the crops have been next to a failure.

The apple crop which has just been quoted as being average is not so good. A Review representative in speaking to Mr. John Matchet of Otonabee learned that this is the off year and out through his section apples are very scarce. Mr. Matchet also vouched for a shortage in straw and hay.

On the farm directly across from Matchet's is to be found one of the finest examples of the result of draining that could be desired. One half of the field was visited by the ditcher last fall and the crop on that section is away ahead of the crop on the division left undrained. To draw attention to this fact a large sign has been erected by the Department of Agriculture.

POLICE COURT

Two Fines Imposed for Disorderly Conduct

Manson Giles, a local man, charged with being drunk in charge of a vehicle, pleaded guilty before Magistrate Dumble this morning and was fined $6.60.

Giles was also fined $2 for disorderly conduct.

A son of Sunny Italy named Rutano was also charged with being disorderly. He was fined $5.75.

PLACING RAILS ON THE ROADS

A BIGGER, BRIGHTER, BETTER "CRESSMAN STORE"

This Store Has Grown—Is Growing Now—and Will Continue to Grow

¶ Twelve years ago we used this heading to announce the addition of our second store---

¶ Five years later we took in our third store and connected three into one—

¶ Last year additions were made and building done which added 25 per cent. to our selling space—

¶ And now we announce the addition of Store No. 4—The Schneider Jewellery Store, which will give us much needed additional space—

¶ Alterations and improvements will be commenced at once and rushed through as rapidly as possible—

¶ One of the outstanding features of the contemplated improvements will be the construction of

A DISPLAY ARCADE

Some 45 feet deep with windows on each side and at the end, giving about 100 additional feet of display windows—

¶ To make this "Cressman" Store a still better shopping centre, to further increase its efficiency and to add to its usefulness to the community is the goal towards which our aim is certainly fixed.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

Editor Review.

Dear Sir:—The praiseworthy efforts being made by Peterborough regarding the opening of the canal to the lake serve as a revival of interest on that point and must do great good in impressing the Government with the fact that we want this canal and want it soon. Peterborough as the largest centre on the canal is naturally expected to show that it is keenly expectant. Strange to say we have some knockers. They will "boost" anything they have a mind to, like baseball or croquet, but when it is explained to them that boosting may really serve a good purpose and a double purpose at that, they knock. Our efforts should be to hurry on the matter by all the means in our power. If we are in a hurry, others will be. If not, we may rest assured they will not be. A Tory scoffer is a poor Tory and a poor citizen. The canal should have been opened long ago, and don't act as if you expected it to be longer. Shove! Get it going. That is the way to get things, not by croaking like a common scold. If you are a day ahead, isn't it better than being asleep?

FASHIONS OF NIGERIA WOMEN

Beads the Only Garments and Some Wear Tails

Washington, Aug. 3.—In the remote part of northern Nigeria, not yet under the complete control of the British, there dwell a people whose women wear tails and are proud of them, according to a statement issued by the National Geographic Society at Washington, D. C., today. The statement is based on the investigations of Major A. J. N. Tremearne, who has served in Nigeria both as a police and political officer.

"True it is these tails are not of flesh and blood, but none the less they play an important part in the social life of the people, for they are the outward and visible sign of the matronly dignity," says the Major. "When a woman of the Kangoro, Kajji, or of four other neighboring tribes — the Atiakka, Morva, Katab, or the Jaba — becomes a bride, she puts off forever the simple girdle of twisted grass that, up to that moment, has been her sole adornment and assumes the apron of leaves and the tremendously significant tail, or gunnock, as it is called.

"In each of the tribes the gunnock varies in form, sometimes long and thin, at others short, mushroom-like and stumpy, or shaped like a long bell. These tails are made of palm fibre, plaited or bound together with string and usually stained with a red earth, which is also used for the further adornment of the lady's body. Often a gunnock is worn quite plain, but the more ambitious modes prescribe an embellishment of brass wire and colored glass beads. The Kangoro women are distinguished by the Quaker-like simplicity of their attire; they wear the shortest and plainest of tails, a few beads around the neck, and perhaps a really fashionable lady will add a bracelet or leglet of beads, but the gunnock itself remains in all its native severity.

Brass and Glass Used.

"The ladies of the Kajji tribe, however, affect a greater elegance; their tails are of greater length, the 'stumps' being covered with intricate designs worked in brass and copper wire, while the wheel shaped terminal is gay with colored beads set in a bed of liquid rubber, of which there is a great deal in the country. In this tribe the gunnock is generally worn over a bunch of leaves or grass similar to that which the ladies of all the tribes depend from their girdles in front. Sometimes a Kajji matron who desires to be a leader in the fashionable world will wear a tiny iron bell just above the tail, but this is of rare occurrence.

"To add further to their beauty, both the upper and lower lips of these women are pierced in order to admit a round, flat disk of wood called the tochiac, which is usually about the size of a half dollar. The lips of the little girls are pierced when they are seven or eight years of age, and a piece of wood inserted and worn for a time until a larger one takes its place, the opening thus being gradually enlarged until a full-sized tochiak can be carried without discomfort. The object of this singularly discomforting adornment is to prevent the women from eating dogs, which are considered the greatest delicacy by the men of the tribes.

"Both sexes decorate their bodies with regular designs, the chests and backs of the little girls are scarified at a very early age. When they arrive at a marriageable age the girls undergo a further ordeal, for two sets of parallel lines are cut both on the chest and the back, and as soon as possible after marriage the head lines are made. These consist of a number of short cuts across the forehead, extending from ear to ear, and thirteen long slanting lines are cut on each cheek from ear to chin."

GOLF

Another round in the golf club championship was completed Saturday when R. M. Hamilton, W. C. Gowan and F. C. Neal were victorious. R. M. Hamilton defeated A. H. Stratton 2 up while W. C. Gowan defeated W. H. Denham in a close match and T. D. Mulholland fell before the drives of F. C. Neal. The three winners will draw and the one who draws the bye will play the winner of the next match for the honors.

Lindsay Will Have Intermediate Team

The hockey season in a manner gets under way today. Hockey enthusiasts in Lindsay will be pleased to hear that Lindsay will have a team in the Association this year, and the series will probably be intermediate. The intention was to have Junior Hockey, but several of the best juniors will be out of town this winter

Leading Up to It.

Borrowby—Let's see! Do I owe you anything? Bangs—Not a cent, my boy. Are you going around paying your little debts? Borrowby—No; going around seeing if I'd overlooked anybody. Lend me five till Saturday, will you?—Boston Transcript.

Sympathy.

Mrs. Thompson—My husband is seriously ill. He's having a consultation now. Laundress—Poor man. Do it hurt him bad?—Life.

Conversation at Meals.

Children should be taught to talk at mealtimes. So often it happens that one or two members of a family get into a way of monopolizing all the conversation, while the others sit silent.

Every one ought to contribute to the general amusement. If children are taught to notice and remember little interesting things that happen throughout the day they very soon form a habit of doing their part.

The man or woman who has nothing to say acts as a wet blanket at any party, and nobody wants a wet blanket.

P. E. I. Encourages Cattle Breeding.

The Beef Cattle Breeders' Association of Prince Edward Island has been formed through the efforts of the island's Provincial Department of Agriculture. Its object is to encourage the breeding and improvement of beef cattle. It is probable that the association will supervise the importation of registered Herefords, Galloways, Polled Angus and English Shorthorns, which breeds of beef cattle have been found best suited to Eastern Canada. Beef animals in Prince Edward Island number 45,000 to 50,000, and are, if anything decreasing. While corn cannot be grown successfully for fattening cattle, the peas, oats and turnips, which are plentiful and easily produced, are said to be equally valuable in beef-making qualities. The number of beef cattle in the Dominion of Canada has gradually fallen from 4,629,836 in 1908 to 4,093,600 in 1912.

ACTIVITY AT OTTAWA

Cabinet Has Met Almost Continuously Since Saturday.

Special Issue of Canada Gazette Published Sunday Afternoon Calls Upon British Naval Reservists To Report at Once — Preparations Made For Possible Special Session of the Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, Aug. 3. — The Cabinet has been in session almost continuously since the Prime Minister's return to Ottawa on Saturday morning, and every phase of the situation has been discussed. All of the Departments concerned are giving closest attention to everything that requires to be done both in the matter of the coast defences and the possible sending of a contingent. Every official and technical man in the Departments who may be at all affected by the present crisis has been notified to remain on duty until 5 p.m., and on Saturday afternoons and in every case to let it be known where he can be reached at any hour.

The return of Sir Wilfrid Laurier to the capital yesterday from his summer home at Arthabaskaville, Que., is an indication that in the face of the present crisis all party lines are wiped out. Sir Wilfrid will lend his counsel to the Government and support them to the utmost of his ability in their purpose of aiding Britain to the limit of the Dominion's power.

The members of the Cabinet will all be here to-day except Hon. Geo. Perley, who is in England, Hon. Dr. Roche, who has not sufficiently recovered from his recent operation, Hon. Martin Burrell and Hon. Mr. Lougheed. The two latter Ministers will be here as early as possible. Confidential messages are constantly being received from London and these will be considered by the full Cabinet. Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes was in Quebec yesterday, but he returns here to-day.

Col. Farquhar, military secretary to the Duke of Connaught, arrived here yesterday morning, having left Banff on Thursday morning. The Duke of Connaught's special train left there Saturday at 11 a.m. and is expected here very early to-morrow.

Dr. Flint, clerk of the House of Commons, and other officials are preparing for a possible special session of Parliament.

The special issue of the Canada Gazette, published Sunday afternoon, contained the following imperial proclamation:

"Royal Naval Reserves called out."

"Public notice is hereby given that His Royal Highness the Governor-General has received a telegraphic despatch from the Secretary of State for the Colonies announcing that his Majesty the King has by royal proclamation called out the Royal Naval Reserves. Attention is directed to the fact that by this proclamation men serving abroad, whether on shore or in merchant vessels, are required to report themselves to the first British naval consular or colonial officer they meet or failing that to the nearest registrar on arrival in the United Kingdom.

"Of which all persons concerned are required to take notice and to govern themselves accordingly."

By command,
(Signed by) R. L. BORDEN,
Secretary of State for External Affairs.

The Royal Naval Reserves are officers and seamen of the merchant service, who have taken a special course of training in the British navy, have received a certificate of competence, and have pledged themselves to answer a call to serve in the navy.

They are scattered all over the world, there now being many thousands of them in the port of New York and other American ports.

This is the first time that such a call has ever been made and it is considered an indication that Great Britain intends to support France.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Aug. 1.—Owing to the serious political situation the export trade in all lines of grain today was at a standstill, there being no demand from foreign buyers and no disposition on the part of exporters to make offers, but a steady trade was done in coarse grains on spot and the tone of the market was very firm at the recent advance in prices. There was no actual change in the flour situation, but the undertone to the market was also firm with millers only accepting orders from local and country buyers for prompt delivery. In millfeed the feeling is firm with a good steady trade passing.

PETES' ERRORS HELPED ATHLETICS TAKE LAST GAME BY 5 TO 2 COUNT

Someone said that the Irish question would be forgotten about entirely and crowded into the dark shadows owing to the European conflagation but Ireland was very prominent in Saturday's ball game which the Petes lost to Hamilton by a score of 5-3. The Irishman who figured prominently in the win was Mr. Dolan on the mound for the Athletics while Peterboro's Irish receiver, Kelly by name, had a bad day with his arm and his pegging let in two runs. Therefore it might be said that Ireland was not divided on Saturday. Dolan clearly outpitched Bob Sterling as the visitors garnered eleven hits off the big fellow's offerings which consisted of lots of powder but very little of the mystifying stuff. On the other hand Dolan hurled a nice steady game and mixed them up in good style. Only in the third did the Petes solve his delivery when they bunched three hits for two runs. It was a pretty fair game of ball although the locals did not display their usual infield snap. The Hamilton crew played nice even ball and the work of Dolan in fielding his position in the box was a feature. Sterling had six assists himself from the box and a put out. The winners had men on in almost every innings but failed to show any speed on the paths although a couple of well timed sacrifice hits happened when they did some damage.

A Home Run.

Cunningham, the visitor's second baseman, poled out a circuit clout which he whaled over the sheds in left field. It was the longest clout of the season on these grounds and happened in the first innings. Biddy Dolan the local's first baseman kept up his hitting and had two of the local's bingles. Jack White retained his batting eye and had a duet of hits as did Corns, Baldwin and Red Fisher.

The Petes got a tally in the first when Blount worked Dolan for a pass. Welsh sacrificed and Curly stole third. Dolan then poled a hit to left. Rooney and Byrne flied out. In the third, Blount started the fun with a double and scored when Welsh singled. Dolan laid down a sacrifice and Rooney doubled scoring Welsh. The Petes were never really dangerous after that.

Cunningham counted Hamilton's first run on a circuit clout. Corns and Pendry were easy outs but singles by Ivers and White and Kelly's error scored Ivers. In the fourth Baldwin singled, Fisher flew out and Dolan singled to right. Baldwin was run down between home and third and Kelly "beaned" him with the pill in trying to make a throw to Byrne and Baldwin scored. In the eighth,, White singled, McGroarty sacrificed and Fisher singled, scoring White. In the ninth, a pass to Cunningham, a sacrifice by Corns, Fox's boot of Pendry's roller and his bad throw allowed Cunningham to score.

The second booster's day at Riverside Park, Saturday afternoon was fairly satisfactory. from a point of attednance, but the result was not The Petes took the small end of the 5 to 3 score.

It was an interesting game. The Blountmen held a short lead in the initial stages but the Hams came along with a winning stride and assisted by Kelly and Fox breezed to the front. Kelly hit a runner with the ball, when Byrne and the local catcher tried to make the out. This allowed a score and Fox threw the ball over Byrne's head and this gave another counter.

Bob Sterling pitched good enough to win, with his team mates playing errorless ball. But Dolan had a better day. He had good control, and his offerings were more or less of a mystery to the Petes. Also, the Athletic hurler helped a whole lot by his fielding having seven assists.

The Hams left Saturday night for Ottawa and the Petes journeyed yesterday to London.

Jack Coombs Will Come Back To Athletics

Jack Coombs will again pitch for the Athletics.

So the doctors say.

He has visited the best specialists in the east. They have assured him that by next spring he will be able to take his regular turn in the box.

"I lack the weight now," says the former great iron man from the north woods of Maine.

"My fast ball is missing," continues Jack, "but my arm is getting better right along and my curve is working nicely."

In Syracuse the other day he pitched in an exhibition game and had Syracuse helpless. It was his first real attempt to twirl since illness brought him down.

No ordinary man could ever have survived the siege that Coombs went through. His recovery is a tribute to clean living. An "iron" constitution and perfect habits, built up under Coombs' skin physical fortifications which several of the fiercest assaults known to medical science could not shatters completely. He came out of the skirmish in which he faced death time and again, considerably battered but with enough of the foundation left to build anew.

"I'll never be as good as I was," sighs Coombs. "I'll be glad, though, if I can have a few more years, say three, then I will be ready to quit."

"I had hopes of having another season like 1911, but have given that up. I'll never be that good again."

Coombs is feeling well, his appetite and sleep are sound and regular, and his weight is increasing. His complexion has a healthy glow, and his eyes are clear as crystals.

Coombs, even at his best, was not an ordinary iron man. His ability, and desire for an unusual amount of work overshadowed his greatest asset —a keen brain. Coombs is one of the brainiest pitchers of all time. He knows as much about pitching as any twirler in either major league. A man with his knowledge can afford to lose quite an amount of speed and still be a winning twirler.

Only a few days ago he heard the verdict that he would be in condition to pitch again by next year. The doctors told him he had better hold off this season but that when next spring came he could go south with plans of chucking in his regular turn.

"They never miss you when you're gone" cannot be applied to Coombs' case. Nothing would be more welcome to the Athletics in particular and baseball in general than his return. Connie Mack never had a man more missed than Coombs. He has ever been an invaluble help to the Athletics and a credit to the game.

PETES WON IN MORNING GAME

Shut-out the Cockneys and Scored Four

The Petes captured the morning game from London to-day by a score of 4-0. To-day is civic holiday in the Forest City, while it is also the opening day of Old Home week. Another game will be staged this afternoon.

TWO REGATTAS.

The annual regatta of the Stoney Lake Cottagers Association will be held at Juniper Island on Monday, August 10th. The annual regatta at Chemong Park will be held this year on Thursday, August 13th.

Paper for cigarettes imported from Spain last year weighed four million pounds, the value being $750,000.

BARBERS TO TRY A BALL GAME

Even the Tonsorial artists are at it. On Thursday afternoon despite the war of all nations, the Benedicts and single ones of the barbers will engage in their annual ball game for the championship for the season. The Benedicts have imported Jimmie Lewis the star short stop. This added feature is expected to draw a large crowd. Other interesting sights may also be in evidence at the game which will be played at the Riverside Park.

COMMENT

As You Like It

THE PETES have the hardest task of the season ahead of them during the week and next week. They open a four game series with London today, after which they swing over to Ottawa for five games, thence home for four games with the Senators. It will be some task but given good support in the pitching box the club should have fair success. It is absolutely necessary that Cresswell will be worked durıng the coming hostilities as four pitchers cannot bear the burden alone and be expected to do anything of note.

THE SERIES JUST CLOSED with Hamilton was a big surprise to the fans. The Petes were expected to clean up but the result shows that you never can tell in baseball. Tracey hurled nice ball in the opening game while the Hams fielded in wretched style. The work of Belting and Sterling was only fair as compared with that of Dougherty and Dolan, while in the last two games the visitors fielded just a little better than the Petes and batted more consistently.

JIMMY DIRECT, Frank Montgomery's sturdy little stallion will be shipped to Burke's Falls tonight to take in the meet there. The local racer gave some of the best of the 2.13 class an awful battle before he was finally placed fifth at Montreal and should be the entry to beat at Burk's Falls.

BOWLERS BUSY AT TOURNEY

Many Rinks Competing at Brookside Greens To-day

The annual tourney of the Central Ontario Bowling Association opened on the greens of the Peterboro Lawn Bowling Club on Brock Street this morning when 23 rinks from the surrounding district started in the competitions for the trophy and consolation prizes. Fourteen rinks drew in the preliminary round, which was finished about 11.30, the winners going into the first round for the trophy along with the other rinks which drew first round cards, while the losers of the preliminary entered the first round of the consolation along with the losing rinks of the first round. The greens were in excellent shape, but a tricky wind swept across the field and interfered somewhat with the draw shots. The bowling as a whole was keen and the competition good. The following clubs and the number of rinks representing them are present; Cobourg 2, Bowmanville 1, Port Hope 4, Oshawa 5, Peterboro 5, Millbrook 2, Lindsay 4. The president of the association is William Allen of Cobourg, while R. J. Soden is secretary-treasurer.

Three local rinks were drawn in the preliminary. The Waddel and Fitzgerald rinks won their games, but the Pratt rink succumbed to the superior bowling of Skip Peacock of Oshawa. Only one game had been finished in the first round up until noon, and Skip Moore of Peterboro led his rink to an easy victory over Ellis of Oshawa. Swanson of Oshawa downed the McMillan rink of Port Hope on the last end by a beautiful shot which gave his rink two points and made the final 9-8. Another close game was that in which Rosvear of Port Hope defeated Rogers of Lindsay 14-13. At the ninth end the winning rink was eight up, mainly because of some fine work in the fifth end, but the losers made it close

Hats off to the Scouts! We can never look at the khaki-clad figures again without the memory of the little chap whose last breath was one of courage-waking in us. He was a little worker going an errand on his bicycle through the crowded streets of Hitchin, when a motorbus caught him and passed over his stomach. People ran to pick him up, when, with a faint smile, he said: "I will be brave; I am a Scout," then fainted. He lasted a whole night at the hospital, and not once did he complain or cryout although after the first shock he regained and held his consciousness to the end. All that he said, and he murmured it to the last: "I have to be brave; I am a Scout." The little fellow—he was one of the real breed—the sort that made the great empire the biggest thing in the world. His small, brave soul was that of a Bobs or a Kitchener. Poor little chap. Brave little Scout!

LORD KITCHENER

who may be Commander in Chief of the British forces.

SIR EDWARD GREY FOR PEACE

SIR EDWARD GREY

Minister of Foreign Affairs for Britain who has been unceasing in his efforts to bring peace out of the present turmoil in Europe.

The British Foreign Office is for the moment in the limelight. It is fortunate for the Empire that the Minister in charge of foreign affairs is a man in whom all parties repose implicit confidence. In Sir Edward Grey the country possesses a Minister who, at a time when democracy is claiming greater control in administrative affairs, jealously maintains the non-party traditions of the Foreign Office. Criticized by his own side, he has rigidly adhered to the precedent, set by his predecessors, of exercising a reasonable discretion and a cautious regard for national interests when questioned in the House of Commons on matters concerning international relations. He has resolutely refused to answer questions, except on certain days, and he will not be drawn, even by members of his own party, into betraying what he regards as the paramount interests of his country by imparting information of a character calculated to serve the cause of a potential enemy. He is a strong man and generally recognised to be the ablest Foreign Secretary since the days of Lord Salisbury. In their desire not to embarrass the Asquith Government at this critical juncture, the Opposition are actuated not only by the highest patriotic motives, but also by a sincere admiration for the man on whose shoulders rests the weight of responsibility in the hour when the diplomat alone stands between the nations and red war. Sir Edward has earned the confidence of the nation in the several crises through which Britain has passed, when international conflict seemed inevitable. He has a sane horror of war and will exhaust all the resources of diplomacy to avert the calamity which seems impending.

As Others See Him.

Gladstone, speaking of Sir Edward, observed on one occasion that he had never remembered so signal a capacity for parliamentary life and so small a disposition for it. He has succeeded in spite of his temperamental defects. At 22 he made his maiden speech in the House, and was spoken of by veteran statesmen as a coming Prime Minister. But he detests parliamentary life and holds aloof from the acrimonious recriminations to which political controversy not infrequently descends.

He is never so happy as when he can throw off the cares of office and retire to some familiar stream for a day's fishing. He is not a fighter of the Chamberlain or Lloyd George type, and is unsuited for the rough-and tumble of the political arena. Clean-shaven, boyish in appearance, with frank, penetrating, dark eyes, intellectual forehead and inflexible mouth, he is one of the few public men who have made no enemies.

A Humorous Vein.

An effective speaker, Sir Edward seldom interferes in debate, and has a fine scorn for demagogic appeals to the gallery. On one occasion he indulged in a classical quotation, and a Labor member at once rose and asked to be furnished with a translation. On another occasion he was waylaid by a journalist who desired information in regard to foreign affairs. With a mischievous smile, the Foreign Secretary blandly agreed to be interviewed. "I must be guarded in my language," he laughingly observed, and spoke in Latin. When the interviewer remarked, with some embarrassment, "I—er—don't quite catch it," Sir Edward replied, "Then I'll talk more distinctly." And he did—in Greek.

A Disciple of Rosebery.

An imperialist of the Rosebery school, Sir Edward Grey's inclusion in the Campbell-Bannerman Cabinet was regarded in advanced Liberal circles with some misgiving, and by the Opposition with ill-concealed joy. But Sir Edward has falsified the hopes then entertained in Opposition circles that the Imperial wing of Liberalism would either destroy the party or withdraw. Throughout nine years of Liberal legislation of a most advanced type, Sir Edward has proved that it is possible to reconcile Imperialism with social reform, and in the removal of all just grievances to strengthen and consolidate the nation and Empire in the hour of danger.

BELGIUM IS THREATENED DEFEAT FOR AUSTRIANS INVASIONS CONTINUE

Rumor Says Germany Has Declared War Against Belgium --- French Naval Station is Bombarded

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, Aug. 4.—According to the Daily Mail, the German ultimatum to Belgium threatened to treat that country as an enemy and carried the implied intention of Germany to seize Belgian Congo in the event of a refusal to permit the passing of German forces through Belgium.

SECOND ULTIMATUM.

London, Aug. 4.—A second ultimatum sent by Germany to Belgium, declares Germany is prepared to carry through by force of arms if necessary any measures she considers essential.

Brussels, Aug. 4. — Rumors were in circulation to-day that Germany had actually declared war against Belgium. German troops crossed the frontier of Germany near a junction of the Belgian and German frontiers.

VICTORY FOR SERVIANS.

Paris, France, Aug. 4.—A despatch from Nisch, Servia, to The Matin says Austrian troops were defeated with heavy loss in a battle against Servians on Sunday. Three regiments of Austrians, numbering one thousand men supported by heavy artillery fire advanced against Servians, but were repulsed with loss.

INVASION CONTINUED.

Paris, Aug. 4.—Germans during the night made frequent raids into French territory, but the French refused to be drawn beyond a six mile zone left unoccupied along the frontier. Germans to-day made further invasion of the Belgian territory near Vervior.

VISCOUNT MORLEY ABSENT

London, Aug. 4. — Viscount Morley did not attend to-day's meeting of the British Cabinet, and this was taken as an indication that he had resigned as Lord President of the Council.

STATION BOMBARDED.

London, Aug. 4.—A despatch to the French embassy here says the German cruiser Breslau bombarded the French naval station of Bona, Algeria, early this morning and then steamed full speed in a westerly direction.

GERMANS IN HOLLAND.

Brussels, Aug. 4.—The Burgomaster of Antwerp announced last night that the Germans had invaded Limburg, Holland, and that province has been placed under martial law.

Paris, Aug. 4. — German troops to-day crossed into French territory near Marsellateur, where one of the most important battles of the Franco-Prussian war was fought.

SWEDEN IS QUESTIONED.

Stockholm, July 4.—It was stated to-day that both Germany and Russia made inquiries Sunday as to whether Sweden would remain neutral. Germany's note was brief, merely demanding to know whether Sweden was "for or against us." Ministers declined to say what reply was given.

CITY COUNCIL SPEAKS FOR CITIZENS

At last night's Council meeting Mayor Buller read a telegram from the editor of the Montreal Star asking the opinion of the City Council as to what action Canada should take in the event of Great Britain being drawn into the conflict.

"Tell them we are ready td go any time," remarked Ald. Duncan.

The Council decided that the Mayor wire the editor of the Montreal Star to the effect that in the opinion of the Peterborough Council, all Canada should be ready with money, men and sympathy to help the Motherland in case of war, and this city would do its part.

GERMAN BOAT WITH GOLD IS IN U.S. HARBOR

Canadian Press Despatch.

Bar Harbor, Maine, Aug. 4.—The North German Lloyd steamer Kronprinzessen Cecilie, carrying more than $10,000,000 in gold, and whose whereabouts have been a mystery since she sailed from New York last Tuesday, has arrived in the harbor here today. The Cecilie dropped anchor here at six o'clock this morning after a forced run of four days, her officers fearing capture.

Toronto, Aug. 4.—While the North German Lloyd steamer Kronprinzessin Cecilie reached Bar Harbor today having steamed full speed from mid Atlantic, to avoid the possible capture of ten million dollars in gold aboard, the Hamburg American steamer of the same name put into Falmouth, England.

GERMANY MUST GIVE ANSWER BY MIDNIGHT

EMPEROR NICHOLAS IS BLAMED

Canadian Press Despatch.

Berlin, Aug. 4.—Responsibility for the war in which Germany, Russia and France are now engaged, is placed squarely upon the shoulders of Emperor Nicholas in a statement issued by the German Government and given prominence in the press today.

While negotiations looking to a peaceful way out of difficulties are pending, Russia it is charged, invaded Germany and a few hours later, France opened hostilities.

House of Commons Votes Five Hundred and Twenty-Five Millions For Emergency Purposes --- King's Proclamation For Mobilization is Wildly Cheered.

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, Aug. 4.—The House of Commons to-day voted $525,700,000 for emergency purposes and passed several bills in five minutes without a dissenting voice.

London, Aug. 4.—Great Britain to-day sent [illegible] is practically an ultimatum to Germany demanding a satisfactory reply by midnight to-night on the subject of Belgium's neutrality.

London.—The proclamation by King George commanding the mobilization of the British army was read to-day from the steps of the Royal Exchange. A huge crowd cheered and sang the British national anthem.

London, Aug. 4. — Premier Asquith in the House of Commons confirmed the sending to Germany of a request that she should give the same assurance of neutrality of Belgium as France had done, and that her reply should be sent to England before midnight.

London, Aug. 4.—Germany's reply to Sir Edward Grey's speech indicating the British attitude in regard to the violation of Belgian territory by Germany, was a second ultimatum from Berlin to Brussels saying that Germany was prepared to carry through her plans by force of arms if necessary.

The British Government was officially informed by Belgium to-day that German troops had invaded Belgium and that the violation of that country's neutrality, which the British foreign secretary yesterday intimated must be followed by action on the part of the British Government had become an accomplished fact. Definite announcement of Great Britain's intentions under this grave affront was expected in the House of Commons this afternoon.

In the meantime, John Burns has resigned from the British Cabinet and Viscount Morley's absence from its meeting, indicated another strong peace advocate had also determined to leave his colleagues. Diplomatic relations had already been severed last night between Germany and France, and the German Ambassador in leaving Paris, informed the French Premier that Germany regarded herself as in a state of war with France, which requested Germany to hand the French ambassador in Berlin his passports. The open breach between France and Germany was rapidly followed by the presence of German troops on French territory and by bomb throwing by German aeroplanes, which attacked the fortified town of Luneville without doing anything more than damage to a roadway.

COUNT DE LESSEPS OFF TO FRANCE

Came to the City to Take Fast Train for the East

Count de Lesseps arrived in this city yesterday afternoon on his private yacht, from his magnificent summer residence at the Upper Lakes en route for Montreal where he will take passage to England and thence to France in answer to the call to arms. The count was accompanied to this city by his wife who was formerly Miss Mackenzie, daughter of Sir William Mackenzie the railroad magnate. He left on the midnight C.P.R. flyer and the parting of his wife and himself was very touching. The yacht returned to the lakes this morning.

A few years ago Count de Lesseps was recognized as one of the foremost aviators in the world and one of the most valuabe airmen in the French air fleet. He met Miss Mackenzie while giving flying exhibitions in Toronto and they were married in London, England. At the time of his marriage he vowed he would never again follow the profession of aviation, but under the present circumstances, he will probably place himself under the orders of his superior officers. He is an army reservist and is well known throughout Canada.

Sees Defeat for Germany.

Among the several reserve men of Great Britain in the city is Harry W. Watson of the Oriental staff. Mr. Watson is a reserve naval man and in conversation with the Review yesterday remarked that he was of the strong opinion that Great Britain would take part in the war and that Germany would not last long in the struggle.

Germans Cut Communication

Canadian Press Despatch.

Paris, Aug. 4.—German troops today cut telephone and telegraph wires on French territory along the border. No engagement in force was reported.

RUSSIAN WARSHIP AGROUND

Operations on the Bourse at Rome Are Suspended

Mobilization is Completed at Berne Switzerland

Canadian Press Despatch.

Copenhagen, Aug. 4.—A Russian warship is aground at Aland Islands, said to be the Andre Pervosvannyi, a battleship of 17,400 tons.

Rome, Aug. 4.—Operations on the Bourse were today indefinitely suspended.

Berne, Switzerland, Aug. 4.—Military mobilization has been completed. Every able-bodied man has responded to the colors and every railway bridge and mountain pass is occupied.

No Sailings to Mediterranean

Canadian Press Despatch.

New York, Aug. 4.—The head office in Glasgow has ordered all sailings of the Anchor Line to the Mediterranean suspended.

CHARGES GERMANY WITH EXECUTION

Canadian Press Despatch.

Paris, Aug. 4.—A note issued by the French War Minister contains the statement that according to positive authority the first act of the Germans after the rupture of relations was to execute M. Samain, a former President, the French War Secretary, who listed in Metz and to imprison all members of that society.

Ready to Enlist With Volunteers

Lt. Colonel Clegg, officer commanding of the 57th Regiment received a letter this morning from Harold A. Littledale on the staff of the Evening Post, New York City, stating that he was ready to enlist with volunteers of the 57th Regiment if occasion demanded. Littledale joined the local regiment while doing reportorial work in this city some years ago.

Col. Clegg has not received any orders from Ottawa.

57th Officers.

There will be a meeting of the officers of the 57th Regiment in the armouries tonight at eight o'clock.

Luxemburg is a Neutral State.

Luxemburg, where the German soldiers entered, is a neutral state of Europe, bounded by Germany, Belgium and France. Its area is 998 square miles and its population 259,889. Luxemburg is the capital, with a population of 20,848.

In 1867 the state was declared neutral, by the Treaty of London, under the sovereignty of the King of the Netherlands, on whose decease in 1890, it passed to the Duke of Nassau.

By the terms of the Treaty of London the fortifications of Luxemburg City were dismantled. At one time they ranked second to those of Gibraltar.

USE WIRELESS INSTEAD OF THE USUAL MEANS

Although the local post office officials have received no official work it is stated that the Government has plans almost completed for the immediate erection of wireless stations on the post offices of the principal cities in case war is declared. It is understood that the equipments would be used for dispatching Government messages of importance instead of relying on the commercial wires.

HIS VISIT HERE WAS VERY BRIEF

Lt. Arnott's Leave of Absence is Cancelled

Lt. T. L. Arnott of the Lord Strathcona Mounted Horse, stationed at Winnipeg, Man., who arrived in the city this morning on a leave of absence to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arnott, of Rubidge Street, received word a few minutes after his arrival that his leave of absence was cancelled and that he was required to return immediately. The Lord Strathcona Horse are expected to leave for the front as soon as possible.

A GRASS FIRE.

A grass fire on the corner of Hilliard and George Streets this morning at ten-thirty gave the firemen a long run. The blaze, which in all probability started from a spark from an engine, had spread to a fence and neighbors sent in an alarm. It was extinguished with chemicals.

CLOSING OF RETREAT.

The retreat for the Sisters of St. Joseph which is being held at Mount St. Joseph this week will be brought to a close to-morrow morning when several young ladies will receive the holy habit and others will make their final vows.

LOCAL NURSES WOULD GO TO FRONT

Have Offered Their Services if War Breaks Out

An evidence of the wave of patriotism which is sweeping over the Dominion since the intimation was given that Great Britain might become evolved in the war, is shown by the information that several local trained nurses have volunteered to answer the call and go into the battlefield to help the fallen soldiers. That information was given out today by a well known local nurse. She stated that a communication had been received from the Canadian National Association of Trained Nurses stating that the organization had offered its assistance and that any local nurse who desired to go if called upon could do so by registering with Miss Gunn, secretary of the organization, care of the Toronto General Hospital.

INVASION AT TWO POINTS

Is Made by Germans in the French Territory

FRESH VIOLATIONS

By Kaiser's Troops Are Reported To-day

Canadian Press Despatch.

Paris, Aug. 4.—Germans have penetrated French territory at two points. They first entered Longlaville in the department of Neurthe-et-Moselle, part of an Old Lorraine near Longway and later invaded Cirey sur Vesouze in the same department. The German entry into Duchy of Luxemburg was headed by thirty-five automobiles filled with officers, these being followed by cavalry in force.

Several fresh violations of French territory by German troops were reported today. Detachments visited outlying farms at Lepuix near Belfort and requisitioned cattle.

THE WORD IS THEREFORE TO WAR, SAYS KING ALBERT

Will Maintain the Sacred Promise of Our Fathers, His Declaration

Canadian Press Despatch.

Brussels, Aug. 4.—A wild scene of patriotic enthusiasm occurred today when King Albert presided over a joint meeting of the senate, and deputies and members stood and shouted in chorus when the king said "We will maintain the sacred promise of our fathers, long live independent Belgium," and another demonstration followed the King's declaration "the word is therefore to arms Belgium supported by united energy of her sons will not perish."

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The most important feature of the diplomatic situation in Europe yesterday was the appeal of King Albert of Belgium to Britain to preserve the integrity of his kingdom. The message to Britain followed an offer from Germany to Belgium to recognise the latter's neutrality if she would permit the transportation of German troops across her territory. This was firmly refused, and King Albert sent the following telegram to Britain:

"Remembering the numerous proofs of Your Majesty's friendship and that of your predecessor, of the friendly attitude of England in 1870, and the proof of the friendship which she has just given us again, I make a supreme appeal to the diplomatic intervention of Your Majesty's Government to safeguard to integrity of Belgium."

PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, AUGUST 4, 1914

FRENCH-CANADIAN PAPERS SHOULD SPEAK.

THE REVIEW receives two French papers, La Presse and La Patrie, in which it has looked for an expression of Canada's relation to Britain in this great hour of danger. We have read well-reasoned disquisitions on the European crisis, but have failed to find an editorial word on Canada's duty now that a storm of general war hangs imminent over the hills and plains of Europe. Is French Canada to hold aloof from this struggle? Are French-Canadians to weaken the Empire, to hamper the efforts of the Canadian Government at the most critical moment in a hundred years? In Saturday's issue of La Presse appears the following, which is the nearest approach we have yet seen of a declaration on the subject without being one:

> "La Grande-Bretagne, pas plus que la France, ne peut permettre à la triple alliance de dominer tout le continent Européen. Les forces navales immenses dont elle dispose ne suffisent pas à la mettre à l'abri du danger. Car, il est indiscutable que si l'Allemagne et l'Autriche devenaient maîtresses de l'Europe, elles pourraient former une combinaison navale capable de vaincre la flotte anglaise et d'anéantir par le fait même le prestige de l'empire britanique."

La Presse says here that Great Britain cannot allow, no more than France can, the Triple Alliance to dominate the Continent of Europe. The great naval forces which it controls are not sufficient to shelter it from danger. For it is certain that if Germany and Austria were to become mistresses of Europe, they would form a naval combination capable of conquering the English fleet and of annihilating by that very fact the prestige of the British Empire.

La Presse recognizes the gravity of the situation and the danger to the Empire, but it is high time when it and other French papers should declare themselves on Canada's duty in the present political iconoclast.

We know there are many French-Canadians who will stand by the Empire and withhold nothing in its defence. For these we have only praise, but we think the leading French newspapers are taking a strange position in their editorial silence on Canada's duty to the Empire.

TREASONABLE DELAY.

SOME LIBERAL PAPERS are endeavoring to belittle Canada's relation to Britain in the event of a general European war. Some say that it is doubtful whether Britain wants our help, as soldiers at least, and deprecate the hurried mobilization of troops on the Atlantic coast. They hold up the Laurier naval policy and seem to think the tin-pot navy is the one missing detail that would have settled the Kaiser and Austria in short order. The Niobe could have wept and the Rainbow shone in the war-storm, but they would have made a nice sandwich for a super-German Dreadnought. This talk of no hurry, no danger, no aid to Britain, is fatal to the Empire, and treasonable in its consequences.

Canada should take as wide a margin of safety as she possibly can. The big thing in war today is to be ready and able to move faster than the enemy. Germany surprised the world by her quick movements in 1870. So did Napoleon a hundred years ago. The worst fears may easily be realised now, and on that account the slightest detail should not be neglected to protect the safety of Canada and the Empire.

THE BANK OF ENGLAND.

EMPLOYEES of the Bank of England recently enjoyed a holiday in celebration of the 210th birthday of the world's greatest banking institution. "The Old Lady of Threadneedle Street," as the famous old bank is properly called, was projected by William Paterson, a Scotchman, and was incorporated July 27, 1694. It was constituted as a joint stock association, with a capital of $1,000,000. In return for the loan of its entire capital to the government, it received the right to issue notes and a monopoly of corporate banking in England. It was not until early in the nineteenth century that this monopoly was broken down. In its early days the Bank of England was a servant to the government; and in a lesser or greater degree it has enjoyed this character through all the stages of its subsequent history. At first the charter of the bank was for eleven years only; but in consequence of the great services of the institution to the government, its charter has been at various times renewed. Every one knows that the Bank of England possesses many privileges, such as issuing bank notes and acting as the agent of the government in the matter of the national debt. But few are aware that it has the power of selling beer without a license. This privilege was allowed the bank by charter of incorporation under the great seal, dated July 27, 1694, and the bank, if it liked, could open a public house in Threadneedle Street or could send its drays around and deliver its beer.

THE CHANGING WEST.

AN INTERESTING article in the August Canadian Magazine deals with the New Canadian West If the author had called his article the Present Canadian West he might, possibly, have expressed more clearly the point in his article. For, he shows clearly the contrast between the conception most people have of the West and what it actually is, as well as the various stages that have given life on the great prairies their distinctive types. He shows that most people imagine the West as a place of cow-punchers, of outlaw bronchos, of roving coyotes, and other features that are fast becoming a memory. Few people realize that the West is becoming a place of farm lands, school houses and churches, with towns and cities, and lacks the old excitement that gave Western life its interest and originality.

The point is well taken, and shows with what swiftness the life on the western plains has passed from stage to stage. But for the same reason, Westerners are not going to stand still, or rather stereotype their present life. The Canadian West will continue to develop—doubtless it will not evolve a new type different from the present existence as speedily as it has changed in the past, but it will still show variations. What the West wants is more conservatism. The life of farm and town, with its more settled, methodical, less excitable ways, that has taken possession of the cowboy's haunts, should, in time, achieve this result. Time alone will show just what distinctive attitude towards life the Western plains will produce, but let us hope it will show a seriousness tempered by the buoyancy that is termed western optimism.

WHERE LIQUORICE COMES FROM.

VERY FEW PEOPLE have any idea where the familiar liquorice root comes from. As a matter of fact, the bulk of it hails from Syria. Here it is gathered and piled into great stacks, where it remains until it is thoroughly dry. It is then taken to the factory to undergo certain processes. The finished product is used for flavoring confectionery and beer, as well as entering into the make-up of many brands of tobacco. Some idea of the extent of the industry may be gathered when it is stated that on an average 8,000 tons of dry liquorice root is shipped from Aleppo annually, while Bagdad yields another 6,000 tons, Antoch 4,000 and, with the exception of the Damascus output, the whole trade is in the hands of a single firm.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE STRATFORD HERALD issued a very creditable Old Boys' Number of thirty-two pages. It indicates that Stratford is forging ahead, its population being now nearly 18,000.

PRAY FOR PEACE, says the London Advertiser. Very good, but let us add, keep your powder dry.

War's Costs.

Ottawa Free Press.

Those who jauntily talk of civil war in the British Isles would do well to remember the experience of the United States. The cry there was: "On to Richmond in a week." It took five years' fratricidal strife and a river of blood flowed before Richmond was reached and the Stars and Bars hauled down from the Southern capital.

More Comment on Our Sleuths.

Brockville Times.

Those Provincial detectives who hung around Tamworth for days investigating the Blanche Yerge mystery and admitted that they were completely baffled don't seem to shed much lustre upon their department. It remained for two of the villagers to find the body of the murdered girl in Dr. Robinson's cellar, and bloodstains and other signs of crime prominently all over the man's house. One would have imagined that these sleuths would have examined the whole house microscopically for evidence. Oh, for the days of shrewd old John Murray!

Be Prepared.

St. Thomas Times.

No one knows what the future holds in store. Remote as the present European troubles may appear to us in Canada at the present time, it is impossible to foretell what the developments of war time, especially a general war such as appears to threaten, may bring about. In the very near future it is barely possible that this young country may have reason to feel thankful that some of our men have been given at least a rudimentary training in military matters should it ever be necessary to defend any portion of our land. This is not jingoism or military fanaticism, but a sane, common-sense attitude of preparedness.

Canada Will Do Her Duty.

St. Catharines Standard.

We may deplore the dissensions of the past, which prevented the contribution by Canada of three super-Dreadnoughts to the Mother Country. We have no doubt the Liberals will feel that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was wrong when he professed he could see no emergency. The emergency is here, and we have no ships to offer in aid of the Empire in the impending struggle. But we have thousands of soldiers who will consider it an honour to be permitted to fight under the flag which has braved a thousand years, and which stands today, as it ever has, for freedom and the liberties of the race. It is satisfactory to Canadians to see the government of the day recognizing the duty which falls upon Canada, and it will have the support of all parties and all sections. Canada will show, as Ireland has shown, as Great Britain has shown, that we, too, can be as one man when the call to defence of the Empire is heard all around the world.

Pacifists and War.

Toronto News.

For a decade past, religious teachers, moral crusaders and peace lecturers have battled as never before against the evils of war. The Carnegies, the Ginns and their associates have carried the message far and near. On the northern half of this continent there is a carnival of Hundred Year Peace Celebrations based on the three facts that the participating nations are akin in origin and purposes, that Canada is protected by the largest navy in the world, and that the United States has the second largest navy. The church denounces war and sings the virtues of peace. Capital announces its power to prevent war by withholding the sinews. Organized labour threatens an international strike which would paralyse nations and armies. Yet human nature has its way. Never in history were the nations armed as they are today, and never before was there such a possibility of a general conflict.

THE UMPIRE

By Walt Mason

We mobbed the umpire t'other day, and chased him from the park; he called the game at close of day, because t'was growing dark. Our boys had just begun to swat the ball, to take the bun, and then they had to leave the lot, defeated by one run. Then we arose, as though one man, and chased the umpire thence; ah, merrily the villain ran, and climbed a ten-foot fence. O'er meadow land, through growing crop, we chased his frightened nibs, and bottles, emptied of their pop, collided with his ribs. And bric-a-brac, and lifeless cats, and chunks of brick and coal, we threw, to reach the victim's slats, and we had good control. Oh, you may say it was a crime, to hound the umpire thus, but we enjoyed a splendid time, and, following the fuss, we all were in a cheerful mood, forgotten were our woes, the heat in which we long had stewed, the sweat that soaked our clothes. We felt refreshed, and far behind our griefs were blown away, and we were in a frame of mind to face another day. If you a stranger are to smiles, if life seems sad and blue, just chase the umpire seven miles, and you'll be good as new.

LATEST NEWS PARAGRAPHED

The British cruiser Berwick left Havana at midnight Monday with all her lights extinguished.

It was currently reported in London yesterday that Lord Kitchener would be made Minister of War.

The directors of the Liverpool Cotton Association, at a meeting yesterday morning, resolved that the cotton exchange be closed indefinitely.

The New York clearing house at a meeting yesterday decided to issue clearing house certificates to meet the currency situation brought about by the European war crisis.

It is reported that the Constitutionalists are slowly closing in on the capital of Mexico from three points. General Carranza moved southward from Tepeji Del Rio Sunday.

A severe earthquake shock was felt in Kingston, Jamaica, at 6.32 o'clock yesterday morning and caused considerable alarm among the inhabitants. Little damage, however, was reported.

The electors of Belleville yesterday voted upon a bylaw to confirm an agreement between the city and the Trenton Electric and Water Co. for the lighting of the city. The result was a victory for the bylaw.

RADICALS FOR PEACE.

John Burns Leaves Cabinet; Morley May Follow.

LONDON, Aug. 4. — Despite the feeling here that Great Britain is committed to war in Europe there is nevertheless a strong minority opposed to the nation involving itself in the struggle.

John Burns, President of the Local Government Board, resigned last night from the Cabinet, in view of the disagreement over the war policy of the Government. A late report said Viscount Morley, Lord President of the Council, was considering his resignation.

A small group of Radicals during the period of adjournment of the House of Commons met and passed a resolution that after hearing Sir Edward Grey's speech they were of the opinion that there was not sufficient reason in the present circumstances for Great Britain intervening in the war and urging the Government to continue negotiations with Germany with a view to maintaining British neutrality.

Philip E. Morrell, Liberal member for Burnley, said the best that could be said for the Entente after eight years was that it was going to land England itno a war simply because a few German soldiers wanted to cross Belgium.

The Laborites joined in the protest, declaring that it was a war made by the diplomatists, not by the people. J. Keir Hardie asked what action was going to be taken to alleviate the sufferings of those who would be hard pressed by the war. He said he would do all he could to arouse the workingmen against the proposals of the Government.

BERLIN IS CALM.

Mobilisation is Proceeding With Very Little Excitement.

BERLIN, Aug. 4. — The mobilization of the German army proceeded yesterday with absolute calm. There were few signs in Berlin that anything extraordinary was happening, with the exception of great crowds at the railway stations and the lack of taxi cabs, half of which had been requisitioned by the army authorities. An open air religious service, attended by many soldiers in marching kit, was held yesterday around the Bismarck monument, outside the Imperial Parliament House. All joined in the Lord's Prayer.

A notice was issued by the police stating that the Emperor's strength and time were absorbed by the work imposed on him in this serious hour and that it was not proper for him to be disturbed by popular demonstrations.

In accordance with the imperial constitution the Kings of Bavaria, Saxony and Wuertemberg have placed their armies under the command of Emperor William.

SPECIAL CORNER FOR AFTER DINNER READERS

The Cane Umbrella.

Perhaps in the course of your shopping or walking tour you have noticed a smart woman with a long cane. And then perhaps you have been surprised when rain began to fall to see the same smart woman open the top of her cane and draw out an umbrella. As if it were not enough for women to carry canes without carrying these surprising long staffs that turn out to be umbrellas and canes combined!

The incredible costumes and fashions have brought about the carrying of canes by women. And the really smart woman who is in search of something new chooses the umbrella sheathed in a canelike case of wood.

Accidents at Table.

If an accident happens at table, such as overturning a glass or breaking a bit of china, apologize at some other time than at the table. To say you are sorry is enough at the moment.

Too General For Compliment.

No woman is flattered by the enthusiastic announcement of a man that he "would do anything for the ladies." Everything for the "lady" would be more to her taste.

Tact in Letter Writing.

In answering letters avoid mentioning the weary magnitude of your epistolary arrears. It isn't pleasant for your correspondent, even by implication, to be included among bugbears.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Mastoiditis.

Mastoiditis, a bone infection not at all rare and one of the most serious of all the diseases of the ear, always requires an operation if let go too long. Failure to operate in such a case means brain infection and death. Ear specialists have long tried to impress upon general practitioners the need to recognise a mastoid infection early.

The surest symptom is tenderness to pressure in the hard, ridgelike mastoid bone just back of the ear lobe. This tenderness, combined with a "running ear" and uncertain temperatures, makes mastoiditis almost certain. In any case where these symptoms develop the sufferer should consult a physician at once.

The Artist's Antique Was Genuine.

A well known landscape painter recently bought a Louise Quinze sofa at a public auction. He paid a large sum for this acquisition, but was at the same time not altogether certain of its authenticity, despite the pedigree with which it was purchased. But having bought it he placed the sofa in his studio. On the first occasion on which he sat down on the sofa it collapsed beneath his weight, and he was precipitated on the floor, being severely bruised in the process. But his contusions did not trouble him. Observing the worm eaten pieces of wood that littered the floor, he exclaimed joyfully, "After all, it's genuine."—Paris Letter to London Globe.

YOU'LL FIND IT HERE MADAM

Mixed Vegetable Salad.

First rub the salad bowl with a split clove of garlic; then pour in four tablespoons of olive oil to one of Tarragon vinegar and stir thoroughly with a silver fork. Next put in any vegetables you have in the house; you cannot have too many, but two will do. Sliced cucumbers, tomatoes, onions, asparagus tips, parsley, peppers—all these are good and will blend harmoniously with the dressing. When you mix the vegetables, sprinkle with pepper and salt and celery salt. Edge the dish with lettuce leaves.

Cream Cheese and Nuts.

Take a package of cream cheese and put in a bowl with several spoonfuls of prepared salad dressing and mix thoroughly with a silver or wooden spoon. While one does this another can be chopping English walnuts or pecans in a wooden bowl. When the nuts are ready stir them into the cheese and dressing. When all ingredients are well mixed spread the paste on square crisp crackrh.

Cheese With Gooseberry.

Fresh gooseberries, if they are ripe, form an excellent combination with cream cheese. If ripe gooseberries cannot be obtained, the green fruit must be stewed the day before. Anticipating the Sunday night picnic, the hostess may do this, in which the fruit is set on the table in a glass bowl. The cream cheese may be used just as it comes, or it can be mixed with a cup of whipped cream to make it go further and taste a little better. If desired, the cheese and cream so mixed may be placed in a little mound in the centre of a glass dish and the gooseberries poured around them. The combination is delicious and may be eaten on or with soda crackers.

Eggs and Cheese.

Boil the eggs and then cool them by placing in cold water. Cut in half lengthwise and remove the yolks. Mix them in a bowl with a bit of cream cheese, some butter, a little mustard, pepper and salt. Stir thoroughly and put them back into the whites, serve on a platter garnished with parsley or lettuce leaves.

Eggs With Mayonnaise.

After the eggs are thoroughly done, open and cut lengthwise. Place on a round dish, which should be edged with small lettuce leaves. Pour over the eggs the mayonnaise described above.

Cold Ham and Chicken.

This is a combination of which Southern people are very fond. If there is no cold sliced chicken in your icebox on Sunday night, open a can and pick some good slices. Then take your cold boiled ham and cut into small pieces, lace these alternately on a platter and garnish with parsley or green pepper in long thin slices. If preferred, the ham and chicken may be minced in a chopping bowl, seasoned with green peppers, and served by spreading on bread in sandwich form, or put in a bowl and covered with a salad dressing.

Sponge Cake, Fruit and Cream.

It does not matter for this whether the cake is fresh or stale. Either will do. Cut the cake with a sharp knife into slices and place in one large glass dish or in the individual glass cups that are so popular and pretty. Pour a few drops of sherry over each piece of cake. Then put on a few spoons of fruit, slightly mashed with a silver spoon and sweetened to taste. Then add whipped cream to cover the whole. Do not sweeten the cream too much; flavor it with bitter almond.

Mixed Berries.

Red and black raspberries, having such a different flavor, are delightful when mixed. If some blackberries are put in the same dish with them, the combination gains in variety. Currants are also a piquant addition to the red and black raspberries. If you want something different from sugar and cream—and cream does not go well with currants—make a bowl of meringue, taking one tablespoon of sugar to the white of an egg and flavoring with vanilla. Serve this meringue uncooked in little glass dishes at each place and each one can dip the currants or other fruit in at will.

A gift of gab has been the undoing of many a man.

Is "Fruit-a-tives"—That Wonderful Remedy Made From Fruit Juices.

AVON, ONT., MAY 14th. 1913.

"I have used "Fruit-a-tives" for Indigestion and Constipation with most excellent results, and they continue to be my only medicine. When I first started about six years ago to use them, I took four at a dose but gradually reduced the dose to one tablet at night. Before taking "Fruit-a-tives", I took salts and other pills but the treatment was too harsh. I thought I might as well suffer from the illness as from these treatments. Finally, I saw "Fruit-a-tives" advertised with a letter in which some one recommended them very highly, so I tried them, and I have no hesitation in recommending them." ANNIE E. CORBETT.

SUSPENSE CONTINUES

Britain Refrains From a Statement of Her Plans.

Sir Edward Grey Says He Has Assured France That England Will Not Permit the German Fleet to Attack the Northern French Coast—Distrusts German Bribe to Belgium—Radicals Against War.

LONDON, Aug. 4. — Great Britain has mobilized her forces and awaits events. To-day she is not a belligerent power, nor is she a neutral one.

The Government has given France assurance that the British fleet will not permit the German fleet to attack the French coast. It has not yet pledged itself to contribute an army to the continental war.

The British Government regards with the deepest distrust Germany's violation of Belgium's neutrality, but makes no declaration as to whether it considers that measure provocation for war.

This pronouncement of the Government's policy—the result of two days' almost continuous deliberations—was made to the House of Commons yesterday afternoon by Sir Edward Grey, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. Therefore the trying hour of suspense for the British people is prolonged indefinitely.

Meanwhile the German Embassy in London is exerting every effort to induce Great Britain to hold aloof from the conflict and to bring public opinion to Germany's side. The counsellor of the German Embassy issued a strong appeal for the neutrality of Great Britain, asserting that Germany would agree to keep her fleet from attacking the northern and western coasts of France if England would pledge neutrality, and argued that England would gain more in the end by standing outside the European war and using her influence as mediator when the moment was ripe.

Referring to this suggestion, the British Foreign Secretary said:

"I have only heard that shortly before I came to the House."

He raised his voice and rapped the table before him sharply, declaring: "But that is far too narrow an engagement."

Sir Edward Grey dispelled the shadows of doubt which flickered over the Triple Entente in the minds of many Liberals by exposing some milestones in the history of the rapprochement, revealing it as essentially a national one with France, without definite obligations.

When the House reassembled the Foreign Secretary made his statement with respect to Belgium. He said:

"A message has been received from the Belgian legation here, stating that Germany sent to Belgium at seven o'clock last evening a note proposing to Belgium friendly neutrality coupled with the free passage through Belgian territory of German troops, promising the maintenance of Belgian independence at the conclusion of peace, and threatening, in case of refusal, to treat Belgium as an enemy. The time limit of 12 hours was fixed for the reply."

"Belgium answered that an attack on her neutrality would be a flagrant violation of the rights of nations, that to accept the German proposal would be to sacrifice her honor, and being conscious of her duty, Belgium was firmly resolved to repel aggression by all possible means."

The Belgian reply was received with loud cheers by the members, and Sir Edward concluded with the declaration that the British Government had taken the situation into grave consideration and that he would make no further comment.

The mobilization of the British naval reserves was completed yesterday morning, according to a statement issued by the Admiralty. Hundreds of sailormen anticipated the orders which were given only Sunday evening and the streets were full of them Sunday, wearing their uniforms and carrying kit bags. The public supposed they had summoned to the ports, whereas they were only so eager that they proposed to be prepared to jump on the trains at the first signal.

The mobilization of the army will begin to-day. It includes regulars, reserves and territorials.

A proclamation has been issued authorising the Admiralty to requisition British vessels in home waters. The Shipping Gazette, has discontinued the publication of sailings from British and Continental ports lest it gives information to a possible enemy.

HOLLAND PREPARED.

Mobilization Proceeds Apace — Panic Among the Poor.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 4.—That Holland is in the midst of war is very evident here. On all sides there are signs of military preparations. The mobilization order by Queen Wilhelmina was so readily answered that the operation was soon completed. The peaceful streets of sleepy Dutch cities present an unwonted aspect. Troops are constantly moving and are being lodged in the public buildings. The mobilization decree caused a panic among the poorer classes, and there was a frantic run on savings banks; crowds besieged the shops for food supplies and the excitement increased when the post-offices, railway and commercial houses refused to give coin for notes.

Bonaparte Offers To Fight.

PARIS, Aug. 4. — Prince Roland Bonaparte, a former lieutenant of infantry in the French army, and a member of the French Institute, who is 56 years of age, offered, in a letter sent to President Poincare yesterday, to serve in the army, although, he said, he realizes that the law prohibits princes of a family once reigning in France from enlisting.

Having borrowed trouble and made yourself miserable therewith, you, being honest, are constrained to return it with interest and thereby make some one else miserable.

Photographs by Wire.

In London the other day a demonstration was given of the telectrograph, an electrical invention which reproduces a photograph at a distance as easily as an item of news.

Various portraits were transmitted over a distance of 600 miles, and the demonstrator said that recent experiments showed that before long pictures would be flashed between New York and London.

A further development will be the transmission of photographs by wireless telegraphy. A demonstration of this process is promised within the next two months.

by a German cruiser, which, however, took to its heels before doing much damage and is cruising around the Mediterranean. Considerable numbers of French war vessels are looking for such marauders. What the British Admiralty intends to do was not ascertained. No news was made public as to the movements of the British war vessels. Precautionary measures in view of possible later developments were being taken, however, as it became known through the suggestion issued by the admiralty to British ships bound for continental ports north of Calais. These were advised to divert their course to ports in the United Kingdom in the interest of the national welfare.

The man who makes a fool of himself has no one out himself to blame if he doesn't do a good job.

AFRICA IS WITH GREAT BRITAIN

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Aug. 4.—The Cape Town Union says: "We would demand the immediate mobilization of a defence force of 30,000 if Britain were involved and doing her utmost in these interests of the Empire. The South African position differs from that of the other dominions. We have four million natives to consider, also the German territory on our borders. The South African gold question is vitally important to the Empire. It is considered in official circles that it may be advisable to retain the gold in South Africa until the seas are cleared. Canada's and New Zealand's action is heartily approved by the press.

New South Wales Guards Cables.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., Aug. 4. — The Commenwealth Government has taken steps to protect the cable station and guard the wireless stations. The forts are being manned. These measures require a partial mobilization of the citizen forces.

The port of Sydney will be closed each night. All vessels entering the defensive ports of Australia will be subjected to a special examination.

DELEGATES ON RIVER TRIP

As Guests of the Vermont Marble Company

At the evening session of the Ontario Granite and Marble Dealers' Association convention held at the Oriental yesterday, President Sanderson of Orillia referred to the delightful afternoon trip around the city. This was followed by an address by Mr. J. W. Hutchinson of Aylmer on "System and Cost." Followed by a twenty minute discussion this was probably the most interesting feature of the evening session. Mr. George D. Mackenzie of Toronto gave an excellent insight on the granite industry in Scotland giving some valuable hints and various points, new to a large number of the marble men present.

The early part of the afternoon was spent in business session after which the delegates were the guests of the Vermont Marble Company and were shown about the city visiting points of interest including the Little Lake Cemetery, Vermont Marble Company where a practical demonstration of the various up-to-date and modern methods of working marble was afforded the delegates. The life lock was visited and gave the visitors keen enjoyment, many of them witnessing for the first time the famous lock.

After a spin around the city, the guests were taken to the Oriental. After supper the business session was continued. Today the delegates are being entertained to a trip down the river by the Vermont Marble Company. Among the attractive features of the outing is the ball game between the Benedicts and single men.

On returning this evening the convention will adjourn until called next winter.

Water is Scarce so Farmers Wives Wash in the River

It is not unusual for people to take to the river for a bath but when it comes to going there to wash, that's a more recent movement. In all probability the water in the wells of this vicinity has become very low as a result of the continued dry weather, and some of the farmers who have not the privilege of using city water are facing a water famine. Yesterday, three or four families put the necessary washing apparatus on a democrat and drove to the banks of the Otonabee. One place where the washing was performed displayed the results of a half day's work, hanging on a temporary line.

MOTHER MUST STAND TRIAL ON MURDER CHARGES

Twin Babes Were Found Dead Under Pile of Stones

Sudbury, Aug. 4.—Mrs. Katharine Hawryluk appeared in police court charged "that she did unlawfully murder one female infant" and that "she did unlawfully murder one male infant." The evidence was much the same as that given at the inquest. Dr. Bennett, giving the evidence of his post-mortem examination, Chief Clark the evidence of the finding of the bodies and the arrest, and the husband, Tony Hawryluk, telling what he knew about the affair.

Magistrate Stewart committed the accused to be tried at the next court of competent jurisdiction in Sudbury, which will be the October assizes.

The husband, who was taken into custody and held until the inquest, has been released, as it is quite evident that he knew nothing whatever of the circumstances.

The bodies of the new born twin babies were found under a pile of stones about two miles from the Hawryluk home.

Constable Downs Will Return if Necessary

Constable E. Downs, of the local police force, formerly a sergeant of the famous Coldstream Guards of England, and one of the reserve men in the city, this morning informed The Review that he was ready to leave as soon as called on, but he was of the opinion that Great Britain would not need to call in the reserves. Sergeant Downs for two years acted as the Queen's orderly and was connected with the Guards for over seven years.

Speaking of the possibility of Lord Kitchener being in command, he remarked that no better officer ever lived. He was a born commander.

CRUELTY TO HORSE

John Robertson is Fined at Police Court

A conviction on the charge of cruelty to animals with a fine of $9 was registered against John Robertson at this morning's session of Police Court. Robertson it was stated by the Chief, had turned his horse over to his brother who was forced to have the animal destroyed owing to its condition. Robertson then departed for parts unknown.

WOULDN'T PAY; WENT TO JAIL

Blacklister Says He Has to Work Too Hard for Money

"I won't pay $10, I have to work too hard for it," was the sizzling bombshell exploded in the stillness of the Court this morning by John McCoy charged with being drunk while on the blacklist. Some time ago McCoy figured prominently in one of the Finance Committees indigent cases when the city paid seventy-five cents per day for his sobering up period. At this meeting it was announced that when John couldn't get whiskey he drank painkiller. Yesterday he came down from Bancroft where he claimed he had been working for the past few months. He met some friends and managed to get drunk this time on real whiskey.

"I'll make somebody go to jail for this when I come out," was the declaration of John when the Magistrate informed him that as he was without funds, he was forced to give him ten days with hard labor.

"Sure, I won't come back," remarked William Kelly, who was charged with being drunk.

"Very well, go then," said the Magistrate.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

EMERGENCY IS HERE.

Editor Review,

Sir,—The Globe has come to its senses after years of wild talk for the sake of making political capital. We hear no more scoffing at an emergency. The real thing is here. However much we may regret it war is war and people are people. So long as the world wages if we are to believe Scripture and experience there will be wars and rumors of wars. We must do and say what we can to stop war but we must prepare for the worst. Canadians will never hand Canada over to theorists nor will they start out on a wild career of national extravagance when they can do better by co-operation.

Yours,
CONSERVATIVE.

ARMAGEDDON.

Editor Review,

Sir,—So-called religious people who have been shouting for peace and demanding it at any price deny the truth of Revelation and the prophecy of Armageddon. If the Peace Policy were to be adopted there would be no Armageddon and Revilation would be busted. These facts must be borne in mind by all those who have any respect for Scripture. There is to be war we are told and plenty of it. So get ready for trouble and cut out silly talk.

Yours,
ONE WHO KNOWS.

PUZZLING CASE OF HERMIT FROM THE NORTH COUNTRY

Herbert Love Who Has Very Little to Say, Lands in Police Court

FINGER PRINTS TAKEN

These With Photograph Will be Sent to Department at Winnipeg

Hailing from Turtle Lake and found drunk in Victoria Park late last evening with nearly $200 on his person, Herbert Love a young man roughly dressed appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning, and was remanded for one week in order that an investigation may be made into certain seatements made by the prisoner.

Love stated to the police that he came from Winnipeg, Man., about two years ago. Since then he has resided at Turtle Lake, in the north country. Examined as to his means of livelihood he stated that he did not work, that he had sufficient means to maintain himself. He had a cabin near the lake and spent the entire time strolling through the woods and paddling on the lake. As to his life before coming to this district he refused to answer.

Communications as to the strange behavior and life of the young man were received by the Department during last summer. He very seldom converses with the neighbors and is generally left alone. Police Chief Thompson is of the opinion that Love may have been mixed up in some case in the west and was living a forced life of retirement. Fingerprints and a photograph of him will be sent to Winnipeg and also to the Dominion headquarters.

MONAGHAN'S REQUESTS TOO MUCH FOR CITY DADS

Proposed Sewer Extensions on Monaghan Road Are Still Held up — Another Meeting Friday

Restlessness prevailed at the Council meeting last evening, evidently due to the great European fracas. About the biggest item on the slate was a rehearsal of the Monaghan sewerage scheme, by which the city proposes to make sewer extensions on the Boundary Road. After a short and warm discussion, the matter was ended by the motion of Ald. Johnston that the City Council meet the North Monaghan Council on Friday evening and come to final terms in regard to the construction of the Monaghan sewer. The firm of Peck, Kerr and McElderry wrote the Council, enclosing the following stands taken by the Monaghan Council. These were turned down with the exception of clause No. 1. The clauses set forth in the letter are:

That the city do all necessary work and laying of pipes, etc., with as little delay as possible, there roads to be left in as good condition as before and to indemnify the township and its ratepayers against all loss or damage which may be occasioned by the use of the streets.

That the township or ratepayers have the right of connection with the sewers on reasonable terms.

That all expenses be borne by the city.

That if at any time the township should require substitution of some other street for the raising or lowering of the existing sewer, this might be dealt with by some tribunal to be agreed upon. The County Judge was suggested as the tribunal.

City Solicitor Gordon pointed out that the first clause was the only one they could reasonably agree to. The Council accepted his views on the matter, with the result that the above action was taken.

"We should take the matter up with the North Monaghan Council and then take the matter up with the Provincial Department," was the suggestion advanced by Ald. Duncan.

In strong terms Mayor Buller stated that they had been played with long enough. "We won't be played with any longer, and we will take the matter up for immediate action," he concluded.

Ald. Johnston then put his motion, which was carried.

Claim for Damages.

The claim of Mrs. Jane Thompson, who sustained a sprained ankle, due to injury received on Simcoe street, was left with the Legal Committee.

It was decided that Mr. Freeburn of Lock street be granted permission to construct a Bowser gasolene tank in accordance with the instructions of the Engineering Department.

The employees of the city offices were granted a half holiday for the 28th of August for their annual picnic.

Caretaker Wilson, of the City Buildings, was also granted two weeks' vacation, as usual.

The reports were presented and adopted.

SIDEWALK CONSTRUCTION THROUGHOUT THE CITY

City Council Adopts Recommendations of the Board of Works

The following recommendations by the Board of Works were adopted by the Council last night:

Sidewalks Not Granted.

That a request for a sidewalk on the west side of Mark street from Robinson to Sophia street be not granted, but that the City Engineer look into the matter of a crossing at the end of the board walk.

That the Canadian Machine Telephone Company be permitted to extend their underground work on the following streets:

Charlotte street, from the manhole west of Bethune street westerly 159 feet to their pole at the southeast corner of Stewart nd Charlotte streets.

On Brock street, from the manhole on George street westerly to their pole on the south side of Brock street and easterly to a pole to be located on the north side of Brock St. about 125 feet east of George street.

That the offer of the Canadian Pacific Railway to do additional planking at the corner of Romaine street and the Monaghan road, and otherwise to fix that crossing, as shown on their plan furnished, be approved.

That the City Solicitor be instructed to reply to correspondence from the Canadian Board of Railway Commissioners that the city wishes to insist that Inspector Harris' recommendation in regard to the gateman's cabin at King street be carried out, namely, that it be placed on the north side of King street and east of Bethune street on the railway company's property.

That the Bell Telephone Company be given permission to place one pole on the south side of Chamberlain street east from the Monaghan road.

That a request from S. C. Warne for an approach at his residence on Gilmour street be referred to the City Engineer with power to act.

That notice be given of the intention of the City Council to construct sewers as local improvements on the recommendation of the local Board of Health on the following streets:

Bethune street, from Sherbrooke to Dalhousie street.

Cambridge street, from Elm to Cedar street.

Chamberlain street, from Park to Alfred street.

Hunter street, from Rubidge to Stewart street.

Lake street, from Aylmer street to the Grand Trunk Railway.

That a request for crossings at the new government wharf and at Wescott street be left with the chairman and the City Engineer, with power to act.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

ALD. GEO. DUNCAN,
Chairman.

MR. ADAMS IS STILL FIGHTING FOR DAMAGES

Thinks it Time High Salaried Officials Should do Something

Showing his strong disapproval of the various promises made by the City Council, Mr. Adams of East City reappeared before Council last evening demanding that some action be taken in connection with his claim for damages owing to the injudy caused to his property by the construction of the Vermont Marble Company siding. Mr. Adams was informed that the Legal Committee some time ago stated that they could not consider his claim and he was assured that the Chairman of the Boards of Works would view his property and take some satisfactory action.

"It's about time some of these high salaried officials did something," remarked Mr. Adams as he sat down.

Labor Day Grant.

President J. J. Hartley representing the Trades and Labor Council waited on the Council and requested a grant for the Labor Day sports.

"Is it for the employers of labor?" asked the Mayor.

"No, for the Labor Council," replied Mr. Hartley.

"Because, you see, we couldn't do very much for the employers of labor," responded his worship.

The usual grant of $100 to be used in connection with the Field Sports and Labor Day celebration was made.

Asked for Refund.

Mr. Kelly conducting an agency for vacuum washers appeared before the Council and asked that his license of $50 be refunded. He had not taken any business since taking out the license. This was due he opined to the troubled state of the world. The Council decided to refund the license fee of $50.

On motion of Ald. Duncan and Saunders, a letter of condolence will be sent to the family of the late W. H. Robertson, proprietor of the Times, also an ex-member of the City Council.

Plumbing Inspector.

"It looks as if Ald. Langford is afraid to call that Property Committee meeting," smiled Ald. Duncan, formerly an agitator of smoke tests.

"Yes, what about that meeting?" enquired the Mayor.

"Well, if you are anxious to meet Mr. Thompson in discussion your desire will be gratified," remarked the Chairman of the Property Committee who intimated that he would call a meeting at an early date.

The Fence Viewer by-law was again relegated to the premier position on the shelf for a rainy night discussion.

This time the by-law was introduced by Ald. Duffus. Ald. Duncan got away with a motion backed up by Ald Saunders that the matter be left over. The motion was carried.

Ald. Green suggessted that Messrs. Phelan, W. H. Bradburn and Wm. Langford be appointed fence viewers.

More people would help themselves if the police did not so perniciously try to earn their pay.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT STANDS BEHIND BANKS

Hon. W. T. White Announces That the Dominion Stands Ready to Issue Dominion Notes Against Securities Deposited By the Banks

OTTAWA, Aug. 4.—After a cabinet meeting last evening, Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance, issued the following statement:

"Having regard to the world-wide financial crisis which has developed upon the outbreak of hostilities in Europe, and in view of the action of the Imperial Government for conserving the financial and commercial interests of the United Kingdom, the Minister of Finance announces on behalf of the Dominion Government that while it is not probable that such action on its part will be required, it stands ready to issue Dominion notes to such amount as may be necessary against securities deposited by the banks and approved by the Minister of Finance."

"The Minister of Finance further announces that the Government has authorized the chartered banks of Canada to make payments in bank notes instead of gold or Dominion notes until further official announcement in that behalf. This action will tend to conserve the Canadian gold supply against demands from foreign sources, a course now being followed by all the leading nations of the world.

"The Minister further announces that the Government has authorized the chartered banks of Canada to issue excess circulation to an amount not exceeding 15 per cent. of their combined, unimpaired, paid-up capital and rest or reserve fund from this date until further official announcement.

"Any necessary special legislation will be obtained at the next session of Parliament.

"The Minister further announces that the Government is prepared, if necessity should arise, to give every other possible assistance in order to prevent any avoidable interruption of stable business conditions, and for this purpose it will not hesitate to use to the fullest extent all existing powers, and to ask further powers from Parliament if that course should seem necessary or expedient.

When the Cabinet rose at 10.40 o'clock last night the Prime Minister stated that he had no further announcement to make. He had received no news from the Imperial Government.

Yesterday was a day of suspense such as the capital had never seen before. The report of Sir Edward Grey's speech in the British Commons was read with profound interest and it was felt that now it was only a matter of a very short time, perhaps only a matter of hours, before Britain would be involved in the great European struggle and Canada's part would be to take her place by Britain's side. There were conferences among the Ministers yesterday morning and the Cabinet met both afternoon and evening. They received copies of all press despatches received by cable during the day.

A number of important steps were taken yesterday in preparation for the impending crisis. These included precautionary measures to protect the financial system of the country, the establishment of a system of censorship, including a chief censor and a representative in each of the cable offices, the placing of the shipping passing up and down the St. Lawrence under military supervision, and the calling for volunteers from ex-navy men to man the cruiser Niobe.

There was a report here last night that the Government was negotiating for the purchase of three Dreadnoughts now being built in British shipyards for Turkey and Chile. They would be ready in six months. Parliament would be called to vote the money to pay for them.

Naval Recruits Wanted.

OTTAWA, Aug. 4.—The Canadian naval service department is looking for recruits for service at Halifax. George J. Desbarats, deputy minister and comptroller of naval service makes the announcement that the naval service department is prepared to recruit experienced naval men, especially experienced engineroom rating services at Halifax, the men to be enrolled as naval volunteers, and to serve just when called out. The department particularly desires men who have served in the British navy, pensioners or reservists who have not been called by the Admiralty.

Manitoba Offers Men.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 4.—Premier Roblin issued the following statement early yesterday:

"At a meeting at Government House to-night it was decided, in the event of the mother country becoming involved in actual hostilities, to organize and equip a battalion of infantry 10,000 strong, and offer it through the proper channels at Ottawa to the home authorities, as a slight evidence of Manitoba's appreciation of being a part of the British Empire."

Col. Steele, D.O.C. for this district, says there will be no difficulty in raising 10,000 men from this district alone.

HARVEST HELP EXCURSIONS

$12.00 to Winnipeg August 11 and 18th

The Grand Trunk Railway System will run Harvest Help excursions via Chicago and Duluth on August 11 and 18, from all stations in Ontario, Kingston, Renfrew and west at low rate of $12.00 to Winnipeg, plus half cent. per mile from Winnipeg to destination. First excursion on August 11 applies to all points in Manitoba. Second excursion on August 18 to certain points in Saskatchewan and Alberta and all points in Manitoba. Returning, half cent per mile to Winnipeg, plus $18.00 from Winnipeg to destination in Eastern Canada.

The route via Chicago is an attractive one, many large cities and towns being passed en route, which breaks the monotony of the journey. The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is the shortest and quickest route between Winnipeg, Saskatoon and Edmonton and traverses some of the best farming country in Manitoba and the most rapidly developing section of Western Canada.

ITALY'S CASE IS CRITICAL

Is in Danger of Attack by Both Sides

ROME, Aug. 4.—The head of the Italian military staff conferred yesterday with the leading generals and admirals of the Italian army as to the plan of campaign in case of Italy being drawn into the European war. It was pointed out in authoritative circles that Italy's situation would be a most critical one if the other powers of the Triple Alliance were brought face to face with those of the Triple Entente.

The combined Anglo-French navy it was argued would then have at its mercy the coasts of the Mediterranean and Ionian Seas, and it was thought that Great Britain would occupy Sicily, while France might seize Sardinia, as she threatened to do in 1882 when Italy remonstrated at the French invasion of Tunis.

Dirigibles Invade Belgium.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 24.—The French Minister has informed the Belgian Government that three German dirigibles were observed last night flying towards Brussels, have invaded Belgian territory.

DOZEN FREIGHTERS MAY GO TO WAR

Steamships Are Ready in Canadian Ports

MONTREAL, Aug. 4—Canada may send a fleet to the aid of Great Britain should the Mother Country go to war.

Twelve sturdy freighters of the Canada Steamship Lines, each manned by Canadian seamen and each filled to the brim with over 100,000 bushels of grain from the Canadian west may be Canada's most useful contribution.

James Carruthers, president of the Canada Steamship Lines, said yesterday that the grain freighters might be called into commission for war purposes. This fact has been taken into consideration by the company and the steamships are ready in Canadian ports.

Why should some men so persistently go about making enemies when enemies have no market value?

THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, etc.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—War developments jolted provision prices down almost as hard today as wheat had been temporarily rushed up on account of the excitement over the first outbreak of hostilities. Losses in value of provisions at the end of trading ran from 57½ to $1.75, as compared with Saturday night. Stoppage of lard exports to Europe was immediately reported, coupled with the tightening of finance. Corn fell with provisions, the September delivery closing 3 1-8 cents down. Other options of corn dropped only ⅛c to 5-8c. Wheat declined ½c to 1⅛c net, and oats 5-8c to 1⅜c.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Aug. 3.—There was quite an active demand from local and outside buyers for coarse grains and in consequence the tone of the market for oats today was strong with prices ½c to 1c per bushel higher. Brisk business was done in car lots. The flour market was strong and prices for spring wheat grades were advanced 30c per barrel under an active demand from local and country buyers for car lots, but millers will not sell anything except for delivery within 10 days. All lines of mill feed except bran were strong at an advance of $1 per ton with a good demand. The butter market continues strong and prices are steadily working upward under a good demand for local account and for shipment to the west. At the auction sale today finest creamery sold at 25c. Cheese was quiet, but firm. Eggs active and firm. Dressed hogs 25c per 100 pounds higher. Exports cheese for the week 87,152 boxes compared with 71,409 for the corresponding week last year. Total shipments of cheese since May 1 to date were 596,623, against 640,367 boxes for the same period last year.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, Aug. 3.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 139 cars, comprising 2862 cattle, 701 hogs, 726 sheep and lambs and 377 calves.

Butchers' Cattle.

Choice steers sold at $8.50 to $8.80, and one extra choice load brought $9; this is 10c higher than at any previous market. Loads of good at $8.25 to $8.50; medium to good at $7.50 to $8.15; common to medium at $7.25 to $7.50; inferior, light steers and heifers at $6.25 to $7; choice cows at $6.75 to $7; good cows at $6.25 to $6.50; medium cows at $5.50 to $6; common at $4.75 to $5.25; canners at $3 to $3.75; bulls at $5 to $7.25.

Stockers and Feeders.

Steers, 800 to 950 lbs., are worth $7 to $7.25; steers, 700 to 800 lbs., $6.50 to $7; stockers, $5.50 to $6.25.

Milkers and Springers.

Receipts of milkers and springers were not large and prices were again reported as ranging from $45 to $90 each.

Veal Calves.

Receipts were very light, and prices very firm. Choice calves, $10 to $11; good calves, $9 to $10; medium $8 to $8.50; common at $7 to $8, inferior eastern calves, $5 to $6.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts were moderate and prices again firm. Sheep, light, sold at $6 to $6.25; heavy ewes and rams at $4 to $4.50; lambs at $9 to $10 for good to choice, and $7.50 to $8 for culls.

Hogs.

Receipts were light, but prices were not any higher, and quoted at $9 to $9.20 fed and watered and $9.45 weighed off cars, and $8.75 to $8.80 f.o.b. cars.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Aug. 3.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market receipts of live stock for the week ending Aug. 1 were 1700 cattle, 2200 sheep and lambs, 2450 hogs and 1000 calves. The supply on the market for sale this morning was 1400 cattle, 1250 sheep and lambs, 1100 hogs and 700 calves.

Owing to the offerings of cattle showing an increase of over 500 head, compared with this day week, the trade opened up very quiet this morning on account of the fact that drovers were firm in their views and buyers showed a disposition to hold off and await developments, which action on their part, however, did not seem to discourage sellers to any great extent, as they were well aware of the fact that all the stock would be wanted after the short runs of the past two weeks, and in consequence the demand improved later in the day and a fairly active trade was done. The feeling was not so strong as a week ago, but prices were maintained in most cases. The demand for stock for shipment to the Buffalo market was fair, and several carloads were purchased. The supply of good to choice steers was more plentiful, and sales of several cars were made as high as $9, while carloads of good steers changed hands at $8.25, and mixed lots of common stock at $5.50 to $6 per 100 pounds. The demand for canning stock was fair, and sales of cows were made at $4 to $4.25, and bulls at $5 to $5.25 per 100 pounds.

The strength which has characterized the market for hogs for the past few weeks continued the main feature of the situation. Prices today scored a further advance of 25c to 35c per 100 pounds, which is attributed to the strong upward tendency of prices in the Toronto market, the somewhat limited supply coming from there, and the keen enquiry from packers. The trade was active, with sales of selected lots at $9.85 to $10; cows at $7.85 to $8, and stags at $4.90 to $5 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

The feature of the small-meat market was the stronger feeling in sheep, and prices advanced 50c to 75c per 100 pounds owing to the good demand for supplies and the smaller offerings for the season. In fact, some of the leading butchers stated that, even at the higher prices, they could not fill their requirements. Sales of ewe sheep were made at $5.50 to $6 per 100 pounds. The tone of the market for lambs was also stronger for choice stock, and lots of Ontario lambs sold at $6 to $7, and Quebec at $4.25 to $4.50 each. The trade in calves was active at firm prices.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—Cattle—Receipts 13,000. Market weak. Beeves, $7.20 to $9.90; Texas steers, $6.40 to $7.75; stockers and feeders, $5.30 to $8; cows and heifers, $7.30 to $8.40; calves, $7.50 to $11.25.

Hogs—Receipts 33,000. Market lower. Light, $8.25 to $8.75; mixed, $7.85 to $8.65; heavy, $7.70 to $8.60; rough, $7.70 to $7.90; pigs, $7 to $8.60; bulk of sales, $8.30 to $8.55.

Sheep—Receipts 10,000. Market steady. Native, $5.15 to $5.90; yearlings, $5.60 to $6.60; lambs, native, $6 to $8.95.

French Socialists for War.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—At a mass meeting of Socialists held yesterday, it was unanimously resolved that they should do their duty to defend their country and to attempt no reprisals for the killing by Raoul Villain last Friday of Jean Jaures, the Socialist leader in the Chamber of Deputies.

POURING INTO DUCHY

German Movement Into Luxemburg Goes On.

It Is Believed That Germans Intend to Cross Belgium In Order to Cut Off the Paris-Calais Route—Keen Suspense Prevails In Antwerp Which Is In a State of Siege—Libau Is Bombarded.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 4.—At four o'clock yesterday afternoon the Germans were still pouring troops into Luxemburg. A force of 100,000 is already massed along the Belgian frontier opposite Dinant. An unconfirmed report was received that the Germans are massing another army on the frontier of Limburg.

May Cut Off Paris-Calais Route.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The dominant idea of Belgian mobilization is that Germany will attempt to force a passage across the narrow neck of Belgian territory below Liege and Namur, the main route from Cologne and Aix-la-Chapelle into northern France above Rheims. To capture this route southward would mean the cutting off of the Paris and Calais route from the main French forces.

Antwerp In State of Siege.

ANTWERP, Aug. 4.—All telephonic and telegraphic communications with the interior are stopped except for war purposes, and all messages are censored. There is no confirmation of the engagement between the French and Germans at Nancy. Tidings of the occupation by the German troops of the Duchy of Luxemburg and of their crossing the frontier into Belgium were received here in an agony of suspense, but with unflinching courage and calm. Business is at a complete standstill, and all the large shops and offices are shut. In every public place notices are posted, signed by the Burgomaster, declaring that Antwerp is in a state of siege and appealing to his fellow-citizens to preserve order. There are no signs of panic, though every family has the flower of its manhood at the front.

Germans Take Polish City.

BERLIN, Aug. 4.—The German border troops from Lublinitz, Silesia, yesterday, after a short skirmish with Russians, took possession of Czenstochowa, Russian Poland.

Benzin and Kalisz, Russian Poland, also have been occupied by the Germans.

The Germans completely surprised the garrison at Czenstochowa, and before the Russians realized what was at hand they had been almost completely surrounded. The German artillery shelled the fortifications sharply, after which the cavalry and mounted infantry charged and soon were in complete possession.

Germany Bombards Libau.

BERLIN, via Brussels, Aug. 4.—The small cruiser Augsburg has sent the following report to Berlin by wireless:—

"Am bombarding the naval harbor at Libau, and am engaged with the enemy's cruiser. The naval port of Libau is in flames."

Libau is one of the principal seaports of Russia, and is located on the Baltic Sea one hundred miles or more north of the German coast.

It is fortified and is used as an arsenal by the navy.

The German protected cruiser Augsburg is of 4,280 tons displacement, and her chief armament consists of twelve 4.1 inch guns. Her crew aggregates about 400 men.

No Naval Engagement.

BERLIN, Aug. 4.—The report circulated in London yesterday that there had been a naval engagement in the North Sea between British and German warships is untrue.

Aviators Fight In Mid-Air.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The Standard says: "In the engagement between French and German troops yesterday near Longwy, a German aeroplane was noticed making observations of the French position, when a French aviator made an ascent, flew about the German aeroplane and descended to the level behind him.

The French aviator shot the German airman with a pistol injuring him and causing him to lose control of his machine, which fell to the ground from a height of 300 feet and was destroyed. The German aviator was killed by the fall."

Tried to Poison Wells.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—Telegrams from the chief of the German general staff received at the German embassy here assert that a French doctor, with two assistants, tried to poison the wells near Metz, with cholera microbes. The three were captured by the Germans and then shot.

Another French party, according to the same source of information, endeavored to blow up a stragetic tunnel near Cochem on the Moselle. All were shot.

White Elephants.

White elephants are not white by any means. They are a dark cream color and so scarce as to be greatly prized by the nations that own them. In Siam they are worshiped, as they are in Burma and other Buddhist lands. Money cannot buy them, and no king who owns one dares to sell it. If he did so his people would think that the severest penalties would follow the action. The King of Siam once sent among other presents to Queen Victoria a golden box locked by a golden key. This box was said to contain the most precious gift of all. When it was opened it was found to contain a few hairs from the tail of the white elephant.

Elevated.

"You say your friend is rising in political life?"

"Yes. He's rising all right. He used to be on the level, and now he's known as the man higher up."—Washington Star.

Participating versus Non-Participating Life Policies Again

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO a Publisher of this City at age 43 took out a Ten Pay 15 year Endowment Policy of $2,000, No. 81226 in The Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada paying therefore an annual premium of $187.20.

The Non-Participating Premium would have been $170.40.

The extra paid for profits per year (for 10 years only) was $16.80.

Had this man taken a Non-Participating Policy he would have saved $168.00 extra in premiums paid for profits during the ten years, but he would have lost $620.25 at maturity of Policy as he would have received only $2,000.00 instead of $2,620.25, as he did.

Where is there a man that would not like to invest money at such a rate and that too in the Largest and Strongest Life Insurance Company in the British Empire?

You are invited to call and investigate.

PETERBORO RINKS WIN BOTH EVENTS IN CENTRAL ONTARIO LAWN BOWLING TOURNEY

PETES WIN AND LOSE

RINKS LED BY FITZGERALD AND PRATT WERE WINNERS

Stratton Trophy Now the Property of the Local Club---Consolation of Tourney not Finished Until After Midnight --- Bowmanville Man Elected President

THE trophy donated by the Hon. J. R. Stratton for competition among clubs of the Central Ontario Bowling Association became the property of the Peterboro Club last evening, when J. E. A. Fitzgerald's rink won the honors for the second time, and by virtue of the trophy rules, the cup becomes the permanent property of the local club. The tourney just closed was a great success, the local club winning the trophy and consolation competition, the latter being won by T. E. Pratt's rink after a strenuous day's work. The greens were in good shape but the atmosphere last evening was a little chilly and damp and in the final games the greens became uncertain and the bowls slippery. Fitzgerald and D. H. Moore also of the local club fought it out in the final for the honors of the day and the match proved to be one of the best of the tourney. The rinks were ited at the tenth end, each having nine points. In the eleventh the winning rink secured one, while in the final end when it looked as though Mr. Moore's rink would win out Skip Fitzgerald by a beautiful shot turned the tide and his rink was one up on the end and two on the game, the final being 11-9.

In the Semi-finals, both of the finalists had hard games, as Moore's rink was only one up on the Aldrich rink from Port Hape and it required an extra end for Fitzgerald to beat Peacock of Oshawa. The work of Pratt's rink in the consolation was good all the way through and last evening in order to accommodate the visitors the rink played three matches and won all of them with comparative ease.

The Prizes.

The winners of the Stratton trophy each receive a cut glass water set while the runners up receive thermos lunch sets. The winners of the consolation receive thermos sets while the runners up were presented with cut glass berry bowls. The third rink in that event which has not been decided as yet will receive brass candle sticks.

During the afternoon John Lyle of Bowmanville was elected president and D. H. Moore secretary-treasurer of the organization.

The consolation series was not concluded till after midnight and the winner turned up in T. E. Pratt's rink, which won from Dr. Aldrich of Oshawa by 10-2. The match was called at the end of the seventh end as the visitors realized they could not have won as it was agreed to play only eight ends. The second prize in the consolation was not settled as Dr. Aldrich and D. H. Hall of Oshawa agreed to play it at a later date on the Oshawa greens.

BLOKES SURE BIFFED BALL

Slaughter of Tracey and Creswell in Second Game

Zowie! The Petes won the first by the shut out route at London but they "one" the second while London grabbed a trio of half dozen counters. London had twenty hits in the afternoon off Tracey and Cresswell getting sixteen off Tracey in six innings and six off Creswell in two. Every man on the team had from one to four hits in the afternoon game but Lamy.

London, Ont., Aug. 3.—London and Peterboro went to the greatest extremes in playing a Civic Holliday double bill today. the locals, after being blanked 4 to 0 in the morning retaliated by walloping Tracey and Cresswell for a total of 22 hits and 18 runs, while the Petes counted but once against Steiger's heaving. Hammond pitched for London in the morning and allowed only six hits, and while Schettler's performance was scarcely more noteworthy he was able to get away with the credit of a whitewash. Tracey was meat for London in the afternoon, sixteen hits being mace off his delivery before he finished the sixth round. Cresswell tried to head off the Indians, who had in the meantime struck quite a pace, but he did not make much of a job of it. The score:—

First game R H E
Petes 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 2 0—4 6 4
Lon. 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 5 1

COMMENT

As You Like It

Baseball is a peculiar little affair after all has been said and done. It is safe to say, however, that after all had been done in the afternoon some things were said to the Petes. Judging by the games, the Dutch had a banner day. Schettler held the Cockneys to four hits and whitewashed them, while in the afternoon Steiger, he of the musical name, held the Petes to three bingles and only a tally in the last did away with the kalsomine, as the winners scored 18 runs. Tracey, who is also a descendant of limberger, hurled for the Petes. We await with interest the work of Irwin Trout, Shultz and a few more.

The prospects are that there will be no race for the America cup this fall. Sir Thomas Lipton has stated that he will cancel the challenge and defer it for another year if the crisis in Europe is not pased and war is declared. Sir Tom realizes that the Britisher, no matter how keen a sport he is, would lose interest in the race if war were declared, and then some of the sailors are said to be members or ex-members of the navy and army.

Another sporting event may be cancelled as two members of the German lawn tennis team which, will compete for the Davis trophy at Boston, are army officers and are anxious to return home.

With the season more than half over, it seems a certainty that the majority of the magnates in the National, American and Federal leagues will suffer losses that may reach a total of $2,000,000, while the minor league losses will add probably $500,000 to $750,000 to that sum.

The year 1914 will be written on the pages as the most disastrous year in the history of the national game, due to small attendance huge salaries and many postponed games.

In the National League only the Giants seem to have made money up to this writing, and their earnings so far are said to be only half of those for the same period in the past three years.

If the Cubs can keep up their present pace and act as runners-up for the leaders they may get through the season with only a small loss, or may even break a few thousand dollars ahead of the game. This condition was not thought possible six weeks ago, because the Cubs were in a rut and the Windy City fans declared a boycott on them. But since they have performed a comeback the fans are flocking to see the Chicago athletes in action again.

Can Hardly Escape.

Despite the game fight being made by the Cardinals and their high position in the race during the first three months, it is unlikely that they will escape without a loss. But it will be less than in other years, and much less than the Cardinal owners expected when the Feds. invaded the town.

The Reds drew well when they were considerably among those present, but since they slumped the attendance both at home and abroad has been small, and Garry Herrmann's band looks to lose $35,000 or so.

Those who were sitting back a month or six weeks ago watching the Athletics struggling for the leadership and arguing that the Connie Mack crew would be in front by August with a fair lead, at last seem pretty safe in shouting "I told you so."

The Athletics at last look as if they were coming into their own and now have a firm lead in the American League, while Detroit and Washington, the two contenders in the early part of the season, seem to be slipping hopelessly.

Boston, the club that was subjected to all sorts of abuse a couple of months ago, has now crept up into second position. The Red Sox are likely to cause a little trouble yet, as with the pitching staff at their disposal such as they have, they are one of the most dangerous contenders.

The fight for the leadership in the National League continues unchanged. The Cubs are sticking close on the heels of the Giants, who seem helpless so far as shaking them off is concerned.

McFarland After Welsh.

Packey McFarland, on his way around the world on a bridal tour, announces that he will fight no more unless Freddie Welsh will agree to meet him at 135 pounds. As Freddie will likely do nothing of the kind, Packey may be said to be on the retired list. He and Welsh fought three times—draws at twenty and twenty-five rounds and a ten-round no-decision bout in which Packey was given the newspaper decision. "I could box Freddie every day in the week and twice on Sunday," said Packey, "and could not lick him. But he could not beat me, either. Onr styles of boxing fit in so closely that it is almost impossible for either of us to get in an effective blow." And that's quite a compliment for the new champion for McFarland is a real artist with the boxing gloves.

There is a possibility of a breach creeping in between the National and Pacific Coast hockey associations before the season 1915 opens up. According to the agreement, the Patricks are permitted to draft three players from the east each season for a certain number of years. When the stipulated date arrived for the N. H. A. clubs to present their reserve lists, it was found Quebec had no list in. The Patricks, in the meantime drafted Ronan from Ottawa and O'Grady from Wanderers. Anticipating the loss of one of their good men, Quebec traded Tommy Smith to Ontarios for McDonald. Here is the point that may cause trouble. Ronan is about to start up in the transfer business in Ottawa, and is credited with the statement that he will not go to the Coast. The Patricks will therefore have to choose another man from the ranks of the red, white and black, providing the Ottawas are agreeable. They also have a man to draft yet from Quebec, and the ex-champions are credited with the statement that they will not stand for losing any of their men by draft. There promises to be many tangles that will have to be unravelled before the season opens.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

ROONEY—HOLMES.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized this morning at eight o'clock in St. Peter's Cathedral when Very Rev. Dean McColl united Miss Fannie Holmes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Holmes, Charlotte St., [illegible] the holy bonds of matrimony to Dr. D. J. Rooney of Estevan, Sask. [illegible] bride, who was given away by [illegible] brother, Mr. James Holmes of Detroit, was assisted by her sister, Miss Gertrude Holmes while the groom's brother, Mr. Michael Rooney, also of Estevan, Sask., acted as best man.

During the ceremony solos were rendered by Misses A. Simmons and M. Mahoney. After the signing of the register the happy couple and a few immediate friends assembled in the home of the bride where wedding dejeuner was served. Both the bride and groom were the recipients of many beautiful and costly presents bespeaking popularity.

Dr. and Mrs. Rooney left via C.P.R. at 11.22 for a wedding tour through Eastern Canada after which they will proceed to Estevan where they will reside.

ST. PAUL WAS A WIDOWER SAYS DEAN

Gives Six Reasons to Show Apostle Was Once Married

Bayview, Mich., Aug. 4.—"Was St. Paul a married man?" is the question that was before the Bay View Bible Conference here. Most of the delegates have always accepted without doubt the statement that the great founder of the Christian church was a bachelor.

The Rev. Shaler Matthews, dean of the Chicago University Theological School and head of the Baptist denomination in this country, however, declared emphatically before a large audience that "St. Paul must have been married at some time previous to his ministry, and that there are many reasons to show that he was a widower."

Six reasons why St. Paul must have been a once married man, according to Dean Matthews are:

1. He had no illusion about women's superiority.
2. He was unusually wise in the ways of women and their vanities.
3. His letter to the Corinthians on "When to get married" is a masterpiece of advice to young men to follow.
4. Of all great religious apostles, he was the first to rule that marriage is not dishonorable.
5. His reasons for setting women of the church in an inferior status proves conclusively he had known some of the sex very intimately.
6. His ruling as to how women must wear their hair and use of veils and other personal details shows him an experienced husband.

Dean Matthews went on to say:

"No mere bachelor could ever have handled the details of social conduct and the organization of his new church, with its many turbulent converts and eccentrics, so well as St. Paul did if he had not been exceedingly wise in his knowledge of the feminine sex."

Step Forward for Brownton Mission

Another step forward in the Brownton Mission of St. George's Church has been taken by the securing of a house on Western Avenue, which will be renovated and remodelled so as to enable it being utilized as a place of worship. The mission caters to a large number of families who at present live quite a distance from a church and it is the intention of Rev. Mr. Price to have Sunday services and Sunday School held there regularly.

It is anticipated that the renovating will be completed in the course of a few weeks and the opening will be held on or about the first Sunday in September.

Flour and Sugar Prices Are Soaring

MONTREAL, Aug. 4.—Flour and sugar prices have gone up.

A bulletin received yesterday afternoon states that the flour millers have advanced the prices by 30 cents a barrel, owing to the increased demand from wholesalers and retailers. Sugar has made an advance of 10 cents per hundred pounds for the same reason.

FALLEN CITY OF SERVIA

Many Fortifications, But Capture is of No Real Military Importance.

The Austrian seizure of Belgrade will have a sentimental effect on the Servians rather than result in an important military advance. The Servians are intensely proud of their city, of its historic traditions and its fine modern development, but so far as its vulnerability to Austrian attack is concerned, they have had few illusions.

The big limestone hill that juts up at the junction of the Save and the Danube, behind and around which the city lies, has been an important fort for more than 2,000 years. Much of the original Roman masonry still remains, while the dilapidated buildings occupied by a Turkish garrison as late as 1867 are now used as a military museum. Below the crest of the hill and facing the river are the modern fortifications, which have been zealously guarded from all visitors, and on which the city depended for its chief defence from attack from the north. This fort is of the most modern type, and every year has been strengthened and improved. Its guns are of French manufacture, and command, beyond the two rivers, the whole wide sweep of the Hungarian plain. The Hungarian town of Semlin, where the fleet of Austrian monitors was assembled, lies practically under these guns.

To the west of the town the hills are strongly fortified. A great many of the forts can be seen from the railroad beyond Topschider. The same may be said of all the hills lying behind the city, while on the east there is a strong defense against a possible approach from Hemendria, which is opposite an Austrian railroad terminus. Included in the plan of the defence of the city was, it has been said, the mining of both the Save and the Danube along the entire Servian border.

The Big Bridge.

One of the few actual connecting links between Austria and Servia is the long iron railroad bridge across the Save which all the Orient express trains on their way to Constantinople must use. This bridge is reported destroyed. From the station in Semlin, where passports are examined, the city of Belgrade is plainly visible, though the train consumes nearly half an hour crossing the marshy plain on the Austrian side and creeping over the bridge before the station of Belgrade is reached. Bridge building between the two countries has never been encouraged, and this one, constructed as a part of the railroad, was the only one that linked them.

The Danube below Belgrade has been a constant succession of fortresses and fortified hill tops ever since Turkish days. From Semendria to Orsova every hill top has defences of one kind or another, many of them not of a modern type, and some of them entirely useless in modern war. Servia has been steadily working on the modernizing of these defences, however, and has kept her progress a secret, so it cannot be said just how important they will prove. At Semendria there is a considerable fortress, with a heavy wall still remaining around the town as an indication of its past importance. Rama has had a fortress ever since Roman times. Gradiste has an old fortification built by the Turks, and later used by the Servians, which lies in the valley of the river. The Servians, realizing the uselessness of this, have constructed a modern fort on the hill above the town.

Turks Valued It.

Although Belgrade has been recognised as holding a strong stragetic position, it has never figured greatly in modern warfare. The Turks practically withdrew from it early in the nineteenth century, and the city was not molested either in the Russo-Turkish or the Bulgarian War, and escaped entirely unscathed in the last wars. It was more important in a military sense to the Turks than it has ever been since, for Mohamet, the conqueror of Constantinople, recognized it as the key to conquest north of the Danube, and fought long and bitterly to gain it.

Belgrade is, roughly speaking, divided into two parts, the older part, built during the Turkish domination, lying low on the banks of the river, and the new, modern part, of which not only all Servians but all Serbs as well are intensely proud, lying on the hill back of the fortress. In the low part of the town in centered much of the commercial life of the city. The railroad and steamer traffic is centered there, and the custom houses and many warehouses and factories are also located there.

Modern Sections.

The new part is laid out in broad, well-paved streets, lined with fine buildings, six and seven stories high, which since the new spirit of development has seized the country, have replaced the small low buildings that were first erected. The city has a comprehensive tramway system which extends far beyond its limits in several directions and connects with it many charming and flourishing suburbs.

The public buildings of Belgrade are not imposing. The university and the theatre are near one another on the principal square. The Post and Telegraph Building is near by and like most of the other Government buildings, is entirely inadequate to house the business that is transacted there. The Royal Palace is on the Avenue Prince Milan, one of the chief streets, and is not especially imposing. At the other end of the plot where this palace stood a fine new palace is being erected for the use of the Crown prince. The Parliament Building is so small and inconspicuous—it has but two stories—that only the flag flying over it gives an indication of its uses. The buildings of the various ministeries are all very modest.

The Population.

The people of Belgrade are not rich, and there is a conspicuous lack of display, especially in official circles. Automobiles are comparatively few, and so are fine turnouts of any kind. But as there are few rich people, so are there still very few poor ones. The people all over the city are well and comfortably dressed the shops are bright and filled with new and attractive goods. The people are ordinarily gay and lighthearted and are great frequenters of the street corner cafes, each one of which has a gypsy band. The midday siesta has been an ironclad rule in Belgrade, and everything from the biggest bank to the smallest shop shuts up between 12 and 2. The business of the day is over at 5 o'clock and the entire town turns out to promenade and take the air. They stroll up and down the two principal streets, filling sidewalks and pavement alike, lingering at the cafes for Turkish coffee and for tall glasses of water, which seems the more popular drink than anything else.

By the sunset hour everyone has reached the Alamegdah, a park built on the hill right back of the old fortress. It is beautifully laid out with trees, flowers and statues of Servian poets and painters.

BAILIEBORO

Not having heard from our little Villa for sometime, perhaps an occasional line well strengthened the We read of nation rising against nation, but the rumors of war are not half so inspiring to the merry wedding bells, we hope to hear in the near future. Many of our young men and maidens are stepping out fully equipped and blissfully attended by the realities of a wedded life. At present many of our residents are holidaying some in the city, others at the seaside.

Our pastor, Mr. Wickett, and his better half, have gone for a time, and are enjoying the beautiful scenery on the Kawartha Lakes, although his people were very reluctant in letting him away, however, Mr. Wickett, knowing the needs of his little flock, did not forget to provide something very special. Both Sabbaths his pulpit was filled by Mr. Wearing, one of Peterborough's most popular barristers. The first Sabbath many went for mere curiosity, but were delighted and so thoroughly impressed by his inspired teaching that they decided to come again. Last Sabbath Mr. Wearing was greeted with full houses at the three appointments, especially at Bailieboro, where Miss Ida Dawson of Albert College rendered select solos at each service. He was accompanied by Mr Rose and several others, who autoed out in the morning and were entertained as guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Dawson.

THE DIE IS CAST, GREAT BRITAIN MUST WAR

CAPTURE OR DESTROY ENEMY, MESSAGE TO HOME FLEET

JOHN BULL TAKES UP CAUSE OF BELGIUM AGAINST GERMANY

Rejection of the Request That Belgian Neutrality Should be Respected Leads to the Declaration from England.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Shortly after midnight it was announced by the War Office that Germany had declared war on Great Britain in answer to the British ultimatum concerning the neutrality of Belgium. Shortly afterwards it was announced that Great Britain had declared war on Germany. King George sent a message of confidence to the British fleet which was sailing towards the enemy with its decks cleared for action, and it is believed that a battle is now raging for the supremacy of the deep.

Great Britain declared war on Germany at an early hour this morning. The momentous declaration of the British Government for which the whole world has been waiting, came before the expiration of the time limit set by Great Britain in her ultimatum to Germany demanding a satisfactory reply on the subject of Belgian neutrality.

Germany's reply was the summary rejection of the request that Belgian neutrality should be respected.

The British Ambassador at Berlin thereupon received his passports and the British Government notified Germany that a state of war existed between the two countries.

Premier Asquith, speaking in the British Parliament of the British ultimatum to Germany to keep her hands off Belgium, said: "His Majesty's Government is bound to protest against this violation of a treaty to which Germany was a party in common with England.

"We cannot regard the German reply as in any sense a satisfactory communication.

"We have asked that the German reply to that request and a satisfactory answer to our telegram should be given before midnight.

"We understand that Belgium categorically refused to assent to a flagrant violation of the law of nations."

All Europe is now in arms. On the one hand Austria-Hungary and Germany are opposed by Russia, France and Great Britain, Servia and Montenegro.

Italy has declared her neutrality but is mobilizing. Belgium, Holland and Switzerland have mobilized. The German demand that the Belgian Government should permit the free passage of German troops through Belgium was answered by hasty preparations to resist such an advance across Belgian territory.

Sweden has made no answer to enquiries from Russia and Germany regarding her attitude, but is preparing to defend her neutrality. Japan is making ready to live up to her alliance with Great Britain in case of certain eventualities. Spain is reported to be preparing a proclamation of neutrality.

Austria-Hungary for the moment has retired from her campaign against Servia for the purpose of holding back Russia, and Servia has mobilized with the reported intention of invading Bosnia.

Germany has violated the law of nations once again. Before war had been declared between Germany and Great Britain, the German North Sea fleet assumed the offensive, and attacked scattered units of the British

THE RECESSIONAL

God of our fathers, known of old,
Lord of our far-flung battle-line,
Beneath whose awful Hand we hold
Dominion over palm and pine.
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—Lest we forget!

The tumult and the shouting dies;
The captains and the kings depart:
Still stands Thine ancient sacrifice,
An humble and a contrite heart.
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—Lest we forget!

Far called, our navies melt away;
On dune and headland sinks the fire:
Lo, all our pomp of yesterday
Is one with Nineveh and Tyre!
Judge of the nations, spare us yet,
Lest we forget—Lest we forget!

If, drunk with right of power, we loose
Wild tongues that have not Thee in awe,
Such boastings as the Gentiles use,
Or lesser breeds without the Law—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—Lest we forget!

For heathen heart that puts her trust
In reeking tube and iron shard,
All valiant dust that builds on dust,
And guarding, calls not Thee to guard,
For frantic boast and foolish word—
Thy Mercy on Thy people, Lord.

—Rudyard Kipling.

In 1897 Kipling wrote his great poem, the Recessional, to commemorate the Diamond Jubilee of Queen Victoria's reign. The Queen had occupied the throne of Britain for sixty years, and, during those six decades her great Empire had grown and prospered. Its wealth and power had increased in a remarkable degree, and altogether there was good and sufficient reason to celebrate the Empire's greatness at the Jubilee of the Queen.

In these immortal lines, Kipling does not laud the temporal things that make the Empire great. The thought is above the trust in battlements of steel, in stores of bullion, or the domination of vast tracts of rich colonial lands. Trade, war fleets, merchant marine, wealthy, progressive colonies, big armies, great educational advantages, these no doubt were facts that made the Empire strong, but, Kipling says, these are fleeting things, that, in the moment of exultation, the Empire should look to the God of its fathers, should realize that its greatness does not depend on principalities and power, but on its service to the world. Not power for power's sake, but the discharge of great responsibilities, in a humble spirit, is the duty of the British people.

Now that war has shadowed Europe and the world, it is well to remember that Britain is not fighting for power, or territory, or wealth, or glory. She is fighting for national freedom. In this impending fight may we not make any frantic boast, nor utter foolish word, but trust that the God of our fathers is the God of battles and that the cause of right and freedom will prevail.

Last week on learning of the war scare he immediately applied for service and this morning received word to report.

SIXTY HOURS OF BLOODY SEA FIGHT

Montreal Traveller Recalls Prediction of Admiral Fisher

GERMANY DESPERATE

Lieut. Williamson of the First Grenadiers, Montreal, in the city in the interests of his Montreal firm is of the opinion that the war will be of short duration. The Montreal man who is first lieutenant of his regiment is anxiously awaiting word from his colonel who he has notified of his whereabouts. He hardly thinks very urgent need will be asked from Canada as he believes the big naval battle will settle the question. "If it is true that the German fleet has been bottled up in the North Sea the coast of Germany will be practically unprotected, while Germany will be flanked on land by France and Russia," said Lieut. Williamson.

He is of the opinion that the prediction of Admiral Sir John Fisher will come true. Two years ago he said "If it comes to war there will be sixty hours of bloody sea fighting."

Lieut. Williamson is well versed on the geographic situation of the countries concerned. He calls the affair a war of desperation on the part of Germany and is inclined to think that financial conditions in Germany were so bad that war was decided as a last measure.

Speaking of the call from Austria and Germany for army and naval reservists in this country, Lieut. Williamson said he could not understand how any that left here could expect to reach their native land as Austria and Germany were practically caged in between Servia, France, Russia, Belgium and Great Britain, and the French fleet in the Mediterranean.

CABLES ARE CUT

Canadian Press Despatch.

Boston, Aug. 5.—The cutting of the Commercial Cable Companies and the German Atlantic Cable Co.'s cables was announced today. Officials said they believed the cables had been cut by British Cruisers off the Coast.

Brussels, Aug. 5.—The Belgian Official Gazette announced that the entire Seventh and Tenth German army corps have invaded the Belgian province of Liege.

Portland, Maine, Aug. 5.—Firing of heavy guns was heard off the coast between here and Bath early this morning, appearing to come from a point about thirty miles to the south east.

Portsmouth, Newhampshire.—Officers at the navy yard say the sound of cannonade reported from the Maine coast today could not have proceeded from a naval battle as there are no foreign vessels in the vicinity.

New York, Aug. 5.—No cables are cut near the American coast and the Commercial Companies cables to England are working as usual but their cables to Germany via Azores Islands have been cut between Azores and Germany, presumably by English warships.

DESTRUCTION OF WESTERN CIVILIZATION

Japanese Prime Minister Says European War Will Have This Result

Japan Would Have Been Happy to Assist in Mediation

Canadian Press Despatch.

Tokio, Aug. 5. — The Japanese Premier, Count Okuma, interviewed today expressed regret that the United States had not been able to mediate in the European conflict which he said if it continues means the destruction of western civilization. Japan would have been happy to join in such mediation but her possible participation in war as an allay of Britain made her an interested party. Japan, if she were reluctantly compelled to intervene, would protect British colonies but under no circumstances would she send fleet or army to Europe.

WILSON WOULD ACT IN INTERESTS OF PEACE

Sends Message to Heads of all European Powers Now in Conflict

Canadian Press Despatch.

Washington, Aug. 5.—President Wilson has offered his good offices to all European powers engaged in war. The President has sent the following message to King George, Emperor William, Emperor Nicholas, Emperor Francis Joseph and President Poincaire: "As the official head of one of the powers signatory to the Hague Convention, I feel it to be my privilege and my duty under an article of that convention, to say to you in a spirit of most earnest friendship that I should welcome an opportunity to act in the interest of European peace either now or any other time that might be thought more suitable as an occasion to serve you and all concerned in a way that would afford me lasting cause for gratitude and happiness. Signed

"WOODROW WILSON."

LEGISLATORS ARE SUMMONED AFTER SESSION OF CABINET

An Order For the Mobilization of Twenty Thousand Canadian Soldiers Will Probably be Issued To-day---They Will go Into Training at Quebec to Await Instructions From the War Office.

OTTAWA, Aug. 5. — The Cabinet last night, after being officially informed that the Imperial Government declared a state of war against Germany, decided to call Parliament to meet in two weeks, Tuesday Aug. 18.

The Cabinet was in session all day and the Duke of Connaught, who arrived during the morning, at once entered into the deliberations of the Ministry.

The Prime Minister did not announce what proposals would be laid before Parliament. The Government would have definite proposals to make, and in addition legislation would have to be passed legalizing certain things that have had to be done.

The latter refers to various acts of the Militia Department that were found urgently necessary, but are not authorized under the Militia Act.

The Minister of Militia has been empowered to carry out partial mobilization wherever necessary, and various regiments and troops have been ordered out for defence duty in various ports of the country. No general mobilization order has been decided on yet, however, and will not until it is seen just what the Imperial Government wants Canada to do.

Whether or not the Canadian Government may eventually relieve Britain of the cost of the two Turkish battleships and two Chilian destroyers which she is reported to have just purchased, it is learned on high authority that this is not one of the proposals for the consideration of which the Cabinet decided to call Parliament.

An order for the mobilization of a Canadian contingent of some 20,000 men likely will be issued to-day. The men of the permanent force have already been stationed at strategic points and altogether there are now over 4,000 men under arms at Halifax, St. John, Sydney, Quebec, Esquimalt and the cable and wireless stations.

Members of the Dominion police and other constables specially sworn in are also being placed to protect the canals, harbors and transportation routes.

At Valcartier, near Quebec, where the contingent will be assembled and given a short training, several lines of targets are being erected for practice. It is not known by the Government yet where the Canadian contingent will be used when it is sent across—whether they will accompany the Imperial expeditionary force or remain in Britain. The Imperial Government is advising Canada to make sure of its own self-defence first, and possibly the Canadian troops may remain here for some time.

A great deal of work has been done in the past week in putting the main defence posts of the country into shape—protection of fortified harbors, placing of mines, etc. City regiments will likely be ordered out to assist the regulars at important points.

Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes will command the troops until they leave Canada. He will go to Quebec to look after the mobilization. Whether he commands the contingent when it sails is not yet known.

Rush Orders For Ross Rifles.

QUEBEC, Aug. 5. — It is known here that the Ross rifle factory has received orders from the Government to supply 15,000 rifles. Extra men are being taken on, and the output will be increased to 1,000 per week as soon as possible. The arsenal, too, is working overtime, and guards will be placed over both.

Rumored Capture of Spies.

KINGSTON, Aug. 5. — A report brought here from Petawawa camp is to the effect that two German spies were caught sketching at Petawawa camp and that they were taken to Ottawa. One report stated the men arrived at the camp by aeroplane, but no machine could be found.

To Guard Cornwall Canal.

CORNWALL, Aug. 5. — Two officers of the Dominion police arrived in town yesterday to place a force of about two dozen special police to do duty on the Cornwall Canal during such time as there is danger through the European war. Guards will be placed at all locks for the entire length of the canal, as well as all bridges, culverts, sluiceways, wasteweirs, etc., in fact at every point pertaining to the safety of the canal. The big power dam near Milleroches will also be policed. The extra guard was placed on duty last night.

DEVELOPMENTS OF THE DAY

In Parliament today Premier Asquith announced that the British Government would ask tomorrow for another credit of five hundred million dollars.

Washington hears that a St. Petersburg mob sacked the German Embassy and one employee was killed.

The Russian Embassy at Berlin is also reported destroyed.

At New York, the steamers President Lincoln and Kaiser Wilhelm II, from German ports; Venezia from Marseilles and Uranium from Rotterdam arrived having eluded hostile cruisers.

The French liner Lalorraine sailed with a large body of reservists aboard but the British freight steamer Etonian for Antwerp returned having been recalled by wireless.

The Victorian is still detained at Quebec.

In England volunteers are being called for, for the army indicating an expeditionary force may be sent out of the kingdom.

Orders have been given at Quebec for all newspapers to abstain from printing any information on military steps and actions in regard to the defense of Quebec harbor or any other defense works in the district.

The French Minister of War issued a communication today stating that German cavalry and infantry are crossing the French frontier, everywhere in reconnoitering parties. French mobilization is proceeding with the greatest order. Most of the reservists already have joined.

Ocean steamers report firing audible in many directions, but are unable to give any definite information.

PARK CROWD CHEERED AS RULE BRITANNIA AND MARSEILLAIS WERE PLAYED BY TEMPLE BAND

Seldom has any number played by the Salvation Army band during its weekly concerts been received with more enthusiastic cheers than the arrangement of Rule Britannia and the Marseillais, played last evening. When the band struck up Rule Britannia the crowd cheered loudly and when the Marseillais, which is the French national anthem was struck up the cheering continued with more enthusiasm. After the band had completed the number, the crowd clapped and cheered for several minutes, demanding an enchore and in response the band played a selection of patriotic airs, which was also well received. The playing of the Maple Leaf was the signal for another outburst.

Japan would have been happy to join in such mediation but her possible participation in war as an allay of Britain made her an interested party. Japan, if she were reluctantly compelled to intervene, would protect British colonies but under no circumstances would she send fleet or army to Europe.

WILSON WOULD ACT IN INTERESTS OF PEACE

Sends Message to Heads of all European Powers Now in Conflict

Canadian Press Despatch.

Washington, Aug. 5.—President Wilson has offered his good offices to all European powers engaged in war. The President has sent the following message to King George, Emperor William, Emperor Nicholas, Emperor Francis Joseph and President Poincaire: "As the official head of one of the powers signatory to the Hague Convention, I feel it to be my privilege and my duty under an article of that convention, to say to you in a spirit of most earnest friendship that I should welcome an opportunity to act in the interest of European peace either now or any other time that might be thought more suitable as an occasion to serve you and all concerned in a way that would afford me lasting cause for gratitude and happiness. Signed

"WOODROW WILSON."

LEGISLATORS ARE SUMMONED AFTER SESSION OF CABINET

An Order For the Mobilization of Twenty Thousand Canadian Soldiers Will Probably be Issued To-day---They Will go Into Training at Quebec to Await Instructions From the War Office.

OTTAWA, Aug. 5. — The Cabinet last night, after being officially informed that the Imperial Government declared a state of war against Germany, decided to call Parliament to meet in two weeks, Tuesday Aug. 18.

The Cabinet was in session all day and the Duke of Connaught, who arrived during the morning, at once entered into the deliberations of the Ministry.

The Prime Minister did not announce what proposals would be laid before Parliament. The Government would have definite proposals to make, and in addition legislation would have to be passed legalising certain things that have had to be done.

The latter refers to various acts of the Militia Department that were found urgently necessary, but are not authorized under the Militia Act.

The Minister of Militia has been empowered to carry out partial mobilization wherever necessary, and various regiments and troops have been ordered out for defence duty in various ports of the country. No general mobilization order has been decided on yet, however, and will not until it is seen just what the Imperial Government wants Canada to do.

Whether or not the Canadian Government may eventually relieve Britain of the cost of the two Turkish battleships and two Chilian destroyers which she is reported to have just purchased, it is learned on high authority that this is not one of the proposals for the consideration of which the Cabinet decided to call Parliament.

An order for the mobilization of a Canadian contingent of some 20,000 men likely will be issued to-day. The men of the permanent force have already been stationed at strategic points and altogether there are now over 4,000 men under arms at Halifax, St. John, Sydney, Quebec, Esquimalt and the cable and wireless stations.

Members of the Dominion police and other constables specially sworn in are also being placed to protect the canals, harbors and transportation routes.

At Valcartier, near Quebec, where the contingent will be assembled and given a short training, several lines of targets are being erected for practice. It is not known by the Government yet where the Canadian contingent will be used when it is sent across—whether they will accompany the Imperial expeditionary force or remain in Britain. The Imperial Government is advising Canada to make sure of its own self-defence first, and possibly the Canadian troops may remain here for some time.

A great deal of work has been done in the past week in getting the main defence posts of the country into shape—protection of fortified harbors, placing of mines, etc. City regiments will likely be ordered out to assist the regulars at important points.

Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes will command the troops until they leave Canada. He will go to Quebec to look after the mobilization. Whether he commands the contingent when it sails is not yet known.

Rush Orders For Ross Rifles.

QUEBEC, Aug. 5. — It is known here that the Ross rifle factory has received orders from the Government to supply 15,000 rifles. Extra men are being taken on, and the output will be increased to 1,000 per week as soon as possible. The arsenal, too, is working overtime, and guards will be placed over both.

Rumored Capture of Spies.

KINGSTON, Aug. 5. — A report brought here from Petewawa camp is to the effect that two German spies were caught sketching at Petewawa camp and that they were taken to Ottawa. One report stated the men arrived at the camp by aeroplane, but no machine could be found.

To Guard Cornwall Canal.

CORNWALL, Aug. 5. — Two officers of the Dominion police arrived in town yesterday to place a force of about two dozen special police to do duty on the Cornwall Canal during such time as there is danger through the European war. Guards will be placed at all locks for the entire length of the canal, as well as all bridges, culverts, sluiceways, wastewiers, etc., in fact at every point pertaining to the safety of the canal. The big power dam near Millerocbes will also be policed. The extra guard was placed on duty last night.

DEVELOPMENTS OF THE DAY

In Parliament today Premier Asquith announced that the British Government would ask tomorrow for another credit of five hundred million dollars.

Washington hears that a St. Petersburg mob sacked the German Embassy and one employee was killed.

The Russian Embassy at Berlin is also reported destroyed.

At New York, the steamers President Lincoln and Kaiser Wilhelm II, from German ports; Venezia from Marseilles and Uranium from Rotterdam arrived having eluded hostile cruisers.

The French liner Lalorraine sailed with a large body of reservists aboard but the British freight steamer Etonian for Antwerp returned having been recalled by wireless.

The Victorian is still detained at Quebec.

In England volunteers are being called for, for the army indicating an expeditionary force may be sent out of the kingdom.

Orders have been given at Quebec for all newspapers to abstain from printing any information on military steps and actions in regard to the defense of Quebec harbor or any other defense works in the district.

The French Minister of War issued a communication today stating that German cavalry and infantry are crossing the French frontier, everywhere in reconnoitering parties. French mobilization is proceeding with the greatest order. Most of the reservists already have joined.

Ocean steamers report firing audible in many directions, but are unable to give any definite information.

Paw Didn't Know.

Willie—Paw, are a man and his wife one?

Paw—Yes, my son.

Willie—Then, how many was Solomon?

Paw—You go to bed, young man. —Cincinnati Enquirer.

PARK CROWD CHEERED AS RULE BRITANNIA AND MARSEILLAIS WERE PLAYED BY TEMPLE BAND

Seldom has any number played by the Salvation Army band during its weekly concerts been received with more enthusiastic cheers than the arrangement of Rule Britannia and the Marseillais, played last evening. When the band struck up Rule Britannia the crowd cheered loudly and when the Marseillais, which is the French national anthem was struck up the cheering continued with more enthusiasm. After the band had completed the number, the crowd clapped and cheered for several minutes, demanding an enchore and in response the band played a selection of patriotic airs, which was also well received. The playing of the Maple Leaf was the signal for another outburst.

WHY BRITAIN IS INVOLVED.

THE ADVOCATE of peace may ask what has Britain to do with the foreign entanglements of Austria and Russia? Why not let them fight it out, even if Germany also gets in the conflict? Britain's position is that of self-defence, for she champions freedom, stands for national integrity, free citizenship, free democracy. Britain knows that Germany is the disturber of Europe's peace, the upholder of militarism, the sustainer of military despotism. Germany was the country that refused Britain's advances for disarmament, and which has caused the turning of Europe into one vast military camp, where industry is the making of war equipment and the drilling of men for slaughter. The world has Germany to thank for this cataclysmic strife into which Great Britain is entering to preserve her own freedom and to prevent a military despot, enamoured of his divine right illusion, from crushing the freedom of the world. If Austria and Germany could have their way unchecked, they would soon combine against the Island Kingdom, and Britain sees that her own safety depends on checking those two countries, Germany and Austria, where military despotism dominates their politics.

Centuries ago Britain fought out within her own confines the struggle for citizenship, private rights, the rule of the people. It cost Charles I. his head and James II. his throne, but the right cause won. Britain fought it out alone a hundred years ago, when Napoleon arose from the wreck of the Bourbon dynasty and would have made himself Dictator of Europe. If that struggle is to be fought out again against a German Kaiser and a German military class, Britain is prepared to undertake that Herculean task to the last dollar and to the last drop of blood. Nor will Canada, Australia, New Zealand and the rest of the Empire see her fight it out alone.

THE EXAMINER'S DELUSION.

LAST NIGHT'S Examiner cries out for the Laurier Naval Policy. It is the only paper in Canada not ashamed to do so at this moment. That policy declines to bind Canada unless Parliament meets and approves of it. Is there any section of Canada, white or black, French or British, Conservative or Liberal, that is not cheering for the Empire and pledging Canada's aid? Not one. It remains for The Examiner to insist on the Laurier policy of waiting. Well! Canada will not wait. She is ready and willing. It is a pity that Peterborough should have the unenviable distinction of such a craven statement when the whole world is aflame with war. Canada is not so mean or selfish, so stupid or so stingy as to expect protection and not be willing to do what she can to give it. It is to the everlasting disgrace of the Laurier opposition and the Liberal Senate that Parliament must meet before we can give practical expression to our feelings.

THE WORLD'S FIGHT FOR FREEDOM.

HERE IS WHAT the Toronto Globe says in part, editorially, of the struggle which faces Britain in the present crisis:

> "Once again the struggle is on. The spirit of despotism is now incarnated, not in France, but in Germany. During the past forty years there has grown up a new Germany, new in all the great sciences except the greatest science of all, the science of government. Over all its schools and laboratories and spheres of wonderful achievement hovers the old and darkening shadow of military despotism. Its Emperor is an autocrat dominated by the fatal delusion of his own divine right to mastership. Superior to all the other despots of Europe, he now challenges them and all the world. Against him and the doomed system he embodies rises up not alone the autocratic despotism of Russia and the democratic paternalism of France, but the free democracy of Britain. All the democratic Monarchies of Europe count Britain their model. In this crisis Britain also is their leader. That autocratic Russia stands in the same line is an incident in history as accidental as was the lining up, for a brief day, of the free democracy of the United States with Napoleon's despotism in the war of 1812. In spite of its anomalies and contradictions, it is the world's fight for freedom.
>
> And in that fight all the democracies of the British breed stand shoulder to shoulder. Whig and Tory all agree. The Ulsterman and the Nationalist keep step. Royalist and Radical join hands. French-Canadian and English-Canadian and all the other races who feel the throb of freedom in their blood, stand up, some under the Southern Cross, some under other skies, and they, too, are counted. Even in Germany itself the millions in whose lives stirs the irrepressible impulse of social democracy, though today they may be led by evil counsellors, will tomorrow find their true alliance in the world movement that dethrones all despots and establishes free citizenship in the democracy of all nations.
>
> Because it is the world's fight for freedom, Britain, reluctantly, but resolutely, speaks the word, and Canada also answers Ay!"

GERMANY'S BIG JOB.

WHAT GERMANY did in 1870 she will try to repeat, that is, she will try to have her forces mobilized before her rivals and launch them against France or Russia before they are in shape to resist effectively. Having defeated one, she will try to rout the other, with some confidence of success. This plan worked well on two former occasions, when she defeated Austria at Sadowa in 1866, and the French at Sedan in 1870.

But conditions have changed a great deal since then, and the present opposition to Germany is really formidable. France has profited by her bitter experience and has four massive fortresses close to the German frontier. She has a second line of defences from Burgundy to Belgium, and Paris is said to be the most impregnable city in Europe. France leads the world in quick-firing guns, armoured aeroplanes and appliances for fighting air craft. Her fleet, too, is powerful, and her finances are in good shape. Russia, on the other hand, is a far more formidable foe than Austria was. She is much larger, more populous, and offers greater resistance to invasion, for the reason that the climate fights for her. Then, there are such modest details to consider as the British navy and British finance. Germany has a big contract on hand, so big that we have a feeling that the tables of 1870 will be reversed in 1914.

ONE FRENCH PAPER SPEAKS.

WE ARE PLEASED to quote the following paragraph from Le Canada:

> "We are certain that in Canada, as in England, the country will be put before party and that the Liberal party will second with all its strength all measures which patriotism may dictate to Sir Robert Borden. When the country is in danger, political opinions must remain silent. Let us then await events with a firm and tranquil heart, ready to do our duty, whatever it may be, but do not let us be unnerved by premature alarms. The best preparation to meet a national crisis is to see it come with calmness."

Here is one French-Canadian newspaper, at least, which recognizes the necessity of speaking for its readers on the duty of Canada to give united support to Sir Robert Borden for what measures he may adopt for the defence of Canada and the Empire.

New Zealand and Australia have both signified officially that they will aid Britain to their capacity in the event of Britain participating in the present European war. So has Canada declared her intention of sending help. Now we have French, and Liberal, and Conservative papers approving of this procedure. Now that it is impossible for Britain to avoid going to war, the old grey mother can count on the liberal support of three young stalwarts—Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE DEATH of David Tope removes one of the best sportsmen that ever donned a rugby suit. We remember him when he captained the Hamilton team in the days when Dundas and Hamilton were keen rivals for Rugby honours some five or six years ago. He was a gentlemanly player, a good sport, and an all-round, first-class man, as any of his old rivals can testify. He had excellent prospects ahead of him and his early accidental death will be a distinct loss to the rising generation of young Hamilton men.

WE NOTICE that police in the vicinity of Hamilton have had a horse they were looking after stolen from them twice in one week. There are some "sleuths" around Hamilton.

WILL SOMEBODY please tell us what has happened to Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV? Has she been captured, and will the Germans interfere with the yacht races?

THAT GERMAN PROPHETESS who foretold in 1912 that 1913 would be a most critical year for Europe was evidently just one year ahead of time.

BY THE WAY, we have failed to find any important despatches about the course of events in Mexico during the last few days.

WE HAVE a suspicion that Germany et al will find that there is a real British Empire.

MEXICO, who said Mexico? Possibly our old friend, Mr. R. VanWinkle.

Centre of Peace and War.
Belleville Intelligencer.

There is grim humor now in recalling that the 2nd international peace congress was to have been held in Vienna from September 15th to 19th and that it was to have been presided over by Count Berchtold, the Austrian prime minister, the very man who issued the declaration of war against Servia. Of course, it has been called off and six months' work and $20,000 spent on preliminary preparations go to join the other war losses. It is an interesting commentary on the insincerity of the nations' protestations of peace.

Canada's Duty.
Toronto World.

The Canadian Parliament should meet at the earliest possible moment and a credit of at least one hundred million dollars be voted for the defence of the empire. There will be no trouble in financing the money, even under the present stringency. Our banks have large reserves of gold and Dominion notes, which are as good as gold, and the Dominion treasury contains stores of bullion as well. But more than that, there will be the closest financial support of Canada by the home government, and British credit is so good that the immense financial resources concentrated in the United States will be at the command of either England or Canada. There need be no doubt on that score. And we have a good credit as well.

Canada must contribute not less than 50,000 men to the imperial forces. Australia has offered 20,000. And Canada must send the best men to be had. There will be an unlimited number of volunteers, and they will all be welcome. But as far as possible, it must be the trained men, the seasoned men, the men experienced in war, the men who have already smelled powder, who should form the first contingents. We may hope that not many more than 50,000 men from Canada would be needed. But Canada should also organise a reserve of 100,000 men for active service at home, and provide them with such equipment and put them in a state of such efficiency as is possible. It will cost money, but no one is thinking of money when life and destiny are at stake. If Britain failed for lack of anything else, there would be no more history of Canada to be written after 1914.

FALLEN IDOLS
By Walt Mason

When first our team began to play, the bleachers gasped and wondered, at feats performed by Jimmy Jay, who hit around four hundred. Time after time he smote the ball across the left field fences, and o'er the foemen cast a pall, and chilled and dulled their senses. Ah, Jimmy was our idol then, our hope, our pride, our hero; compared with him all other men stacked up to less than zero. We felt quite honored when he smiled, in answer to our greeting; upon his brow the wreaths were piled — alas, that fame is fleeting! For Jimmy took an awful slump, and he became a vandal; he couldn't hit the village pump if he had grabbed the handle. Time after time he stood and fanned, when men were on the bases, and, oh, the things we used to hand poor Jimmy, from our faces! "You bonehead farmer, where's your eye? Why don't you hit the leather? Go, crawl into a hole and die!" we used to shout together. His past achievements all ignored, we turned down thumbs and banned him; at last the bleachers were so bored, the manager just canned him. How fickle is the human mob! Today it calls you darling; to-morrow it will call you snob, and daunt you with its snarling.

MAKING GOODS

Processes Coming Back to Their Own at Canadian National Exhibition

The Processes are coming back to the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto. Last year the Austrian exhibit chased the whirring wheels out of their home in the Process Building. This year the manufacture of goods will be resumed. A prominent exhibit will be a joint one, in which A. R. Clarke, the United Shoe Machinery Co., the Minister-Myles Co. and the T. Eaton Co. will get together and show the entire process of turning a hide into a shoe. There will be another process besides, and this department, always one of the most popular of the entire Exhibition, will come into its own again.

Press Gallery Humor.

The members of the Press Gallery at Ottawa held their annual dinner recently and for the occasion prepared a little booklet entitled, "The Canadian Parliamentary Guide." The first page contained the following description of "Canada":

"Canada is a considerable area of climate situated north of the Reciprocity agreement. Discovered by Sir Charles Tupper. Constituted by the B. N. A. Act, 1871, which no one has since read.

"It consists of Manitoba, the Press Gallery and the Senate. It is governed by the Orange Order, the Hierarchy, United Empire Loyalists and the Manufacturers' Association. Also rans—Grain Growers, Henr' Bourassa and Harthur 'Awkes.

"Chief Industries — Senate reform and the making of political platforms, honorary colonels, scandals, promises, transcontinentals, royal commissions and naval policies.

"Principal food product—Crow."

How Villa Paid a Bill.

"We recently sold a waterworks motor to General Villa," John Gibson, the local manager of a machinery house, told me. "Our people at El Paso were to deliver the machinery, but told the general they needed the cash in advance."

"That will be all right," replied the general. "I'll get it."

And he did. Huerta's arch enemy sent a band of his soldiers through the gambling district of a Mexican town on the border and collected the price of the motor—$800 in silver. A couple of soldiers brought the money in a wheelbarrow to the company's office.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Last of Five Points.

The Five Points Mission House is to give way to the development of downtown New York, its site being needed for the proposed civic center and county courthouse. To the present generation its passing will doubtless be of less concern than the closing of the Astor House rotunda lunch counter, but for New Yorkers of older growth it possessed romantic associations both as a leaven of righteousness in what was once the wickedest spot in New York, if not in the world, and because of its pioneer work of social reclamation.—New York World.

Northern Japan's Famine.

Failure of the rice crop and the fishing industry have brought the districts of Tohoku and Hokkaido, northern Japan, one of the worst famines that the country has faced in a hundred years. Cold weather prevented the rice from heading out, and unusually cold currents have kept the fish at great distances from the shore. A conservative estimate places the number who are now in urgent need of food at 200,000.

Great Britain is now also a billion dollar country, if the rank is to be measured by the national budget. But John Bull does not seem a bit proud of it.

A New York man gave his wife an obesity cure on her birthday. Now she wants a divorce. There are a few domestic insinuations that can't be overlooked.

A remarkable thing about a dance is the indifference of most young men to the fact that they have to be back at the desk or behind the counter at 8 o'clock the next morning.

LATEST NEWS PARAGRAPHED

President Wilson yesterday issued a proclamation of neutrality.

It is now believed that Dr. C. K Robinson, wanted for the murder of Miss Blanche Yorke at Tamworth, is in New York.

TORONTO WOMAN WELL AGAIN

Freed From Bearing Down Pains, Backache and Pain in Side by Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Toronto, Ont.—"Last October, I wrote to you for advice as I was completely run down, had bearing down sensation in the lower part of bowels, backache, and pain in the side. I also suffered terribly from gas. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am now entirely free from pain in back and bowels and am stronger in every way. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound highly to all expectant mothers."—Mrs. E. WANDBY, 92 Logan Avenue, Toronto, Ontario.

Consider Well This Advice.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for nearly forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

TALKED WITH DEAD MR. STEAD.

Sir Alfred Turner Heard All About Titanic Wreck at Seance.

General Sir Alfred Turner's psychic experiences, which he related to the London Spiritualist Alliance the other night, cover a very wide field, and they date from his early boyhood.

The most interesting relates to the reappearance of Mr. Stead. On the Sunday following the sinking of the Titanic, Sir Alfred was visiting a medium when she told him that on the glass of the picture behind his back the head of a man and afterwards his whole form appeared. She described him minutely, and said he was holding a child by the hand. He had no doubt that it was Mr. Stead, and he wrote immediately to Miss Harper, Mr. Stead's private secretary. She replied saying that on the same day she had seen a similar apparition, and in it Mr. Stead was holding a child by the hand.

A few days afterward (continued Sir Alfred) at a private seance the voice of Stead came almost immediately and spoke at length. He told them what had happened in the last minutes of the wreck. All those who were on board when the vessel sank soon passed over, but they had not the slightest notion that they were dead. Stead knew, however, and he set to work to try and tell these poor people that they had passed over, and that there was at any rate no more physical suffering for them. Shortly afterwards he was joined by other spirits, who took part in the missionary work.

Mr. Stead was asked to show himself to the circle. He said, "Not now, but at Cambridge House." At the meeting which took place there, not everybody was sympathetic, and the results were poor, except that Mr. Stead came to them in short, sharp flashes dressed exactly as he was when on earth.

Since then, said Sir Alfred, he had seen and conversed with Mr. Stead many times. When he had shown himself he had said very little, when he did not appear he said a great deal. On the occasion of his last appearance, he said: "I cannot speak to you. But pursue the truth, pursue the truth. It is all true."

I am confident, Sir Alfred declared, that Mr. Stead will be of the greatest help to those of us who on earth work with him and to others who believe.

Back To the Simple Life.

In the Christian Commonwealth, the English organ of Christian socialism, appears an article dealing with the resignation of Rev. E. W. Lewis from the pastorate of the King's Weigh House Church, London. It is stated that Mr. Lewis has "felt for some time the incongruity between the position of being a man of God and the position of being a comparatively highly-salaried, comfortably-conditioned official in organized religion." "He announces his intention," says the journal, "of seeking personal poverty and the simplest kind of life, and also an unorganized and irregular form of preaching—a kind of wayside sowing of the seed. In taking this step, Edward Lewis—as he prefers to be called instead of Rev. E. W. Lewis, M.A., B.D.—is resigning a salary of $3,000 a year. It is significant that the letter announcing Mr Lewis' intention was written from Assisi, forever associated with St. Francis, who took poverty for his bride."

SUMMER OUTING SUIT.

Chic Model In Dust Shedding Mohair and Wool.

MOHAIR SUIT.

The gown shown here is an especially useful model for outing wear, whether one wishes to go yachting, desires to play tennis or indulge in the many recreations of the season. The suit is up to the minute in regard to style features, yet is cut on lines that make it convenient and comfortable. The material used is mohair and wool, a fabric to be recommended on account of its dust shedding qualities. Black and white bone buttons trim the garment. The model has a plain, straight skirt and Norfolk jacket, hung from a yolk with pockets below the belt.

With the suit is worn an outing hat of soft straw in green and white. White buckskin tennis shoes complete the outfit.

CAP AND VEST.

Sheer Stuffs Used In Creating Many of the Season's Costume Accessories.

This is a season of sheerness, and here in this tango cap and vest that fits under a frock or blouse is a very dainty expression of the mode. The vest and the collar that are arranged in guimpe fashion keep in place better than otherwise. The front fastening is held invisibly with snap fasteners. The flare collar and the V front are in the top of the mode. The little cap of white net and blue ribbon may serve as a dance or a house cap.

TANGO CAP AND NEW VEST.

Improvised Shelves.

Radiators may be made very useful in summer by turning them into shelves upon which papers and magazines may safely be laid. Make cretonne covers that hide them. Have a sheet of tin or thin board to keep the cover tidy. If a reason is wanted for this precaution, just remember how much work is saved by not having to dust top and bottom, sides and pipes of the numerous radiators about the house. Every week the covers may be removed, shaken and returned.

Sash Designs.

Braid is much used now for girdles and belts. A girdle that is made of two lengths of silk woven braid about three inches wide sells for $5.50. The braid is stitched together to make a long sash—six inches wide and two and a half yards long. It is finished at the ends with long black silk tassels.

A Household Economy.

To make candles last double the usual time take each candle by the wick and give it a good coat of white varnish. Put the candles away a day or two to let them harden. The varnish prevents the grease from running down and so prolongs the life of the candle.

Many a fellow is so slow as to stick fast.

Culinary Hints

Stirring Milk.

Always stir up the milk in a jar or pitcher if you wish to give a fair percentage of cream to individual drinkers. Recent investigations by the United States department of agriculture proved that in many cases where retail dealers are held up for selling skimmilk it is because they have ignorantly poured off the top milk to one customer, leaving the skimmed for some one else.

The department of agriculture recommends that milk be retailed in bottles. Whenever it is necessary to sell bulk milk vendors are advised to mix their milk thoroughly each time before pouring from a large container into a small one if they wish to avoid unintentional skimming. This can best be done by stirring the milk with a long handled dipper. Shaking the can is not sufficient.

Strawberry Sponge.

Take strawberries and clean and hull enough of them to measure a cupful when mashed, add the juice of a lemon and a cupful of sugar; let stand until the sugar is dissolved, then rub through a sieve. Soak a level tablespoonful of gelatin in a quarter of a cupful of cold water until soft; then dissolve by standing in hot water. Strain into the strawberry mixture. Chill in a pan of ice water until it thickens, then beat until frothy, fold in the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs and a cupful of rich cream beaten until stiff. Line a mold with ladyfingers, turn in the mixture and chill. Garnish with whipped cream and strawberries.

Spinach In Butter.

Cook some nice fresh spinach in salted water; then drain, press out the moisture and chop very fine. Heat some butter in a saucepan, add the chopped spinach, stir with a long wooden spoon, adding a little butter. This will work out the moisture. Season to taste with salt and a little scraped nutmeg. Finish by adding an ounce and a half of butter.

Cold cooked spinach is delicious molded, then turned on to lettuce leaves and garnished with hard boiled eggs and bits of cooked ham or tongue. Garnish with mayonnaise dressing.

Chambord Trout.

Parboil the required number of fresh brook trout in seasoned water, containing a sliced carrot, an onion stuck with two cloves, one bay leaf and a little red wine. When this is done take up the fish and carefully remove the skin. Place the trout in a saute pan, cover with brown marinade sauce and finish cooking. Dish up neatly and garnish with small fish quenelles, crayfish and small fleurons of puff pastry. Sauce over the front carefully with marinade sauce and serve hot.

An Attractive Ice.

For raspberry-currant ice take four cupfuls of water, one and a third cupfuls of sugar, two-thirds of a cupful of raspberry juice and one and a third cupfuls of currant juice. Boil sugar and water to make a sirup, strain berries through cheesecloth, add their juice, cool and freeze. Whole cherries, seeded, may be added to this and will make it more attractive. Serve with a whole cherry on each portion.

Baking a Souffle.

A souffle should never be put into a very hot oven. It crusts over on top before it has time to bake properly inside and is likely to fall as soon as it comes from the oven. Bake in a moderate temperature and not too fast.

When Raisins Stick.

Raisins often stick to the paper in which they have been wrapped. At such times hold the paper for a moment over the steam escaping from a teakettle and the fruit can then be removed readily.

Dainty New Salads.

Pears are nice coated with mayonnaise. Served with cold meat or with sardines they make an excellent supper dish. They are also very acceptable mixed with a well hearted lettuce cut in shreds.

The Odor of Cabbage.

A lump of charcoal placed in the saucepan will destroy the odor of cabbage in cooking. In the case of other greens a lump of dough the size of an egg will answer the purpose.

When Frying Fish.

When frying small fish sprinkle them with fine oatmeal instead of flour and when cooked they will look as if they had been fried with egg and bread crumbs.

Avoiding Grease Spots.

When frying place a piece of clean white paper over the food in the pan, and your grate or stove will be free from grease spots, as the paper will suck it up as it splashes.

Fat on Soup.

Always remove the cake of fat that settles on the top of cold soup. If allowed to remain the soup will turn sour more quickly than it otherwise would.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Reports emanating from one of the largest houses on 'change that export buying of American wheat had already started on a big basis put decided vigor into prices today near the close. The upward flurry that followed was the second which had taken place after the opening, and resulted in a spirited finish, 2½c to 2⅝c above last night. Corn scored a like advance, with oats up ⅝c to ⅝c, and provisions higher by 7½c to 30c.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Aug. 4.—Business in export grain circles for the time being is at a standstill, owing to the serious outlook of the political situation, but there is a good demand locally and from the country for car lots of all kinds of grain, and quite an active trade is doing at firm prices. There was no further change in the flour situation today, but owing to the further sharp advance in prices for wheat in Winnipeg the feeling was strong at the recent rise in prices. The demand from local and country buyers was bad for car lots, and quite an active trade was done. Millfeed was also strong at the recent advance in prices, with a good trade passing in all lines. In butter the feeling is strong and higher prices are anticipated later in the week, owing to the continued good demand from British Columbia and the Canadian Northwest for supplies, and to the increased enquiry from English buyers for round lots. Cheese is quiet, but firm. Eggs are stronger, and prices have advanced one cent per dozen, with a good demand.

fleet. When the news became known in London the indignation of the populace knew no bounds. An attempt was made to wreck the German Embassy by thousands of infuriated citizens, and thousands of metropolitan police, including the whole of the mounted force, struggled for over an hour and a half against overwhelming odds. The building was partially wrecked, but nobody was seriously hurt among its occupants, although scores of people in the crowd were trampled by the police, who repeatedly charged the mob.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Field Marshal Sir John French, after a brief estrangement from the army as a result of the Ulster incident, has been appointed inspector-general.

The mobilization of the army reserves and territorials has been conducted principally by motor buses. Many left London for strategical points crowded with soldiers and territorials.

Railroads Taken Over.

LONDON, Aug. 5. — The British Government last night took over all of the railroads in the United Kingdom. It was officially announced that this precautionary measure has been taken because of the gravity of the situation, and that the Government would manage the roads through a committee to be formed from the railway managers.

In anticipation of this action the War Office has had assembled in the various army depots corps of expert telegraph operators from the signal corps and experienced railroad men, who are either in the active army or

JAPAN TAKES SIDES.

Official Announcement Made That She Will Help Britain In East.

TOKIO, Aug. 5. — The Japanese proclamation, setting forth that, if the war extended to the Far East, Japan might be forced to join with her ally, Great Britain, was issued after an extraordinary session of the Cabinet, and was generally interpreted as preparing the people of Japan for the action of the Japanese navy as soon as Great Britains declaration has been announced.

It is reported that Kiaichau may possibly be occupied by the Japanese in the event of the defeat of the German squadron in the Far East, thus clearing the Pacific Ocean for the war vessels of Russia, France and Great Britain, and permitting them to proceed to Europe undisturbed if they desire.

Extraordinary excitement prevails in Tokio. The public waits anxiously for the issue of extra newspapers, but incoming news is now suffering considerable delay and is meagre.

Remounts From Canada.

MONTREAL, Aug. 5. — "Arrangements are being made to collect 30,000 horses in Canada should England have need of them in the war."

This is the statement made by an official of the National Live Stock Exchange, Limited, the head office of which is in Montreal. "The cavalry horses which have been produced by the National Bureau of Breeding during the past eight years are now in great demand," he said.

These remounts have been produced by farmers and small breeders all over Canada.

Italy Stands Firm.

ROME, Aug. 5. — Germany has made an appeal to Italy to stand with her, according to The Giornale du Italia. The newspaper says the attention of the Italian Government has been called to what Germany describes as hostile acts on the part of France, which the German Government asserts constitute a case coming with the terms of the treaty of alliance, even though, on account of these acts, the declaration of war came from Germany.

The Giornale du Italia says it understands the Italian Government will not change its attitude of neutrality.

MUCH IS SUPPOSITION CENSORS ARE IN CONTROL

All Messages Closely Scrutinized and Reliable Information is Lacking

London, Aug. 5. — The newspaper situation is an extraordinary one. Everybody feels and knows that events of the most momentous nature are taking place on the Russo-German frontier, in the Baltic Sea, in Servia, on the Franco-German frontier, and at dozens of other important points, but the governments concerned have placed so complete an embargo on news that nothing whatever is being received in London from the score of war correspondents who have been sent out nor from the regular correspondents of the news organizations and newspapers throughout the war zone. Even official news is being rigorously censored and every government concerned is forbiding the transmission of any intelligence likely to afford the slightest assistance to a hostile power.

London Papers Blank.

In consequence the London papers present a curious appearance, being denuded of everything except an occasional short message directly concerning the war, and even these contain but few facts that can be accepted as definite and authentic, for the remainder of the papers are made up of speculation, conjecture of opinions and official statements issued in London.

Telephonic Lines Closed.

Telephonic communication with the continent has completely stopped, and all telegrams from the continent are being closely scrutinised by official censors before being despatched and again before delivery, very few being permitted to pass in any form whatever.

All domestic news concerning military and naval movements also has to be submitted to censorship before being published, and the newspapers have been unanimous in their patriotic response to the government's appeal to refrain from the publication of any news calculated to be of any use to possible enemies of the country

Cables Censored.

Furthermore, all outgoing cables, no matter what their destination may be, are being severely censored and entirely delayed in consequence. No code words of any description are being permitted, and even telebraphic addresses in code are being refused, all cables having to bear the full name and address of receiver and sender.

All this means that the vast and complicated machinery of news transmission in Europe is utterly crippled for the time being, and it will be weeks, even months, before the world gets reliable and accurate information regarding the tragedies now being enacted in the vast theatre of Europe.

NEWS NOTES FROM OMEMEE

Omemee, Aug. 5.—Mr. A. C. Hodgetts, manager of the Bank of Toronto, returned on Wednesday evening from his summer outing on the Georgian Bay.

There was a large crowd of Omemee people attended the Firemen's Annual Meet at Lindsay on Thursday. The outing was much enjoyed though the attendance at the sports was almost overwhelming

Mrs. W. G. Marsh of Richmond Hill, was the guest of her brother, Mr. T. W. McLean on Wednesday.

For having the highest average term mark and securing honours on the 1913 entrance to High School's examinations, Miss Marion Carey was the recipient of a gold monogramed stick-pin, otherwise suitably engraved, from the Principal of the Public School.

Mr. Running, relieving manager of the Bank of Toronto, left town on Thursday.

The Board of Education has advertised for two teachers for the public school, since it was resolved to convert that part of the educational machinery to a two-teacher school.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Patterson have returned from Mount Pleasant after a week's visit.

The Mount Pleasant baseball team drove out to Omemee on Wednesday evening and played our ball boys a friendly game on Wednesday evening. At the end of seven innings of pretty good ball, the score read 6-2 in favor of the visitors. Batteries for Mount Pleasant: Lowes and Shield; Omemee: Murray, Mitchell and Down; umpire, Mr. Joseph Boyd. A return game will be played at Mount Pleasant on Saturday afternoon of this week.

Mr. M. Nugent, who has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Nugent(returned last week to his home in North Dakota where he is engaged in pedagogic work.

Mr. T. W. McLean, who has served a six-year term as principal of our public school, has accepted the position of principal of the public schools of Port Perry. The first of the week he was in Port Perry looking up a residence.

Mr. J. H. Messmore, Classical Master of Simcoe High School visited his mother, being the guest of his sister, Mrs. T. W. McLean.

Of the seven pupils of our High School who wrote on the middle school entrance to Normal examinations, the following were successful: Joy Cornell, Mae Fee, Jennie Smith (honors), E. M. Thompson, Tena Weir.

The death of the late Charles Rutherford took place at the home of his half-sister, Mrs. D. Blaylock, of Omemee, on Tuesday morning, after a period of confinement to his bed where the most skillful medical attention and the kindest or nursing was administered. The remains were taken to the 9 a.m. train on Wednesday evening and conveyed to Midland where interment took place. The deceased was born near to and grew to manhood at Mount Pleasant where he was for some time engaged in the manufacture of cheese. Prior to the time of his death he lived at Midland. He was a quiet, inoffensive man of many noble qualities and was much respected. There are left to mourn his demise his widow and children, his sister, Mrs. Blaylock, and a large number of friends to whom sincerest condolences are extended.

Mr. C. Cochrane of Toronto was in town last week calling on his many old friends who were glad to see him and to hear of his success. He is an old Omemee boy.

JOHN CHINAMAN MUCH WORRIED

He Was Unable to Send Money Home

The precautionary orders issued by the express companies regarding the issuance of money orders are causing no end of worry to the Celestials in this city. The wily Chink has been in the habit of sending his money to the Chinese-British Bank at Hong Kong, but as the express companies have, owing to the uncertainty of the situation, refused to issue money orders to foreign countries, the Chinese in this city are unable to follow the usual course. Yesterday numerous Celestials called at the Canadian express office and were informed that it was against the temporary regulations. There was a great jabber, and one little Chink, after being informed what the clerk had said, unloaded himself of about five minutes of talk. Some one asked a fellow-countryman what the little fellow was saying, and the other Chink replied: "He say, he mad."

Many of the Celestials are very much worried over the prospect of war, and are of the opinion that some foreign country will come over here and take all the money — "the poor, no checkee, no laundly man nakee."

MAY HAVE CLUE TO WHEREABOUTS OF DR. ROBINSON

Kingston, Aug. 5.—That Inspector Miller secured a clue, however faint, as to the possible whereabouts of Dr. C. K. Robinson, was the substance of a despatch from Watertown. Bert Briggs, ticket agent of the New York Central Railway in Watertown, when shown a photograph of the missing doctor, said that he remembered seeing him in that city, but whether or not Mr. Briggs was able to give any further information regarding the purchase of a ticket by the doctor, the despatch did not disclose.

Circulars containing a photo and description of the missing man are being circulated throughout the United States and Canada and before leaving Watertown Detective Miller seemed positive that before long the authorities would trace out the physician's whereabouts and arrest him.

It is known that close friends of the doctor have friends in New York State and it is thought that they may be shielding him in his efforts to escape arrest.

"We dug up a clue here," admitted Inspector Miller before leaving Watertown, "and while I admit that it is a very faint one, it may lead to other things which will be effective in securing the apprehension of the much-sought doctor. I cannot disclose what I have learned," concluded the detective.

Rainbow Seen In the Water

To see a rainbow in the water was the experience of Mr. H. B. Rye, proprietor of Rye's Boat Livery about 6.45 this morning while making his regular run to T.A.S. Park. He was approaching what is known as Robinson's Island, near the second bend below Yankee Bonnet and at first thought that his eyes had gone wrong. On closer observation however he could easily see the different colors of the rainbow. Considering that the morning was very bright and with no fog this is decidedly singular. In speaking to a Review reporter Mr. Rye stated that he has often noticed rainbows in a fog but never heard of one being stretched across the top of the water as was the case this morning.

TORONTO BOY ON BRITISH GUNBOAT

Commander Denison is First Cousin of Mrs. W. H. Dunsford

Commander H. E. Denison, of the British torpedo gunboat "Jason," is a Toronto boy, and a cousin of Mrs. W. H. Dunsford, Water street north. He left Portsmouth with the British fleet and will no doubt do his part in the conflict which seems imminent.

Commander Denison is an old Upper Canada College boy, though he left that institution when only 13 to enter the service as a middy in the Royal Naval College, England.

He is the second son of the late Col. Fred Denison, M. P., of "Rusholme House" on Dundas street, Toronto, who commanded the Canadian voyageurs on the Nile during the Soudan expedition. Police Magistrate Denison of Toronto is an uncle.

Supposed Proofs For Observation of the Sabbath

Elder F. W. Johnston spoke very interestingly last evening in the tent on the corner of Harvey and Dublin Streets in which he took up the supposed proofs that people offer for keepink Sunday holy. He took for text 2 Tim. 3:16, where it says that the Bible furnishes proof upon all things essential, and he said that if this be really true, then if Sunday is a holy day we ought to be able to find it in the Bible. Taking the first argument that is generally given by Sunday keepers, "that the early disciples celebrated Sunday because of their belief in the Lord's resurrection," the elder said positively that this was not so; for in Mark 16:9-14 it says they didn't believe that Christ was really risen though many brought the report that he was really seen. How then could they ever honor Christ's resurrection when they did not believe it had occurred?

But Sunday keepers say that Christ met with his disciples on that day and therefore it must be holy." If this made it holy then Monday must be holy for it says in John 20:16 he met them "after eight days," which of course would be Monday.

The Sunday keepers say the disciples always met and broke bread on that day and therefore it must be holy." But the elder said that if this theory be true then we must keep every day according to Acts 2:46 they broke bread every day. How absurd.

The next favorite argument usually offered is that "redemption is greater than creation." But where, he declared, does the Bible say it is? This is a false assumption and cannot be proven. David prayed "Create in me a clean heart." He thought therefore that creation and redemption were the same. Perhaps the modern theologians know better than David. However we will suppose that redemption is greater. Would that be of any proof that we ought to keep Sunday? The Bible says we were redeemed by the blood, Rev. 5:9. When we enquire, was this work accomplished? The answer is "On Friday." Therefore redemption day is Friday and not Sunday. Let Sunday keepers think of this and avoid such shallow logic.

But the last one usually offered in support of Sunday is given in Rev. 1:10, "I was in the Spirit on the Lord's Day." But Exodus 20:8-11 says the Seventh day is the Lord's day and so does Mark 2:27. Has the Lord got two holy days? Of course not. The only holy day is the Seventh or Saturday and this was the day that John was in the Spirit.

NO SALES REGISTERED AT CHEESE BOARD TODAY

Representatives Had Instructions From Their Firms not to Buy

Having Canadian ports on the Atlantic tied up completely and the markets closed as a result of the troubled clouds hovering over the greater portion of the European continent is beginnig to be felt in this district. This morning at the regular fortnightly meeting of the Peterboro Cheese Board, 1640 cheese were boarded but there was absolutely no sales. The two buyers, Mr. Morton representing the Noble and Christmas Co. of Montreal and Mr. G. A. Gillespie, buyer for the Hodgson Bros. and Rowson Co. of Montreal were present and when called upon by President Switzer to make an explanation they stated that they received word from their companies instructing them not to buy any cheese as there was no way of getting it shipped. Both advised the storing of the cheese for a week and perhaps prospects for sales would be brighter then.

Mr. G. G. Publow, Chief Dairy Instructor for Eastern Ontario, who is in the city holding a special meeting with the local instructors Messrs. Ward and Cameron, was in attendance and vouched for the fact that there was no possible way for the cheese to be shipped at present. How long this condition will last, no one is prepared to state, hence the best policy is to store the cheese with proper precaution in some place where the temperature can be regulated. Undoubtedly the price would be better when the war was over. If the factories of this vicinity have the good fortune of being equipped with a cool curing room the cheese might be kept there if not it is best to send them to a cold storage plant. England has ordered that Canada cease the shipping of food stuffs such as flour, butter, and meats, hence it is very probable that cheese will be in demand and if so, the price will be high.

To hold the cheese over for a couple of weeks means that the cheese must be in perfect condition. The farmers should send the milk to the factory in a perfect state and the makers should exercise every care in having their cheese solid. It is advisable to trim the boxes a quarter of an inch smaller than the cheese thus allowing for shrinkage which is apt to take place.

At the close of Mr. Publow's remarks it was decided to adjourn the Board for a week and perhaps in that time something more definite could be decided upon.

The factories boarded as follows: Keene 75, Warminster 60, Shearer 95, Selwyn 85, Villiers 75, Warsaw 85, Westwood 110, Oakdale 85, Daisy D. 0, Myrtle 115, Ormonde 120, Young's Point 50, Lang 95, Indian River 70, East Emily 100, Freewern 95, Norwood 125, Fleetwood 80, Killarney 60. Total 1640.

Liverpool may construct an 11-mile subway system soon.

HOW THE WAR STARTED

Toronto Globe.

The scraps of cabled news from the various European capitals, when pieced together, make fairly clear the course of events to date.

Austria-Hungary suddenly made certain demands of Servia, on pain of invasion if they were not complied with by a certain hour. The Servian government promptly complied with all but one, and offered to submit that one to arbitration. Austria-Hungary not merely pronounced this reply unsatisfactory, but at once invaded Servia. The invasion appears to have been virtually abandoned, probably for two reasons: the Servians have put up a discouragingly strong resistance, and Russia's attack on Austria-Hungary has made it necessary to withdraw most of her troops to defend her own frontiers. It seems at present probable that Servia will remain comparatively unmolested during the rest of the war: which goes to indicate that her alleged offence was its occasion, not its cause.

Russia, while carrying on diplomatic relations with Austria-Hungary for the purpose of preventing the dismemberment of Servia, proceeded mobilize her whole military force. As the Austro-Hungarian government could not or would not give satisfactory assurances on the territorial question, Russian troops were sent across the frontier, and thus a check was given to the invasion of Servia.

Germany was "surprised" by the action of Russia, but soon recovered sufficiently to send her an ultimatum demanding within a few hours an explanation of her intentions in placing troops along the German frontier. As no satisfactory explanation was given by Rusia, Germany declared war in accordance with the ultimatum. Russia, at present aided by Servia and Montenegro, and with good hope of substantial aid from Greece and Roumania, has cheerfully entered into what may prove a life-and-death struggle with Austria-Hungary and Germany.

Germany having declared war against Russia, proceeded to make war on France without declaring it. According to the latest authentic despatches she has chosen to avoid facing the French fortified line of defence by violating the neutrality of the principality of Luxemburg. This is equivalent to making war, not merely on this little state, but on all the states that guaranteed its independence in 1867. It appears that by turning the flank of the French defence Germany has been able to send troops into France at two points, and that there has been a commencement of actual hostilities, with what immediate results remains to be seen.

Great Britain, one of the guarantors of the independence of Luxemburg, is in this way being drawn into the vortex of war. The most important announcement, so far as Great Britain is concerned, was made to the House of Commons by Sir Edward Grey as Foreign Minister. It was to the effect that as the French fleet has been left in the Mediterranean to protect British as well as French interest there, it is incumbent on Great Britain to see that the western and northwestern shores of France are protected as far as practicable from attacks by hostile fleets. Germany has therefore been warned that any attempt on the part of her warships to either enter or leave the North Sea will be the signal for the instant and constant use of the whole naval power of Great Britain to render them powerless for mischief against France. The tendency of the violation of the neutrality of the smallest independent state in Europe will be to form against Germany the whole force of public opinion throughout Europe, and possibly to constrain some of the minor states to enter the arena of war against her.

ABOUT CHEESE

Cheese is credited with containing as much nutriment in one pound as is contained in two pounds of beef. It bothers the digestion of some, but the melting or cooking of it does away with this trouble, and there are many who believe that the merits of cheese are all on the side of ease and digestion and that is one reason why it has always remained the last dish of the dinner.

In old days when heavy feeding and many bottles of port were dinner fashions, the dish of cheese was of immense importance. It was not a morsel then as it is now to give zest to the meal. Huge cheeses were brought whole to the banquet board and were carved and served with a great flourish. Big Stilton cheese were scooped out and filled with champagne for special occasions, and many mixtures were made of the softer creams with butter and wine, forming a paste to spread on crackers.

Toasted cheese is a great English delicacy, but for some reason it is not much in favor in this country except in the rarebit. The old London tavern on Fleet Street, the Cheshire Cheese, got its name from the excellence of its toasted cheese. A handy way to cook cheese in the manner called toasted is to chop or grate a quantity of it—the mild American cream is best—and then spread it neatly on saltine crackers. Place them side by side on a flat pan and put them in under a broiler long enough to melt the cheese. With a drop of Worestershire these are very dainty and appetizing.

FATHER AND SON ATTACKED BY A MAD BULL

Animal Hurled Both Into Nearby Lake

Kinmount, Aug. 5.—What might have been a serious accident took place at the home of Mr. Henry Boldt, West Monck Road. Master Len was leading a bull to water at the lake, which is just below the barn, when the animal went wild, likely from smell of blood of sheep Mr. Boldt was killing that morning. The bull hit Len in the back, throwing him into the lake; then Mr. Boldt, hearing the noise, rushed to help the boy, when the enraged animal turned on him, too, and put him also into the lake and had him down. Mr. Boldt held on to the staff attached to the ring in the animal's nose. The boy by this time got out of the lake and managed to get away. The bull followed. Mr. Boldt then got out, and managed to get to the house, where he got his rifle, and so ended Mr. Bull's career. It was a lucky escape for both.

Weights of Shoes.

In Haverhill, Mass., where they know, they say that a pair of men's dress shoes weighs a little more than two pounds, a pair of men's street shoes a little more than two and a half pounds and a pair of work shoes three pounds or more. A woman's shoe weighs about three-quarters of a pound. A pair of silk pumps may weigh only a pound. — Indianapolis News.

EXPULSION OF GERMANS

City of Brussels is Placed Under Martial Law

NAVAL FIGHT DENIED

Strong Feeling in Antwerp Against the Germans

Canadian Press Despatch.

Brussels, Aug. 5.—The Military Governor has placed the city under martial law and ordered the expulsion of all German residents.

London, Aug. 5.—The rumor that a naval engagement had occurred off Cromarty, Scotland, was set to rest today by an official denial that there had been a battle in that vicinity.

Antwerp, Aug. 5.—Serious anti-German rioting occurred here today. An angry mob sacked German cafes and restaurants and tore the escutcheon from the door of the German Consulate, the police being unable to check the disorders.

London, Aug. 5.—The authorities are taking all possible steps to allay public anxiety in regard to food supplies and to prevent unjustifiable attempts to artificially raise prices. The Home Office today issued an official statement that in addition to four months' supply of wheat actually in the country there were large consignments of wheat now on the way here much of which was already near British shores.

TWENTY ONE SPIES HELD

Were Arrested in Important Naval Centres

London, Aug. 5.—Reginald McKenna, Home Secretary, announced to-day that 21 spies had been arrested in the British Isles, during the last twenty-four hours, chiefly in important naval centres.

London.— Lloyd George announced in the Commons to-day that the Bank of England rate was to be reduced to six per cent. either tomorrow or Friday. The Government he said, had not yet decided to suspend specie payments.

GERMAN FLEET IN BALTIC SEA

Russian Warships Capture Many Merchantmen

VILLAGES BURNED

Canadian Press Despatch.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 5.—A German fleet of nineteen ships was sighted yesterday near the east coast of the Baltic Sea between Memeland and Libau. Russian warships in the Black Sea have captured many German merchantmen.

St. Petersburg.— Russian troops have established a contact with the enemy along the greater part of the Russo-German frontier in North Eastern Prussia Germans are reported to have fallen back and to be burning villages over an enormous stretch of the country which they had invaded.

CALL TO PEASANTS

Appeal to Russian Synod Makes Conflict a "Holy War"

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 5. — The Holy Synod yesterday sent messages to the priests and congregations of the Orthodox Church throughout the empire quoting the text from the book of John, "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friend," invoking them to "defend their little brothers and sisters in Christ," and declaring that faith is the invincible weapon.

The all-powerful Russian Church has declared entirely on the side of the state policy and has issued orders throughout the length and breadth of Russia which have the result of making this a holy war in the eyes of every Mujik in the empire.

Valiant Servians Beat Austrians.

PARIS, Aug. 5.—A despatch from Nish, Servia, to The Matin says:

The Autsrian troops were defeated with heavy loss in a battle against the Servians near Semendria.

Three regiments of Austrian infantry, comprising nearly 10,000 men, supported by heavy artillery, advanced against the Servians, but were repulsed, leaving many of their number dead and wounded on the field.

A large force of Austrian troops, aided by a flotilla of monitors composed of twenty vessels, has been trying for the last six days to cross the River Save into Servian territory, but has not yet succeeded in landing.

INTERNATIONAL IRRIGATION CONVENTION

Calgary, Aug. 5.—In the eastern section of the great irrigation project near Bassano, just to the east of Calgary, which the delegates and visitors to the International Irrigation Congress here, October 5 to 9, will have an opportunity of inspecting, there was recently established a Coloradian colony. About twenty-five families from that state have settled here, and it will be a matter of much interest to the visitors to learn how these settlers are getting along.

Most of the colonists are familiar with irrigation methods of agriculture, and their success will mean much to the irrigated section of Alberta. During a visit of the Bassano Board of Trade to the farms of the settlers it was thoroughly demonstrated to the visitors that irrigation was a live subject in Alberta, and one that means much to the future production of its semi-arid areas. The experiences of these colonists will be of interest to the delegates at the Calgary convention, as some of them have succeeded in raising excellent crops despite the very dry season. Next year these farmers expect to do much better as the irrigation system will be in better order, it having been opened for the first time this season.

Several root and fodder crops, hitherto foreign to Alberta, are being tested out in this section, and there is every appearance of their being a success. Farmers are well satisfied with the outlook of irrigation in Western Canada. Bassano is particularly interested in the coming congress, and the people of the town are looking forward to giving the visitors a good time when they arrive on the excursion to the irrigation project.

RENTING ROOMS

The total amount of rent money paid for furnished rooms in this city each week is enormous! Nobody knows how much. It goes to thrifty people, who like to lessen their own rent or living expense by sub-letting one or more spare rooms to an agreeable person. If YOU have a desirable extra room you can become a receiver of rent by ordering a "Furnished Room to Let" ad. in the Review. The cost is nominal—one cent a word for first insertion and half a cent a word for subsequent insertions, run consecutively.

TWO OUT, TWO STRIKES ON BATTER BUT PETES LOST

London Made Eleventh Hour Rally and Grabbed the Honors

SCORE WAS 6 to 5

The ninth told the tale and there were two out and two strikes on the batter at London yesterday when the fireworks commenced. The Pete infield had six boots while London had one and one in the outfield. Rooney, Byrne and King were the local clouters, while Reidy and Lamy had three each for the winners.

London, Aug. 4. — London came through strong in the ninth round of today's game and defeated Peterboro 6 to 5 in an exciting struggle. The Petes were something to the good in the last session and appeared due for a victory when with two out, two strikes on the batter and only one on, Cy Reidy started the fuss, scoring Bierbauer and tying the count. London won without having to await the retiring of the third man. The score : - -

RED CAPS AND DE LAVAL WILL FURNISH EXCITEMENT

In view of past events, the game between the Red Caps and the De Laval, at Riverside Park, Thursday evening at 6.30 will no doubt attract a large following of fans.

It will be the third time the teams will take the diamond, when one game should have decided the argument. Twice, when the Red Caps defeated the De Laval and as many times have the latter team succeeded in getting a decision for a re-play.

It will be a merry tussle and the spectators will have a lot of fun besides seeing a good game of ball. The league is under quite an expense through the use of the park and a hearty patronage of this game would greatly assist the finances.

"Ab." Quinlan will mupire.

TY TYSON who played first base and the outfield for Hamilton last year has been signed to hurl for the Buffalo Internationals Tyson belonged to Wilkesbarre but owing to some disagreement he refused to report. Wilkesbarre refused to sell him or trade him and he has been hurling semi-pro ball for Natty Natress' team of Niagara Falls, New York. He has a no hit and one hit game to his credit against Federal League Clubs.

COMMENT

As You Like It

THE ACTION of Snyder and Mullin in trying to create strife among the players is a very serious one especially at this stage of the race when Reisling needs the strongest line-up possible. Both players bolted on Saturday but Snyder must have settled his differences as he figured in the afternoon game Monday. Mullin is still out and organized baseball would do well to rid itself of such a trouble maker. Had London been down in the race the outbreak would hardly have occurred but with the team fighting gamely to shake off the slump which comes to almost every club and has hit every club in the league but London, Mullin and Snyder became temporary rebels. It will hardly improve their chances for advancement as the baseball world hates a trouble maker.

KNUTE BELTING lost another. The team either fails to hit behind Knute or through some fortunate occurrence they score enough to win a game, only to allow the other fellow to come along and snatch the game out of the fire as London did yesterday in the ninth.

OTTAWA has been mighty lucky to win three of its games from Hamilton. On Sunday the struggle went overtime and Ottawa won while on Monday the Senators won two overtime games. The Ottawa sport writers admit that luck favored their team. It takes more than luck to win all the time so the champions will have to have more than horseshoes to beat out London, which calamity we hope does not overtake the Cockneys.

THE PETES' hurling staff which looked like one of the best in the league at one time seems to have lost its effectiveness and today Schettler is the only one to be relied on.

"DEAD" AUTOS AS A MENACE

Judge Decides Car Left Standing by Roadside is a Danger

A recent decision in the courts by Judge Scott of a case tried before him at Lanark county court is of interest to all motor car owners. Briefly, the facts are that in June, 1913, a man named Weir hired a horse and buggy from a Carleton Place liveryman named Bailey to take a drive in the country. On returning to town he passed a motor of a Mr. Findlay standing outside the residence of Mr. Findlay. The car had been standing there for over three hours and the lights were out. The horse, which had previously met two cars in motion with their lights burning and had taken no fright, took fright at the "dead" car and reared and fell, breaking a leg. The liveryman sued the owner of the car and got judgment against the defendant for $178 and costs. The judge valued the horse at $165, and the plaintiff paid a vet. $20, $8 for pasture and $20 for feed ; total $[illegible]3, and he sold the horse for $35.

The judge held that the defendant had left the car by the roadside for an unreasonable time and should have safeguarded the travelling public.

As it is a common practice for motor car owners to leave their cars standing in the street for some time the decision is of [illegible].

Race Between an Auto and Pigeons

A member of the Imperial Parliament recently entered a race with 140 pigeons from the Westminster Palace Yard to Pontefract his constituency, a distance of 170 miles.

The M. P., Mr. Handel Booth, was defeated by 22 firds, but this was partly due to a brown cow which took the part of the pigeons.

The "Booth pigeon" regularly labelled No. 462, travelled by automobile and express train instead of through space as the other competitors in the contest.

The race was really between the Pontefract and Otley pigeons, but Mr. Booth joined in and promised to award two dollars and a half to the owner of every bird that beat him.

The real pigeons were released from Palace Yard at 9.45 by the Speaker of the British House of Commons and Mrs. Lowther, Mr. and Miss Lloyd George. Mr. J. H. Duncan, M. P.—one of the new Knights in the Honours list—and Colonel Lockwood.

Clearly the birds knew that much was expected of them. For a few moments they hovered above the Local Government Board offices, evidently anxious to satisfy themselves that the "Booth bird" started fair. Mr. Booth left just after the pigeons, travelling by motor car to catch the 10.10 express North. A street block held him up for some time, but he just managed to catch the train.

The Obstinate Cow.

His plan was to leave the railway at Doncaster and cover the remaining twenty-seven miles of the journey to Pontefract by motor-car, but the fates were not kind to him. The express arrived in Doncaster at seven minutes past one, a minute in front of the scheduled time, and outside the station was a 15-horse power Daimler. So far all had gone well, and as the little grey car sped swiftly along the Great North Road Mr. Booth congratulated himself on being well up to time.

But the trouble come in the shape of an old brown cow, very obstinate and very cross. The cow was being driven along the road about five miles from Doncaster, and it insisted on walking in the very centre of the track.

The two drovers endeavored to turn her to the side, but she resented their efforts, and the more they thrashed her the more obstinate she became.

The car by this time was right up to them, and as there was no room to pass the car had to pull up. The drovers shouted and plied their sticks lustily; the driver tooted on his horn; "Pigeon No. 463" said "Shoo!" as violently as he could but the cow, utterly regardless of the fact that it was being addressed by an M. P., and amazingly indifferent to the importance of the "pigeon's" mission refused to make way.

Pigeons Ahead of Car.

Meanwhile a score of pigeons were winging their way overhead, and the delay was costing the unfortunate member of Pontefract something like a quarter a second.

Fully three minutes elapsed before the car was able to pass the cow, and there was no hope of catching the birds which had gone by. All that remained to be done was to harry forward, and save as many dollars as possible.

There was great enthusiasm when the car arrived in Pontefract and the market folk pressed eagerly round to tell their member that he was beaten. "It'll cost thee a pretty penny, tha knaws, Handel lad," observed one grey-beard. But Mr. Booth was not at all depressed; he returned smile for smile, and said he did not mind.

The pigeon flyers at Knottingley grinned cheerfully as Mr. Booth entered the room and there was more badinage about the slowness of pigeons who travel in motor-cars.

Mr. Booth's speed had been 1,159 yards per minute, and the 22 pigeons which preceded had exceeded this the first to arrive covering the 170 miles in three hours and 50 minutes. The Pontefract people were easily the winners in the race between their birds and those from Otley.

CALL OFF THE TRIP TO WINDSOR

Regiment Will Likely Spend Holiday at the Ranges

At a meeting of the officers of the 57th Regiment held last night it was decided to cancel the proposition of a trip on Labour Day for two reasons. The question has been under consideration for several weeks, and reports were submitted last night from the O. C. companies that the men would be satisfied to take their pay less the portion required for regimental expenses.

Owing to the fact that so many men are out of work, and that there is a general scarcity of money, it was considered advisable to put this proposition to the men with the result that the three to four thousand dollars that would have been expended on a trip will be paid to the men.

Apart from this the present crisis puts the possibility of a pleasure trip on Labour Day out of the question. On Labour Day a regimental rifle match may be held.

THE PROPHECY OF DR. WILD

Made Thirty Years Ago Fits in With Present Crisis

Mr. G. G. Publow, Chief Dairy Instructor for Eastern Ontario, related a rather singular incident to a Review scribe this morning at the Cheese Board meeting. About thirty years ago he was in Toronto and hearing that Rev. Dr. Wild an evangelist, was acting in the capacity of a prophet at Massey Hall he resolved to hear him. Mr. Publow went down one evening and what he heard had a striking reference to the present European trouble. Dr. Wild claimed that there would be a war in 1914 which would involve practically every European country. Great Britain would be reluctantly forced into it and as soon as she did the prominent battles would be between Britain and the Germans. Modern fighting equipment would be given a tryout and would practically change the mode of fighting. The British would experience great difficulty in vanquishing the Germans but they would finally be successful although only after a great battle would be fought in the city of London, so fierce that the gutters would be flushed with human blood.

Mr. Publow, although he did not pay much attention to the prophecy at the time is forced to note how it compares with the present crisis. Up to the present point in the war Dr. Wild's words have come true. Dr. Wild has since passed away.

NOTICE.

Dr. Greer's office will be closed during July and August except on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

RECEPTION OF YOUNG LADIES AT MT. ST. JOSEPH

A solemn ceremony took place at Mount St. Joseph this morning when ten young ladies severed their connections with the world and entered the religious life. The reception brought the retreat which eighty-three sisters have been attending during the past week, to a close. His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, D.D., officiated and also celebrated Mass, Very Rev. W. H. Brick, C.S.S.R., who preached the retreat delivered an eloquent sermon on the life of those who give up the pleasures of this world and work out their salvation in a convent. The speaker referred to the virtues which mark the lives of sisters and the grand example they set for the world at large.

The handsomely decorated chapel was taxed to its utmost with a large number of Sisters of the St. Joseph's Community and friends of the young ladies who were being received.

Those entering were:

Miss Ethel McDonald, Esmonde, in religion Sr. Mary Apollonia.

Miss Mary Sumers, Bonnechere, in religion Sr. Mary St. Rose.

Miss Margaret Roche, Killaloe, in religion Sr. Mary Lucia.

Miss Eunice Connelly, North Bay, in religion Sr. Mary.

Miss Mary McCullough, Marysville, in religion Sr. Mary Nativity.

Miss Mary McDonald, Douglas, in religion Sr. Mary Maxentia.

Miss Irma Shadeau, Saginaw, Mich., in religion Sr. Mary St. Irma.

Miss Clara Cull, Rockingham, in religion, Sr. Mary Afra.

Miss Sadie O'Connor, Peterborough, in religion Sr. Mary Priscilla.

Miss Joanna Condon, Douro, in religion Sr. Mary Elizabeth.

Among the priests present were: Mons. Casey, Very Rev. Dean McColl, Rev J. J. O'Brien, Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, Ennismore; Rev. Father Meagher, Norwood; Rev. P. McGuire, Downeyville; and Rev. C. J. Phelan.

KAISER'S POLICY SAID TO BE OPPOSITE TO THAT OF THE GREAT BISMARCK

This Was to Retain Friendship of Britain and Russia —Bismark Detested Austria

The peoples of All the Russias are ready now to go to war; Laplanders from the Arctic Ocean and the White Sea, Finns from Bothnia, Germans from the Russian provinces on the Baltic; Greeks, Turks, and Armenians from Odessa and Sevastapol; Black Sea Cossacks, Arabs from Bokara, once the Athens of Central Asia; dwellers in ill-fated Poland; men of the kingdom of Georgia in the Caucasus, and of the Tartar kingdom of Kazan, whose crowns are a part of the imperial crown of Russia; wine merchants from Astrakhan on the Volga, "City of the Golden Horde"; Persians from the petroleum fields of Baku; mining magnates from the gold, malachite and emerald mines of Siberia, belonging to Russia in Asia, which exceeds the whole area of Europe by two million square miles; East Indian traders who are Russian subjects in Orenburg; Chinese who are Russian subjects on the desert steppes of Gobi and Kiakhta, where Russia is merged into China: Tartars who are Russian subjects in Urga, the sacred city of the Mongols, and Tartars who are prosperous Russian subjects and peasants in the Ural mountains, where the traveller may see the marble obelisk looking upon one side Europe and upon the other Asia — these, the peoples of All the Russias, await also to accept war as Nicholas II. shall decree through his beaurocracy and his ring of grand dukes.

Czar Cannot Count His Riches.

The Czar is so fabulously rich that he cannot possibly know how much he does possess. Our American millionaires are comparatively poor beside him. At the ceremonies of state he wears, in the jewels of his imperial diadem and decorating his robes, a fortune worth millions of dollars. One diamond alone, one of the largest on earth, which adorns the sceptre he carries in his hands, is valued by itself at a million and a half.

To describe his palaces in different parts of the empire and his wonderful picture galleries, containing thousands of paintings and pieces of statuary, would fill a big volume.

His yearly income is colossal. He has mines yielding gold and silver, which he sells to the Russian government to coin into money; mines yielding marble and granite bought by contractors for stately edifices all over the world; mines of malachite and lapis lazuli, which you see in the great columns of famous cathedrals, museums, and libraries, and sometimes in the mantlepieces of the sumptuous homes of the very rich; and then other mines where the women bring forth from the bowels of the earth baskets full of such lovely stones as the emeralds, the turquoise, the beryl and the aqua marine which are sold by the Czar's agents. He has revenues also from houses and factories and from thousands of acres of farming land; while each family in the empire, from the wealthiest merchant down to the poorest peasant, is taxed, in addition, to add to the revenues of the Czar.

But too Poor to Buy Peace.

But with all this colossal wealth, Nicholas II. is too poor to buy peace for the nations if the beaurocracy has settled upon war.

In Berlin a constitutional monarchy is ruled by William II., a man of such extraordinary intelligence and strength of mind that he dominates his family, his ministers, his people. He has done so now for nearly a quarter of a century. He has stood as an exponent of the gospel of peace. But all the time his plans have been making for war. The nations of the earth will see in the working out of these plans whether the advisers of the sovereign, even a beaurocracy of advisers, or the sovereign himself, can the better see the end from the beginning of statecraft; can the better plan for the greatness of an empire.

William II's plans are those he adopted as his personal programme when he dismissed the empire's faithful old servant, Prince Bismarck. Bismarck was forced into retirement soon after the young emperor ascended the throne.

"If he is not satisfied with the way things are going in Germany now, he can shake the dust of the country off his feet," William II. is credited with saying.

This was from a young man of some thirty-odd years to an old man who had taken the small state of Prussia, the centre of a ring of enemies encircling her on every hand, desiring her humiliation, her annihilation, and had left her the centre of a great empire, powerful enough to impose her will upon her former neighboring foes. Bismarck had had nearly thirty years of leadership of the state, as prime minister of Prussia and prime minister of the German empire. It was for as many years as William II. could number from his birth at the time.

Kaiser William's Premiers Since Bismarck.

Since then the emperor has had four prime ministers. Under the first, Caprivi, Russia and France made their allegiance so long prevented by Bismarck, so threatening to Germany. Under the second, Hohenhole, William II.'s naval dreams of crushing England began to unfold. Under the third, von Buelow, the creation of the German navy became an established fact — and war with England began to darken the horizon of Europe as a black cloud which sooner or later would burst — inevitably burst. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, now the fourth prime minister after Bismarck, has today the task of making a triumph or a failure of William II's policies.

Will Bismarck be vindicated at this late day? Will it be proved that his ideas for Germany were those of more profound wisdom than William II's? Bismarck has been dead only sixteen years. It is not a long time to await, beyond the grave the justification denied in life, the revenge of the gods whose mills grind so slowly but so exceedingly fine.

"The position of a foreign minister is, at the best of times, the precarious one of the tight-rope dancer," said Bismarck. But he labored none the less incessantly for Germany. He said, "I have no principles of morality in politics, I have only my duty to the Fatherland."

He lied and made fair promises he never expected to keep, he stole the territory of other nations, he was merciless to the enemies of the Fatherland, he was no less merciless to himself. He loved the Fatherland more than he did his own soul or his own honor. The policies he laid down for her growth in greatness had nothing to do with any possible benefit to be accrued to himself, benefit only to the Fatherland.

Bismarck's policy, first, last and all the time was friendship with England. Whether he felt attracted toward Great Britain, or was personally antagonized by her unfriendly attitude toward Germany, whether he admired or condemned her policy—still he never swerved from the conviction that Germany's good lay in England's friendship, that nothing could ever happen which could be sufficiently bad for Germany to break this friendship; that, in fact, England's position of power did but add to Germany's power.

Bismarck could have interferred with England's occupation of Egypt, but be declined.

"He could nave upset our apple cart in Egypt, if he had wanted to." confessed a member of the British Cabinet.

Bismarck acknowledged this to be true, but said that he considered it more important to be on cordial terms with England than to obtain an advantage by opposing her.

This has not been William II.'s idea. To overmatch England in England's supreme possession of power, the lordship of the seas, is his plan.

Longs to Head a World Power.

He desires to make Germany a "world power," an empire with colonies such as England owns. But Bismarck did not believe in this. Said he:

"Germany's expansion must be limited to what Germany can swallow."

In William II.'s world policy, Bismarck would have said, "The Emperor has bitten off more than he can chew"

The threatening war, involving Germany and England, Germany and Russia, Germany and France will tell us whether Bismarck was right or William II.

Bismarck always said that the pressure which was brought upon Prussia and Germany to be unfriendly to Russia would be ignored that Russian statesmanship had helped him through the formation of the German Empire, and that Russian friendship should never be lost.

Down to the last days of his life Bismarck declared that Germany ought never to be made a catspaw to further the interests of other nations by opposing those of Russia.

By "other nations" he meant Austria. For Austria Bismarck always had a detestation. Austria's great Prime Minister, Metternich, was the most subtle, most dangerous enemy Bismarck had in building up the German Empire. Metternich, to emphasize Prussia's lack of a position of equal prestige, received Bismarck in his bedroom, in dressing gown and slippers. It was as if he were receiving a lackey.

Matternich's attitude was Austria's. And deep down in the heart of Austrian statesmanship of today that attitude remains unchanged—of condescension toward Prussia; condescension even toward the German Empire.

Keynote of Bismarck's Policy.

The keynote of Bismarck's policy was to stand in with Russia. And Germany's policy would be the same today if Bismarckian principles had been allowed by Emperor William II. Instead of that Germany is supposed to be directing gigantic efforts to crush Russia.

In this terrific storm of the nations, what will be the fate of Russia as against Germany? Will the statesmanship of the statesman, as paramount in Russia, or that of the individual sovereign, as in Germany be the more wisely conceived?

The great Russian Empire is too extensive, its people are by nature and habit too willingly the subjects of the Czar for the monarchial principl to be seriously endangered even by this expected war, the greatest in the history of the world, in which Russian soldiers may die in countless numbers. And one remembers that Bismarck did not fear for Russia even in such a war as this is expected to be. Said he:

"It will be a critical time for Europe if Russia should produce a strong statesman who, in pursuing a given bold policy, would not shrink from sacrificing the lives of a few hundred thousand or even a million of men."

One of the critical questions of this time is concerning the "strong man" today in Russia, Prime Minister Goremykin, who would not mind the sacrifice of a few hundred thousand or even a million of men to carry on Russia's war.

But will the story be the same of Germany's sacrifices of men and treasure in this year? Will the monarchial principle endure there through such an upheaval?

Will Bismarck be justified and William II. proved wrong? Will William II. pay the price such wrong judgment of policy could demand in such an enlightened and compact union of states as that of the German Empire?

Emperor William of Germany and Emperor Francis Joseph, of Austria. This picture is interesting just now in view of Emperor William's support of Austria in the present crisis.

CALL GOES FORTH.

Canadian Government Reports Active Steps To Defend Canada.

OTTAWA, Aug. 5. — "An official memorandum says: "Portions of the militia have been called out for active service to protect the coasts and to safeguard public property in various parts of the Dominion. The steamship Margaret and the steamship Canada have been transferred to the naval service and all ships available in the naval service have been placed on active service.

"All measures prescribed by the scheme of defence have been taken by the various Departments of the Government.

"The naval volunteer force has also been called into active service.

"There has been a rumor that Austian steamships, presumably merchants ships, are meditating an attack on one of the Marconi stations, and the necessary precautions have been taken."

Six Ammunition Trains.

FORT WILLIAM, Out., Aug. 5.— Carrying ammunition to be used in the fortress at Esquimalt, on the Rainbow and by the land forces on the Pacific coast, six trains are passing through Fort William. The ammunition is being brought from Quebec and being hurried through to the coast.

How Manner Counts.

A gracious manner, the expression of that kindly spirit which can reach out unerringly in tactful wisdom, is the quality above all others we should seek to bring out in our characters, for only by so doing can we find the best in life. And it makes the everyday happenings so much more enjoyable, for dullness is frightened away, and duty gets lost in pleasure.

THE CASE OF JAPAN

The despatch from Tokio intimating that in case Britain is forced to take sides in a great European struggel, Japan will be found fighting on behalf of Russia, her erstwhile enemy, and assisting Britain, Japan's ally, draws attention to the queer fact that nearly every nation in the Triple Alliance and Triple Entente at one time or another has fought against the other members of the combination to which it belongs. For instance, Britain, Russia and France form one combination, yet it is not long since Britain regraded Russia as her greatest enemy, and Rudyard Kipling wrote about the "Bear that walks like a Man." In the Crimea War Britain's ally against Russia was France. In the great Napoleonic wars, Russia, with the rest of Europe was pitted against France. But even more traditional was the enmity between France and Britain, and on a multitude of occasions French frigates and French battalions struggled against British.

On the side of the Triple Alliance somewhat masilir historical inconsistencies can be found. In the middle of the last century and before that time, Prussia and Austria battled for supremacy in Germany, until Bismarck finally brought victory to Prussia. Then, to prevent the elimination of a buffer state between herself and Russia, Prussia, at the suggestion of the Man of Blood and Iron, formed the Triple Alliance, to which Italy became a party. Austria, for generations, held some of the northern provinces in Italy, and there was much bad blood, and there still is some, between the two peoples.

Another oddity is that Italy, a partner in the Triple Alliance, is a very good friend of Britain, a member of the Triple Entente, and her natural ally. Italy is doing her best to prevent a general conflagration in Europe, and as she would be very vulnerable to attack by French and British fleets, it is possible that she will refuse to make common cause with Austria and Germany.

Still another peculiar fact is that back in the days of Maria Theresa, England espoused the cause of Austria against a number of nations, and later gave aid to Frederick the Great of Prussia against France, Austria and Russia.

So that it will be seen that the soldiers of the nations now in danger of collision have tested one another's mettle in days gone by, both as friends and as foes. And, as on other occasions, changes in the relative strength of nations may transform the friends of today into the foes of tomorrow and the foes of today into the friends of tomorrow. Stranger things have happened than that the future shall reveal Britain and Germany as allies. But there seems no prospect of that until reverses in the field shall have curbed the power of the great Teutonic nation.

REPORTED CONFLICTS

Unconfirmed Report Says German Squadron Has Been Bottled Up

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Every nerve in Britain is strained to-day waiting for news from the North Sea, where a death struggle is in progress between the British and German fleets. Just at midnight when the 24-hours stipulated in the ultimatum to Germany expired the Admiralty sent to the Home Fleet the laconic message "Capture or destroy the enemy."

News of a naval engagement in the North Sea is confirmed, wounded from the battle have landed at Cromarty, in Scotland.

England's wireless broke loose last night. Immediately after midnight King George sent a personal message to the entire fleet now sailing against the German armada cleared for action.

"I have confidence that the British fleet will revive the old glories of the navy. I am sure that the navy will again shield Britain in this hour of trial. It will prove the bulwark of the Empire."

The King held a Privy Council sitting just before midnight. A decree had been prepared declaring that a state of war existed with Germany should the answer to England's ultimatum prove unsatisfactory. Instead, the Kaiser ignored the ultimatum and took the initiative in the war declaration.

The Admiralty offices were a blaze of light all the evening, and shortly after midnight the First Lord, Winston Churchill, rushed to Buckingham Palace with Sir Edward Grey.

High admiralty and naval officers were going and coming, and it is known that wireless signals were sent out to the first fleet under Admiral Cllaaghan.

The exact location of the Germans is known. Their action n sinkng a mine-laying ship and chasing a destroyer was unwise, in the opinion of the naval experts, inasmuch as it revealed their position to the British admiral.

Britain must strike on the sea in order to prevent any invasion of its shores by Germany.

Germans Bottle Up?

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—It was reported here to-day that early in the morning the big wireless instruments on the coast had picked up news that the British Home Fleet had the German squadron "bottled up" off the coast of Denmark. What confidence may be placed in the story is problematical.

The wireless despatch if it be reliable would indicate that the Britains have outsailed and out manoeuvered their opponents. If true it means that the British admiral can choose his own time and method of striking home, the advantage of position being his.

Berlin Reports Victory.

BERLIN, Aug. 5. — The German defending forces last night repulsed an attack in force of the Russian army at Memet, the most northerly town in Prussia. The Russian army penetrated the empire at the railway and advanced on Memet. The frontier guards interposed no resistance until the fortifications outside of the town were reached. Here the German commander had massed his men, supported by a battery of artillery, and the Russians, when they attempted to charge, were raked by a cross fire and retreated in confusion. The Russian loss is said to have been heavy.

German Cruisers Taken?

ALGIERS, Aug. 5.—According to an unofficial report a French fleet has captured two German cruisers, the Goeben and Breslau.

Japanese Cruiser Off.

TOKIO, Aug. 5. — The Japanese cruiser Chi Yoda, which is now at Kure, has been ordered to proceed hurriedly to South China waters.

Germans at Moineville.

PARIS, Aug. 5. — A German detachment yesterday entered the village of Moineville in the Department of Meurthe-et-Moselle. A parish priest was killed.

Belgian Town Captured.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—A despatch to the Central News from Amsterdam says the Germans have captured Vise, Belgium, a town with a population of 3,000, situated on the River Meuse, eight miles northeast of Liege.

Germans Taken Prisoners.

BELFORT, France, Aug. 5. — A number of Germans were taken prisoners yesterday and brought into Belfort.

A squadron of the 11th French Dragoons stationed in Belfort rendered funeral honors yesterday at Joncherey to a German lieutenant, the first victim of actual conflict between France and Germany.

Several hundred Alsatians, Swiss and Italians, have enlisted here and have demanded to be sent to the advance outposts.

Bombarded French Port.

LONDON, Aug. 5. — The German cruiser Breslau bombarded the French naval station of Bona, Algeria, on the south coast of the Mediterranean, at four o'clock yesterday morning, afterwards steaming full speed in a westerly direction, according to a despatch received at the French Embassy here.

Liege and Namur Shelled.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 5. — News has reached here that the Germans are chelling Liege and Namur.

A state of siege was declared yesterday at the fortified positions of Liege, Namur and Antwerp, which constitute the backbone of the Belgian defence plan.

Sailors Must Pay for Laundry Before Sailing

Those who go down to the sea in ships have many curious old customs and strange superstitions which prevail even in these days of enlightenment.

During bad weather at sea, it would be hard to convince any oldtime sailor that there was not a Jonah aboard Many skippers of the old school are so superstitious in this respect, that it is not uncommon for them to take an intense dislike to officers who have happened apparently to be harbingers of bad weather, and specially fog. It is quite usual on board ship to find members nicknamed "Foggy Jones," "Heavy Weather Bill," or "Squally Jack."

Cats on baord ship are considered to bring luck, and many a stray one finds a comfortable home and careful attention with Jack for its friend, although our domestic puss has, at times, been held responsible for the continuance of very severe weather, and had to accept the role of Jonah to the fullest extent.

Probably the most amusing superstition of the sailor is in considering it a crime for any member of the crew to leave port without paying his washing bill, as this neglect is generally believed to be the cause of bad weather being encountered just after setting sail.

Invoking the Gods of the Elements.

The methods of invoking the gods of the elements to bestow fair weather and winds are numerous. Among the most practiced is that when nearing port after a lengthy voyage Old clothes and shoes unfit for further wear are collected and thrown overboard with much ceremony and faith as to the ultimate beneficial results which will carry the ship swiftly and safely to the haven she is bound.

One of the most curious beliefs is that dealing with the capture of a shark. The natural dread and antipathy with which these monsters of the deep are viewed causes a capture to be hailed with much rejoicing. All hands, from the captain down to the deck boy take a keen interest in the operation and, having successfully landed the shark on deck it is killed, and its head cut off.

This trophy is then nailed either on the end of the bowsprit or the jibboom, and is considered a charm capable of having the influence to bring the vessel fair wind and the finest of weather. It is not uncommon to see sailing ships lying in port with this peculiar sign of the sailor's superstition, but the custon is fast dying out with the coming of the steamship, where the catching of a shark is a very rare occurrence.

Pigs as Weather Prophets.

Another remarkable and weird belief is that connected with the albatross.

These huge birds, measuring 14 to 18 feet from tip to tip of their wings, are only to be seen in the stormy regions of the Southern Oceans, and about the Capes of Good Hope and Horn. They follow ships for weeks at a time. The peculiar belief of "old salts" credit these birds with possessing the souls of ancient mariners, who, for their misdeeds, have been doomed to scour these stormy regions for all time.

During calms these birds are easily caught by a contrivance of the sailors' own invention, which, being baited, is thrown out over the stern of the ship. Few captains of ships will allow these birds to be killed by the men, on account of the belief that the killing would be sure of bringing disastrous results.

The killing of a pig at sea is always an event of much importance. Not only for the reason that fresh meat is assured—a great luxury on a sailing ship after months of salt provisions—but also because what is termed a "pig breeze or favorable wind, may be looked upon as a certainty. Pigs, when kept on sailing ships, are often let out of their pen, and their movements, which are believed to foretell the state of the wind for the next few days are watched with keen interest.

Should one of them show signs of laziness, and merely lay down, or wander slowly about the decks, this is counted a sign of calm weather, with little or no wind in prospect; but any friskness, and a great amount of squealing, is hailed as a sure sign of wind.

But then in many parts of Great Britain there is a firm belief that pigs can see the wind.

RICH PRIZE ESCAPES.

German Liner Races Back to U. S. With $10,000,000 on Board.

BAR HARBOR, Me., Aug. 5.— The North German Lloyd steamer Kronprinzessin Cecilie, carrying more than $10,000,000 in gold, and whose whereabouts have been more or less of a mystery since she sailed from New York last Tuesday, arrived in the harbor here yesterday.

The Ceccilie dropped anchor here at six o'clock yesterday morning, after a forced run of four days, her officers fearing capture.

With a cargo of $10,000,000 in gold and a million in silver, consigned to English and French bankers, the Kronprinzessin Cecilie has constituted probably the finest sea prize ever open to capture.

As she crept along the Maine coast and into the harbor under the cover of night, each deck, at every porthole, was blanketed with canvas, so that not a gleam of light betrayed her whereabouts. Her four stout stacks had been tipped with black paint, so that she resembled an English steamship. At one time two French warships almost caught her.

JELLICOE IS IN COMMAND

Given Control of British Home Fleets

LONDON, Aug. 5. — Vice-Admiral Sir John Jellicoe yesterday assumed supreme command of the British home fleets with the acting rank of admiral. His chief of staff is to be Rear-Admiral Charles N. Madden.

The new naval commander-in-chief took a prominent part in Admiral Seymour's advance to the assistance of the legation at Pekin during the Boxer rising.

King George last night sent the following message to Admiral Sir John Jellicoe, commander of the British fleets:

"At this grave moment in our national history I send to you and through you to the officers and men of the fleets, of which you have assumed command, assurance of my confidence that under your direction they will revive and renew the old glories of our royal navy and prove once again the sure shield of Britain and of her Empire in this hour of trial."

Battleships Taken Over.

LONDON, Aug. 5. — The British Admiralty officially announces that the Government has taken over the two battleships—one completed and the other nearly completed—ordered in England by Turkey, and two destroyers ordered by Chile. The battleships have been renamed the Erin and Agincourt.

Liberal Leader Expresses His Views on Canada's Duty

OTTAWA, Aug. 5. — Sir Wilfrid Laurier, leader of the Opposition, gave out the following statement to the press at noon yesterday:

"It appears that up to the present time England is not yet engaged in war. We will hope and pray that the efforts of Sir Edward Grey may yet be successful in persuading the nations of the Continent to the restoration of peace. I confess that the prospects are very doubtful. It is probable, and almost certain, that England will have to take her share in the conflict, not only for the protection of her own interests, but for the protection of France and the higher civilization of which these two nations are to-day the noblest expression.

"The policy of the Liberal party under such painful circumstances is well known. I have often declared that if the Mother Country were ever in danger, or if danger even threatened, Canada would render assistance to the full extent of her power. In view of the critical nature of the situation I have cancelled all my meetings. Pending such grave events there should be a truce of party strife."

Participating versus Non-Participating Life Policies Again

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO a Publisher of this City at age 43 took out a Ten Pay 15 year Endowment Policy of $2,000, No. 81226 in The Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada paying therefore an annual premium of $187.20.

The Non-Participating Premium would have been $170.40.

The extra paid for profits per year (for 10 years only) was $16.80.

Had this man taken a Non-Participating Policy he would have saved $168.00 extra in premiums paid for profits during the ten years, but he would have lost $620.25 at maturity of Policy as he would have received only $2,000.00 instead of $2,620.25, as he did.

Where is there a man that would not like to invest money at such a rate and that too in the Largest and Strongest Life Insurance Company in the British Empire?

The Lone Watcher

A Story of a Brave Girl's Struggle.

By Clarissa Mackie

The plain was a level whiteness of snow, broken here and there by wandering trails that crossed each other at various angles. At the foot of the mountains the dark blur of pine trees showed against the pale cloak of winter, growing fainter until at the summits the gray clouds came down and all outlines were lost.

At the base of the mountains were scattered cabins of homesteaders. They were many miles apart, and each roughly built house was half hidden under the heavy snowfall.

On a certain March morning Anne Bellew opened the door of her father's house and drew in deep breaths of the clear, cold air. Her cheeks were tingling with the icy contact when she reluctantly closed the door and threw several chunks of wood into the stove.

She moved about the kitchen, a slender, graceful girl of twenty-two with golden brown hair and eyes and a sweet face that now drooped a little sadly in response to her thoughts.

Her father came in to breakfast fresh from his morning ablutions, a big, strong, ruddy looking man with crisp gray hair.

"Some colder, Anne, my dear," he said cheerily as he sat down to the appetizing meal of corn bread and fried bacon with fragrant coffee.

"Yes, dad. I suppose you will go into the forest today."

"No; I shall try to get to Moonton for more supplies. I shall walk, and I can pack the things back by sled. I rather wanted to go over and see what has become of young Wallace. Haven't seen him for a fortnight. I hope the lad isn't ill. He might be, and no one would know it. That's the worst of the Wallace claim; it's the last one of the bunch and on the edge of all creation."

Anne's face lost its lovely color, and her hand trembled as she poured her father a second cup of coffee.

"If Jim Wallace is all alone and sick, why, there is no one to wait upon him, and perhaps he hasn't anything in the house to eat," she said practically.

"That's the worst of it, Anne. Well, I'll make an early start. Where are my snowshoes? Yes, as I was saying, I'll make an early start and try to get home by sundown. If I don't, Anne, you needn't worry. I shall stop at Gilman's for the night."

When the dusk fell Anne placed a lamp in the window, although she did not expect her father to return that night. The storm was increasing in fury, and now the wind was screaming around the house, seeking entrance through some unprotected cranny.

"I wonder—I wonder," was the refrain of Anne's thoughts all through that lonely day—"I wonder if he is all right."

Anne Bellew was not thinking of her father. She knew that he was safely housed at Gilman's, but there was another, Jim Wallace, who had only a year before taken up a claim on the edge of the government tract. Wallace had worked hard clearing his place and had developed from a pale city bred man into a great sun browned pioneer.

She had seen Jim Wallace many times before they met, and after that Jim's wooing had been very short and sweet as well, for Anne loved him. There wouldn't have been any story to write if Anne and Jim had not quarreled one autumn day, and since then three months had passed by without a word spoken between them.

"I wonder—I wonder if Jim is all right," Anne went on thinking, and at last her thoughts found relief in action. It was 7 o'clock when she set forth clad in a suit of her father's clothing, much too large for her, but comfortably warm nevertheless.

Leaving the lamp in the window, she went out into the storm, bending her head to the piercing blast.

Turning northward, she faced the bitter blast, and more than once she was tempted to go back to the warm comfort of the house, but a premonition of danger to Jim Wallace possessed her, and she fought sturdily ahead.

It was five miles to the Wallace claim, facing the wind every inch of the way. A man would have suffered keenly, but some inward exaltation kept the blood singing through Anne's veins, and her feet stepped out bravely, and her fur gloved hands were as warm as her tender heart.

She was going to Jim Wallace's place to see if he were alive and well, and the last time they had met she had told him she hated him, and he—well, Jim had quoted something about "a woman with a serpent's tongue," which had been the final straw on the camel's back of her patience.

All at once there came an ominous long drawn cry.

"Wolves!" she shuddered and half hesitated in her tracks.

"He might be sick and helpless," she thought, but, though her courage was nearly gone, she kept on doggedly. The cry was growing louder, and she recognized the cry of a solitary wolf.

"I wonder if it is 'the watcher,'" she thought as she sped on. "If it is it means that Jim is in danger. Indian Bill says that the watcher always goes on ahead to spy out victims and that he sits and howls until he draws the full pack. Oh, dear!"

The little feminine cry escaped her unawares, and she closed her lips resolutely and turned into the patch of spruces that marked the beginning of the Wallace claim. By going through the spruces she would reach the cabin by a shorter cut and at the same time be sheltered from the fury of the storm.

Ki-i-i-i-ah-a-a-a-a-uh!

How loud it sounded to Anne's terrified ears!

The animal must be very near the cabin, and where was Jim Wallace that he did not answer with a bullet from his rifle the challenge of the watcher?

Either Jim was away or he was ill, or worse.

Anne walked warily now, slipping noiselessly along the crust of snow, her lantern hidden behind her.

At last she reached the fallen spruce where she had often sat with Jim Wallace.

She strained her eyes in the direction of the cabin and saw nothing save flying flakes that clung moistly to her face.

Nearer she crept and nearer until she made out the dark bulk of the cabin, and against its whiteness at last she descried the dark shape squatting on the doorstep.

The howl suddenly ceased, and there turned toward her two blazing balls of fire.

She crept still nearer and flashed her lantern in the face of the lone watcher. The fiery balls receded as she approached until she gained the doorstep. There she took her stand, waving her lantern in the face of the wolf, who was drawing nearer by imperceptible inches.

Anne put her hand behind her and felt for the doorknob. She turned it, and the door gave a little. She threw her lantern at the eyes. At that instant the lone watcher made his first leap at her and fell short by several feet. Anne darted into the cabin's dark interior and closed the door on the muzzle of her revolver just as the wolf made his second leap.

His impact against the door, the flash of fire and the report of the weapon all sounded together and were instantly followed by a howl of pain and a dull thud on the crust of snow outside.

Anne slammed the door shut and bolted it.

Far away, but drawing nearer, was the sound of a wolf pack in full cry.

All at once Anne fell to sobbing softly.

A groan came from the corner of the dark room.

"Who is there?" somebody whispered. "Did you get the watcher, Ned?"

"It isn't Ned McLean; it's I," whispered Anne, suddenly aware of the proximity of her former lover.

"Well, whoever you are, won't you make a light and give me a drink of water? Ah!" Silence from the corner.

Anne's trembling fingers found a lamp and lighted it. When she turned its rays around the room she found Jim Wallace stretched on a couch, white and unconscious. One foot was clumsily bound in white cloths.

Now Anne emptied her pockets of sandwiches and brandy, and she forced a few drops of the latter between Jim's clinched teeth. When that young man opened his black eyes he stared amazedly at the vision of pretty Anne Bellew, blushingly attired in her father's garments, ministering to him as an angel, as he had dreamed of her during the periods of delirium.

"Anne," he whispered hoarsely, "is it really you, or am I dreaming again?"

"It is Anne," she said in a low tone. "Tell me, Jim, what has happened?"

He told her briefly. Two days before he had fallen and broken an ankle. He had dragged himself into his cabin and suffered tortures of hunger and thirst in addition to the agony of his injured ankle. He told of crawling outside and sitting with the foot buried in the snow until almost frozen. He had made painful efforts to keep his fire going and to prepare food and drink. Fever had set in the night before, and he could not remember half of his suffering, but he did recollect with singular vividness that the lone watcher had sat on the doorstep and howled.

"Three times he jumped at the door, and I was afraid the flimsy lock would go," panted Jim as he concluded his tale. "He came again tonight, and I believe he would have got in when the rest of the pack arrived if it had not been for you, Anne. What happened?"

"The watcher is dead," said Anne quietly. "I shot him, Jim, just as he leaped at me. Ah! There comes the pack!"

Outside there was a chorus of yelps that subsided into growls as the wolf pack found the carcass of the watcher and fought over it.

Anne found herself shuddering as she finished binding the horribly swollen ankle in soaking wet cold cloths.

"How came you here, Anne, so far from home, and why were you crying?" demanded Jim, suddenly sitting up and catching Anne's hand.

Anne went down on her knees beside him and told him of her father's anxiety concerning his neighbor's safety and how she had set forth alone to find out whether he needed help. Little by little Jim drew from her the story of her five mile journey through the snowstorm, of her fear of the wolf pack and her determination to reach his cabin.

When Anne had finished her story her face was laid against his, and she felt tears on his cheeks.

"You did it for me, little Anne?" he whispered. "What can I do to make amends for"—

"Just keep on loving me," interrupted Anne as her lips fell lightly on his.

"That is too easy," groaned Jim, but he smiled happily.

"Mollie was trying to keep her preserving efforts a secret?"

"Yes, I noticed they were siruptitious attempts."—Baltimore American.

Little Baby Del Campo, Youngest Peace Delegate.

Of course all bright boys and girls know about the trouble in Mexico and the efforts of Uncle Sam to avoid a cruel war. Also they have read about the mediators from Argentine, Brazil and Chile, who have been named the A. B. C. envoys, and the delegates from Mexico who came to talk matters over. With the latter party came the very smallest and youngest delegate ever known. He is little Senor del Campo, son of one of the diplomats attached to the Mexican delegation. Senor del Campo, the elder, acts as an interpreter for those of his party who do not speak English. Of course Baby del Campo is not a real delegate, although he has attracted a great deal of attention. He doesn't need an interpreter either, because, being only six months old, he talks in baby language and everybody understands that, for it is pretty much the same all over the world. At any rate, Baby del Campo is the cutest member of the delegation.

A Jumping Bone.

The next time you have chicken for dinner save the wishbone. Tie a strong string double across the wishbone when it is clean and dry between the wide ends.

Put a piece of stick between the two lines of the string and twist around and around away from the flat side of the shaft of the bone, on which a little beeswax is stuck to hold the end of the stick while you lay the "toad" wax down on the table for a moment. The twisted cord pulls so on the stick that the stuck end soon comes off the wax, the stick springs against the table and up goes Mr. Toad with a jump and a hop. It is fun. Try it.

A GREATER ECHO.

Explaining Why the Yankee Smiled at the Boast of the Scot.

"HOOT, mon, it's a grand land!" said the Scot proudly as he showed his American visitor the glories of the highlands. "And we've an echo here that cannot be beaten."

Suiting the action to the word, he yelled his warcry, and exactly four minutes later the echo returned as clear as a bell.

"That certainly is some echo," agreed the Yank, smiling a trifle superciliously.

"What for do ye smile?" inquired the Scot, all the pride of possession quickly aroused.

"Waal," drawled his companion, "I wish you were comin' back over the 'pond' with me. In my home in the Rockies I could show you some more echo. When I go to bed at night I just lean out of bed and shout 'Time to get up—come on!' and, sure, just eight hours later that echo comes back and wakes me up!"—London Answers.

Why She Wept.

Apropos of the numerous influential malefactors whose prison terms are either annulled or cut down to nearly nothing, Mayor Brand Whitlock of Toledo said a short while ago:

"Is it a good thing for the public to let these men out so soon?"

"I was sympathizing one afternoon with a poor woman whose husband had just been sent to jail. She was weeping bitterly, and I said to her:

"'Now, don't take it so hard. Two years is a long sentence, I know, but he may not have to serve it all. Convicts who behave themselves oftentimes get out months before their appointed time.'

"'That's just it,' she replied, still sobbing. 'Henry can be an angel when he likes.'"—Lippincott's.

After All.

"I want you to remember always," he said when they parted, "that you have made me happier than any other woman ever has."

"I shall not waste time remembering anything about you," she replied without trying to conceal her contempt for him.

"And remember, too," he added, "that no other woman has ever made me as unhappy as you have made me."

Then a glad look came into her eyes, and as he went away she drew a long sigh and murmured:

"Dear fellow! There was something good about him after all."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Not a Fight.

"Here, here, stop fighting with all those boys."

"I ain't fightin'."

"Yes, you are."

"No, I ain't. I'm just tryin' to punch Bud Hicks in the nose, 'cause I'm mad at him. I ain't mad at his brothers, but I will be if they don't quit kickin' me in the shins."—Detroit Free Press.

Anxious to Please.

"So you are expected to do a kind act every day?"

"Yes," replied the boy scout.

"How about today?"

"Well, the teacher has been having a little trouble with me. Don't you think I might stay away from school and give her a rest?"—Washington Star.

Where the Leak Is.

"If I had a wife who would do some sewing for me I wouldn't lose so much money out of the holes in my pockets," growled Mr. Gabb.

"The only hole in a man's pocket that he loses money out of is the hole at the top," replied Mrs. Gabb.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Looking For Improvement.

"Weren't you here about a week ago asking for food?" said the lady, looking critically over her spectacles at the tramp at the kitchen door.

"Yes, ma'am," was the unexpected reply, "but I heard you had a new cook since then!"—Yonkers Statesman.

TRANSPLANTING HAIR TO THE EYELASHES.

Transplanting hair to the eyelids in order to replace lost lashes is performed successfully in Germany by Dr. Franz F. Krusius. He clips the hair on whatever spot he may select to a length of a little more than an inch, sterilizes the region with benzine, and removes single hairs with a suitable trephine, taking the skin and hair glands together in a piece of tissue about one and a half millimetres in diameter. Then by a specially designed instrument each hair is separately inserted into the tissue of the eyelid so that its base is completely imbedded and its free end projects in the normal manner.

Dr. Krusius says not more than twenty hairs should be transplanted at one sitting. He adds that these transplanted hairs tend to grow and have to be kept trimmed to the desired length.

UNCLE LISHA SAYS

He Wishes Milk and Water Would Come Separately

By M. QUAD

[Copyright, 1914, by Associated Literary Press.]

"MY dear sir," I says to the milkman the other morning. "I find that I shall have to ask a small favor of you."

"Anything I can do, sir."

"You supply us with milk?"

"Yes, sir."

"And water?"

"Um!"

"The water is in the milk?"

"Um!"

"Or it may be said the milk is in the water?"

"Um!"

"I don't know what your rule of proportion is, but after this please bring the milk and the water in separate bottles and let us mix for ourselves."

And he is doing that and giving perfect satisfaction. There is always a way to spare a poor milkman's feelings.

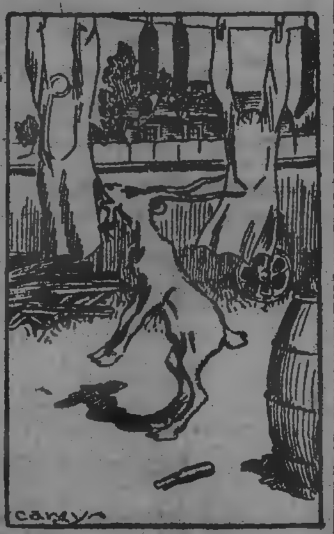
"Lisha," said my good wife as I came home the other day, "a few weeks ago you bought yourself three one-dollar shirts."

"I did, my dear."

"They were washed and hung on the line today."

"Right-o! Even a one dollar shirt must be washed now and then."

"But a goat got into the yard."



A GOAT GOT INTO THE YARD.

"Billy goeth where he listeth."

"But he pulled down and ate up your three shirts."

"Ah!"

"And you mustn't blame me."

"Not a blame, my dear. Those shirts cost me 100 cents each."

"I know they did."

"And I can now buy the same identical thing for 95 cents. Woman, rejoice with me. You and the goat have helped me to make 15 cents."

"You are an honest man," I said to Farmer Jones when he heaped the measure up.

"Farmer Jones, you are a rascal," I said when I got home and found a false bottom in the measure by which he had beaten me by two quarts.

I then had to steal his ax to get even.

While I was at a poker club one night some one came and raided my hencoop and stole six of my chickens. Deacon Darby said it was a judgment upon me. The next night I attended a prayer meeting, and some one came and stole the rest of my flock. This time Deacon Darby simply said—um! I don't say that it's an even thing between poker and a prayer meeting, but not a hen has ever returned.

When I had a carbuncle on the neck and the doctor told me that at least 5,000,000,000,000 men had lived and died since the time of Adam I was quite consoled. I realized that a dozen or two out of that number must also have got it in the neck.

I have given it up. I argued for half a day and finally convinced a man that there is a hereafter, but that night he stole a horse and made off. After being arrested he explained that he didn't want to hoof it around when he got up there.

I sometimes think that I am the only man in the country that never lied about the size of the fish that broke his hook and got away from him. Perhaps, however, it is because I never went fishing in my life.

Something like 50,000,000 cows switch their tails for twelve hours per day for at least a hundred days in the year, and yet no living man ever saw the remains of a fly that had been killed by the switching. Do the cows think they will get him at last?

COUNTING IN FRENCH.

Sounds Queer When You Jump From Sixty-nine to Sixty-ten.

It is usually assumed among civilised nations that they all count alike and that they use the decimal system. In a general way this is quite true. And yet the French have a very peculiar way of counting, which seems to have been devised by some one obsessed with the idea of the circle or at least of a segment of the circle.

Instead of making 100 the basis of the removal of the digit to the third place, that individual stopped counting at 60 and then devised two quite cumbersome methods of getting up to 100.

The French, like the rest of us, count up to 60 in a normal and healthy manner. Then when the next step is to be taken they say "sixty-ten," and so on. Seventy-three is "sixty-thirteen;" seventy-nine is "sixty-nineteen." When the genius who devised French counting reached this number he seems to have been puzzled for a moment how to go on. But with true Gallic ingenuity he made a bold leap and called eighty "four-twenties."

Thus eighty-one become "four-twenties-one," and so on. Eighty-nine is "four-twenties-nine." Here one would expect him to strike another snag. But he liked his solution of seventy so well—in fact, he had grown so enamored of it—that he tried it again, and ninety becomes "four-twenties-ten." Ninety-three is figured out to be "four-twenties-thirteen," and when Victor Hugo was compelled to head his celebrated biographical novel "Quatre-Vingt-Treize"—that is to say, "four-twenties-thirteen"—he must have shuddered over the entire area of his subconscious sensibilities. Yet he may not.

The French and even good students of other nationalities who have acquired a French which a Frenchman can listen to without gritting his teeth do not seem to be worried at all by this peculiar French habit, which if it were not impelled by courtesy to call a "Gallicism" we would certainly call a "barbarism."—Rocky Mountain News.

Art students in Paris have started an anti-collar league, pledging themselves to give up all neckwear. Besides, what show is there for a collar between Latin quarter hair and whiskers?

A New York judge has been compelled to remind grand jurors that they must not tell their families all that takes place in the jury room. The query arises, "Can a man keep a secret?"

The transpacific record has been cut two hours, to nine days three hours between Yokohama and Victoria. Which recalls that very little has been heard about transatlantic records since the Titanic went down.

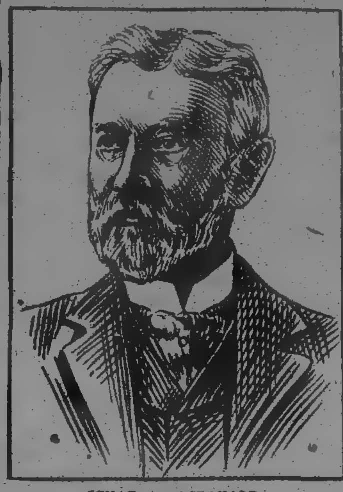
SENATOR LOSES SEAT

W. J. MACDONALD ONE OF B. C.'S GRAND OLD MEN.

Victoria Capitalist and Philanthropist Whose Advancing Years Have Kept Him From His Place In the Upper House at Ottawa For Two Sessions Was an Active Legislator—Was Dean of the Senate.

Hon. Senator W. J. Macdonald, of Victoria, B.C., who has lost his seat in the upper chamber through being absent for two whole years, was the senior member in that body, having been a member since confederation.

By the retirement from public life of Senator Macdonald one of the finest old Scotch gentlemen in the Dominion has on account of advanced age and illness been forced to relieve himself of the burdens of public office. His career has been a most honorable and distinguished one and no man in public life in Canada has had a more independent spirit or a firmer habit of speaking his mind freely on all public questions.



SENATOR MACDONALD.

He came of good old Scottish stock, his father having been an officer in the royal navy during the Napoleonic wars and afterwards a member of the British army. Our subject came to Canada as an official in the Hudson Bay service in 1851 and remained in that position for six years. Later he became gold commissioner of British Columbia, then collector of customs, and later postmaster of Victoria. He was twice mayor of that city and sat in the Legislative Assembly of the Pacific Province and in the Legislative Council for a number of years, before being called to the Senate at the time of the union, 1871, and on date of his retirement was dean of that body. He was one of the founders of Victoria, B.C.

His career in the upper house has been a very distinguished and brilliant one and has been chairman of some of the most important committees and influential in inaugurating many important bills that had their origin in the upper house.

He is one of the leading capitalists on the Pacific coast, a generous and patriotic citizen of Canada and a staunch imperialist. By his retirement one of the grand old men of Canadian public life has passed from the Dominion politics.

Wanted the Real Thing.

Signor Mattei, the famous composer, who died not long ago, used to delight in telling this story upon himself.

It seems that Mattei had been engaged by one of London's noted titled ladies to conduct a musicale in her drawing-room. In the course of the soiree the composer played his most famous waltz. After he had finished his hostess approached him and asked to play the very waltz that had just delighted the guests.

Mattei of course explained as tactfully as possible that he had already just played it. The hostess, quite unmoved, then said:

"Oh, but that is not the real 'Mattei Valse.' My daughter plays that, and it is not a bit like what you just played."

English Pantomimes.

Though pantomime is generally regarded as a purely British institution—and rightly so, for no other country puts nursery tales upon the stage at Christmas time—most of the stories we dramatize are drawn from foreign sources. "Bluebeard," "Cinderella" and "Tom Thumb" we owe to France; "Puss in Boots" comes from Italy; "Jack the Giant Killer" hails from Norway; "Jack and the Beanstalk" came to us with the house of Hanover, and "Sindbad and the Sailor" comes from the east. "The Babes in the Wood" and "Little Red Riding Hood" are among the few fairy tales of purely English origin.

Delhi's Famous Buildings.

Architecturally Delhi is one of the richest cities in the east. When the British took Delhi after the mutiny, many public men urged razing the city with all its monuments level with the ground. Happily wiser counsels prevailed and the vast palace of the Moguls, with its famous inscription, "If there be a paradise on earth, it is this, it is this, it is this," and the wonderful mosque of Shah Jehan, were spared from destruction.

Living Without Drinking.

Proof that there are animals that live without drinking is given in the London Field by Dr. R. E. Drake-Brockman, who tells of the gazelles that live on the island of Saad-ud-Din, off the coast of Somaliland, where there is no fresh water at all and where the annual rainfall is less than two and three-quarters inches.

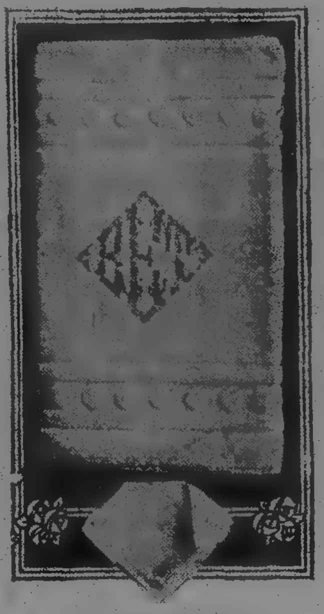
Ancient Egg.

An egg was dug up recently in Egypt that had been buried 1,800 years ago in the tomb of a child.

MONOGRAMMED TOWELS.

Those of Turkish Toweling Convenient For the Fastidious Bather.

Bath towels adorned with the monogram of the owner and with a wash rag to match are shown in the shops. They are of Turkish toweling, and they are convenient for use at the seashore, where the towels found in the ordinary bathhouses are not to be considered by fastidious women. The monograms are stamped on one end of the towel. Embroidered monograms are out of place on Turkish toweling, and a stenciled monogram may be substituted by the woman who likes to decorate her own towels.



MONOGRAMMED TOWELS.

The Age Test.

All sorts of tests are given for determining the age and quality of a fowl. Dark looking birds are not apt to be freshly killed ones. Freshly killed poultry has full, bright eyes and moist, pliable feet. If the eyes are dry and sunken and the feet and legs are stiff it is evidence that the fowl is not so fresh as it might be. The neck is the first part of the fowl to discolor. A young fowl will have pinfeathers, and the end of the breastbone will bend when pressed with the finger. Old fowls have long hairs and a stiff breastbone. The skin on the legs will be scaly and thick and tough.

Old fowls are suitable only for boiling. The cold meat from the boiled fowl may be made up into many tempting forms. The ancient bird, if subjected to the boiling process for awhile before it is put into the oven, may often be roasted with fairly satisfactory results.

HARVEST HELP EXCURSIONS

$12.00 to Winnipeg August 11 and 18th

The Grand Trunk Railway System will run Harvest Help excursions via Chicago and Duluth on August 11 and 18, from all stations in Ontario, Kingston, Renfrew and west at low rate of $12.00 to Winnipeg, plus half cent. per mile from Winnipeg to destination. First excursion on August 11 applies to all points in Manitoba. Second excursion on August 18 to certain points in Saskatchewan and Alberta and all points in Manitoba. Returning, half cent per mile to Winnipeg, plus $18.00 from Winnipeg to destination in Eastern Canada.

The route via Chicago is an attractive one, many large cities and towns being passed en route, which breaks the monotony of the journey. The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is the shortest and quickest route between Winnipeg, Saskatoon and Edmonton and traverses some of the best farming country in Manitoba and the most rapidly developing section of Western Canada.

THIRTY YEARS AFLAME.

Coal Mines That Are Doomed to Burn Themselves Out.

Human ingenuity has been baffled for thirty years by fires in the great coal mines in Perry county, O. In 1884 when the veins began to burn all vents were closed in an effort to smother the fire, but without avail. The nearness to the surface of coal deposits, topped by a rocky cap, permitted air to filter in and feed the dull blaze. It is estimated that millions of tons of fine coal have been destroyed, and there appears to be small chance of ever reopening the mines.

For many years breaks have been occurring in the hillsides where the roof would cave in and the ground drop. In each case after such an occurrence the smoke would increase in volume, the gas discharge would be very noticeable all over the community and the fire would greatly increase. Now the gases generated have invaded other mines and made parts of them unworkable.

A large section of the Martin & Roau mine on the same vein has been blocked off and development stopped because the gases coming through the fissures made work in the mines exceedingly hazardous. Three other mines near by, including the old Straitsville mine, now known as No. 33, have also been walled off and development work toward the burning field entirely stopped.—Argonaut.

SUMMER PASTIME

There will be seventy-five in all. Each picture represents the name of a player of baseball, football, lacrosse or hockey. This picture represents what? Is it SCOTT? Is it KILTY? We will tell you. The name indicated by the picture is that of the well known Canadian ball player,

DOC. REISLING

There's a lot of fun in the Summer Pastime game. There's money in it, too. The way to win is to study every part of the picture and to make sure that the suggested word or combination, like rye and sling, constitutes a player's name. Few persons know the several thousand names in the field of sports and nobody can think of all constantly. The best safe guide to finding the correct names represented by the pictures is to look up each idea in the guaranteed Summer Pastime Handbook. Perhaps you never heard of Mr. Reisling or you may not have thought of the name in connection with the picture. GENERAL ORDER No. 15

Thereby hangs a Tail.

By EDWARD DIXON

During the war between the states a division of the Union army under General Chubb was placed at the junction of two railroads in Tennessee to protect the roads and keep open the line of communications of the main army farther south. It was the spring season in that region—March. The sun shone warm, the buds were opening, the birds building their nests—indeed, nature was awakening.

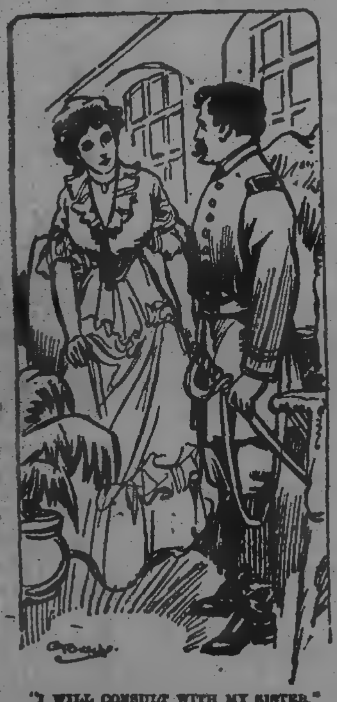
Two officers—Lieutenant Colonel John Barrows and Major Alec Stewart—were riding on a road just beyond the limits of the encampment.

"I wish our wives were here," remarked Major Stewart.

"The general won't allow a woman in camp on any pretext. He's issued an order to that effect."

"I know that. What can you expect of an old bach?"

Now, these officers were both young men and had recently been married.



"I WILL CONSULT WITH MY SISTER."

The general commanding was forty years old, a regular army officer and a rigid disciplinarian. He believed that the presence of women with an army only encumbered it and detracted from its efficiency.

"I have a mind to bring my wife down," said Barrows, "if I can find some farmer's wife outside the camp limits who will take her in. No one outside the family she lives with need know she's my wife."

"If the old man finds it out he'll prefer charges against you for disobedience of orders, and it will go hard with you."

Barrows made no reply to this, but the desire to see his wife was very strong in him, and the next time he rode out of camp it was with a view to finding a lodgment for her. Not far from the chain of guards there lived Mrs. Claybourne, a widow with several children. Barrows called on her, told her of his desire to see his wife and asked the widow if she would not give her lodgment for a brief season. The request was granted, and Barrows wrote for his wife to come south.

One day a couple of weeks later General Chubb while riding by the Claybourne house saw Mrs. Barrows sitting on the veranda doing fancy work. The lady was a very pretty woman, and the general was much pleased with her appearance. On returning to camp he called one of his aids to him and said:

"There is a house about a mile from camp on the turnpike leading westward, a white house with green blinds. Learn who lives there and report the information to me."

The general gave the order in a tone to indicate that he suspected there were arms concealed in the house or it was a rendezvous for spies or was in some way prejudicial to the Union cause. The aid made the inquiries and reported that the place was owned and occupied by Mrs. Claybourne; that she was a sympathizer with the Confederate cause, but so far as could be learned not disposed to interfere in the struggle. The general received the report without comment, and the aid retired.

The next afternoon General Chubb, attended by a single orderly, rode out to the Claybourne place. Mrs. Barrows, who, having no duties, spent much of her time on the veranda doing fancy work, was in her usual seat when the general rode up. He had been pointed out to her by her husband, who had cautioned her if she should meet him not to reveal her identity. When she saw him stop at the gate, turn his horse over to his orderly and come up the walk she was much frightened. Nevertheless she pulled herself together to meet the issue.

"Mrs. Claybourne?" said the general, raising his hat.

The lady rose and bowed, but made no other reply. The fact that she was supposed to be the occupant of the premises somewhat reassured her.

"I have been informed, Mrs. Claybourne, that you are a widow living here alone, and it has occurred to me that you should have protection. My men, as a rule, are orderly, but in every army there are desperate characters who are liable to break away and pillage. If you like I will give you a guard."

"I appreciate your thoughtfulness and kindness, general," she said, adopting the southern dialect so far as she could. "I will consult with my sister before giving you a definite reply. Will you please excuse me for a moment? Meanwhile take a seat, suh."

The real Mrs. Claybourne, who was well aware of the chances her lodger—and by this time her friend—was taking and from an upper window had seen the general stop before the house, awaited Mrs. Barrows with a natural agitation. The latter in a few brief sentences informed her of what had taken place, and a hurried consultation was held, in which it was decided to decline the proffered guard with thanks. Then Mrs. Barrows went back to General Chubb, while Mrs. Claybourne kept out of range of vision.

"My sister says that she has no fear, general," said Mrs. Barrows. "She would prefer not to have a guard, but she is sensible of your kindness, as I am, and asks me to convey her thanks."

Since the general had simply made the offer as a pretext for a visit to the supposed Mrs. Claybourne he was satisfied. He had seated himself and showed no inclination to hurry away. He professed great sympathy with the southern people in what they were called upon to endure on account of the war, especially in the scarcity of provisions on account of the blockade.

"I suppose," he continued, "that you have no tea or coffee. I shall be happy to supply you with the latter from my own private stock."

"You are very kind, general. We have nothing but chicory at present."

The general spent an hour with the supposed widow and when he departed was as much pleased with the lady's charm of manner as he had been struck with her beauty.

It was not long before General Chubb rode out again to the Claybourne place. This time he was received by the widow herself, who regretted that on account of an indisposition her sister begged to be excused. Mrs. Barrows had arranged for this and begged Mrs. Claybourne, who was an attractive woman, to make an effort to win the man who had evidently been smitten with herself. The widow was a few years older than her guest, but had not lost her good looks. She laid herself out to relieve her friend by making herself as attractive as possible. She would not let the general go till she had brought out some old wine she had hidden away from the Yankees, which she served with cake she had made herself. After having partaken of several glasses of the wine the general was in no hurry to go.

Mrs. Barrows' indisposition lasted as long as General Chubb's division remained in the vicinity, and that was three months. The general sent her delicacies when he could obtain them, but his devotion was being all the while undermined by the real widow. Colonel Barrows was in the secret and would have enjoyed the situation had he not been in constant dread lest the truth be discovered. However, it was not long before his wife informed him that the general was making love to "her sister," who she believed was as well pleased with him as he was with her.

June came and with it the hot weather. Barrows, who was much troubled about the deception being practiced on his commander, sent his wife north. She had not been gone a week when Chubb's division was relieved and he was ordered south with his command. The day before he moved the widow secured a proposal and made a favorable reply.

Then Colonel Barrows let the cat out of the bag, and it soon became known among the principal commanders how the general had begun by paying attention to Barrows' wife and had been switched off to a widow. All enjoyed the joke heartily, but not a man betrayed the fact that the colonel had deliberately disobeyed general order No. 15, thereby rendering himself liable to be cashiered.

Chubb's division joined the main army and marched to the sea with Sherman. Colonel Barrows proved a fine officer and was promoted till he had two stars on his shoulder to Chubb's one. One day when the army was at Atlanta the two men, commanding different corps, met.

"General," said Barrows, "I believe I have never congratulated you on your engagement."

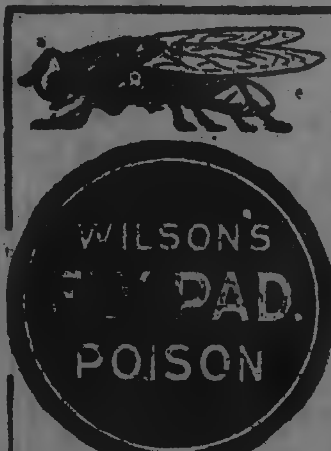
Chubb looked embarrassed. He had not told of his engagement.

"Don't deny it. Besides, you have to thank me for your wife."

"How is that?" asked Chubb, wondering.

"Do you remember your general order against women in camp? Well, I brought my wife down when we were guarding the railroad and put her in the house of your fiancee. You called on her, and she permitted you to suppose she was Mrs. Claybourne. After that you were making love to the widow herself. The difference between you and me was that you visited your sweetheart during the day, while I visited mine between taps and reveille."

"You mutinous rascal!" cried Chubb. "If I had known that I would have put you in irons."



There are many imitations of this best of all fly killers.

Ask for Wilson's, be sure you get them, and avoid disappointment.

"What's a bolsterer?"

"He's so rotten he makes the rest of any bill look good."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Life to be worthy a rational being must be always progressive; we must always purpose to do more and better than in time past.

To make a friend of a man ask his advice and follow it. To make a friend of a woman say nothing and let her do all the talking.

Good Form

Agreeing With Everybody.

Many people have nowadays the habit of agreeing with everything one says. It doesn't matter on what you give an opinion, a book, a play, an event of current interest, they appear to agree with you in everything. Probably when somebody else gives a quite opposite opinion they affect to agree with them too.

It may be politeness on their part, but one hates to meet people who seem to have no minds of their own. And it makes sane, intelligent conversation next door to impossible.

People who frankly differ from one, who, without being bumptious or argumentative, have opinions of their own about things and are not afraid to say so, are much more interesting.

It is so much more stimulating to meet them, and one can enjoy a talk with them so much better than with people who are too ready to agree.

Managing a Surprise Party.

A young correspondent wants suggestions for a surprise party. Often surprises are far from welcome, but if some one of the family is taken into confidence the affair can generally be managed with satisfaction to all. Let each girl prepare a basket or box of luncheon for two, just as daintily as possible. On arriving pile their boxes in one place. After the surprise is over try some good games, then blindfold one boy at a time and let him select a basket or box and stand in line with his treasure unopened. After all are supplied each one is to have three guesses to determine which girl prepared the refreshment. When partners are found go to the dining room, where doubtless some willing member of the family will have arranged a pretty table.

That Girlish Hat.

Be sure that your clothes suit not only your style, but your age. Seeing a stout, florid and elderly materfamilias, quite oblivious of the fitness of things, wearing one of those girlish Watteau hats liberally decked with pink roses, a man who was engaged in mending the streets along which she was passing paused—it was doubtless one of the many pauses that go to make up the day's work—and after regarding her fixedly drew a fellow toiler's attention to the entrancing vision with the words, "Wot oh, Bill"—he really didn't mean to make a pun—"wot price is mutton dressed as lamb this spring, eh?"

Correct For the Dance.

Dancing has made a trained evening gown almost impossible. Women have got about this difficulty by wearing evening gowns that are really short These are quite comfortable, for, although they are tight at the lower edge, they are so short that they do not interfere with the ankles in dancing. One of the new devices for the woman who likes to wear a train and likes, also, to dance, is the separate sash train, which is quite distinct from the skirt, and attached at the waist. It can be easily picked up and tucked up out of the dancer's way.

"There are 315 ways of changing a quarter of a dollar," says an exchange. The average hotel waiter knows 'em all.

It is said that while he has been at Vera Cruz Von Lind has learned Spanish. Probably in the deaf and dumb alphabet.

There is talk of a poet's union being formed. Imagine having to quit work in the middle of a sonnet when the whistle blows.

SQUARING HIMSELF.

An Excuse For a Stolen Kiss That Appealed to a Generous Nature.

"MOTHER," said the lovely young girl. "I have a confession to make to you. Harry stole a kiss from me when he was calling this evening."

"The impudent young puppy!" cried mamma, enraged to the point of forgetting her dignity. "Well, well! What did you do?"

"I hope I acted as you would have wished me to. I screamed. I scratched his face. I was terribly angry. But he asked to be heard in his own defense, and I had to listen to what he had to say. Well, he said that he had stolen the kiss only that he might give it to a poor girl of his acquaintance who had never had any kisses. I could not help seeing how noble and self sacrificing he was, and so"—

"And so you let him off with a silly excuse like that? Well, I never"—

"Oh, no, mamma. You wrong me. I didn't let him go at that. I gave him several others to take to the poor thing."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Language Lesson.

"Now, boys," said the schoolmaster, "I want you to bear in mind that the word 'stan' at the end of a word means 'the place of.' Thus we have Afghanistan—the place of the Afghans; also Hindustan—the place of the Hindus. Can any one get another example?"

Nobody appeared very anxious to do so until little Johnny Snaggs, the joy of his mother and the terror of the cats, said proudly:

"Yes, sir, I can. Umbrellastan—the place for umbrellas." — Kansas City Times.

He Was.

"Did no one ever propose to you, Aunty?"

"Yes, once a man did."

"What did you say?"

"I told him that I wouldn't marry him if he was the last man on earth."

"What a thing to say!"

"Yes. At the time, though, my dear, I had no idea he was the last man on earth who would propose to me."—Detroit Free Press.

Who's Who.

The class had just been enjoying a strenuous course in classic mythology, and as the result of the final examination the teacher expected to find some real gems of classic lore.

"Cyclops was the man who wrote the encyclopedia." — Woman's Home Companion.

Time Enough.

"Do you think a man ought to tell his wife all about his business," said the serious youth.

"Not always," replied Miss Cayenne. "In some instances it is time enough for a woman to worry when her husband is called on to testify in an investigation."—Washington Star.

Preventing a Business Slump

IF during September, October and November manufacturers and merchants were to suspend their selling aggressiveness, as represented by their newspaper advertising, autumn business for them would be very, very dull. When selling energy is reduced, business slumps.

The slump in summer business which many firms experience is due mainly to a collapse of their own efforts to keep business up to its usual level. The public does not eat less in summer than in the autumn; it merely changes its diet.

The summer apparel worn by the average man and woman differs from autumn or winter apparel only in weight and kind, not in extent or variety.

The common needs of man remain fairly uniform the year round.

The way to keep business up in summer is to keep up the selling pressure as faithfully then as at other seasons, and to keep open the channel of communication between seller and buyer—the channel of newspaper advertising.

NO NEWS OF FLEET REACHED ANXIOUS ENGLAND TO-DAY

All Eyes Are Turned Toward the North Sea.

NO CONFIRMATION

For Report That Italy Had Been Served With an Ultimatum.

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, Aug. 6. — England waited to-day with anxiety for reports of movements of the British fleet, of which virtually nothing has been heard since its departure under sealed orders. All eyes were turned toward the North Sea, where it was generally assumed the war vessels had gone to encounter the German battleship squadron. The early part of the day passed however, without any more definite signs of a clash than the reports of firing and the arrival of wounded German and British sailors at Harwick.

No confirmation was received of the sending of an ultimatum to Italy by Germany. At the commencement of the war it was estimated at the German Embassy that there were one hundred thousand Germans in England, many of whom reside here in order to escape military service. British families are dismissing German servants and chauffeurs and governesses so that the German Benevolent Societies have their hands full.

MANY VOLUNTEERS

No orders from Ottawa have been received as yet from Col. Clegg, but in the meantime numerous offers of service have been made by officers and members of the regiment and some not identified with the regiment. Among those who have volunteered are Lt. C. Ackerman and Harold Matthews of R.M.C. There seems to no lack of volunteers.

KING GEORGE IS GRATEFUL

Ottawa, Aug. 6.—The Duke of Connaught has received the following message from the Hon. Lewis Harcourt, Colonial Secretary:—

Please communicate to your ministers the following message from His Majesty the King:

"I desire to express to my people of the overseas dominions with what appreciation and pride I have received the messages from their respective governments during the last few days. These spontaneous assurances of their fullest support recalled to me the generous self-sacrificing help given by them in the past to the Mother Country. I shall be strengthened in t[illegible]charge of the great responsib[illegible]which rest upon me by the co[illegible]t belief that in this time of trial my Empire will stand united, calm, resolute, trusting in God.

GEORGE R.I."

French Canadians Are Ready to Fight

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 6.—Delegate Papineau of Quebec, speaking before the annual meeting of the Associated Canadian Clubs of the Dominion last night, said the French-Canadians would be found as ready to go to the front as the English-Candians, and they did not take the second place in loyalty to Great Britain. The time was when the French fought against Great Britain, but now they were proud to be one as to their loyalty.

The following cable was despatched to King George from the gathering:

"The Association of Canadian Clubs, in annual convention assembled at Vancouver, assures his Majesty King George in the present crisis in the affairs of the Empire, of the utmost loyalty and affection of the Canadian people to the Crown, and their readiness to make all sacrifices for the maintenance of the Empire and the ultimate hope of a lasting peace."

SIR IAN TO COMMAND THE HOME ARMY

London, Aug. 6.—According to The Daily Telegraph General Sir Ian Hamilton, inspector of the general overseas forces will command the home army.

Sir Ian inspected the Canadian troops last year and was the guest of the officers of the Peterboro garrison, during a short visit to this city. He took a prominent part in the Boer War.

Contraband of War

London, Aug. 6.—The Gazette, the official newspaper, publishes the notification of the state of war existing between England and Germany, as well as an order-in-Council signed by the King, relating to the merchant vessels of the countries with which the British Empire is at war.

The order specifies as absolute contraband:

Arms of all kinds.
Clothing and harness of a military character.
Animals suitable for war purposes.
Foodstuffs.
Fuel.
Harness.
Telescopes and field glasses.

Battery to Report

The local members of the 45th Heavy Battery of Cobourg received notice this morning to report at noon today at Cobourg. The notice was received last evening by the Police Department and the following men were notified this morning, Sergt. Lapp, E. Hargrove, Cecil Richardson, Percy Parrington, M. Huycke, and L. Kelf. Major Odell of Cobourg is in charge of the Battery.

ITALY ABOUT TO DECLARE WAR

London, Aug. 6.—The Daily Telegraph in a late edition today says it is believed in diplomatic circles that Italy is on the eve of declaring war on Austria.

LOUIS HOUED kY LEAVES TONIGHT

Is Reservist of the French Army

When the C.P.R. pulls out for Montreal tonight it will have on board Louis Houedry, Lock Street, a French army reservist who has answered the call of his country. Mr. Houedry is attached to one of the dragoon corps of France and is eager to get into the fray and is quite cheerful at the thought of taking up arms to defend his country from the German aggression. He leaves a wife and family at home to pray for the success of his country and his safety.

TWO KILLED BY EXPRESS

Mother and Son Stepped in Path of Fast Train

Canadian Press Despatch.

Hamilton, Aug. 6. — Mrs. Dan Leith of Stoney Creek and her eight-year-old son, were instantly killed this morning and Mrs. Webster, mother of the dead woman, was severely injured, three miles from Stoney Creek.

They stepped out of the way of an eastbound train and the Buffalo fast express ran them down.

Poultry Association.

The regular meeting of the Peterboro Poultry Association will be held to-night in the hall on Simcoe Street. All members are asked to be present.

ACTIVITIES IN THE DOMINION

Hon. Sam Hughes sends out mobilization orders for 20,000 men. Enlisting starts today and will be entirely voluntary and for the period of the whole war.

Newspapers are requested to refrain from publishing unauthorised statements about military operations in Canada.

Valcartier, Quebec, will be the chief centre of Canadian mobilization.

One hundred thousand have volunteered.

Parliament will vote many millions for war purposes.

Fortresses on both seaboards strengthened.

Coal mines and cable stations fully protected.

Government has bought two torpedo boat destroyers from Chili. They have just been completed in Seattle shipyards and will be manned by naval reservists in British Columbia.

St. Catharines regiments ordered out to protect Welland Canal and Kingston regiments to guard the St. Lawrence.

Fort Henry, near Kingston, made ready for possible siege.

Dominion Rifle Association meeting has been cancelled.

MOBILIZATION ORDER SENT OUT FOR TWENTY THOUSAND

Commanding Officers Throughout the Dominion Will Act as Recruiting Officers and Term of Enlistment is Until End of the War---One Hundred Thousand Have Offered.

OTTAWA, Aug. 6. — Mobilization orders were sent out last night by Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia. Twenty thousand men are called for and as applications have come in from 100,000 volunteers there will be no trouble in securing the first army division in a very short time. The commanding officers all over Canada will act as recruiting officers. The enlisting will start to-day and will be entirely voluntary.

It will be an imperial force and have the same status as British regulars. The instructions that have been issued require that the men shall have standard physical qualifications and also high military and shooting qualifications. The enlistment will be till the termination of the war and the individuality of the militia regiments will be preserved as far as possible.

Other considerations being equal, officers, non-commissioned officers and men will be selected in the following order:

1. Unmarried men.
2. Married men without families.
3. Married men with families.

The men must be between 18 and 45 years as a rule.

Officers and men who have had experience but are not now members of the force can enlist. Officers of the reserve can join if otherwise qualified.

Further mobilization orders will be issued later.

Valcartier near Quebec will be the main mobilization centre and the place is rapidly being prepared for the troops.

There may also be a mobilization centre on the Pacific coast. Hon. Clifford Sifton is one of the latest volunteers. He offers his services in any way they can be used.

Lady Drummond has also sent a wireless despatch from the Calgarian, via Cape Race, offering to pay the expenses of eight nurses.

Steps for the protection of the Pacific coasts were taken by the Government yesterday when it purchased two powerful torpedo-boat destroyers for use at Esquimalt.

They will add materially to the protection of the British Columbia coast.

Canals Are Guarded.

MONTREAL, Aug. 6. — Though a state of war exists to-day throughout Canada, to the average man on the street in this city, there was very little change in conditions. Business went on with little interruption.

The harbor and the Lachine and Soulanges Canals were the districts which presented the most warlike appearance to-day. Men of the Victoria Rifles, the Highlanders, the 65th, the Grenadiers and the 12th Hussars, are to be seen at various points, guarding the waterways and the port. No chances are being taken with foreigners who might become dangerous at any moment.

JAPAN READY WITH FLEET

At Official News of Clash Between England and Germany.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Shanghai, Aug. 6.—An official at the Japanese Consulate here said to-day that upon receipt of the first official news of the clash between England and Germany, Japan would send a fleet with ten thousand men to attack the German port of Tsing Tau and ten thousand more to relieve English garrisons in China. Preparations for this movement, he said, were under way.

Tokio.—Reports of activity of Chinese revolutionists received here, have aroused fear that the European War will inspire outbreak in China.

Bremerton, Washington, Aug. 6.—The American cruiser Milwaukee is being hurriedly got ready for sea, and it is understood she will be sent to British Columbia waters.

London, Aug. 6.—The Bank of England to-day reduced its discount rate to six per cent.

New York, Aug. 6.—The oil tank steamer Tonawanda which arrived today reports having heard the Lusitania in wireless communication with the Cruiser Essex telling the latter, she was being followed by a foreign warship.

The Essex went in search of the foreigner. The White Star line steamer Cedric from Liverpool for New York has put into Halifax.

London, Aug. 6.—The German Ambassador left London today by a special train for Harwich. A despatch from Brussels says two disguised German officers were arrested at Ostend having in their possession extensive notes and plans. They will be shot. The anti-German feeling throughout Belgium has become intense. Every German discovered in Brussels is brought before the police who have trouble protecting them from the excited crowds

London.—The Chronicle's correspondent at Harwich says it is believed action is progressing in the North Sea. The destroyer Virago has received a wireless message telling her to prepare to receive two hundred prisoners and wounded being brought in by a torpedo boat.

London.—A despatch from Copenhagen says a German squadron is bombarding the Russian fortress of Sveaborg in Finland.

Halifax, Aug. 6.—The Cunard liner Mauretania and the White Star liner Cedric put in here today. It is reported that the cruiser Essex and another warship escorted them to the harbor mouth.

ORDERS FROM OTTAWA.

Lt. C. A. Henry of the 45th Regiment of Lindsay, also in charge of A. Co. which is composed of local men received word from the Militia Department last evening to hold the local company in readiness to report. Lt. Henry is among the men who have volunteered for service.

GERMANS ROUTED WITH LOSS OF 8000

Defenders Reserved Fire Until Enemy Had Come to Close Quarters and then Rifles and Machine Guns did their Deadly Work.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Brussels, via London, Aug. 6.—The Gazette publishes today what it says are facts so far as are known regarding the repulse of the German forces by the Belgians in Liege district. German losses are estimated at 8,000 men, while the Belgians suffered far less. The alleged routes of the German Seventh Army Corps is not confirmed in its entirety, however, says the Gazette, which adds, "these are facts: "The Belgian Eleventh Brigade after successfully resisting the German attack, pursued flying Prussians with such energy that the General commanding the Belgians was obliged to order our troops to turn back, as they were getting outside the range of the guns of the Belgian forts. The enthusiasm of our troops was magnificent. Germans suffered considerable losses, which are estimated at 8,000; our losses are relatively small.

"At four this morning the German Tenth Army Corps attacked Chaudfontaine and Boucelles forts from the southeast, while their artillery bombarded the fort at Flemalle on the opposite bank of the River Meuse, five miles southwest of Liege. The Belgians captured seven guns and several prisoners. Proposals for the surrender of Liege have been again firmly refused."

London, Aug. 6. — Graphic stories of the great struggle between the Belgians and Germans yesterday near Liege, tell of terrific slaughter among the German forces. About noon yesterday German infantry attempted to carry by assault Fort Barchon to the north-east of Liege. The attacking infantry crept up under cover of a heavy artillery fire, but the Belgians reserved fire until the Germans had come to close quarters and then mowed them down with a hail of bullets from rifles and machine guns.

The attackers soon lay in heaps of dead and wounded around the fort. The Germans finally retired all along the line. One paper in Brussels gives the German losses at between four and five thousand men and says they abandoned seventeen machine guns.

THIRTY-EIGHT KILLED IN RAILWAY WRECK

Railroad Gasoline Motor Car Collides Head-on With Passenger Train.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Joplin, Missouri. Aug. 5.—Thirty-eight were killed and forty injured in a wreck at Tiptonford last night when the Kansas City Southern passenger train collided with a Missouri and North Arkansas railroad gasoline motor car. The motor car evidently mistook orders as it ran past Tiptonford station without stopping and collided head on with the passenger train.

A gasoline tank on the motor car exploded, and many bodies were consumed beyond recognition.

Montreal, Aug. 6.—The Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk Railways will make liberal provision for families of employees who may go to the front, it was announced today by Sir Thomas Shaughnessy and E. J. Chamberlain.

Nurses Who Would Help in the War

In response to the call sent out by the National Association of Nurses, six local nurses have registered as follows: Miss Alberta Meyers, Miss Mary Gordon, Mrs. W. E. Lech, Miss Scannell, Mrs. N. K. Douglas, and Miss Emily Deyell. Others will register.

BRICK TERRACE CHANGES HANDS

Mark Fine Makes Purchase From J. F. McCarthy

The large white brick terrace, commonly known as Carlisle's Terrace, on the west side of George Street between Dalhousie and Sherbrooke Streets has been purchased from the owner, J. F. McCarthy, by Mark O. Fine, a Hebrew dry goods merchant at 309 George Street. Mr. Fine was very reluctant about stating the price paid but The Review learns that it was a little better than $10,000.

BRITAIN'S GREATEST GENERAL BECOMES THE SECRETARY OF WAR

Vacancies in Cabinet Caused by Resignations of Burns and Morley are Filled and Britain Shows Remarkable Calmness Under Strain—Food Panic in British Isle is Subsiding.

LONDON, Aug. 6. — Field Marshal Earl Kitchener has been appointed Secretary of State for War, the portfolio held by Premier Asquith since the resignation of Col. Seely.

The gaps in the British Cabinet occasioned by the resignations of Lord Morley and John Burns, because of their disagreement with their colleagues concerning the Government's policy were filled yesterday. Premier Asquith announced in the House of Commons that Earl Beauchamp, First Commissioner of Works, has been appointed to the place of Lord Morley as Lord President of the Council, and that of the Rt. Hon. Walter Runciman, hitherto President of the Board of Agriculture, would succeed the Rt. Hon. John Burns as President of the Local Government Board. Premier Asquith also announced in the House of Commons that a war credit amounting to one hundred million pounds sterling will be submitted to-day to the House for sanction.

There have been reports that England would send a land expedition to the aid of Belgium, which would unite with the combined French and Belgian forces in repelling the invader. But as yet there is no official confirmation here of such a belief. Great enthusiasm has been aroused by the single-handed victory of the troops in the smaller sister kingdom.

Symptoms of a panic over the question of food and money supplies subsided greatly yesterday. There is general confidence that the measures undertaken by the Government will meet the crisis, that the money market will not smash, and that the Atlantic route will be kept open for shipments from America.

The fact that the Cunard liner Lusitania was allowed to sail had a reassuring effect, as indicating that the Admiralty feels certain that the navy is in a position to keep the German cruisers off the area of the North Atlantic trade routes.

David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced yesterday in the House of Commons that the conclusion had been reached with the unanimous assent of banking and other interests, that there would be no necessity to suspend specie payments.

There was a small riot yesterday in Southwark, where a bakery which attempted to double the price of bread was dismantled by an angry mob.

A distinct surprise to the popular mind is the country's apparent preparedness to change the machinery of ordinary life to a war footing on short notice. Not only is the army mobilization proceeding with great smoothness, but the Government's railway service under the direction of a committee of management is being operated without confusion. The cricket and football grounds in a number of cities have been occupied as camps while schools and other public buildings are being transformed into hospitals.

London was quieter last night, than on any other night of the week. The demonstrators, a large proportion of whom were foreigners, have subsided into comparative quiet. The report spread by London newspaper agencies that the windows of the German Embassy were broken is denied by the commissioner of police, who declares that there was no hostile outbreak.

FOREIGN CRUISERS REPORTED SUNK BY BRITISH WARSHIPS; WERE PURSUING LUSITANIA

Canadian Press Despatch.

New York, Aug. 6.—The air along the whole Atlantic coast is full of wireless messages, causing confusion out of which it has been impossible for ships or shore stations to gain information that can be relied upon.

It is believed that it was out of this welter of signals that the operator on the steamer Uranium, which arrived to-day picked up a message that two foreign cruisers pursuing the Lusitania had been sunk by British warships. The Captain of the Uranium, however, says: "It is absolutely true. I hated to tell about it because I have heard of so many wild reports."

This report has not been confirmed.

HOUSEWIVES STOCKING UP TO BE ON THE SAFE SIDE

European War Will Have Effect on Prices of Foodstuffs.

Local householders are stocking up their larders with flour, sugar and canned goods in anticipation of a boost in the prices of those food stuffs while others are purchasing more than the usual supply of milk tickets although the Peterboro Creamery Company officials state they have not noticed any increased purchases of tickets. The smaller dealers, however, state that they have felt the increase to a small degree.

Sugar, flour and salmon are very scarce according to a representative of the Canada Brokerage Company who stated this morning that he had received a wire from his employers not to offer sugar, flour or salmon but if he was asked for them he could sell. The significant statement which the traveller made in the store of Porter S. White indicates a shortage in those lines. It is stated that the Canadian refiners have been advised by the government to keep the sale of sugar down to the lowest minimum possible while the same instructions have been given to the millers and canners.

Several grocers when interviewed stated that the demand for canned goods in fairly large quantities, and sugar and flour in bags had increased greatly during the past week. Sugar has taken a jump and is now selling at $5.00 per bag an increase of about forty cents while flour which sells at various prices according to quality has been boosted about twenty per cent. An increase in canned goods of thirty per cent. is looked for.

AGED LADY IS HURT BY AUTO

While stepping from the curb at the corner of Simcoe and George Streets today at noon, Mrs. Wilson, an aged Rubidge Street resident, was struck by an unknown motor car which continued directly south without stopping. Mrs. Wilson sustained a painful injury to her right shoulder and also several other minor injuries. She was removed to her home in an auto and received medical attendance. According to eye witnesses of the affair, Mrs. Wilson had just left the Turnbull building and had stepped from the curb when the auto passed close to the curbing and she was struck. The police are making an investigation as to the owner of the car.

MRS. WILSON DYING

Canadian Press Despatch.

Washington, Aug. 6.—Physicians reluctantly admitted to-day that Mrs. Wilson's death is probably only a matter of days or even hours.

"CHINESE" GORDON'S PROPHECY

From "Our Hope" Missionary Magazine, December, 1911.

More than a quarter of a century ago, General Gordon, familiarly known as "Chinese Gordon," made a prophecy of which several English writers have recently bethought themselves. It runs as follows:

"General Gordon to James R. Purdy, F.R.G.S., June, 1882.—So far as England is concerned, she need not for the next quarter of a century be under any apprehension of serious difficulties arising with any of her European neighbors, but in 1910, or thereabouts, there will have arisen a naval power which may prove mightier than she, and should she (Germany) gain the supremacy, England will become extinct both as a [illegible] land power, and all her [illegible] including India, will [illegible] (Germany's) [illegible] live to see this, I shall [illegible] when the [illegible] words."

THINK IT OVER.

SOME anonymous reader of The Review, who has allowed his impulses to run away with his common sense, has taken exception to our article pointing out the editorial silence of French-Canadian newspapers on Canada's responsibility in the European war. Having found a news item which says the French-Canadian regiments are volunteering in a body for war, he foolishly jumped to the conclusion that this item was a reply to our article. Had he signed his name, we could have particularized the assentation of this reader, for we would advise him to read carefully again the article we wrote and see if his answer is any answer at all, especially as the news item came from an English, not a French paper.

Yes, French-Canadian regiments may volunteer, and French-Canadians may be all loyal, but why have the French papers been silent in their editorial utterances? A news item which may be only a rumor is no answer to our question. Our friend ought to know that there is a difference between the news and editorial columns of a newspaper, and when we refer to the editorial columns, we mean editorial columns, not news.

Since writing the article in question, Le Canada has made an announcement which we have already reproduced. La Presse of Tuesday commends the enthusiasm of the populace for Britain's support of the Entente Cordiale. It goes to the length of approving the half-pay payment by the city to families of municipal officers who have left to serve in the French army. But La Presse and La Patrie have not yet said pointedly in their editorial columns that Canada ought to aid Great Britain in this great conflict.

THE BATTLE OF EXTRAS.

A REGRETTABLE FEATURE of the effect of the European war on Canada has been the exploitation of the public by some newspapers through war extras. Owing to the very strict censorship which all countries concerned are placing on the issuance of news, very little real news is to be had. There is abundance of guff, rumors and such inflammatory stuff going over the wires, and, with this raw material, war extras play on the feelings of the public. The Review has already announced its policy to give its readers reliable news as quickly as possible, and to issue extras when deemed necessary, which may be depended upon. Concerning this aspect of affairs, the Toronto Telegram says:

> "The patriotic spirit which pervades all classes of the community is deserving of the best treatment by the press. The public is entitled to the latest information which comes across from embattled Europe. It should not be duped with wild rumors on catch-penny "extras."
>
> There has already been manifest in certain quarters a willingness to filch coppers through the medium of special editions publishing fabricated yarns to which all the red and black ink in the world cannot give a tittle of foundation. A strict censorship has been established to prevent the plans or proceedings of one power being made known to another. Genuine news is scant. In default of facts, a newspaper is guilty of an offence against its readers if it seeks to make capital out of its imagination. Punishment awaits, in the form of a lack of public confidence. Signs are not wanting that that punishment will be speedy. Yet the evil will have been done; the press of Toronto will have got an ill reputation for which both the innocent and the culpable will suffer.
>
> The Telegram believes that the interest of Canada in the European war situation is too vital to be trafficked in. It does not play a part in a futile fight between the 'extras' and the 'specials.' It has access to all the authentic news available, and through its regular editions has communicated it to its readers. It has gone to great expense to secure the fullest service, but has no thought of meeting that expense by trickery of its clientele. So far, the outstanding events have 'broken' at a time advantageous to the regular editions of the Telegram. In journalistic parlance, the European conflict is already called 'an evening paper war.' The evening papers, for instance, carried the announcement of Germany's declaration of war against Russia and Sir Edward Grey's pregnant speech in the House of Commons."

A CASE THAT SHOULD BE HEEDED.

AFTER A TRIP of nearly three thousand miles from her home in Ireland, says a news item in the Brockville Times, to visit her sister in Kingston, Miss Catherine Crowley, only twenty-one years old, was killed on Sunday morning ten miles from her destination owing to the fact that the lights were out on the order board of the little station of Findlay. The train stopped for a minute, the young girl alighted under the impression that the train had stopped at Kingston Junction, the train moved on, and apparently in endeavoring to walk along the track to her destination the poor bewildered girl was killed in solitude by an eastbound freight train.

This case shows the necessity for a more efficient way of apprising railway passengers of the names of towns to which they are going. The average brakeman usually has a pronunciation all his own, intended more to amuse travellers than to exhibit his capacity to pronounce English words. Places like Reaboro and Peterborough are so ably mispronounced that people cannot distinguish between them. The result is that every day people get off at wrong stations, and the case cited by the Brockville Times reveals to what a tragic end such a careless practice leads. The railways should take more care to inform their passengers properly of their destination, and guard them against getting off at the wrong place.

INDIA'S ECONOMIC GROWTH.

INDIA'S TRADE has increased during the last half century from $300,000,000 to more than $1,400,000,000. It has in operation 32,000 miles of railroad, which places India fourth in the world in its railroad mileage, carrying 330,000,000 passengers yearly at the rate of five miles for one cent. It maintains 76,000 miles of telegraph line, over which messages can be sent for more than 2,000 miles at a cost of only twelve cents.

India is now the largest exporter of rice in the world, holds first place in its exports of tea, next to Argentine is the largest exporter of hides, and next to the United States is the largest exporter of cotton in the world. Next to the United States and Russia it is the largest wheat-producing country. The Tata Iron Works in Bengal, employing 8,000 men, have laid down iron in San Francisco at less than the price charged by the United States Steel Corporation.

India's system of irrigation stands easily first in the world, being far more extensive than that of Egypt or America. Its more than 46,000 miles of irrigation canals have reclaimed more than 22,000,000 acres of land, and famine has been prevented forever in some districts.

Over the 'Phone.

"Well, there's been an addition to your family?"
"The deuce!"
"Exactly. Twins."

"QUICK MARCH."

One day there came calling across the blue sea
A voice from the Motherland—home of the free—
"O fair daughter Canada, what of thy sons?
"Are they men for my flag? Are they men for my guns?"

"Quick march!" was the answer; it rolled like a tide
From ocean to ocean, onrushing and wide.
And lo! there came marching the thousands as one—
The pride of the Empire, each, Canada's son.

A Young Promoter.

Everybody's.

George, age six, and Charley, age eight, were the sons of a promoter.

On Hallowe'en they were desirous of procuring some beans for their bean-blowers. They had no money for the purpose, and were in despair, when George, the younger, said to his brother: "I'll tell you what I'll do, Charley. You go to the grocery and charge ten cents' worth of beans to mamma,, and I'll give you half of them.

An Important Case.

Barrie Advance.

Judge Morson has been successful in his fight against the City of Toronto for the refund of income tax paid under protest. He sued the city for $70 paid in 1912 and obtained Judgment from Judge McGibbon of Brampton. The matter is of more than usual importance in view of the fact that if the city abandoned a proposed appeal to the Privy Council all the judiciary resident in Toronto will escape the payment of income tax, and the probability is that all other Dominion Government officials will speedily claim exemption.

No Divine Intervention.

Hamilton Herald.

Innumerable cruel scourges have afflicted humanity during the last two thousand years without any visible intervention by the Master in person. He has failed to appear in order to stop worse evils than the general European war now threatened. To stop any war why should such an intervention be expected? Did not the founder of Christianity instruct His disciples not to fear those who would destroy the body, but rather those who would destroy the soul? Our correspondent need not look for any divine intervention to save men from being killed and maimed in war.

It is Really Uncanny.

Toronto Star.

We have heard how news is transmitted from end to end of India with mysterious swiftness. We have heard of the heliograph and other modern military methods of signalling. We have marvelled at wireless telegraphy. But the melonpirates appear to have a process which surpasses all these in mysterious efficiency. No beacons blaze, no heliograph flashes, yet the moment a melon appears in Scarboro' township the fact is instantly known in North Gwillimbury and Etobicoke, in Peel and Halton, in Ontario and Simcoe, and all along the banks of the Ottawa and the St. Lawrence and the shores of the Great Lakes, even unto Fort William.

THE DREAM.

(To an Old Englishman.)

By Nina Randall.

Home is to him a clinging memory—
He dreams, while sleeping in his chair, that he
Down flings himself to kiss the blessed sod
That dearer seems to him than aught, save God.
Forgotten are all later loves and vows,
He plucks a primrose 'neath the greening boughs,
Or sits 'mid bluebells on a grassy knoll
And harkens to the old, old church bell toll,
"Ding-dong." How many a tale from days of yore
Those wonderful enchanted days before
Adventure led him far by land and sea!
How strong were then his arms, how full his heart of glee!
And how his youth seems wafted back again,
From hedges in a hawthorne-blossomed lane;
And the same roses bloom, and welcome give
Back to the sheltering walls where he did live.
He thrills with joy at sound of skylark's song,
Gazes, until the tiny speck among
The clouds is lost, and when it disappears
He wakes, to find his lashes wet with tears.

Britain's Danger.

Toronto Mail and Empire.

The greatest danger to Britain and the British Empire is the power of Germany. That danger would become tenfold greater if Britain were to look idly on while Germany and her ally shattered the power of France and Russia. The smashing defeat Germany inflicted on France 43 years ago was made harder to bear by the huge war indemnity of $1,200,000,000 levied upon the vanquished. That spoil gave Germany the start on her wonderful career as an industrial and commercial nation. She has come to the time when she could make use of another big assessment upon the wealth of her neighbors. If she goes much farther along her present path of steeper and steeper expenditure on army and navy account she is not unlikely to reach the goal of national bankruptcy, for the burden is becoming intolerable for the people. If she and her partner were allowed to prostrate and plunder their neighbors without risking the German navy she might make another vast haul and have funds enough to finance still greater programmes of naval and military expansion. There would then be small chance for Britain. Since Germany means to fight now, now is the time for all the powers she has designs upon to confront her together and in their full might.

GLORY AND GOODNESS

By Walt Mason

We can't all rise to shining heights of glory, we can't all climb Fame Mountain's snowy hood, but we can make our lives all hunky-dory, and worth the while, if we will but be good. The lust for wealth bespeaks the spirit's blindness; when I am dead I'd rather have folks say, "His heart possessed the milk of human kindness," than have them speak of scads I put away. A little fame too often makes us haughty, makes us forget that we're but common mud, and we swell up, until becoming dotty, we take a fall, and make a sick'ning thud. When we've success in sordid worldly matters, we feel contempt for all the ones who fall; we view with scorn the poor man's rags and tatters, and heedless hear the hungry orphan's wail. We waste our lives in tawdry triumphs winning, for useless gawds we strive and toil and grind; and even now, as at the world's beginning, the kind heart beats the proud and mighty mind. Let us be good, be kind, oh man and maiden, let us be true, and squarely play the game ,and we'll stack high among the hosts of Aidenn, and that will beat your little Hall of Fame.

One million six hundred thousand dollars gold was engaged for shipment to Canada in New York yesterday afternoon.

Fire destroyed a barn, shop and shed at Port Carling, Ont., yesterday afternoon, belonging to the Wm. Davies Co. of Toronto.

Of the bodies of 12 men found in the Empress of Ireland wreck Tuesday almost all were those of members of the crew, and were all found at their posts.

At a meeting of the council of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association, held at Ottawa last evening, it was decided to abandon the prize meeting for 1914.

Geo. B. McLeod, aged 17, of Kingston, a wireless operator, and son of P. C. McLeod, is on some unknown German steamer and his parents are worrying over his safety.

When he drove his car at a fast clip against the sides of a street car Tuesday night, Jean Gagnon, of Quebec, chauffeur for Dr. Robert Larue, sent three occupants of the vehicle to their death.

There is every likelihood the Dominions Royal Commission will cancel entirely its engagements in Canada until the present condition of European affairs, in which Great Britain is involved, are cleared.

REVERSES AT SEA.

Germany Has Day of Tribulation With Naval Forces.

ALGIERS, Aug. 6.—(Via London.)—Authentic confirmation of the report of the destruction of the German cruiser Panther and of the capture of the German cruisers Goeben and Breslau reached here yesterday.

After bombarding the Algerian town of Bona, the Goeben, Breslau and Panther were caught by British and French squadrons, which had been awaiting them. The French warships captured the Goeben and Breslau.

German Steamer Captured.

LONDON, Aug. 6. — Confirmation has been received of the report that a French warship has captured the German steamer Porto off Guernsey, Channel Islands. The Porto, which belongs to the Oldenburg-Portuguese Steamship Co., is a vessel of 1,800 tons and plies between Germany and Portugeese ports.

Third Cruiser Captured.

LONDON, Aug. 6. — The French Embassy announced last night that France has captured a third German cruiser. It is believed that the French fleet cut off one of the German North Sea scout cruisers and forced it to surrender.

Koenigin Luise Destroyed.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The Admiralty last night announced that it had officially confirmed the report that a British torpedo-boat destroyer flotilla yesterday blew up and sank the German mine-laying vessel Koenigin Luise in the North Sea.

The Koenigin Luise is a twin-screw mail steamship of over 10,800 tons displacement. Some time ago she was taken off the passenger service of the North German Lloyd Line.

PRESS TO KEEP SILENT.

Col. Hughes Asks That Papers Refrain From Chronicling Movements.

OTTAWA, Aug. 6.—Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes has issued a special request to the press of Canada to refrain from publishing anything about military operations and to abstain from publishing unauthorized statements about the assembling or moving of regiments, purchase of remounts, stores or supplies, erection of fortifications, etc. "We may be certain," he says, "that the agents of hostile powers are searching your papers eagerly for statements as to the movements of our artillery forces, the nature and disposition of our defences and other facts bearing on the prosecution of the war."

The publication of such information, he adds, will help the enemy, while its suppression will help Canada very considerably. France was hurt, he says, by the publication of war operations in 1870 and Japan was aided by the suppression of such news in 1904-5, and in the South African war many valuable lives were lost through the publication of war news.

He concluded with the assurance that the Department of Militia will give out such information as is usually supplied, having regard to the restraint referred to.

JUST BEFORE THE WEDDING

The bride:
"I wonder if Tom's mother will like me
Or if she will poke fun at all I do.
I wonder if the nice things she will see
About me that her son professes to.
I wonder!"

The bride's mother:
"I wonder if at home he'll nightly stay
And if he will continue to adore her.
I wonder if she'll manage him the way
I have her dear old doting dad before her!
I wonder!"

The bridegroom:
"I wonder if Jeanne's mother will turn out
To be a ma-in-law to conjure fear.
I wonder if she'll often be about
And if she'll always be so sweet and dear.
I wonder!"

The bridegroom's mother:
"I wonder if Tom's wife knows how to cook
And if she'll think I'm very queer and prim.
I wonder how her house is going to look
And if she's really good enough for him.
I wonder!"

The fathers (in chorus):
"We wonder how much money it will take
To keep them going for a year or two.
We wonder if those kids will really make
A fortune, as they're planning now to do.
We wonder!"

NEW IDEAS

Having had the advantage of the recent valuable lectures and demonstrations given at the Eastman School by professional photographers, I am better prepared than ever to guarantee even higher results. The newest ideas in the various processes of photography, new methods, materials and mounts, to keep abreast of the times.

Thinking of Something Else

Troubles of An Absentminded Man in Love

By MAUD HALLOWELL

"Whatever you do, Sue," said Dr. John Murray's wife, half laughing, half angry, "don't you ever marry an absentminded man. A man that is always 'thinking of something else,' like that big husband of mine, may be wonderfully good at his profession, because that's what he's always thinking about, but he is surely a domestic trial at times."

Mrs. Murray laughed, her ill nature having evaporated completely under the heat of her little outburst. Her visitor, Susan Harland, laughed with her, for Dr. Murray's wonderful feats in his fits of abstraction were famous.

"Why, Sue," continued Mrs. Murray, laughing gayly at the recollection, "do you remember when I had that touch of rheumatic fever? One night when I was burning with thirst I woke John and said to him, 'John, if you don't get me a drink of water quick I don't know that I'll live till morning.'

"He got up, sort of dazed, walked over to the mantelpiece and came back to me holding out an empty vase. I wanted a drink of water that much that I hung on to my patience until he was wide awake and knew what I was talking about. Then he went to the refrigerator and came back with a glass brimming full of good cold water. But, if you will believe it, Sue, he just stood there looking at me, and before I could say a word that man drank every drop of that water himself with me glaring holes through him. I declare, it makes me angry to this day!"

They were going to a dance and were waiting for Dr. Murray to escort them.

"No, Sue; don't you ever marry an absentminded man," said Mrs. Murray impressively when they drove away at last, with Dr. John safely opposite them.

"As long as he isn't too absentminded to attend the wedding, Sue," chuckled Dr. John, "you take him, provided his name is Dick Kendall."

Sue was glad that the darkness hid her blushes.

"Dick is going to do something great in chemistry, I do believe," said Dr. John. "There's his compound of phospho"—

"A wife wants something besides your old phosphates and other ill smelling things," said Mrs. Murray. "Dick Kendall is as bad as you are. He's just as likely as not to come to the dance tonight with his old laboratory coat on."

Dick Kendall did not fulfill Mrs. Murray's dark prophecy literally, but he did so in effect. It is true that he was soberly and blamelessly clad in his evening clothes, but the tout ensemble was somewhat marred by the sad fact that he had a patent leather pump on one foot and a bright russet shoe on the other.

Sue blushed and then she flushed, and then she grew angry as the titters and smiles ran around the room when unconscious Dick hurried forward to meet her.

Luckless Dick was doomed to further disgrace. He had barely repaired the disaster of the shoes by sending a messenger posthaste to his home for the other pump when something worse happened.

During a waltz, when Miss Sue was his partner, somebody brushed again Dick. There was a sharp crackling of broken glass, and the next instant the couple was wreathed in beautiful violet smoke that gradually filled the room.

Nobody had leisure or desire to observe the beauty of its color though. It was so instantly suffocating that there was a mad, wild rush for doors and French windows.

The accident filled Sue's cup, and it brimmed over—only a little, but too much. In her anger she stamped her foot and cried: "Dick Kendall, your absentmindedness apparently extends only to me and not to your profession. It is plain that you care more for chemistry than for me, and it would be a thousand pities to disturb your devotion."

She stripped the ring from her finger, and he took it in bewildered silence. Before he could reply she had turned her back and the next moment was walking up the corridor with Dick's pet aversion, Charles Maule, whom everybody called "the model Maul," in apt description of his mental equipment.

Miss Sue's words had been uttered in the hearing of many persons. Next day the news of the broken engagement was all over town.

Dick tried to placate the girl, but with characteristic lack of policy he did not wait for her anger to cool off. The result was that the breach seemed final to him. In his simplicity he believed every angry word she said and did not realize that the girl was eager to forgive as soon as she had punished him a little.

Dick was absentminded about little things, but not about great ones. With a heart full to breaking, he made his preparations to leave the place.

A week afterward Sue stopped at Dr. Murray's house to accompany Mrs. Murray and the doctor on a drive into the country. Dr. John was not there when she arrived.

"I hope he hasn't gone to bed by mistake," said Sue, smiling. She was cheerful, for she had made up her mind to write to Dick, forgiving him and asking him frankly to forgive her.

"No," said Mrs. John. "Didn't I tell you where he was going this morning? He went to drive Dick Kendall down to the harbor to see him off on the Viking."

Susan Harland's half opened lips and startled eyes showed her surprise.

"Didn't you know?" said Mrs. Murray, embarrassed. "Dick is going on a cruise around the world with his friend Randall, who bought that big yacht Viking."

Susan sprang up, casting aside all pretense, like the honest, warm hearted girl she was. "Kate," she cried. "I can't let him go! I cannot! I cannot! I was wicked. As if I would lose Dick for all the absentmindedness in the world! Oh, Kate, we must stop him! I don't care what people think!"

"Sue, dear," said Mrs. Murray, "it is too late. Look!" She led Sue to a window that commanded a view across a bluff and far to sea. Some miles out a great steam yacht was steaming toward the horizon.

"I must cable to him at once—at once!" said Sue passionately. For a few minutes Mrs. Murray made no reply, but held her arms around the girl and stroked her hair.

"You must be patient, dear, now, and plucky for awhile. The Viking is bound to the south Pacific, and we shall not be able to reach her for some time—perhaps for six months."

She led the sobbing girl into the library, bestowed her comfortably in an easy chair and wisely left her alone to have her cry and her trouble by herself till the first keenness should have worn off.

She had scarcely re-entered the drawing room before she heard her husband driving up to the door. A moment afterward there entered two men, looking very, very sheepish and guilty. They were Dr. John and—Dick Kendall.

"Now, don't scold and don't laugh, Kate," implored Dr. John. "I'll tell you what happened. I picked Dick up all right at his lodgings, and we did all you told us to do, saw that everything was locked up and counted his baggage and made sure that he had his money in his pockets. See, here's your memorandum, all checked off. But, Kate," added Dr. John, with a twinkle, half humorous, half ashamed, "you forgot to add on the memorandum that Dick was to be delivered on board the Viking."

"And so, you know," interposed Dick, eager to divert blame from his friend's head, "I got to telling John about a new test for white blood corpuscles, and we got interested and stopped for just a few minutes at the board of health laboratory."

"And then, as usual, you forgot all about a little thing like a trip around the world," Mrs. Murray burst out. But, strangely enough, there was a delighted smile on her face.

Taking Dick Kendall by the shoulder, she pushed him toward the library. "Now, you great, useless child," said she, with her eyes shining, "you go in there and sit down for a moment. I have something to say to the doctor."

She closed the door behind him and ran to Dr. John, clapping her hands softly. Dr. John didn't look at all absentminded when she whispered to him, but gazed at the door with as much eagerness and joy in his face as there was in hers.

They waited a quarter of an hour with highly commendable patience. Then Mrs. Murray walked to the door and knocked, but not before she had heard Dick Kendall's deep voice:

"Think of something else? Sue, I couldn't think of anything except that I had lost you."

And before the door opened Sue said: "Stop, you bear! You've nearly knocked my hat off."

TORTURED BY CONSTIPATION
"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Paralyzed Bowels and Digestion
ST. BONIFACE DE SHAWINIGAN, QUE. Feb. 3rd, 1914.
"It is a pleasure to me to inform you that after suffering from Chronic Constipation for 2½ years, I have been cured by "Fruit-a-tives". While I was a student at Berthier College, I became so ill I was forced to leave the the college. Severe pains across the intestines continually tortured me and it came to a point when I could not stoop down at all, and my Digestion became paralyzed. Some one advised me to take "Fruit-a-tives" and at once I felt a great improvement. After I had taken four or five boxes, I realized that I was completely cured and what made me glad, also, was that they were acting gently, causing no pain whatever to the bowels. All those who suffer with Chronic Constipation should follow my example and take "Fruit-a-tives" for they are the medicine that cures".
MAGLOIRE PAQUIN
"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Too Good a Villain.

An actor in a small company was unable one night to get accommodation at the only hotel in an English town, it is said, because its proprietor, a remarkably slow going person for such a place, recognized him as the villain in the melodrama who had stolen a cash box, set fire to a house, killed a detective, damaged a race horse and betrayed the hero's sister.

But something like this really did happen to George Scott, manager of the Alhambra in London. In his younger days Mr. Scott was a stage villain of the deepest dye, and one of his favorite parts was that of the wicked Levison in "East Lynne."

After playing the character a few nights in Blackpool he had occasion for wishing to change his lodgings and, knocking at the door of a house in the next street, was greeted by the good lady who opened it with a shriek and the subsequent exclamation:

"What! It's Levison, the dirty villain! Ye can't 'ave rooms in my 'ouse! Get out or I'll call the perlice!"

John Locke.

John Locke, whose "Essay on the Human Understanding" was the first work that attracted attention in England to metaphysical speculation, was born at Wrington, England, Aug. 29, 1632, and died at Oates, England, Oct. 28, 1704. The chief purpose of the essay was to find the original source and scope of human knowledge. The conclusions he arrived at in this study were that there is no such thing as "innate idea; that the human mind is as a sheet of white paper prepared to be written upon; that the knowledge thereon written is supplied by experience and that sensation and reflection are the two sources of all our ideas." He made the first sketch when he was thirty-eight years of age and finished it seventeen years later. The book was bitterly attacked.

NORWOOD NEWS NOTES

Special Correspondence.

Norwood, Aug. 6.—The Norwood Board of Education met at the High School. There were present Messrs. R. P. Cuffe, chairman, W. H. Cuthbertson, Thos. Burkell, John Doherty, Donald MacNaughton, John Marks, E. C. Squire, E. H. Scott, J. F. Elliott, G. E. Pakenham.

Minutes of the last regular meeting and also of two special meetings were read and adopted. The chairman reported public school insurance placed, $3,500 in the Royal and $3,500 in the Liverpool, London and Globe.

He also reported that Miss Marjorie E. Ross had been engaged on the High School staff at $750, but she had afterwards resigned. Miss Lillian M. Allen, B.A., of Toronto, had then been procured at the same salary.

Notice was received from Inspector R. Lees, M.A., that the Government grants to our public school for 1914 would be regular grant $70, special grant, $105.87.

The following accounts were passed.

Curtis Bros., Peterboro, 1,000 bricks, $12.00.

Robert Martin, repairing public school chimney, $43.00.

P. M. Grover, 6 hours' time, $1.50.

John Weese, kalsomining public school, $40.00.

W. A. Richardson, insurance on public school, $60.75.

Expenses of Entrance examinations—Miss E. L. Waters, $23.64; R. G. Lawlor, B. A., $26.99.; G. E. Broderick, $6.71; L. Lees, M.A., $15.33—$72.67.

E. J. Laing, postage on circulars, $1.50.

Bell Telephone Co., $1.50.

Moved by Messrs. McNaughton and W. H. Cuthbertson that Messrs. Squire, Pakenham, and Elliott, be a committee to convey to the principals and staff of our high and public schools the satisfaction and appreciation of the Board at the splendid results obtained at the recent Entrance and Departmental examinations. Carried unanimously.

Nearly 100 per cent. of the pupils of the Norwood High and Public schools were successful at the recent examinations.

A large contingent of Norwood people went to Stoney Lake to-day to attend the Regatta at Crow's Landing.

Quite a number of Norwood citizens took in the Trent Bridge Regatta on Monday of this week and all reported having a good time.

That the people of Norwood are true to the "Old Flag" and ready to defend it against its enemies is evidenced by the attitude everybody is assuming as the war cloud grows blacker. Should volunteers be wanted Norwood can be relied upon to supply her share of recruits to march to the defence of the Empire.

Mr. J. Stan. Weir of the Bank of Toronto, London, visited his home here a couple of days within the past week.

The staff of the Norwood Register are taking their annual two weeks' vacation, this week and next. Consequently no local paper will be published until the 20th inst.

Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Keefer are spending part of their holidays at her old home, Forest, Ont.

Two more Ford automobiles have been purchased by Norwood people, viz.: Mr. W. C. Harrison and Mr. Percy Wilson. This makes nine Ford cars in Norwood with several in the surrounding country.

Mr. Alex Kempt has had a nice balcony placed over the front of his store on Peterboro Street. The balcony is put upon substantial wooden brackets and therefore has no posts to interfere with the traffic.

The Panther's Place in History

Bona is avenged. The bombardment of that North African town by the German cruiser Breslau had an early and most salutary result. The Breslau, with two other cruisers, the Goeben and the Panther, was surprised by the French Mediterranean fleet near Algiers. The Breslau and Goeben were captured. The Panther was sunk. The Panther has a place in history. The Morocco Crisis was precipitated by the arrival of the Panther in the port of Agadir. Doubtless the French gunners sunk the vessel with peculair satisfaction. The action of Germany with respect to Morocco was the first foreshadowing of the present war. France, on that occasion, was bullied, but rested calm in the support of Great Britain, Russia and the United States. The foreign editor of the Prussian Year Book declared after the conclusion of the Algeciras Conference, which regulated the Moroccan Question, that before two years sufficient inflammable material would have accumulated in Morocco to produce a conflagration. The Treaty was signed in March, 1912. This is August, 1914, so the prophecy was as accurate as it was cynical. And the Panther is at the bottom of the sea!

Bust of Connaught.

Mr. Frederick Lessore, the English sculptor, is now on his way to London, Eng., with a bust of the Duke of Connaught, which was recently modelled at Ottawa, and is said to be the best portrait of any kind ever made of the duke. In London the model will be finished in bronze for the duke's London house. It shows His Royal Highness in simple service uniform, his military cloak flung loosely over his shoulders.

TOO EARLY FOR BATTLES

Present Fighting on Frontier to Cover Mobilization

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The military correspondent of The Times says it will take Germany nine days or more to place upon the French frontier forces adequate to challenge the French masses, and it will take France about the same time to assemble all her army. The advance on one side or the other or on both can hardly begin before Aug. 14. The first decisive battles of the war are expected to take place between Aug. 16 and 22.

During the next week or ten days, combats and battles, of which we shall probably read, will not be the shock of main masses but of covering troops which are organized on all the continental frontiers, and have a special mission. This mission is to cover and protect from hostile intrusion the zone of concentration of the main armies; and the mission may or may not include offensive operations.

FIVE THOUSAND FOR GERMAN FLAG

Paris Flag Manufacturer Makes the Offer

PARIS, Aug 6.—(Via London.)—A substantial cash prize will go to the French soldier who captures the first German flag taken in the war.

Paul Charnier, manufacturer of flags in Paris, yesterday offered a reward of 5,000 francs ($1,000) to the Frenchman, no matter what rank, who wrests away from its bearer the first Teutonic standard. He posted the money in cash with Le Matin, a daily newspaper.

Great enthusiasm was aroused by his offer.

A BIG VOTE IS LIKELY

Duty of Parliament Will be to Raise War Funds

OTTAWA, Aug. 6.—The Government is continuing to deal with details of all kinds in connection with the sending of the contingent, the coast defences and other matters. A constant stream of cablegrams is passing between the Government here and the Imperial authorities on various matters, including some in which the Government has sought advice from the Home Government.

An important question to be dealt with by the Government and Parliament will be the means of raising the war funds. There have been rumors of a vote of fifty millions, but this is probably far about the mark. The first vote, at least, is likely to be much less. The total expense of the war, of course, will depend on its duration and the character of service the Canadian troops are called on to perform.

But whatever the cost and whatever means are considered the best for raising the money, there is not the slightest doubt that the temper and spirit of the Canadian people in the present crisis will ensure for the Government strong and united support.

The first army division of some 21,000 men will probably be enlisted and gathered at Quebec by the time Parliament meets on Aug. 18. They will include 18,000 infantry, 2,000 cavalry and the rest artillery, engineering corps, signalling corps, army medical corps, etc. If the war lasts any considerable time, another army division will be mobilized and it is felt that there will be no more trouble raising the second contingent than the first.

HARVEST HELP EXCURSIONS

$12.00 to Winnipeg August 11 and 18th

The Grand Trunk Railway System will run Harvest Help excursions via Chicago and Duluth on August 11 and 18, from all stations in Ontario, Kingston, Renfrew and west at low rate of $12.00 to Winnipeg, plus half cent. per mile from Winnipeg to destination. First excursion on August 11 applies to all points in Manitoba. Second excursion on August 18 to certain points in Saskatchewan and Alberta and all points in Manitoba. Returning, half cent per mile to Winnipeg, plus $18.00 from Winnipeg to destination in Eastern Canada.

The route via Chicago is an attractive one, many large cities and towns being passed en route, which breaks the monotony of the journey. The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is the shortest and quickest route between Winnipeg, Saskatoon and Edmonton and traverses some of the best farming country in Manitoba and the most rapidly developing section of Western Canada.

Full particulars at all Grand Trunk Ticket Offices or write C. E. Horning, District Passenger Agent, Union Station, Toronto. Ont.

NO NEWS FROM THE SEA

"What of the Fleet" is the One Question in Britain

LONDON, Aug. 6.—What of the North Sea? The one question on the lips of all Britain remains unanswered. In London anxious throngs wait about the War Office all day and all night. Dense crowds are gathered at Westminster. The streets are packed with questioning humanity.

Official lips are sealed in silence and secrecy. No word has been spoken concerning the fleet that steamed to battle in the darkness of Tuesday's early morn. No communication has yet come from the vital sea.

Many rumors spent their empty force against the silence of the Admiralty. The newspapers published stories from Hull saying that heavy firing had been heard in the coast city since daybreak. If battle was raging within sound distance of this port it was regarded as a clash between British and German scout ships, since the main column of the Kaiser's aramada is still reported as clinging to the German naval base at the mouth of the Elbe. Other stories said that two German battleships had been sunk.

Later in the day the Mayor of Margate reported to the authorities that tremendous cannonading could be heard at that point from the direction of the North Sea. He expressed his belief that the rival naval forces were engaged in a death duel not far from the British shores.

None of these reports were confirmed by the Admiralty. It seems evident that officialdom takes the view that any engagements near the shores of the mother island are merely clashes between scouting cruisers.

The exact position of the main British fleet is believed to be known to the Government to-day, as the wireless was busy for some time last night.

RIVAL WAR CHESTS OF BELLIGERENTS

RESOURCES OF TRIPLE ENTENTE ARE GREATLY IN EXCESS OF THEIR OPPONENTS.

Financial preponderance in the European alignment of the powers is found to rest with the triple ntente composed of the United Kingdom, France and Russia, their combined revenues being nearly $3,500,000,000. The combined revenues of the triple alliance, embracing Germany, Austria and Italy, are somewhat in excess of $2,000,000,000.

The total wealth of the triple alliance is estimated at $105,500,000,000, while that of the triple entente is placed at $180,000,000,000, which is $80,000,000,000 in excess of that of the rival powers.

The triple alliance makes the better showing when it comes to a debt, the total of the alliance being something more than $5,300,000,000, while that of the triple entente is in excess of $14,300,000,000.

A detailed statement of the financial conditions of the powers compared with that of the United States, which makes a far better showing than any of them, follows:

	Revenue.	Debt.	Total Wealth.
TRIPLE ALLIANCE.
Germany	$ 879,656,000	$1,177,418,000	$ 60,500,000,000
Austria	636,909,000	1,177,418,000	25,000,000,000
Italy	512,800,000	2,706,609,000	20,000,000,000
TRIPLE ENTENTE.
United Kingdom .	$ 918,805,000	$3,485,818,000	$ 80,000,000,000
France	914,604,000	6,283,675,000	65,000,000,000
Russia	1,674,038,000	4,553,488,000	40,000,000,000
UNITED STATES.
	$ 992,249,000	$1,028,344,000	$130,000,000,000

Nichols Brothers Fined for Assault

Lindsay, Aug. 6.—County Magistrate F. D. Moore gave judgment yesterday in the Bobcaygeon assault case in which the Nichols brothers of that place assaulted Joe and Roy Whetung.

Percy Nichols was fined $20 for assaulting Joe Whetung, and also fined additionally for assault on Roy Whetung. Herb Nichols was fined $5 for assault on Roy Whetung. Garner Nichols was fined $5 for assault on Roy Whetung. Matt Nichols' fine was $20 for assault on Roy Whetung. Costs were also added to each fine.

The case against Alfred Nicholls was dismissed and the charge of assault against Whetung brothers was also dismissed.

All the Nichols were bound over to keep the peace for one year. Matt and Percy were bound over to keep the peace for two years.

Are the Lawyers the Best Walkers

Which profession produces the best walkers?

Some assert it is medicine, others the ministry, while still others, and among them the officers of the steamships of the Northern Navigation Company that make the trip to Duluth, declare it is the law. They reach the conclusion through watching the many passengers who take advantage of the promenade decks around the Noronic, Hamonic and Huronic. Six times around these boats measures a mile, and many there are who, during the cruise, circle it numberless times. One of the objections a landsman always has held against a long trip on the water was that there was no place aboard to "stretch his legs." This does not obtain, however, with these big steamers that are patterned after the ocean liners and that permit of a straight-away walk unencumbered by chairs.

Just why lawyers should be the best walkers, however, does not appear, and it is proving an interesting little problem. Many think nothing of a constitutional of three miles or so before breakfast, and it frequently happens that they choose to wind the day up in similar fashion.

"One solution that I have thought of is that there probably are more lawyers among the ranks of golf players than there are members of any other profession," says H. H. Gildersleeve, general manager of the Northern Navigation Company. "As everyone knows, golf is a great walking game. A man who spends day after day in his office, who either motors there or goes in a street car, does not have much of a chance to walk. Consequently it is a great pleasure to him to get out on the links and spend an afternoon or two a week. His muscles get hard and he finds the exercise invigorating.

"Such men appreciate the promenade advantages afforded by the lake and ocean steamers. They enable them to keep in trim, and the walk of a mile or so in the bracing air off the water gives an edge to their appetites and clears their minds.

"Put one of these men—a person who is a golf player—on the promenade deck by the side of a man who is not a lover of the Scottish game, and the golfer will be the better stayer every time. Golf is not the only sport by any means, but it is a sport in which every one participates. There are thousands of baseball and race enthusiasts who have never taken part in these amusements—they are onlookers. Golf is a sport at which each person can try his hand. I just believe that is why we find lawyers are better walkers than are the men in the other professions."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

CANADA'S SHARE.

Editor Review:

Dear Sir:—The editorials in The Examiner on Canada's share in the crisis would be allowed to pass quietly as a graceful backdown if it were not that they pretend so much that is not true. The Examiner ridiculed month after month an Emergency. It supported Sir Wilfrid Laurier's policy which refused to pledge itself to help Britain beforehand and might refuse in certain cases altogether. This policy has been kicked to pieces even by Quebec, and if Conservatives are willing to let bygones be bygones, the least the Examiner can do is to be thankful and shut up.

READER.

NATURE AND WAR.

Editor, Review:

Sir,—Letters to the press from peace advocates deplore the horrors of war. How do the horrors of life and of nature compare with the horrors of war? All nature is in a perpetual state of war. People who deplore all forms of war, justifiable or otherwise, must deplore the fact that nature was ever created. It appears to have been a mistake and a failure. Even the most advanced "believers" do not pretend that faith, even of the purest type, can reform all that part of nature external to man. Having once been dragged down by the Fall, it must remain so. There is no salvation for nature outside man. It must remain at war. This is all on the theory that nature was made for man alone, that the heavens, etc., were all made for his benefit, but that, like a bad child, he has broken all his playthings. However, whether this is so or not, will you please tell us if there is likely to be a public meeting to protest against nature's wars? Also, if the easy-going, nice people are in charge of the whole business, and if not, why not?

Yours,
GALWAY.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

Editor, Review:—

Dear Sir,—Seeing things in your valuable paper about Woman Suffrage, I wish to say that I do not think the Woman Suffrage people, or indeed women in general, realize that they are supposed to take their directions from men. It will be remembered by those of at least one faith in particular that the command given to feed the sheep and the lambs was not given to a woman, that all that attaches to the command, and directions given at that time, is given to a man, and subsequently to men, and by no straining can it be made out that woman had any part in it. Well, if this be the case, what's the use of women giving their opinions by suffrage or in any other way? It is only a mockery. There is very little use in men being suffragists unless they can so make out that directions were given to them also, but it is clear that women have no such right, and since that is the case the agitation for women's franchise can only have an unhappy end. How could women demand franchise and yet bow to the will of a man exclusively in all matters of right and wrong, commonly called "morals" or in matters of religion? They would want to exercise the privilege which is included in the suffrage, that is, the privilege of their own opinion, which they cannot have, if what I say is right, and the outcome would be trouble. Is it not better for women to realise this and to take their directions from men, as both Nature and God seem to indicate? I leave this with my dear friends who do so many good things for us so well and kindly, trusting that they will see the error of their ways and submit to the great law I have referred to.

Yours truly,
T. M. F. G.

The New Dress Goods and Suitings Are Already Here, Direct From England, France and Germany

Many are already taking advantage of our early showing of new Fall Dress Goods and Suitings. They have already selected their materials, realizing that in a few short weeks Fall will be right with us. Our showing includes the most correct and most clever style features that will be seen—direct importations from England, France and Germany. No matter whether it is your intention to buy just now or not, come in and inspect these new goods. You will be most favorably impressed with the many new style features and the wonderful variety.

A few suggestions:

PERMO CREPE; a fabric of unusual beauty; it is a mixture of silk and wool, but has the appearance of a very rich silk. This material will be one of the season's favorites, and will be much in demand for early Fall dresses; its wonderful draping and wearing qualities are indisputable. Shown in all the newest shades, including Bamboo Brown, Mulberry, Midnight Blue, King's Blue, also lighter shades for evening wear. Width 42 ins. and priced at $1.50 and .. $1.75

TRICORD; very similar in appearance to a Bedford Cord, but with a much narrower cord effect; very stylish in appearance and will be used extensively for early Fall dresses, shown in the newest shades, such as Tangerine, Mulberry, Cadet Blue, Bamboo Brown, etc. Width 48 inches, price, 75c. and $1.25

BROADCLOTHS; a very strong feature of the coming season is the complete return to favor of Broadcloths. These will be used most extensively for tailored suits, also capes for early Fall wear. A full range of colors are shown at $1.25 and $1.50

GUN CHECKS; particularly smart in appearance are these; they have the popular velour finish. We are showing them with a blue ground and green check, with over check of red, also with tan ground with black check and over check of blue. This fabric will be in great demand for skirts and capes. Priced at $1.65

Also an extensive range of fancy plaids, tartans and reversible check coatings, priced from $1.25 to $2.25

THIEVES STILL ON THE JOB AT SCUGOGVILLE

Burke's Grocery Store is Robbed of Cash and Tobacco

Lindsay, Aug. 6.—Another robbery was reported yesterday morning from the south ward. Some time last night robbers entered Mr. J. C. Burke's store at the corner of Russel and Lindsay St. and took about $12 in cash and a small amount of tobacco and cigars. A number of other packages of tobacco were opened as if to sample the contents.

The thieves gained admittance through a window in the kitchen by taking out the screen. They then entered the store and proceeded to help themselves. Upon leaving the store they unlocked the front door, taking the key with them.

Mr. Burke heard a slight noise in the night, but as it was not repeated he did not bother getting up. Mr. Burke thinks that local young men are the thieves.

GRASS FIRE.

The firemen answered a call, late yesterday afternoon to the corner of London and Park Streets. The grass between the G.T.R. tracks and the residence of Ald. Green was on fire. Two lines of hose were laid and the fire extinguished, with no damage resulting.

Brooklyn, N.Y., has 36 school playgrounds in operation.

NETS CONFISCATED.

Captain Carson on the Government patrol boat Naiad confiscated 600 yards of new netting in Lake Simcoe on Tuesday night. The netting had been placed but recently and up to the present no clue as to the owner has been found.

Isn't it strange that the girls whom people get off in corners to talk about are invariably the centre of the largest group at every gathering?

The Clearing House

The following are the figures handed out by the manager of the Clearing House today for the week ending this morning:

Total for the week	$553,657
Last week	371,443
Increase	182,214
Corresponding week last month	470,828

The cause given for the big increase is that the majority of the money paid into the City Treasury for taxes this year came during the week.

Wonder how many of those men have enlisted who objected to giving women votes because they couldn't defend their country in case of need?
